THE BANK STATEMENT.

Banks Gain Cash but Show Small Loss in Surplus Reserve.

The banks reported a gain of $1,135,600 in cash in Saturday's statement, but the deposits increased by a sufficient amount to more than offset the gain in cash. The surplus reserve decreased by $598,575, reducing that item to $5,865,125. At this time a year ago the banks reported a surplus of $5,154,175.

The large reduction in loans which was a feature of the previous week's statement was followed this past week by an increase in loans amounting to $5,852,900. Deposits increased by $6,936,700.

The items of last week's bank statement, the changes from the preceding week, and the statement of March 18, 1905, follow:

THE STEEL TRADE POSITION.

Pittsburg Reports Lull Owing to Coal Situation—Pennsylvania to Use Open Hearth Steel Rails.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., March 17.—Open hearth steel will hereafter be used by the Pennsylvania Road in the manufacture of steel rails, this steel taking the place of Bessemer steel, which has been used for years and years by not only the Pennsylvania but by all other lines. This announcement, made in Pittsburg a few days since, caused somewhat of a sensation, and though the announcement cannot be said to have been official, it comes from a number of reliable sources and may be considered absolutely correct. That the Pennsylvania has for a long time been experimenting on the relative values of Bessemer and open hearth steel for use in rails is known, and that it has finally arrived at the conclusion that open hearth steel is preferable is asserted.

Yet it will be only for straightaway track or light grades that the open hearth steel rails will be used. On grades of high degree or sharp curves there will be used a special rail of nickel steel, which has been proved to have the highesa resistance to wear and tear.

It would appear that the big steel interests in the Pittsburg district had some foreknowledge of this decision on the part of the Pennsylvania Railroad, for the capacity of the open-hearth furnaces of the Carnegie Steel Company and other big concerns have been practically doubled lately. The Carnegie makes most of the rails for the Pennsylvania, and there will not be much of a rush to change furnaces now. The nickel steel rails will also be easy for the furnaces in the vicinity of Pittsburg, as the basis of these rails is open-hearth steel. There is a rumor here that the Vanderbilts want to do away with the Bessemer rail, which is said to be too soft, and take up the harder open-hearth rail. Taking it all around, it would seem that the Bessemer rail has seen its day, and it is almost sure that there will be an advance soon in the price of open-hearth rails. Quotations at present on the rails are as follows: Standard sections, 50 pounds or heavier, $28; car lots and less than 500 tons, $30; light rails, 16 pounds, $30; 20 pounds, $28.50 to $29; 25 to 40 pounds, $28.

As a general thing the coal situation may be said to have had a depressing influence on the iron and steel market here. There has not been a sale of steel during the week which amounted to much. Of course, structural steel has been very active. It always is. This is one part of the steel business which can always be counted on for a dividend, and a good one, as the structural shapes are ever in demand. The Pittsburg mills have not yet caught up with themselves on orders, and prices seem about the same, with the usual premium on rush orders. There was comparatively little pig iron sold during the week, Bessemer valley remaining firm at $17.60 and $17.75, while the same delivered at Pittsburg brought from $18.45 to $18.60. Bessemer billets were easy at $27 to $27.50. Iron bars held at $2.05. Iron nails went at $1.90 in jobbers' car lots. There was a good market for sleigh-shoe steel, owing to the cold snap and prevalence of snow, the flat steel coming at $1.50 to $1.55, while the smooth-finished machinery steel brought $1.90. Toe-calk steel, used for "roughing" horses, had a big sale at $2.05 and $2.10.

Perhaps the liveliest market, if any market could be characterized as lively this week, was the scrap-iron market. No. 1 wrought scrap had no difficulty in commanding $22, while No. 1 heavy steel scrap brought $18. Old car wheels on the scrap pile went at $17.50 and $18, while re-rolling rails brought $18.25. Standard iron car axles, which is considered the best sort of scrap, could not be found, though as high as $28.50 per ton was freely offered.

By the opening of the coming week what is to be done in the coal situation will be known, and then the iron and steel market of Pittsburg will be more settled and a trifle more lively perhaps. CARSON.

THE FUNCTION OF A BANK.

Danger That the Desire to Make Money Is Undermining Safety.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There must be either a perverse or a mistaken understanding of just what the true function of a bank should be. We fear that as we move along the notches in the time-stick we are losing sight of this in a way and to a degree that will sooner or later rise up and haunt us. The mere making of money has become to some an art and to others the millennial desideratum to be accomplished without regard to principle or victim.

The modern bank has no intention, imputing the personality of the managers, now, to the corporation itself, of adhering to the ancient plan of keeping money for safety and lending out the institution's own capital for accommodation. On the contrary, we see propaganda for the increase of deposits by public posters and a "follow-up" correspondence such as a patent medicine concern would pursue in a mail-order business. The inducement primarily is the offer of interest on deposits while the same are to be subject to check at sight.

The three points of safety, accommodation, and convenience are not kept in mind, but must give way to the simpler plan of getting deposits and making as much as you can out of them, even at a chance, so as to pay the interest agreed upon and make a profit for the bank. We do not ourselves misunderstand the method of allowing interest on deposits by the magic of a balance determined by Clearing House exchanges, always in the bank's favor, and we therefore go on the basis of a bank really doing what it agrees to.

The usual interest rate allowed is 2 per cent., although there are banks here which allow 2½ and 3 per cent. per annum. Under our national banking law there must be a money reserve of 25 per cent. in this city. Laying aside the various deductions which are used to reach the net amount upon which to calculate reserve, we have something like this: Upon a deposit balance of $10,000 the depositor is entitled to $200 interest. The bank, using $7,500 of the balance, which must be regarded as always subject to immediate payment against check, loans half of it on call and the balance on discount. The average call rate is less than 3 per cent. even on a high money market like December, 1905. It is as a matter of fact less than 2¼ per cent. The average of discounts is 5 per cent. Let us make it 6 per cent. for fairness. The average will be 4½ per cent. on the entire $7,500—or $337.50 per annum.

This now is the picture before us. The depositor can draw out the entire $10,000 at once without notice. Suppose he does. The bank has $2,500 in cash reserve, $3,750 on call, and $3,750 in a discount. The last may or may not be disturbed, usually not. There must be a draft on another fund for the 37½ per cent. It requires no vivid imagination to see that if a bank has several millions in such accounts and was called upon to pay out against check the bank would have to suspend payments. The primary element of safety would therefore be sacrificed. Convenience would be a fallacy because the fund would be held under suspension of payment. And all this for a yearly estimated profit of $137.50 on a balance of $10,000.

We are not at present interested in the proposition of this to be spent in clerk hire, stationery, and postage, the last a considerable element, but follow the mind of the bank's managers. The sum earned is too small. What easier is there than to buy a few "marketable" securities? That this is no myth, we look at the bank statements and scan the epitaph reading "stocks, securities, &c.," We say "epitaph" because, like the child's gravestone, there is carved behind it all: "Many hopes lie buried here." It is a matter of common knowledge that some of our banks have reaped enormous profits through this account, but by simple speculation. Their example followed by others has proved just as disastrous to the others until we have before us banks whose account under this heading shows an actual impairment of capital.

There is another account, the very first one named in the public statement, as a rule, viz., "Loans and discounts." Think you, dear reader, that there is anything of peculiar interest in this caption? No, says the reader, an average man, it looks all right, and yet here is another grave of a different sort: Loans upon which interest is paid by adding to the principal, discounts where new notes have been made to cover the interest deducted, and, finally, loans against collateral which would not sell for a tenth of the principal of the loan.

Why do we mention all this and in so cursory a manner? Simply in order that we may accentuate what we believe to be the true function of a bank. First, we place there safety, then convenience, and at the very last accommodation. The first should go without saying, but it is primarily only in the depositor's mind. Convenience varies with your balance, and properly so. Depositors usually get every convenience they want unless they spell it with the third function—accommodation. This last is the rack which bends and often breaks. If properly extended no fault can be found, but experience, of which we shall say more in the future, shows that accommodation—a euphemism for a loan or a discount—comes to the persistent as often as to the deserving, to the favorite oftener than to any one else.

Our object is not to find fault, cast suspicion, or arouse foolish comment, but to set people thinking, because there is afoot the plan of increasing the ability of a bank to increase its earnings by a charitable increase of facility for note circulation, and if we can impress upon the average mind the true underlying function of the banking system we shall have an easier task for what we say in the future. A. P. B.

Bank of Roma Branch in Berlin.

It is understood that the bank of the Roma of Rome, proposes shortly to found a branch in Berlin, where a portion of the ecclesiastical moneys now invested in France is to be transferred. The Banco di Roma possesses a share capital of 30,000,000 lire, (£1,200,000,) and in addition to an agency in Paris, there are also several other branches of the institution in various Italian towns.

GREAT STRIKES' COST

Loss in Last Anthracite Struggle $100,000,000.

RAILROADS' SHARE OF LOSS

Coal Industry Again Facing Possible Dead-lock—What Strikes Cost in Days of Labor.

The miners and operators in the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania have another fortnight in which to agree or disagree over the conditions which will govern the operation of the mines after April 1. Which it is to be, agreement or disagreement, it is impossible to tell. Both sides having assumed an unbending attitude, it is almost impossible to suggest from what source compromise is to come, and if there be no compromise there seems to be but one conclusion—that the miners will strike, for it is scarcely conceivable that the operators will give in to the miners on all points covered by their demands. It will then be necessary for both miners and operators to give thought to the cost of the struggle between them, even though they may now ignore the inevitable consequences of a failure to come to an agreement.

The great anthracite strike of 1902 is estimated to have caused a monetary loss of fully $100,000,000. Of this amount, the miners lost in wages approximately $20,000,000, and the balance represented the losses of the coal-carrying railroads and the numerous other losses incidental to the suspension of business in the anthracite field. Comparison of these figures with those covering the losses in other strikes in recent years indicates that the anthracite strike was responsible for greater loss than any other strike of the past ten years in either this country or Europe. Figures compiled from various sources go to show that its anthracite strike losses were fully 50 per cent. larger than those caused by any other recent strike.

Some of the strikes of recent years which have caused very serious losses are recorded below, with the estimated loss in each case:

COAL STRIKES.

	Loss in Wages.	Total Loss.
United States, 1902	$28,000,000	$100,000,000
South Wales, 1898	10,000,000	30,000,000
England, 1893	30,000,000	60,000,000
Denaby Colliery, 1902	1,170,000	2,260,000
Milan, 1904	......	6,000,000

OTHER STRIKES.

Grimsby, 1901	$615,000	$2,615,000
Building strike, New York, 1903	38,800,000	60,840,000
Shipping strike, Marseilles, 1904	20,000,000	40,000,000

With the exception of the great coal strike in England in 1893 the losses caused by the European strikes are, for the most part, much smaller than the losses in the great strikes in the United States. The losses entailed on workmen and employers by the building strike in this city three years ago are placed at over $66,000,000, more than half of which represents the loss in wages.

Clearly as these figures indicate the great losses that follow in the wake of strikes, they fail to appear as impressive as the statement of the number of days of labor that have been lost to the community as a result of strikes. In this country the average number of days lost as a result of strikes in each year from 1881 to 1900 was 7,100,000. The average annual loss in wages during these years was $12,500,000. Remarkable as is this statement it is dwarfed by the record in England for the year 1898. In that year strikes caused England the loss of no less than 15,289,478 days of labor just so much of the world's productive capacity destroyed for all time. Going back to 1893 the numerous strikes in England in that year, including the coal strike, which affected 30,000 miners, caused a loss of 31,205,000 days of labor. Measured in days of labor loss the anthracite coal strike of 1902 would probably head the list of all strikes. About 140,000 men were idle for approximately 140 working days, or a total loss of 19,600,000 days of labor.

To deal with the great anthracite strike from another point of view it is interesting to note that the losses to the coal carrying roads during the period of the strike amounted to well over $20,000,000 in gross earnings. That in fact is the amount lost by six of the chief anthracite roads. The record of the gross earnings of these roads during the period of the strike is shown in the following table. The Pennsylvania Railroad actually gained $8,040,692 in gross earnings during the period of the strike, owing to the increase in its bituminous coal business and to the fact that its traffic is highly diversified:

TOTAL ALL COMPANIES.

	—Gross Earnings.— 1902.	1901.	Loss in Gross.
April to Oct.	$62,987,815	$83,581,440	$20,593,625

The net loss in gross earnings for the six roads amounted to $20,593,625. To this sum, in order to make the record of the railroad's strike losses complete, it would be necessary to add the losses on many other lines, not strictly coal roads, but which, nevertheless, carry large amounts of coal. Thus the New York, New Haven & Hartford was a loser by the anthracite strike, as were also the New York Central and numerous other lines. This, moreover, neglects the collateral losses due to the strike, the extra expense entailed on the railroads in the refitting of their mines after the termination of the strike, and the loss of traffic in other commodities than coal which resulted from the idleness of the miners in Eastern Pennsylvania.

In the opinion of many the possibility of a coal strike is no longer a serious menace to the stock market for the reason that a strike has already to a large extent if not entirely been discounted by recent declines. This belief is borne out by the record four years ago, for then prices rose almost from the first day of the strike. But the losses that would result from a strike would be none the less real even though it were possible for the market to ignore them. The serious losses almost certain to result from another protracted fight for supremacy between the miners and their employers offers a convincing economic argument against the adoption of such means to bring about an agreement between miner and operator. From the standpoint of the general public, however, a far more urgent argument against a strike is the serious inconvenience which must needs result if the strike should last beyond a very brief period. How great the financial loss might be is fairly indicated by the figures presented above.

FLORAL PARK.
20 Minutes From Broadway,
On completion of the Penn. R. R. Subway.
Lot $300. $10 Down & $5 Monthly

With improvements, running water, etc.; no interest or taxes for one year. Title guaranteed. This is without a doubt the most beautiful and attractive piece of property and investment that was ever placed on the market before. Everybody knows John L. Childs, the seed and flower raiser; this property adjoins his handsome estate; it is also right at the depot and trolley. Floral Park has the best railroad service on Long Island, owing to four branch roads running through it. These lots are as good as 100 per cent. investment and could not be bought for less than that in a year from now, and a beautiful home site for any one wishing to build. All the new Penn. R. R. tunnels and improvements go straight to this property. For free tickets, booklets, etc., apply to

OWN YOUR OWN HOME

Don't look at to-day or to-morrow; LOOK AT YOUR FUTURE. What is it—one of toil and slavery? Think of your old age and be prepared for it by taking advantage of our proposition while you have an earning capacity, and the old age and future will take care of itself. Do not delay, as delays are dangerous, for time and tide await nobody. The most valuable asset you can have is your own home. Our system of home buying is simple, conservative and safe. The Company is backed by reliable and responsible business men.

Since our plan has been in operation in America it has been very successful. It is patterned after the CELEBRATED SYSTEM which has been operated successfully in England for over sixty years, where thousands of HAPPY HOME OWNERS have benefited by it.

IMPORTANT TO HOME SEEKERS AND SMALL INVESTORS IN BROOKLYN LOTS

REALTY TRUST owns large Plots of Lots in various locations along the elevated railroad lines between Manhattan and Coney Island and along the lines of the proposed Subway recently promised by the Rapid Transit Board of the City in response to the requests made by the various local improvement associations. These lots are offered now at low price and on very easy terms of payment. THEY ARE BARGAINS NOW, and are being rapidly absorbed by the leading builders of this section.

Don't neglect this opportunity to buy. Write or call for locations, prices, and terms. A LITTLE MONEY INVESTED now in Brooklyn lots will bring BIG PROFITS IN the near future.

REALTY TRUST also offers TWO-FAMILY HOUSES in the same locations on very easy terms. THE PRICES ARE LOW, and the terms on which the houses are offered enable persons who are now renting to buy at a monthly cost about the same as rent. Write or call for particulars and prices NOW.

HILGENDORFF, LEOPOLD FRIEDRICH WILHELM.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to Anna Schantz, the heir and next of kin of LEOPOLD FRIEDRICH WILHELM HILGENDORFF, otherwise known as Leopold Hilgendorff, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, Marie Hilgendorff, of the City of New York, has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, relating to personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Leopold Friedrich Wilhelm Hilgendorff, otherwise known as Leopold Hilgendorff, late of the County of New York, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 7th day of May, one thousand nine hundred and six, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto [L. S.] affixed. Witness, Hon. Abner C. Thomas, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 6th day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six.

DANIEL J. DOWDNEY,
Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

SURROGATE NOTICES.

CUNNINGHAM, MARY J.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to Michael Cunningham, if alive, or if dead, to his heirs and next of kin, being heirs and next of kin of MARY J. CUNNINGHAM, late of the County of New York, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, a decree was duly entered in the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York, on the 11th day of September, 1905, admitting to probate the last will and testament of Mary J. Cunningham, bearing date the 18th day of May, 1905, as her will of real and personal property; now, therefore, pursuant to an order made and entered in the Surrogates' Court of the County of New York on the 13th day of February, 1906, you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at this office in the County of New York on the 13th day of April, one thousand nine hundred and six, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said will, and show cause, if any you have, why the said decree heretofore made and entered herein on the 11th day of September, 1905, admitting to probate the last will and testament of Mary J. Cunningham, bearing date the 18th day of May, 1905, as her will of real and personal property, should not be confirmed and ratified and why the said instrument probated as aforesaid should not be allowed to remain as the last will and testament of Mary J. Cunningham, late of the County of New York, deceased.

DEAD MAN IN SHAFT; MURDERED, CORONER SAYS

Papers Bear Name of McCabe, a Pittsfield Weaver.

PERHAPS DRUGGED IN A DIVE

Harburger Will Make an Autopsy To-day—He Criticises Police Work in the Case.

Lying at the bottom of an airshaft in the six-story double tenement at 94-96 Chrystie Street, with nothing of value remaining in his clothes but a dollar bill, the body of a man believed to have been John J. McCabe, a weaver of Pittsfield, Mass., was found early yesterday morning. Coroner Harburger believes that the man was lured into some Bowery dive, drugged, taken to the tenement airshaft, and left there to die. Apparently the drug was fatal, for no serious marks of violence appear on the body. An autopsy will be performed to-day.

Mrs. Louis Deutsch, wife of the janitor, discovered the body. Her husband says he looked into the airshaft about 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning and saw nothing wrong. The body was found soon after daylight.

At one end of the shaft is a short iron stair of eight steps, leading from the first floor to the bottom of the shaft, which is on a level with the cellar floor. The body lay on the top step. This indicates, Coroner Harburger believes, that the man was thrown into the shaft partly conscious, but recovered enough to crawl to the top step before dying.

The victim was about 40 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, and weighing 160 pounds. He wore a light overcoat, dark-brown suit, and a black derby hat. The crown of the hat was broken, as if by a fall or blow.

In the shaft was found a dues book of Court Greylock, No. 142, of the Foresters of America, of Pittsfield, Mass. This was signed by Edward J. Breck, Secretary of the Court, of 38 First Street, Pittsfield, Mass. A letter, signed by Edward J. Breck, written to John J. McCabe in Plymouth, Mass., informed McCabe that his dues were paid up to March 1st, and that if he desired a transfer to some other court it would be granted. Evidently McCabe had recently left Pittsfield, and had gone to Plymouth. Other articles found were a heavy manila envelope, such as are used to inclose bankbooks, bearing the imprint of the Howard Savings Bank of Newark, N. J., and a business card bearing the name, "I. Blivise, 250 Market Street, Newark, N. J."

Another dues book showed that McCabe was a member of the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance of the United States and Canada, and belonged to a lodge of that organization in Waterville, Me. Dues in that organization were also paid up to March 1. The dead man's trade was presumably indicated by a bunch of empty pay envelopes marked "Weaver."

When Mrs. Deutsch saw the man she told her husband and he tried to arouse him, thinking him intoxicated. When he could not stir the man Deutsch called Patrolman Becker of the Eldridge Street Station. Becker called an ambulance, and the body was removed to the Morgue.

Coroner Harburger criticised the work of the police. When Becker reported the case he said nothing about the lodge membership books, and it appeared that he had not seen them, though they lay scattered at the bottom of the shaft.

STORMS DELAY ALL LINERS.

The St. Paul the Only One to Arrive Here Yesterday.

The American liner St. Paul was the only one of the transatlantic liners due in New York on Saturday to reach port yesterday. None of the vessels due yesterday got in. The Umbria, the other Saturday boat, was reported by wireless from Siasconset, and will dock about 8 o'clock this morning, as will also the White Star liner Celtic, which was due yesterday afternoon, and which, like the Umbria, was reported from Siasconset yesterday morning.

The Anchor liner Columbia, from Glasgow, was reported by wireless 540 miles east of Sandy Hook yesterday morning, and is due in New York this afternoon. The rough weather prevailing on the Atlantic is responsible for the delay of all the ships.

The St. Paul reported a very rough passage, which she weathered without damage. Some of her passengers were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Almirall, Niles S. Babbitt, Miss Virginia Bayliss, Miss Ellen Fitch Davis, Frank B. Fawcett, Mrs. K. T. C. Frisbie, Guy Heaton, Edward L. Leeds, Wallace Malliet, Lieut. Irving Miles, Royal Navy; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Phillips, and Harlan W. Whipple.

On the Panama liner Alliança, in yesterday from Colon, arrived, among others, Secretary E. Nugica of the Chilean Legation in Paris; Dr. A. W. Whealton, and Mrs. W. T. Peck.

DOUBTS AS TO MR. COLER.

Union Men Not Satisfied with Him or His Municipal Railroad.

A discussion on the Coler bill for the building of a municipal railroad in Brooklyn, as competitor of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, started some criticism of Borough President Coler of Brooklyn at the meeting of the Central Federated Union yesterday. Though Mr. Coler was elected on the Municipal Ownership ticket some of the delegates appeared to be in doubt as to the strength of his Municipal Ownership ideas.

Michael Fitzgerald of the Letter Carriers' Union, who says he has always been a strong M. O. P. man, brought the matter up.

"If the workingmen only put their shoulders to the wheel, Mr. Coler's bill will pass," he said. "We will then have a road which will break into the monopoly of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system."

"And it will also be operated by Mr. Belmont," said a voice.

Fitzgerald indignantly said Mr. Belmont did not run him and would not run the road. He said that this bill will be the starting point of real municipal ownership. Charles Delaney of the Granite Cutters asked who was the father of the bill, anyway. He was told that it was Mr. Coler, and said, with a tired look on his face:

"Oh, Mr. Coler. I would like to have the bill read."

The bill was accordingly read. Former Assemblyman Samuel Prince, delegate of the Cigar Packers' Union, objected to one part of the bill providing that the operation of the road could be leased to a corporation for five years. A delegate suggested that it should be sent back to Mr. Coler to be amended.

"Is Mr. Coler's municipal ownership idea right?" said Delaney. "I can't see how he can be on the level in this matter."

"He never was," said a voice.

"How can Mr. Coler be sincere when he is up to the neck in corporate interests?" said Delaney.

The bill was referred to the Executive Committee. It was also decided to ask men who thought they knew all about it to attend the next meeting of the committee.

WOMAN LAWYER CELEBRATES.

Mrs. Mayer and Her Husband Keep Their Silver Wedding Anniversary.

Mrs. Sophie Mayer, a woman lawyer, who was admitted to the bar last Summer, celebrated last night with her husband, Adolph, and her six children her silver wedding. The occasion was observed by the whole neighborhood, and Zwicker's Hall, 86 Attorney Street, where the ceremonies took place, was thronged to the doors. Among those who attended were the Rev. Dr. Adolph M. Radin, Dr. Ashley, Dean of the New York Law School; Prof. Isaac Russell, Congressman William S. Bennett, Judge Benjamin Hoffman, Judge Leon Sanders, Assemblyman Max Eckmann, and ex-Assemblyman Edward Rosenstein.

The principal speech of the evening was delivered by a fifteen-year-old lad, Nathan Trzeworsky. He quoted the words of Rabbi Akiba, "If man and wife are worthy, God is between them," and applied them to Mr. and Mrs. Mayer by showing how they had helped each other in an eventful life. He said Mrs. Mayer decided to study law to aid her husband in his work.

"She entered the New York Law School," he said, "and after two years she was graduated with the highest percentage of her class. Now she is well known as a practitioner in both the civil and the criminal courts. I ask you all to wish long life and happiness to Mr. and Mrs. Mayer and their children."

SORRY HE WAS RESCUED.

An Ungrateful Painter, Saved from Drowning by Scholarship Cadets.

Leopold G. Schultz, a wagon painter, of 268 Bowery, wandered down the recreation pier at the foot of East Twenty-fourth Street about noon yesterday, and jumped into the river. A laborer who saw the leap gave the alarm, and at the same time the deck watch on the schoolship St. Mary's shouted, "Man overboard!"

There was a quick rush across the vessel's deck, and the order was given to lower a boat. A few seconds later the boat struck the water and into it piled five cadets. By the time they had got their oars out the man had come to the surface, and, caught by the tide, had drifted nearly up to Twenty-sixth Street. The boat overhauled the man and the cadets dragged him into the boat. He was unconscious.

The cadets carried the man up on the recreation pier and set to work to revive him. They were hard at work when Dr. Hunt arrived from Bellevue.

At the hospital Schultz regained consciousness, and said he had been out of work several months and had become despondent. He said he was sorry he had been rescued.

HOTEL GUEST SHOT HIMSELF.

"A. Darling of Newark" Dies Alone at the Grand Union.

Agnes Cooper, a chambermaid in the Grand Union Hotel, was passing through a corridor on the fourth floor last night a few minutes after 9 o'clock when she heard a shot inside Room 449. She notified House Detective Carey, and Carey called in Policeman Moroney of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station. The door was locked on the inside. The policeman put his shoulder against it and shoved it open.

They found the occupant, a man of about 55 years, with a gray mustache, lying across the bed, a bullet wound through his head. An ambulance was called from Flower Hospital, and Surgeon Straughan said that the man would unquestionably die.

The police found out that the man who attempted suicide had been at the hotel since March 15. He registered as "A. Darling of Newark, N. J." He was penniless when he shot himself, and had no papers which would identify him. He left an unsigned note addressed "To the Authorities," in which he said that he intended to kill himself, but failed to assign a reason for the deed.

JEFFERSON DAY'S DINNER.

Democratic Club Will Let Only 500 In —Woodrow Wilson to Speak.

Elaborate plans have been made by the managers of the Democratic Club for their annual Jefferson Day dinner, which will be held on the night of April 16 at the Waldorf-Astoria. The date has been selected because Jefferson's birthday, April 13, falls this year on Good Friday.

President John Fox of the club will preside, and the chief speaker of the evening will be President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton University, who will speak on "Jefferson." Several Democratic orators of National renown have been invited, and arrangements have been to seat 500 members and guests. year 700 tickets were distributed, but it resulted in disadvantageous seating for 200. The number this year has been limited, so that all diners can sit in the main ballroom of the Waldorf, instead of some being scattered in the Astor Gallery.

The New York State Branch of the American National Red Cross, through Jacob H. Schiff, Treasurer, reported yesterday that it had received $2,000.19 for the Japanese famine fund since March 9. These contributions, with those already acknowledged, made a total of $6,519.38 forwarded to its National Treasurer for forwarding to the Japanese Red Cross.

DR. PETERS, IN PULPIT, TAKES THE PLEDGE

Says His Ground for Abstinence Is Charity to the Weak.

ASKS WOMEN TO FIGHT DRINK

Don't Marry a Drinking Man, to Reform Him, He Says—Nation Needs Saving.

The Rev. Madison C. Peters began a series of sermons yesterday morning in the Baptist Church of the Epiphany, at Sixty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, on "The Duties and Responsibilities of Women," a subject upon which Mr. Peters has recently expended much eloquence.

Dr. Peters urged women to stand against drunkenness. He admitted that he had taken an occasional drink, but added that, "in view of what has come to me lately," he would drink no more. Dr. Peters took for his text: "Do not conform to the fashion of the ages," (Romans, xii., 3.) These are some of the things he said:

"A kind of obtrusive gallantry has obliged men, whenever they speak of women, to do so in words of fulsome praise, under pain of being condemned as lacking in chivalry. This being the case, very little truth has been spoken upon subjects that ought to be spoken about.

"I may not on the coming Sabbaths say any new things, but I will promise to say many true things; I may not afford any entertainment; I feel myself engaged in too serious a business for that.

"I believe if the faults and follies of which I have occasion to speak could be corrected on the women's side, her mighty influence for good would soon correct them on the men's side. I shall emphasize the serious resposibilities, and in saying 'serious' I do not mean that I want for a moment to cast a shadow upon lives so fresh and sweet. There is not on earth a brighter phantom of delight than a woman as God made her.

"There is so much sorrow on the earth that it needs all the mirth of womanhood to lighten it; but light heartedness is one thing—frivolity is quite another.

"I shall touch, perhaps, occasionally upon things delicate, but I will pledge you my word that I shall never bring the faintest blush on the fairest cheek, unless it be your own blush of indignation that your life has not been what you might have made it, and I shall take pains at all times not even to speak unkindly.

"A young woman in one of our police courts a few days ago, standing before the Judge, disillusioned and worn by wretchedness and woe, told the story of her husband's brutality and neglect, and among other things said: 'I knew my husband drank before I married him, but I would like to tell any girl who thinks she can reform a man by marrying him, she had better hang herself.' Cases like this might be multiplied indefinitely. In good old Quaker Philadelphia there are 5,825 wife beaters, while New York comes along with 8,000 desertions every year, and, according to the testimony of our police magistrates the cause at the bottom of it all is 'drink.' It is all nonsense to say that love is blind. If the man were not 'deformed,' he would not need to be 'reformed.' If a man will not reform to please his sweetheart, he will never do so to please his wife. Court records show that marriage as a step toward man's reform has almost invariably resulted in failure. Women, hoping that their influence will be greater after marriage than before, very often find, with breaking hearts, that it is less.

"I know there are plenty of women who hesitate not to say that they think a little wickedness is a sort of spice in the life of a young man. Mark my words—and my observations come from twenty-five years of experience with young people in the ministry—you will find these habits after the wedding day to be anything but pleasing spice.

"Love is not only blind, but it is deaf and dumb in the case of a woman who marries a man to reform him. The risks are great enough for any woman when she marries a man who does not need any reforming, but the woman who marries a man to mend him, no matter how much money he may have, will find she has made a terrible bargain. Her life will be one of endless misery, and her old age will be like a crag on the bleak side of a deserted mountain, where the cold moonbeams sometimes glitter, but no sunshine ever falls; no birds sing, but the wild storms howl and the thunders roar.

"That there is a startling increase of the drinking habit among our American women is a well-known fact. A few days ago a Paris paper declared, speaking of the cocktail habit of American women, that we are breeding a race of drunkards, and when Paris preaches morality to America it is high time for Americans to take notice. Look at the records of the Police Department for 1905: There were arrested for drunkenness in this one city alone 45,085 persons, of whom 10,080 were women. Even Brooklyn, once the City of Churches, had more than 3,000 women arrested last year for drunkenness.

"When I began my ministry on the west side in this city, seventeen years ago, tippling among women was rare, while now it is so common as to pass without comment, and the frequency with which the thing is done passes without observation, and things that shocked us ten years ago now pass by without comment, and so common is drinking among women becoming that the situation is often a source of embarrassment to the woman who does not drink. The disastrous results of tippling among women are well known among physicians of experience, for, while men who drink often reform, women who become intemperate seldom do. The condition that encourages women inebriates presents a formidable outlook for the future of the Republic, and our best people are establishing a custom that is rapidly followed by millions of American women, to the detriment of the race. The customs of the fashionable are copied by the lower classes, and the results following from this state of affairs are alarming and degrading. My plea is to every woman who loves good and her character to discourage drink and save the American Nation from the curse of drunkenness.

"If sin seems blacker in the woman than in the man, it is because she is by nature purer, and has further to fall, and, while I do not believe in the dual standard of morality, if I seem to condemn sin in the woman more than in the man, in the very condemnation I pay to woman the highest, truest compliment that any man can pay.

"Men's lives are influenced by the example set them by the women; if you mix the drinks they will not refuse to take them.

"What, then, is the logical conclusion that comes to us through proof and common sense. I think we find it in the noble sentiments of Paul: 'If wine make my brother to offend, I will drink no wine while the world stands.'

"In the years of my ministery, while keeping very closely in touch with the masses, I think my relations have been socially with what might be called the privileged classes. It has been my habit on rare occasions, when with friends of whom I was particularly fond, to take the social drink. In view of what has come to me lately I will say with Paul that 'If wine make my brother to offend, I will drink no wine while the world stands.' You do yourself as your own judgment dictates.

"Total abstinence cannot be urged upon any man or woman on the debatable ground that driking wine itself is a sin, but Paul puts this case on a higher pedestal—charity to the weak. That I may give my words stronger influence, charity to the weak demands that I make that sacrifice. To abstain from that which is evil is praiseworthy, but to yield the right of indulgence for others is a noble sacrifice."

SAYS CONDUCTOR AIDED PICKPOCKETS TO ROB

Insurance Broker Tells Experience on a 7th Avenue Car.

DOOR SHUT TO AID ESCAPE

Magistrate Breen Holds Three Alleged Thieves and Orders That Street Car Employe Be Produced.

J. F. Quinn, an insurance broker of 304 West Eighty-second Street, told Magistrate Breen in the West Side Court yesterday that he, with his wife and a woman friend, boarded Car No. 505 of the Seventh Avenue line of the New York Street Railway Company in front of the New York Theatre a little after 11 o'clock Saturday night.

"The lady who was with us," said Mr. Quinn, "got on first, and after a struggle got inside. There were only four men on the platform besides the conductor, and, instead of making way for us, the conductor stood in front of the door. Mrs. Quinn then followed, and was pushed and shoved very roughly. Before she got inside the door she had lost a lorgnette attached to a gold chain and valued at $50.

"When I attempted to follow my wife, the four men got around me, while the conductor looked on, and jostled me even more roughly than they did Mrs. Quinn. I felt a tug at my scarfpin, and put my hand up in time to prevent it being torn from its catch.

"Then after a struggle I managed to get inside. I had no sooner done so than I discovered the loss of my wallet containing $50. It was a matter of very few seconds before I turned round to go out on the platform, but as I did so the conductor, who had followed me in, stood in front of the door, which he had closed, with his hand on the handle.

"I was almost speechless at first over the action of the conductor. Then I demanded that he let me out. He hurriedly glanced at the platform, and then opened the door. The men had vanished. One of the passengers who saw the whole affair, backed me up when I accused the conductor of having worked in league with the thieves and advised me to go and report the matter to the police at once. The car had only reached Forty-seventh Street, and we decided not to go any further uptown, but to get off. We went to the West Forty-seventy Street Station and reported the matter."

"Did you hear what Mr. Quinn says about the conductor?" asked Magistrate Breen of Detectives Boyle and Quinn of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, who had arraigned three men on suspicion of having robbed Mr. and Mrs. Quinn. "Judging from the story he tells, this conductor is an infamous scoundrel and worse than the men who committed the robbery. It seems to me it reveals a startling condition of affairs."

Magistrate Breen ordered that a warrant be drawn for the arrest of the conductor and then changed it to a subpoena.

"I want to call your attention to the fact," said Mrs. Quinn, "that the light on the back platform was out, an unusual thing, it seems to me."

"That makes it look very bad, even more serious," said Magistrate Breen, "and I want you detectives to find that conductor and bring him here. There have been too many robberies on the cars, especially those running along Seventh Avenue. They have got to be stopped."

Magistrate Breen then asked what evidence the detectives had against the prisoners, and they said only that Mr. and Mrs. Quinn felt morally certain that the men, who were professional pickpockets who worked chiefly on street cars, were three of those who robbed them.

"Have these men records?" asked Magistrate Breen.

"Very bad ones," said Detective Boyle, "and they've been at this game a long time."

Magistrate Breen thereupon held the prisoners in $1,000 bail for examination to-day. They gave their names as Arthur Williams, Jacob Jordan, and John Collins.

TENDERLOIN GAMBLING RAID.

Detectives Invade a New Place and Cart Away Apparatus.

The little ivory ball hadn't worn even the first sheen of new paint off the roulette wheel that Detectives McGee and Ryan captured early yesterday morning in a building in West Thirty-fourth Street, next door to the Herald Square Hotel, and just a step west of Broadway. The big wheel with a wagon load of other new gambling paraphernalia is packed away in the Tenderloin Station.

On the outer front door of the building was a large sign, "Walk in." McGee and Ryan dodged the first doorkeeper while he was out after a drink. They hid and waited for a chance to get by the second doorkeeper. About 3 o'clock a man came down stairs, and the detectives jumped to catch the inner guard before he could give the alarm. He slammed the door and pushed a button. McGee and Ryan broke through the door. They heard a noise of many feet going over the tin roof of the building.

When they got in the elegantly furnished rooms were deserted. The detectives hauled away everything portable.

JEWELER ACCUSES EMPLOYE.

Came Back from a Trip and Found His Shop Empty.

William Stein, a jewelry dealer with a shop on the fifth floor of the Twelfth Ward Bank building, at 125th Street and Lexington Avenue, arraigned one of his employes, Jacob Herlick of 131 East Broadway, in Harlem Court yesterday on the charge of stealing $600 worth of stock and tools.

Samuel Argno of 34 Forsyth Street was arraigned at the same time on the charge of receiving two brazing machines from Herlick. Magistrate Baker held each in $1,000 bail for examination Thursday.

Stein frequently makes trips through New York State and New Jersey to sell jewelry, and has always left his shop in charge of Herlick and another man. Last Monday he left the city for a week's trip. He returned Saturday night and found nothing in his shop. Then he set the police on Herlick's trail.

INCOME $4,000 A WEEK; UP FOR VILLAGE OFFICE

Alfred Marshall Running for Trustee of Mamaroneck.

J. A. COWLES SURE TO WIN

He'll Be Village President of Rye, a Seemingly Unlucky Place—Other Westchester Elections To-morrow.

Novel issues are to be decided at the village elections to be held in Westchester County on Tuesday. Alfred Marshall is the candidate for Village Trustee in Mamaroneck. Mr. Marshall is a brother of Commodore Wilson Marshall of the Larchmont Yacht Club, whose big schooner, the Atlantic, recently won the German Emperor's cup in the race across the ocean.

Mr. Marshall takes a great interest in Mamaroneck, and although he has an income reported to be about $4,000 a week, he has announced his willingness to give up one evening a week to attend the Village Trustees' meeting and aid in the development of the town.

In North Pelham, one of the smallest villages in the State, James Reilly, who is known as the village blacksmith, is running for President. The two older parties overlooked Reilly at their conventions, and he is making the race on the Municipal Ownership ticket. His emblem is the anvil, and he is making speeches every night.

Another candidate for Village President who is making a novel canvass is Isaac W. Turner of Mount Kisco, who is called "the king of the New York lodging house keepers." Mr. Turner, who owns several of the largest lodging houses on the Bowery, favors a $40,000 bond issue to build a sewer system so that the sewage of the village will not run into the Mount Kisco River and pollute the water supply of New York City.

In Pelham T. L. Jacques, manager of the Murray Hill Hotel in New York, is sure to be elected President, because there is no other candidate in the field.

Justus A. Cowles, the lawyer and former rowing coach for Columbia College, is without opposition in Rye. Although the village there has been established only a year, both of the Village Presidents have died, and there was such a prejudice against the job that no one would take the nomination. Mr. Cowles at last volunteered, and he will receive the support of all parties.

The village elections in Peekskill and Ossining were held last week. Both places went Republican by largely increased majorities.

SCHWAB NOT FOR SENATE.

Says the Rumor That He Seeks to Represent Nevada Is Untrue.

The rumor, originating in Omaha, that Charles M. Schwab had Senatorial aspirations and to attain his end had established a residence in Nevada was denied by him yesterday.

"It is merely an idle rumor, and there is not a word of truth in it," said Mr. Schwab over the telephone last night to a TIMES reporter.

British King's Captain Buried.

The funeral of Capt. James O'Hagen, the Captain of the steamship British King, who died after being rescued from the vessel when she was lost at sea a week ago, was held in the Church of SS. Peter and Paul in Hoboken yesterday. The pall bearers were three of the survivors and three other steamship men. The agents and officers of other ships of the line attended. The only relative was a niece from Newark. The burial was in Holy Name Cemetery in Jersey City.

MINISTERIAL BODIES FOR ANTI-BETTING BILL

Presbyterians, Methodists, and Baptists Pass Resolutions.

COMSTOCK ATTACKS SLICER

Hard Words for the Clergyman Who Would Improve the Breed of Bookmakers by "Sterilized" Betting.

The Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, Superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, and Anthony Comstock, Secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, succeeded yesterday morning in getting the Presbyterian Ministers' Association, the Baptist Ministers' Conference, and the Methodist Ministers' Meeting to indorse the Cassidy-Lansing anti-race track bill.

Dr. Crafts advocated the passage of the resolutions by the Presbyterians, declaring that Gov. Higgins had not only voted against the Percy-Gray bill, which legalizes betting on the race tracks, but that it was on his initiative that the Cassidy-Lansing bill was drawn up, and that his support of the measure could be relied upon.

Mr. Comstock, before the Methodist and Baptist ministers, made a bitter attack upon the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, denouncing him for his opposition to the Cassidy-Lansing bill. Comstock declared that he had reason to believe Dr. Slicer to be in the pay of the race track interests.

The Presbyterian Ministers' Association, in session at 156 Fifth Avenue, passed resolutions for the Cassidy bill without a dissenting voice, as did the other two religious bodies. Dr. Crafts was introduced immediately after the meeting had been called to order.

"As the originator of the Cassidy-Lansing bill," he said, "I am in a position to say to you that the charge of Dr. Thomas R. Sliver, to the effect that the measure was inspired by the poolrooms, is absolutely without foundation. As a matter of fact, the bill really originated in a remark made by Gov. Higgins to a Congregational clergyman of Salamanca, at a social gathering last Autumn. The Governor recalled with pride that he was one of the few State Senators who had voted against the Percy-Gray law, which releases gamblers from the felony penalty if their gambling is done on the race tracks. The records will show that it was immediately after that conversation, in which the assurance of the Governor was had that he could be relied upon to aid in repealing the law, that the Reform Bureau sent its call to arms throughout the State.

"The Cassidy-Lansing bill, which was drawn and introduced at the request of the Reform Bureau, is so just, making the penalties for gambling on the race tracks the same as for gambling elsewhere, that the gamblers have no hope of defeating it by direct attack. They therefore rely on bribing the farmers by giving them the State's $200,000 or $300,000 share in the race track gambling institution, and they hope to keep New York City from supporting the bill by the written contract the racing authorities have made, I am positively informed, with Dr. Slicer, a Unitarian preacher, acting as an individual in this absurd substitution of government by contract for government by statute.

Dr. Slicer's Action.

"Dr. Slicer did not, in signing this contract, include even the Legislative Committee of the Conference of Religions, whose support of the Cassidy-Lansing bill he has been able to withdraw. His claim that this committee represents fifteen religious bodies will not stand examination. As a matter of fact, it represents only certain individuals, who gathered at a congress, which appointed the committee to 'help the passage of good laws.'

"Whether this committee even represents the individuals of the congress is yet to be seen. I have telegraphed Gov. Higgins the positive assurance that Dr. Slicer has signed a written contract with the racing associations that they would be good, as a substitute for a statute to compel them to be so."

When Dr. Crafts had finished his address the following resolution was offered and unanimously adopted:

> Resolved, That the President and Secretary of this meeting are hereby authorized, in its behalf, to send a petition to the State Legislature, in care of Senator Cassidy and Assemblyman Lansing, for such legislation as will make penalties for gambling on race tracks the same as elsewhere, and will fully carry out the provisions of the State Constitution requiring that gambling of all kinds shall be prevented by appropriate legislation.

Fully 200 Methodist ministers were gathered in the auditorium in that denomination's building, 150 Fifth Avenue, when Mr. Comstock was introduced and began his address in support of the measure which he declares was drawn by him. He had hardly begun when one of the preachers asked him if the bill to which he was speaking was the same bill which Bishop Doane and the Rev. Dr. Slicer were opposing.

"It is the identical measure," Comstock replied, "which Bishop Doane has been misinformed about. I have written the Bishop, and I am convinced that when he sees the situation in its true light he will withdraw from the position he has taken.

Comstock Accuses Dr. Slicer.

"As for Dr. Slicer, I have not the slightest hesitancy in saying that I have the best of reasons for believing that he is in the pay of the race track interests. The information upon which I base this assertion came to me in the form of a confidential communication from one of the most prominent men in the community. If I were at liberty to give his name it would create a sensation.

"The Mr. Lansing who introduced the bill in the Assembly is, I am glad to say, a member of your own denomination. He told me that he fully believed that the bill

STEEL CAR MEN ACCUSED.

Friend and Hoffstot Sued on Account of $4,000,000 Jutte Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 19.—The Mercantile Trust Company and the Colonial Trust Company of Pittsburg, representing the widow and six minor children of the late W. C. Jutte, a local coal operator, to-day filed suit against James W. Friend and Frank N. Hoffstot, alleging that they have conspired to hold possession of the Jutte estate, worth millions.

Friend is the man whom Mrs. Cassie Chadwick duped to the amount of $800,000. He is President of the Pressed Steel Car Company, Vice President of the Farmers' Bank, and Director and leading spirit in thirty or more other Pittsburg institutions. Hoffstot is Vice President of the Steel Car Company and an associate of Mr. Friend.

Jutte made an attempt to kill himself by shooting himself in the head on Nov. 30, 1901. For a time before that and ever after, it is now alleged, Jutte was of unsound mind. Knowing this, the plaintiffs assert, Friend and Hoffstot conspired to strip him of every dollar he had, and entered into business transactions with him, by which he transferred to them all his real estate, stocks, bonds, mortgages, &c., with a face value of more than $4,000,000, and a real value of over $1,000,000, as security for a loan of $200,000.

At no time, the defendants admit, did Jutte's indebtedness to them exceed $309,700. For this "alleged loan," the plaintiffs say, Friend and Hoffstot admit they were repaid the amount, with interest at 6 per cent., and received as commissions $250,000 in cash, and now claim securities of an actual value of between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

After Jutte had assigned to them all of his real and personal property and agreed to allow them to name an attorney in fact for him, and three weeks after he shot himself through the head, Hoffstot is alleged to have gone to his bedside and forced him to appoint A. S. Guffey his attorney in fact, although Jutte at the time was utterly incapable of transacting any business. At various times after that date the defendants are alleged to have entered into business relations with Jutte by which they secured the balance of his estate.

Despite these immense transactions, the complaints set forth that the defendants are unable to show any articles of agreement between themselves and Jutte. Friend and Hoffstot threaten to sell all of the property before April 1. The complainants demand an accounting of the defendants, as trustees for the heirs.

DENY ROCKEFELLER IS ILL.

Physician and Agent Angry About Report of Mental Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 19.—Dr. Hamilton F. Biggar, Sr., Cleveland physician of John D. Rockefeller, and J. G. W. Cowles, his real estate representative, to-night denied the reports that Mr. Rockefeller was suffering from any mental trouble.

"Any such story is absolute bosh," said Dr. Biggar. "I can say with the utmost positiveness that he has no nervous trouble of any kind. I have heard from him at Lakewood within the last two or three days, and he was enjoying his usual normal health."

"Were the statements which are printed about the mental condition of Mr. Rockefeller printed about me I would feel justified in suing for libel, and would also feel certain of winning my suit," said Mr. Cowles. "Such sensational—and I might say absolutely false—reports as are being circulated concerning the condition of his mind are calculated to do great damage in the business world.

"I have within the last week received some business papers signed by him, and they afford ample proof that his mind is as clear and vigorous as it ever was."

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 19.—Efforts made to-day to get trustworthy information regarding the condition of John D. Rockefeller, who, rumor said, was suffering from mental strain, were fruitless. The family physician refuses to talk, and no member of the household can be induced to say anything about Mr. Rockefeller's condition. The grounds are carefully guarded against intrusion.

SKIPPER'S PLUCKY FIGHT.

In the River a Half Hour—Dived Often to Save His Life.

Frank Dalton, Captain of the coal barge Elizabeth, lying at the foot of Thirtieth Street and the East River, had an icy bath last night that may cost him his life. He was jumping from one barge to another, when he slipped and fell into the river.

His fall was unnoticed and the howling of the storm drowned his cries for help, so that although he was able to keep afloat, he was in the water a half hour before he was rescued. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where his condition was pronounced precarious.

Capt. Dalton was dragged from the water by Siebert Kopp, Captain of the barge Sparkill, who happened to come on deck. He said he left his barge to get some provisions ashore. When he returned his arms were full of bundles, so that he could not save himself when he slipped.

He found a crevice in the planking of the Sparkill that kept his head above water, but as the barge was "light," having no cargo, it was impossible for him to climb up the side.

From time to time the barges swung together, compelling him to let go his hold and dive, in order to avoid being crushed.

Dr. Mabey of Bellevue Hospital, who answered the ambulance call, fell down an open hatch on one of the barges, a distance of eight feet. One of his eyes was blackened, his body was bruised, and his instrument case was broken.

"SHORTY" SANG THOUGH HURT

"Quit Your Crying, Pop," He Said, While Awaiting the Ambulance.

As Willie Blauch, who is better known to commuters on the Long Island Railroad as "Shorty," was being carried on a stretcher to an ambulance, at the Jamaica station last evening, after being hit by a freight train, he tried to sing a song. The injured boy is employed by the Long Island Railroad Company as a messenger.

Yesterday, while on his way to deliver a message in the Jamaica yards, a freight train crushed his left foot. As he was waiting for the ambulance a man pushed his way through the crowd. It was Shorty's father, manager of the express company at the station.

"Quit yer cryin' Pop; the bunch will think you're a baby," said the wounded boy. "I'm only a little scratched up; that's all."

Dr. Wicks was lifting him on the stretcher, when "Shorty" began singing, "I Got All I Can Do to Keep My Hands Off You."

The boy may lose his foot.

HAMILTON HERE NOW, "LOADED FOR BEAR"

Those Who Know His Ammunition Surprised at Denials.

TO TELL ABOUT THE $235,000

Documents Show High Officers of New York Life Knew Its Purpose—Fowler Suits Begun.

Andrew Hamilton returned to New York yesterday afternoon, and will spend the next two days in conferences with his advisers here, in connection with the campaign to clear the memory of John A. McCall from the charges made by the Fowler Committee of New York Life Trustees. Hamilton on his arrival was served with a summons by a representative of the law firm of Keener & Lewis, which is bringing the suits instigated by the New York Life investigators. Although no complaint was served with the summons, it is understood that it meant the starting of an action for an accounting of the $1,000,000 which he spent through his legislative bureau and which the Fowler Committee wants to trace.

Hamilton, it is understood, is quite ready to go before the Grand Jury or into a civil court to tell what he knows about the legislative payments, so far as this relates to the sources of the money and the mode of authorizing the expenditures. He is, in other words, "loaded for bear," and those who are aware of the amount of ammunition he carries have been surprised at the denials which the last few days have brought from some Trustees of the New York Life who have been members of the "inner circle" of that company.

Among other things it developed yesterday that documents are in existence showing that various Trustees and high officers of the company are quite aware of the purposes for which the $235,000 was used in 1903 and 1904 for which Andrew Hamilton was held to have rendered no accounting when he sailed for Europe last June. Hamilton now, it is understood, is quite ready to render such an accounting, and in so doing to bring out the extent of the information that the board has as to the purpose of the expenditures.

It is thought that such disclosures would bring as quick action as followed the publication of the fact that members of the Finance Committee of the New York Life had known all about the campaign expenditures to which John A. McCall testified before the Armstrong Committee. In that instance it was about a week between the publication of the fact and the time when some fifteen Trustees agreed among themselves to make restitution of the money.

The Promises to McCall.

There is, however, another feature to the $235,000 proposition, which also involves restitution—this time to the McCall family. Several weeks ago THE TIMES published the fact that John A. McCall, before he assumed the responsibility for all the Hamilton expenditures, and again before he paid in the $235,000, had understandings with certain of the Trustees who knew all about these things that he would be supported by them and the board in the first instance, and held financially unharmed for the repayment in the second instance.

Concerning the form which these understandings took, there has been considerable discussion. THE TIMES has authority for the statement, however, that they were backed by written agreements of a kind that would undoubtedly be of use in court if the McCall family undertook suit against the Trustees who allowed Mr. McCall to put up the money. What will be done in this matter will depend a good deal on the disposition which these Trustees show toward further revelations which Mr. Hamilton stands ready to make, according to those who are interested with him in his present undertaking.

The animus that has been exhibited against William B. Hornblower is finding its explanation in an account of his relations to the Fowler investigating committee which comes from authoritative sources. According to one who has personal knowledge of the whole situation, it was Mr. Hornblower who first advocated an investigation of Mr. McCall's administration, and in great measure personally brought about the decision of the Board of Trustees that the disclosures before the Armstrong Investigating Committee made an investigation necessary. It was Mr. Hornblower who introduced the resolution calling for an investigation at the meeting of the Trustees on Dec. 13, and Mr. Hornblower, according to reliable information, was largely responsible for naming the investigating committee and its counsel.

It is learned that at every stage of the investigation the committee has felt his hand in shaping its work, and that in the collating of the facts going into the report on the Hamilton expenditures he was largely instrumental. It now appears, moreover, that the report on the Hamilton expenditures which the committee at last adopted was not the first draft prepared, but that the first draft put up to the committee by its lawyers was far and away more emphatic than the one that eventually was passed.

This first draft went so far as to accuse John A. McCall of willful misappropriation of funds in connection with the Hamilton payments and to build up a circumstantial theory that McCall and Hamilton were for years in a conspiracy to bleed the company through the medium of the Bureau of Legislation. The report was taken up with several of the Trustees of the New York Life not on the Fowler Committee, and the result was an opposition to it within and without the committee so serious as to lead to substantial modifications.

It is now well enough known that the Fowler Committee's report on the Hamilton matters broke John A. McCall's heart. This story, from one who was intimate with the McCall family, tells what the effect was. For some days before the Fowler report was submitted Mr. McCall had been on the mend, and hopes were entertained of his complete recovery. When the report actually came along efforts were made to keep it from him, but he worried over it to such an extent that it was finally decided to read it to him. Mr. McCall listened in silence to the end; then he asked:

"Is that all?"

When an affirmative answer came he said:

"And I thought I had done something for the New York Life."

He died within a week.

It is said that Mr. Hornblower will be singled out for the first of the personal reminiscences that Andrew Hamilton proposes to give to the public, and that after Mr. Hornblower George W. Perkins and Col. Augustus G. Paine, the latter a member of the Fowler Committee, will come.

Those who are familiar with the general question of campaign payments by the life insurance companies were surprised yesterday to read of a denial that Cornelius N. Bliss had ever signed a receipt for $75,000 paid over by the New York Life to the Republican National Committee. They were afraid that such a receipt might turn up at some time to plague Mr. Bliss. The payment is understood to have been a part of the total payment to the 1896 campaign fund, which is now believed to have run to much larger figures than was previously supposed. In the Armstrong Committee's investigation none of the witnesses was able to say just how the money was paid in that campaign, for the payments just how, was not made apparent, were booked by the late Treasurer Gibbs of the company.

It is well understood that the return of Hamilton from Europe was preceded by some correspondence between him and Mr. Jerome, which, though not guaranteeing immunity, resulted in an understanding between the prosecuting attorney and the legislative agent.

HE CORNERED THE SLEIGHS.

Municipal Ownership Candidate in Pelham May Win To-day's Election.

There was gloom last night in the Republican ranks of Westchester County over the prospect for the village elections to-day. A severe snowstorm, the heaviest of the Winter, had blocked trolley cars, and it was feared that the Republican voters, mostly New York commuters, would stay away from the polls and thus turn over the towns to the Democrats.

At 7 o'clock last night all trolley lines in the county were at a standstill. The polls will be open from 6 to 12 o'clock this morning.

The Democratic Town Committee of Pelham had automobiles engaged for the day, but last night they canceled the order and endeavored instead to get sleighs. To their dismay they found that James Reilly, the village blacksmith, who is running on the Municipal Ownership ticket, had cornered all the sleighs in town.

There are elections in twenty-one villages in the county. Most of these villages have been overwhelmingly Republican, but the storm puts them in the doubtful column. Last night the Republican committees were busy trying to reach every commuter by telephone and get his promise to get out and vote.

$50,000 STOLEN—BRADLEY.

Snow Contractor Cheated, He Declares, by Fraudulent Inspectors.

William Bradley, the snow contractor, declared last night at his headquarters, 152 East Twenty-fourth Street, that he had lost $50,000 by dishonest Inspectors, foremen, and drivers. He inserted an advertisement in the newspapers yesterday offering a reward of $50 for the arrest and conviction of anybody who illegally obtained snow tickets, or transferred, disposed of, or sold them.

When the work of clearing the streets is resumed to-day detectives will be on hand to watch the men, and if the fraudulent methods are discovered, arrests will be made on the spot.

For every load carted away a foreman punches a number on a card bearing fifty numbers, which is duly inspected by an Inspector. After carting the first load many of the drivers, according to Contractor Bradley, got a few dollars for their tickets, which afterward were punched to the limit by the persons obtaining possession of them. These tickets were handed in to the contractor at the end of the day's work and the money paid out. This practice of defrauding snow contractors has been in vogue during every big storm, it is said, but yesterday the frauds outdid themselves, Bradley says.

WILD WALL STREET RUMORS.

They Said That Speyer Was Dead, Schwab Dying, Rockefeller Ill.

Wild rumors fell as thick as snowflakes in the financial district yesterday. First it was whispered about, not very loudly, that John D. Rockefeller, down in Lakewood, was rapidly failing mentally, actually losing his mind worrying over the strategies of Attorney General Hadley of Missouri. Then some one remarked that James Speyer of the banking house of Speyer & Co., had been somewhat under the weather over Sunday.

In about an hour a house with Boston connections heard over the wire that Mr. Speyer's death was reported in that city. It wasn't very long before an afternoon newspaper got a tip from the Criminal Courts Building that the banker had died very suddenly under tragic circumstances.

While reporters were convincing themselves by ocular evidence that Mr. Speyer was very much alive in his Pine Street office the old, old story of the imminent dissolution of Mr. Schwab was trotted out and sent the rounds again. The Wall Street news agencies got out the well-worn lines:

"At the office of Charles M. Schwab it was stated this afternoon that Mr. Schwab's indisposition is of only a trifling character. The idea that Mr. Schwab was at all in even a semi-serious condition is scouted."

But there was a guileless policeman in Wall Street yesterday. Late in the day he excitedly telephoned to the Old Slip Station: "Say, Sarge," he shouted, "Ain't you heard the news? Schwab's committed suicide, and they's somebody dead up in Speyer's office. You'd better get on the job before the Coroner." Two plain clothes men from Old Slip burst into the office of Speyer & Co. just before the closing hour.

They came out looking wilted but hopeful as they took the shortest way to the post of the new policeman.

Accused with Others of Trying to Kill Dr. Johnson and Party.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., March 19.—Warrants were sworn out here to-day for the arrest of Walter Scott, better known as "Scotty," the miner; William Keyes, and Shorty Smith, charging them with assault with intent to kill Dr. Johnson, President of the National Insurance Company of New York; A. W. St. Clair, Warner Scott, A. Y. Pearl, J. W. Owen, and J. J. Hartigan, all members of the Scott party, who were ambushed in the desert recently. Warner Scott was dangerously injured.

Walter Scott is playing at a Portland, Oregon, theatre, and will be arrested there, while the others will be taken into custody near Daggett, on the desert.

Local authorities have investigated the alleged ambush at Windy Pass, in Death Valley, Feb. 26, when Scotty's brother was badly wounded. It is charged that two men who left the party the day before, ostensibly to get feed for the horses at Ballarat, really rode ahead, secreted themselves, and did the shooting. The object of the ambuscade, it is alleged, was to drive back Johnson and Pearl, who represented the Eastern capitalists from whom Scott obtained money on the strength of his fabulous desert mines.

J. P. Morgan in Venice.

VENICE, March 19.—J. Pierpont Morgan of New York arrived here to-day, and, in company with H. B. Hollins and Mrs. Hollins of New York, inspected the construction of the new Campanile, the Doge's Palace, and the work of restoration in progress at St. Mark's.

STANDARD OIL CONTROL OF COMPANIES AVOWED

Admissions in Regard to Republic and Waters-Pierce Concerns.

BOOKS SHOWN IN COURT

Resistance to Order in Missouri Ouster Suit Abandoned—Explanations by Counsel.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, March 19.—Following the admission this morning by Standard Oil attorneys that the stock of the Republic Oil Company is held by its stockholders for the use of the Standard of New Jersey came the confession in the afternoon on the part of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company's counsel that there is a trade territory division agreement between that concern and the Standard; that reports of the Waters-Pierce Company are made to 26 Broadway, New York, the Standard headquarters, and that orders regarding the business of the Waters-Pierce Company in Missouri pass between the Standard and the local company.

The stock book of the Waters-Pierce Company, produced on order of the Supreme Court, showed that M. M. Van Buren of Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., and said to be a son-in-law of John D. Archbold, one of the Standard Company "big four," owns 2,751 of the 4,000 shares of Waters-Pierce stock. The book also shows that Clay A. Pierce, President of the company, owns one share, and that Charles M. Adams, Secretary-Treasurer, also owns one share. The balance is principally held by H. Clay Pierce, Chairman of the Board of Directors. Attorney W. D. Johnson, who is representing the company at the pending hearing, has one share.

W. T. McKee, Secretary-Treasurer of the Republic Oil Company, admitted that he had never attended a meeting of the stockholders of the company and that he does not owe one dollar's worth of stock in the concern. It was shown that the Republic Oil Company's stock book was kept in the "home office," 75 New Street, New York, the rear entrance to 26 Broadway, Standard Oil Company headquarters, and the Secretary-Treasurer of the company had never seen the book.

The stock book was introduced in evidence, and arrangements were made for taking a certified copy of its contents in order that the book might be returned to New York. The book was produced in compliance with an order of the Supreme Court.

"Do the stockholders of the Republic Company hold this stock for themselves or in the interests of others?" asked Attorney General Hadley.

"I desire to know," interrupted Alfred D. Eddy, general Western counsel for the Standard Oil Company, "what the Attorney General seeks to show by this question?"

"I seek to show that this stock is held for the Standard Oil Company," replied Mr. Hadley.

"Then I will save you the trouble," Mr. Eddy returned, "for the purposes of this litigation this fact will be admitted."

When Attorney General Hadley demanded the production, in accordance with the Supreme Court's order, of certain books and papers of the company, H. S. Priest of the company's counsel announced that all the documents wanted were at hand. In submitting them he said:

"With all due respect to the order of the Supreme Court, there has been resistance to submitting these books and papers as evidence. This opposition was made by counsel without advice from the company.

"These proceedings seek to impose penalties on persons and corporations. The Constitutions of the United States and of Missouri guarantee to individuals immunity from search and seizure. They also guarantee that persons shall not be required to testify against themselves or give evidence which may cause a penalty to be visited on them.

"We think that corporations are entitled to the same constitutional protection, and therefore we have had the temerity to resist the court's order. While we may criticise the wisdom of the ruling we will no longer oppose it. Therefore, I produce the books asked for."

Charles M. Adams, Secretary-Treasurer of the Waters-Pierce Company, did not prove a valuable witness because of his poor memory. He "didn't remember" or "coudn't recollect," he pleaded in answer to nearly every question that was asked him.

Attorney General Hadley temporarily waived his right to insist on the presence of C. L. Nichols, President of the Republic Oil Company, who had been ordered by the Supreme Court to appear Monday before Commissioner Anthony. H. Clay Pierce appeared for a few minutes on the stand just before adjournment. He probably will give his testimony to-morrow.

EPIGRAMS FOR THE POLICE.

Cleveland Chief Has a Plan to Make His Men Think.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 19.—Fred Kohler, Chief of Police, to-day announced that he would issue epigrams daily to the members of the police force. They will be printed in The Daily Bulletin, the official publication of the department. The first epigram appeared in to-day's issue, and was:

"Good advice is usually distasteful to those who need it most."

"The idea is a new one," explained the Chief to-night. "The reason for it I found in my experience in police work. Epigrams have been most useful to me in many ways. They make men think. I want thinking patrolmen and officers. In every large body of men there are grumblers whose complaints would appear trivial indeed if a brother policeman recalled to his mind an apt aphorism."

LABOR LEADERS DISSATISFIED

To See the President About Delay in Labor Legislation.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The unsatisfactory condition of labor legislation before Congress from the point of view of the labor leaders here was discussed to-day by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor.

Wednesday next President Gompers, Secretary Morrison, and the members of the Executive Council, together with the Presidents of some of the National and international trades unions, will have interviews with President Roosevelt, Speaker Cannon, and Vice President Fairbanks on the subject.

RESPITED NEGRO LYNCHED.

Supreme Court of the United States Had Granted an Appeal.

KNOXVILLE, March 19.—A message from Chattanooga says that Ed Johnson, the negro in whose case the United States Supreme Court granted an appeal to-day, was lynched at 11 o'clock to-night.

A mob battered down the jail doors, took Johnson out, and lynched him. The original sentence was that Johnson be hanged to-morrow.

UMBRELLA SAVED HIS LIFE.

It Acted as a Parachute When Blanco Fell Over the Palisades.

Salvator Blanco of River Avenue, Cliffside Park, fell 100 feet down the face of the Palisades at Cliffside yesterday afternoon and escaped with his life. He was carrying an umbrella, which first caused his fall and then saved his life.

Blanco was walking along the path close to the brow of the Palisades when the umbrella became unmanageable in the wind and snow.

In his effort to control it Blanco went over the edge of the cliff. He clung to the umbrella, and it acted as a parachute until he was within twenty feet or so of the ground. Then it turned inside out, and he dropped into a clump of bushes. The man is now in St. Mary's Hospital in Hoboken, bruised and cut, but without a bone broken.

ROSS FINDS NEW COMET.

Circular in Shape and of the Eighth Magnitude—Observed at Melbourne.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 19.—A dispatch was received at the Harvard Observatory to-day from Prof. Kreutz, at Kiel, announcing the discovery of a comet by Prof. Ross at Melbourne, on March 17, at 9:14 Greenwich mean time, in right ascension 2 hours 3 minutes and 52 seconds, and declination —7 degrees 41 minutes. The comet has a daily motion in right ascension of +3 minutes and 36 seconds, and in declination of +1 degree 10 minutes.

The physical appearance of the comet was circular, 3 minutes in diameter, of the eighth magnitude and with some central condensation.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—Joseph Klein celebrated his 106th birthday to-day at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel Goodman, 1025 Girard Avenue. He is well and in the possession of his faculties. He reads the newspapers and smokes his pipe daily, and his memory is good of the happenings of a century ago.

Mr. Klein, who was born in Bohemia, was 73 when he arrived in this country. He lived in the West a short time and then came to this city, where most of his children resided. He has five children, twenty-four grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

CARNEGIE BUILDING FRICK'S?

Said to Have Bought for $1,500,000 Pittsburg Structure He Dwarfed.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 19.—The announcement is made through an evening paper to-night that H. C. Frick has purchased the Carnegie Building here for $1,500,000 cash, and that the deal was made some time ago, but the news suppressed.

A few years ago, Frick, in a rage at the Carnegies, announced that he would make the building bearing the name "Carnegie" look like a bake oven, and he has pretty nearly done this by building all around it towering skyscrapers. The Frick building next door and the Frick annex almost entirely encompass the Carnegie Building, which, with its height of twelve modest stories, was once the pride of Pittsburg.

The Carnegie Building is not owned by Andrew Carnegie, though he built it and gave it his name. It is owned by Mrs. Lucy Carnegie, but Andrew Carnegie has taken as much interest in it as if it were his own.

STEAMER LUCKILY FLOATED.

The Cearense Got Off the Jersey Shore Just Before Storm Broke.

Special to The New York Times.

POINT PLEASANT, N. J., March 19.—At 4:15 this afternoon the steamer Cearense, which stranded near the Toms River Life Saving Station last Friday morning, was floated by the Merritt-Chapman Wrecking Company and started for New York. She was assisted by two of the wrecking tugs, the I. K. Merritt and the Chapman, as her rudder had been badly damaged by pounding on the beach. Aside from the damage to the steering gear, she had suffered little from her three days on the beach.

There is a fierce northeast storm raging here to-night, and had the ship remained on the beach three hours longer she could not have been floated to-day, and might have proved a total loss.

SARATOGA BOOMS BRACKETT.

Convention Gives Him All Credit for Insurance Exposures.

BALLSTON, N. Y., March 19.—Resolutions indorsing State Senator Edgar T. Brackett for the Republican nomination for Governor were unanimously adopted by the Saratoga County Republican Convention this afternoon. The Senator was empowered to name the delegates from the county to the State Convention.

The resolutions declare that except for Senator Brackett's efforts there would have been neither an insurance investigation nor the aroused public sentiment which made it a success.

Mr. Brackett in an address advised the delegates not to be disappointed if their choice should not be ratified, but said that if made Governor he would act on the belief that there are great wrongs to be righted and inequalities to be leveled.

The convention nominated Nash Rockwood for County Judge, and George H. Whitney for Member of the Assembly.

TAMMANY'S CAMPAIGN ON WITH BLANKET PLATFORM

Resolutions Cover National, State and Local Topics.

LONG SPEECH BY COCKRAN

Socialism Attacked, Car Transfers Everywhere Demanded, Municipal Operation and Ship Subsidy Opposed.

Tammany launched its State campaign last night at a special meeting of the General Committee. It also took a course never before followed by the Wigwam when the committee adopted resolutions offered by Congressman W. Bourke Cockran formulating a platform which would do alike either for a State or a National convention. The resolutions declared strongly against municipal operation of public utilities, although declaring just as strongly for Government control of all public service corporations.

Mr. Cockran spoke to his resolutions for more than an hour, stirring his audience until the old Tammany Wigwam echoed and re-echoed with the applause and cheers of the thousand odd members of the General Committee who had braved the storm to attend the meeting. J. Sergeant Cram, President of the General Committee, presided, and practically all of the district leaders, including Charles F. Murphy, were in the body of the hall when the meeting was called to order. As soon as preliminary routine business had been transacted Congressman Cockran was recognized, and he offered his resolutions, which embraced upward of 2,300 words, and which took Secretary Thomas F. Smith nearly half an hour to read.

These resolutions started by reciting that the Democracy had been "invoked to defend plunder of the masses by a few rich men, through partial law," and declared emphatically for the equality of man and the principle that "man and all his posterity must earn their bread by the sweat of their brows." They declared that man was entitled to the "peaceable possession of everything created by his labor," and in favor "of preventing any many from eating one crumb in the sweat of another man's brow."

Against Trust Exaction.

Declarations were made against "exactions of great combinations or trusts under cover of protective tariffs; excessive rates exacted by corporations operating public franchises, plunder of policy holders by officers of insurance companies, and of stockholders by managers of industrial corporations; corruption in public office by which revenues of Government are diverted from the service of the people to the pockets of their servants, and the sources of justice polluted." The repeal of the protective tariff was demanded, and "favoritism, partiality, or corruption in the administration of the criminal law" is declared "to be utterly subversive of all government." The punishment of minor criminals was denounced when there was no prosecution of the offenders in high positions. The recent alleged tampering with juries is recommended for immediate examination.

Socialism is attacked as "a sinister consequence of corruption and graft which degrade our political and industrial life," and Democracy, rather than Socialism, is urged as a cure for existing conditions. Interference by the Government "in the field of private industry" is declared to be vicious, a source of corruption, and a bar to prosperity, but coupled with this is the declaration that "it is equally a vital Democratic principle that within its proper field the authority of the Government is absolute and its power should be enforced with unfailing vigor, but always with strict impartiality." The whole field of public service is included in the domain of this legitimate authority. Continuing, the resolutions recite:

> We hold every enterprise to be a feature of the public service which necessarily exercises in the course of its operation any power of sovereignty—such as the power of eminent domain—and therefore it must always be subject to control and regulation by Government. Railways, telegraphs, telephones, the supply of gas and electricity, and every enterprise that may use public property or take private property without the consent of the owner, are essentially public functions, although the administration of them is committed to corporations organized and operated by owners of the private capital embarked in them.
> What Government can empower an agent to do, we believe it has the right to do directly through its own officers. Whether it should discharge a function itself or employ a private agency to discharge it, depends solely upon which can render the better service; and we believe the delegation of a public function to a private agency can be justified only when it results in better and cheaper service to the community than if operated by Government directly through public officers.
>
> Good Service at Reasonable Rates.
> When the operation of a public franchise is intrusted to a private agency, we believe the community is entitled to service of the very highest efficiency consistent with safety of the capital employed in it. We hold it to be the duty of Government while maintaining absolute security of such property, to exact for the people efficient service at reasonable rates; and a reasonable rate, we believe, is the actual cost in every instance of the service, plus a reasonable profit to the corporation rendering it.
> Whether a public utility be administered by Government itself, or by a private corporation, we hold that every person who uses it should be held to pay the cost of the service which he receives, and that no man should be compelled by taxation or otherwise to bear any part of his neighbor's expenses for light and power, for telephone serivec, or for transportation of himself, or of his goods.
> Every proposal that a municipality assume operation of all public utilities and reduce rates to persons using them, regardless of what the service may actually cost, is an attempt to force some men to bear the expenses of others, because where the outlay for operation exceeds earnings, the deficit must be made up by taxation, and this we denounce as Socialistic, and therefore hostile to justice and subversive of democratic government.
>
> While experience shows that public utilities are more effectively administered by private agencies under the watchful supervision of government than by public officers, we do not believe that the service actually rendered by private corporations operating public franchises in this city approaches the efficiency of which they are capable and to which the people are entitled.
>
> To enforce the application of these principles in this city we urge the establishment of a permanent commission authorized to ascertain the actual cost of operating street railways and telephones, of manufacturing and distributing gas, of supplying electrical power and empowered to fix reasonable rates, so that the community will always be admitted to a share in all benefits flowing from economies and improvements in administration. And this we demand for the protection alike of the corporations and the people whose franchises they operate; of stockholders whose capital is invested in these enterprises and of the community for whose benefit they are chartered.

MARCH

We approve the reduction in the price of gas to the figure at which a recent legislative investigation has shown it will yield a reasonable profit on the cost of the service.

If by the recent merger of the companies operating the Subway, the elevated, and street railways, a few men are enabled to control the development of rapid transit facilities and exercise it for their own enrichment, regardless of the public welfare, we hold that the city must meet this peril by invoking the reserved power of Government over all public utilities to build its own subways, and, if necessary, to operate them. And we demand the passage of such laws as will enable the municipality in such emergencies to exercise this power of self-defense.

Meanwhile, as a practical measure of immediate relief, we insist that no single company engaged in transportation shall be permitted to charge more than a single fare for carrying a passenger between any two points covered by its operation, and we demand that the company which has recently acquired control of all transportation facilities in this city be compelled by law to issue transfers, so that any person desiring to avail himself of its service may be carried east or west across town to or from elevated or Subway station, and up or down the whole length of its system for a single fare.

The large amount of additional capital stock issued by the new company shows that the consolidation must result in greatly reducing the cost of the service, and to give the people for 5 cents transportation which now costs 15 cents will merely be admitting them to share the benefits of this economy in the management and operation of their own franchises. And to this we hold they are entitled by every principle of morals and sound Government.

When Secretary Smith finished reading the resolution Mr. Cockran mounted the platform and, cheered warmly, began his speech.

MR. COCKRAN'S SPEECH.

"We are called upon now," said Mr. Cockran, "to decide whether certain evils which have sprung up in the body politic, against which all must protest, the existence of which no man denies, can be remedied by constitutional methods, while preserving the essence of democratic government. On every side we find complaints of corruption. A new word has been coined to describe a deplorable condition. We learn that 'graft' exists everywhere; graft in public office, graft in enterprises operating public franchises, and graft in private corporations.

"The temple of finance seems to have been seized and occupied by the thieves who discredit it, and that which should be the final and most valuable operation of civilization has come to be a disgrace to our civic fame and an injury to our National morals. How must this condition be effaced, how can it be cured? That is the problem which these resolutions have been drafted to solve.

"The problem before this country now may be summarized as how to cure graft; to stop it and eradicate it without imperiling the existence of property.

"For the people of this country will preserve property whatever it costs. If they must submit to graft in order to keep some semblance of security for property they will submit to it, but they do not want to submit to it. They are impatient under submission, and what they seek on every side now is a method by which this graft can be ended without imperiling the security of property."

Mr. Cockran, while not charging any particular Republican with corruption, declared the whole tendency of the party to be corrupt, its policies wedded to corruption, and its organization formed for plunder under protection of the law.

Thought the Remedies Extreme.

"This," continued Mr. Cockran, "has been the difficulty of the country. While they believe that the whole Republican system was dishonest, they felt that the methods suggested for curing it were extravagant. They had a feeling that,, while the Democratic policies were meant to be honest, if enforced they would be subversive of all industry and dangerous to the security of property. They conceded that the Democrats were well meaning, but they believed them to be so extravagant in conception as to be dangerous; and the country was driven to a choice between rogues whom they distrusted and lunatics of whom they were afraid. [Laughter.]

"Democracy believes in every man having all he can make. Republicanism means giving some things which are taken from others, and that taking away is theft, plunder, and oppression, were it perpetrated by Government or in spite of it. [Applause.]

"We have seen here within the last few years enormous trusts created—for what? To capitalize the right of charging excessive prices to the American people. We have here an industry known as the Steel Trust, which is capitalized at one billion six hundred thousand dollars, and the property which it owns is worth exactly five hundred and sixty millions, according to the most accurate figures that can be obtained.

"The property was worth $560,000,000 while there were separate companies competing with each other, but the moment they came together and shut out competition, extinguished competition among themselves, and were protected from foreign competition by a tariff wall, they at once capitalized that $560,000,000 worth of property at $1,000,000,000. They had not bought another field, they had not put up another building, they had not acquired another wheelbarrow, yet that property worth $560,000,000 became worth $1,000,000,000. How?

Where the Money Came From.

"Where did that billion of dollars come from? From you and from me, by charging us $28 or $30 a ton for the steel that they sell in Canada or in England for $19 or $20. You and I are robbed of the difference that Mr. Morgan and his satellites can divide up that billion dollars among them.

"Mr. Chairman, other gentlemen saw this billion carved up among these enthusiastic freebooters. They observed them buying yachts and building private cars, and some of them even making gifts of libraries and founding maternity hospitals, giving back to the people a small contribution of the plunder they had taken from them, and soon we found imitators in every direction. Men who held trust funds proceeded to treat them as if they owned them.

"Robbery successful behind the protection of the law brought a thousand imitators. On every side the notion of responsibility between men who created and men who consumed, the old notion of honor that governed the commerce of the United States for 100 years, became discredited, belittled, and was soon discarded, and we found on every side this enormous fraud, this wholesale peculation and corruption, this graft of which we have obtained some glimpse through the quarrels of depredatory agents over the division of their spoils.

"Now, for that we complain. There are two remedies. We want the laws that encourage rascality repealed; we want the laws that perpetuate plunder wiped from the statute book, and then we go further, and we say, those men who have offended the law, those men who have robbed outside of the law, why are not they punished?

Men in High Places Escape.

"Why is it that the unfortunate who to-night for the sake of shelter from weather so inclement that it threatens the life of the unhappy and the destitute, if he stole $10 from a passer-by would be on the way to prison before sundown to-morrow? Why is it that these petty offenders against the law, these men whose depredations can be stopped in an instant by merely pointing a finger at them, that they are pursued by relentless severity, and men in high places, handling millions of dollars intrusted to them from the economies of the poor openly avow crime and are not merely unpunished but are allowed to go back to the offices they have profaned, back to the places which they have pillaged and abused and enabled to confirm, strengthened, make more sure hold upon the treasures they have wasted by substituting for the tools, the Presidents who allowed their villanies to be discovered, successors of greater efficiency in plunder as they have shown greater skill in preventing a further examination of their delinquencies?

"Now, we of this organization are going to demand equal and exact justice for all, and we take this position that the plunderer of millions is not better, but worse, than the thief of pennies or single dollars. I have no fear of the petty offenders who will take to flight and run at top speed the moment the cry 'thief' is raised, but I have the most pronounced fear of the thief who goes from the office that he has dishonored, and with cheerful candor testifies, and instead of being punished or questioned walks back to the very office he has polluted.

Let the Heaviest Go First.

"It may be that all this will be cured, but this we do demand, we demand, whatever may have occurred in the past, that now, now, the law shall be put in force, that now thieves of millions, of hundreds of thousands shall first be brought to account. If the prosecution of all offenders crowds the business in the criminal courts, we say that precedence be given to the heaviest plunderers."

Mr. Cockran denounced the proposed ship subsidy as a further example of "robber protection," saying that, if the Government were to pay the losses of American shipping, it should share in its profits. He then declared that public ownership of franchises must always exist, but carried out the argument in the resolutions for strong and cimplete Government control of public utilities.

Mr. Cockran praised the enactment of the eighty-cent gas bill and said that a legislative investigation committee had declared such a rate to be fair to the companies. He then referred to the traction merger, and said it might be a good thing or it might be a bad thing, calling attention to the fact that it was within the power of the community now to make it a most desirable thing by enforcing the establishment of universal transfers and a single fare from one end of New York County to another.

Would Increase Earnings.

Such a rate, he said, would in fact increase the earnings of the traction combination, because it would send thousands of workingmen to the Bronx for their homes, whereas now, rather than pay many fares, they were forced to live near their work, and thus pay nothing to the lines. He said such a change undoubtedly would be worked in the congested east side, and declared the traction people were short-sighted not to take advantage of this opportunity at once.

A reason for this, he said, was because the management of big enterprises no longer was in the hands of men who understood the respective businesses, but in the hands of men who were merely interested in the properties for the purpose of "rigging" the stock market.

There was stirring applause for Mr. Cockran as he finished his speech and took his seat in the main hall, and then the meeting was adjourned when Chairman Cram had put the question on the resolutions and they were adopted by a unanimous vote.

Prior to the presentation of the Cockran resolutions the committee received a report from the Committee on Rules, providing for the establishment of a Committee on Legislation. This, a new committee, will have a representative at Albany to examine into and analyze all legislation pending. It will, from time to time, issue reports and statements on pending measures much after the fashion of like committees of the Citizens' Union and of the City Club.

The Weber is the Piano of the Opera

¶ "You already know how warm an admirer I am of the Weber Piano, which I use whenever it is possible to secure one. But of the Weber new SMALL GRAND I had not known until recently.

¶ "I want to congratulate you on your wonderful achievement in producing so very small a Grand with a tone that is full, resonant and exquisitely beautiful."

POL. PLANCON.

THIS smallest of the Weber Grands, of which M. Plancon speaks so enthusiastically, is distinctly an achievement in piano manufacture. It measures but five feet four inches in length, and yet retains the characteristic tone of the Grand Piano—of the Weber Grand.

POL. PLANCON as "Mephistopheles" in "Faust."

To own a Grand Piano is the ambition of all musicians and many a music-lover. But lack of space has in the past been an obstacle. This latest Weber creation—dainty in its appearance and exquisite in its lines—above all, retains in its smaller compass the renowned "Weber-Tone" coupled with a volume remarkable in a piano of so small a size.

The Weber Small Grand can be placed almost anywhere that there is room for an Upright. It is made in a variety of rich and rare woods, and the monthly payment system applies to it as to all other instruments in our line. The prices begin at $750. Art catalog upon request.

BAILEY DEFENDS PLAN TO CURB THE COURTS

Impresses Senators with Argument on the Rate Bill.

AROUSED BY PRESS ATTACK

Cites Constitution to Show That Congress May Forbid Suspension of Commission's Decree.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Senator Bailey, in the Senate to-day, championed his proposal for an amendment to the Rate bill which would prevent suspension by the courts of rates made by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, pending litigation.

Afterward there were hints that many Senators favored Mr. Bailey's proposition. Several Senators said they would be for it if they thought it would stand the ordeal of the Supreme Court. Some said they would vote for it rather than see the bill fail. The speech made by Senator Bailey produced a decided effect on both sides of the chamber.

Mr. Bailey had a bad cold and spoke with great difficulty, but said he had been prompted to speak by an article in a local newspaper which seemed to suggest that he had presented a proposition so obviously unconstitutional that his Democratic associates, at the Sunday conference at Senator Newlands's house, had rejected it.

"Such publications as that are misleading and untruthful," he said. "It did not appear yesterday, and it will not appear in any stage of this proceeding, when the matter is fairly and fully considered, that a majority of this side will doubt or deny the power of Congress to exercise the right to abridge the jurisdiction of inferior Federal courts in the issuance of preliminary injunctions.

"There has been some effort made to argue in some way which my mind has never yet been able to comprehend, that there is a difference between the power of Congress over what is known as the equity jurisdiction of the courts and the power of Congress over proceedings at law.

"There is not one sentence, there is not one line, there is not one word in the Constitution upon which to base an attempt to distinguish between the power of Congress over proceedings in equity and the power of Congress over proceedings at law."

He read the second section of the Third Article of the Constitution, which defines and distributes the judicial power.

"Another remarkable contention," he continued, "must be successfully maintained in order successfully to assail the amendment which I have suggested. Senators must establish that while Congress has power to change the rule of decision, while Congress may alter or repeal the rules of property which the court is charged to administer, Congress stands powerless to change a mere rule of practice.

"Fortunately, we are not left to decide this question upon the weight of such arguments as I may advance. Fortunately there is a line of decisions running from 4 Dallas to 106 United States, in which this precise question has been considered by the court in more than a dozen cases and decided by that court the same way in every case, and decided, too, by the unanimous judgment of the court upon the ground which we here advance in this argument.

"It is not a fair statement of law or of fact to charge that I am seeking to deprive any railroad of its property without a just compensation. All that I am contending for is that the rate which the commission, after a full hearing, has said is a fair one, shall stand until condemned by the final judgment of the ccurt upon a full investigation of the case.

"Who is more apt to be right? What rate is more apt to be proper—the rate fixed by the railroads, inspired by its selfish desire to increase its earnings, or the rate established by a fair and impartial commission?

"If the rate fixed by the commission is more apt to be right in the name of justice and on behalf of the people, I demand that that rate shall stand until finally adjudicated by the courts to be unjust.

"Senators, you had better be candid with the people. If, when they ask for bread, you intend to give them a stone, be brave and honest with them and refuse to give them anything. Give them what they want or give them nothing, and let us appeal to the great jury of American citizens to try this case again.

"That the courts will abuse the power you propose to lodge with them or to leave with them is an absolute certainty. I have here a letter written to me by a reputable lawyer in the State of Florida, whose knowledge especially qualifies him to speak upon the subject, and I ask the Senate to hear how a learned and upright Judge despised and trampled upon the commonest principles of justice. This lawyer says:

> "The Florida Railroad Commission enforces its orders by mandamus instituted originally in the Supreme Court of the State, and yet Judge Pardee has enjoined the Florida Railroad Commission and all of the State officials from instituting suit in the Supreme Court of the State by mandamus to compel the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company to reduce its passenger fare from 4 cents to 3 cents per mile in Florida.
>
> "This injunction was granted upon the affidavit of the Vice President of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company to the effect that the Louisville & Nashville property in Florida is worth at least $5,200,000—this high valuation being essential to their case—and the State produced an affidavit made by the same man one month and twenty-eight days prior to his swearing to the bill, in which affidavit he had sworn that the identical property was not worth exceeding $1,700,000.
> "And yet on this man's affidavit the State was temporarily restrained from instituting mandamus proceedings in the Supreme Court of Florida to enforce compliance with the rate.

"I have no desire to oppress the railroads. My whole desire is to prevent the railroads from oppressing the people, and that, I believe, is the unanimous intention of Senators who sit on this side of the chamber. I do not know what view others may take about this question, but if I stand alone I intend to submit to the Senate the question whether it will allow a Federal court to exercise such arbitrary, extraordinary, and oppressive powers as have been exercised by Judge Pardee."

would end his public career, but that he would not cease to advocate it, even if he were opposed by bullets.

"You do not know, as I do, the extent of the harm that is done by race track gambling. It has been calculated that the defalcations directly due to such gambling amount each year to $1,800,000. For all the misery that means the wealthy men who draw dividends from the race track care nothing."

These resolutions were adopted by a rising vote at the conclusion of Mr. Comstock's address:

Whereas, The Constitution of the State of New York in most positive language says: "Nor shall any lottery, or the sale of lottery tickets, pool-selling, bookmaking, or any other form of gambling hereafter be authorized or allowed within this State;" and further:

"The Legislature shall pass appropriate laws to prevent offenses against any of the provisions of this section"; and

Whereas, The oath of each member of the Legislature requires him to support the Constitution; and

Whereas, Since 1895 common gamblers have openly and flagrantly violated the express terms of the Constitution by maintaining public nuisances in the form of gambling establishments upon the race courses of the State, in the presence of thousands of persons drawn to the race tracks through these gambling schemes; and

Whereas, Under common law a common gambling house is per se, a common nuisance, as it tends to draw together idle and evil-disposed persons to corrupt their morals and ruin their fortunes; and

Whereas, Since 1895 common gamblers have openly and flagrantly violated the express terms of the Constitution of this State, and also the spirit of the common law, upon the various race tracks of the State to the detriment of public morals and public welfare; and

Whereas, Under existing laws there is no law under which they can be arrested and prosecuted in a criminal court, and no law to protect the Constitution from being openly and flagrantly violated, nor any penalty that may be imposed by any criminal court; and

Whereas, A bill is now before both houses, known as the Cassidy-Lansing bill, to amend Section 351 of the Penal Code so as to make the penalty there imposed apply equally to all professional gamblers throughout the State, whether upon the race track or otherwise; therefore

Resolved, That we, the Methodist Ministers' Conference of New York City and vicinity, in public meeting assembled this 19th day of March, 1906, do respectfully call upon each member of the Legislature to promptly pass said bill and fully restore Section 351 to its original text, as it existed in 1894, at the time the Constitution of the State was amended making the crime a felony, and the penalty the same as has existed for years; and repealing all acts or parts of acts which prevent Chapter 9 of the Penal Code from applying to these shameless outrages of the Constitution and the morals of the State of New York; and further

Resolved, That we thank Owen Cassidy of the Senate and Bradford R. Lansing of the Assembly for introducing this bill; and assure them of our high appreciation of their valuable services in advocating the same; and that we urge upon them and upon each member of the Legislature the imperative necessity for passing this law in order that the Constitution may be duly respected and the laws of the State be made uniform against these crime-breeding institutions.

Mr. Comstock repeated the address delivered by him before the Methodist ministers meeting at the Baptist Ministers' Conference, which was held in the Young Men's Christian Association Building in West Twenty-third Street and adopted the same set of resolutions. He refused to go further into details as to his charge that Dr. Slicer was in the pay of the racing interests.

"I decline to dignify such a statement by replying to it," said the Rev. Dr. Slicer.

As to the statement made by Dr. Crafts that the New York State Conference of Religions did not represent fifteen religious bodies, as asserted by Dr. Slicer, there was this answer from Dr. Slicer:

"I have said in general terms that fifteen denominations were represented in the conference, which was organized about six years ago. The conference is made up of members of all the leading churches, who have gotten together for purposes of practical righteousness. Speculative theology has no part in its work. Its members were not officially appointed by the denominations to which they belong, but came together in unity of purpose and without uniformity of belief. The legislative committee is comparatively new. The Cassidy-Lansing bill is the first measure that has been brought to its attention."

Dr. Slicer reiterated his decision to have nothing further to say about the racing situation.

"I had a talk with Joseph S. Auerbach, the attorney for The Jockey Club," said he, "and we decided that it was best to say nothing further at this time."

"But members of the Board of Stewards of The Jockey Club deny that any agreement has been entered into with you," Dr. Slicer was told.

"I have already said that an agreement has been made," he replied. "It was entered into by such members of the Board of Stewards as were then in the city and was afterward indorsed by Mr. Belmont. I am confident that it will be carried out to the letter."

ASKS DR. SLICER TO RETRACT.

Dr. Gregg Again Denies Poolroom Men Originated Anti-Race Track Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—The Rev. Dr. A. S. Gregg, who has been leading the forces here in favor of the Cassidy-Lansing Anti-Poolselling bill, got back at the Rev. Dr. Slicer to-day in answering that clergyman's statement that the bill now before the Legislature is in the interest of the poolroom keepers.

"If there is any suspicion of that kind," said Dr. Gregg, "let the Legislature amend the bill in such a manner as to make gambling on horse racing illegal anywhere. The way to do that would be to forbid any telegraph or telephone company to send out any list of winners at the race tracks or any other information that could be of use in gambling on the results. That would stop race track gambling everywhere, and if any one wants to amend the Cassidy bill to that extent we will support such a move.

"Make it legal to print the results of races only in newspapers, and do not allow the news transmitting agencies to give the results to any but newspapers. Our attitude on such an amendment would quickly show if we were in league with poolroom men."

Dr. Gregg said that he has written a letter to Dr. Slicer demanding a retraction, and has given him until to-morrow to make one. He said that the imputation that the reform bureau was acting with the keepers of poolrooms was an insult.

"Supposing Dr. Slicer doesn't retract?" asked a member.

"He's got to retract," said Dr. Gregg.

Gov. Higgins was not in the city to-day, but when he returns to-morrow it is expected that he will have something to say about the deal made between the racing committee, of which August Belmont is the head, and the persons headed by Dr. Slicer regarding the "sterilizing" of betting on the tracks. It is said that the Governor is very wroth that any official of the State should go so far in recognizing the gambling element on race tracks under the jurisdiction of the commission as to make a deal with such interests.

From the political side Republicans are pointing out that this incident would give the Governor an opportunity to appoint a party man as Mr. Belmont's successor as Chairman of the State Racing Commission, as Mr. Belmont is merely a holdover since last May, when the term expired. Congressman Wadsworth, father of the Speaker, is credited with having kept Mr. Belmont in office, in spite of his opposition to Higgins last year, and it is also stated that Representative Wadsworth has thrown his influence against the bill and will work for its defeat.

MELLEN SAYS RATE BILL WAS DRAWN TO DECEIVE

Cunningly Devised by Some One Opposed to All Legislation.

CHANCE FOR GRAFT, HE SAYS

Believes the Present Law, If Enforced, Would Cure Almost All the Railroad Evils.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, March 19.—Charles S. Mellen, President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railway, who had been supposed to be a supporter of President Roosevelt's plans for rate legislation, to-night came out flat-footedly against the Hepburn bill. He declared it was evidently drawn with a purpose of serving private interests and giving opportunity for graft or other misuse of power.

Mr. Mellen spoke before the Get-Together Club. He said he had been greatly annoyed by misrepresentation of his position on the Hepburn bill.

"I regard it in its present form," he said, "as a most pernicious piece of legislation—one of the worst that has attracted my attention.

"The bill is so bad, and is full of such evil possibilities, (regarding which I am disposed to believe some of its advocates have been imposed upon,) that it will probably overshoot the mark, and a careful examination causes me to speculate whether it may not have been cunningly devised by some one opposed to all legislation; so utterly subversive is it of all principles of justice, so utterly regardless is it of all warrant in constitutionality, so arbitrary and autocratic is it in its provisions regarding unimportant matters, that it may well be it was the design to cause disgust, distrust, and antagonism among all right-thinking and fair-minded men."

He declared he had not changed his opinion that there is need of additional legislation.

"The power of the railroads is too great to be longer permitted to be exercised without greater restraint in the interest of the public," he continued. "Directors do not always direct, officials are not always competent, power long exercised makes men offensive, autocratic, and arbitrary, and stockholders, employes, and the public suffer and pay the bill.

"An absolute, autocratic form of government, with the right man at the head, is said to be the best, and this may well be true, but the trouble is the right man is so seldom at the head and the wrong man so frequently in evidence that we cannot afford to run the risk on account of the average.

"So with our transportation interests; they are so vast, their power for good or evil is so tremendous, and the public has so great an interest that it should never permit such power to rest in the hands of any set of men, even, except under carefully guarded restraints as to the exercise of that power and with the greatest possible publicity of all that is done.

"Any legislation along lines that will accomplish the practical elimination of preferences and discriminations, (and the present laws have nearly accomplished their purpose in these respects,) amendments to existing laws requiring the frequent examination of books, records, and accounts, as in the case of National banks, with the fullest returns, and their publication and accessibility, will do more good to the public (and be without harm to the carriers) than any such legislation as is now pending before the United States Senate.

"It will be infinitely more to the advantage of the country if those in authority enforce the laws now in existence until their inadequacy is apparent rather than assumed, and evince their sincerity by acts and deeds rather than by assertion of what they would do if only granted more authority.

"Under existing laws, amended to include car companies and other carriers not now subject to the Inter-State Commerce Act, and with power to examine books and accounts and give such measure of publicity to the operations of the carriers as might be adjudged necessary, I would myself undertake to stamp out and hold in restraint the payment of all rebates and the practice of discrimination as completely and effectually as are murder and other crimes against persons and property in all well organized, well disposed, and law-abiding communities.

"If a square deal is more than a well sounding phrase, if the Senate of the United States was constituted as a safe and sane barrier against misguided and temporary popular clamor, the noise of numbers, the misdirected zeal of those who wish to divide with those who have that which they have not, (the Socialists, the Anarchists, the mob,) then such a measure as the Hepburn bill must fail or be radically amended before becoming law."

He said he would not point out all the objections to the Hepburn bill, but would merely indicate why he believes "there is some ulterior purpose not frankly disclosed in the bill," but that it was drafted with intent "to interfere in the relations of the carriers between themselves, in matters wherein the public has no interest.

"The bill contains provisions intended to force the carriers to contract among themselves for through lines or routes," he said. "Under Section 15 the power attempted to be conferred upon the commission is such that our company, having a line partly by rail and partly by water over steamboat lines wholly owned and controlled by it, it is possible, if another party should establish a nondescript steamboat line in competition, for the Inter-State Commerce Commission to order us to establish a through route with that line, and prescribe the rates and the divisions of those rates that shall obtain.

"A policy like this is simply a case of robbing one carrier to benefit another, and offers the widest possible chance for speculation in reducing the value of the securities of one carrier and enhancing the value of those of another, with no possible advantage accruing to the public."

He also objected to Section 20, in which power is given for the commission to prescribe the accounts, records, or memoranda to be kept by the carriers.

"It is provided that any carrier who keeps any other books, accounts, or memoranda than prescribed by the commission is guilty of a misdemeanor," he said. "The warrant, I am told, for all this is that the Commissioners at times have been confounded by information supplied by the carriers in controverting the misleading conclusions they have drawn from accounts kept in their own offices, and they do not propose to have a carrier appear before them with any data or information other than that in their possession, from which conclusions may be drawn contrary to their own.

"To have accomplished the result aimed at it would have been better to have prescribed that in any controversy no carrier should appear before the commission with any accounts, records or memoranda, or with any more brains than possessed by the Commissioners who hear the case."

UPHOLDS SOUTHERN PACIFIC.

Court Grants Injunction Against the Western Pacific.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—United States Circuit Judge Morrow to-day handed down a decision in the case of the Southern Pacific Company against the Western Pacific Railway Company, generally known as the Gould line, which is seeking to obtain terminal facilities on the eastern, or Oakland, side of San Francisco Bay. Every contention of the Southern Pacific Company as to rights of way and precedence along the bay shore was sustained by Judge Morrow.

The Judge also granted an interlocutory decree of injunction, restraining the Western Pacific from interfering in any way with the work of the Southern Pacific Company in the extension of wharves from its bulkhead to navigable waters. A cross bill filed by the Western Pacific Company was dismissed.

Notice of appeal was given by the attorneys for the Western Pacific, and a stay of execution for ten days was granted.

The decision of the court apparently shuts the Gould road out of any entrance to San Francisco by its chosen route through Oakland. The Western Pacific is being built to connect the present terminal point of the Gould system at Salt Lake City with San Francisco, and the fight for terminal at Oakland with the Harriman Southern Pacific interests has been bitterly waged for months. While the matter was in the courts both roads made efforts to get physical possession of the disputed ground, and for months during the Winter both banks of Oakland Creek had the appearance of rival army camps. Armed men guarded the shores in the interests of the two roads, and the waters of the creek were patrolled night and day by launches filled with armed men.

The Southern Pacific stole a march on the Western Pacific guards one night and succeeded in laying the foundations of a freight shed without any blood-letting on either side.

The Gould project of a transcontinental line has met with hard blows East as well as West. After a long fight with the Pennsylvania the road finally gained an entrance to Pittsburg, but still remains cut off from the Western Maryland, the Atlantic tide water connection of the Gould system, which terminates a few miles southeast of Pittsburg.

TO ABOLISH HIGH RANK.

House Passes Bill to Prevent Promotion to Lieutenant Generalcy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The first business in the House to-day was the passage of the Prince bill abolishing the Lieutenant Generalcy. It came up as the unfinished business from Friday's session, when the failure to obtain a quorom forced an adjournment.

The first roll call was on the amendment offered by Gen. Grosvenor, deferring until Oct. 12 the date on which the bill is to become effective, in order to assure promotion to Gen. Corbin and Gen. MacArthur.

The Grosvenor amendment provides that "when after Oct. 12, 1906, the office of Lieutenant General shall become vacant, it shall not thereafter be filled, but shall cease and determine." It was adopted by a vote of 138 to 101, and the bill was passed by acclamation.

The inclusion of the last clause, "but said office shall cease and determine," in the opinion of army officers, unless amended by the Senate, will defeat the purpose of Gen. Grosvenor to protect Gen. Corbin, for by the abolition of the office on June 2, 1909, when Gen. MacArthur would retire, all the retired Lieutenant Generals would cease to be members of the army.

When that feature of the bill was called to the attention of a member of the House Committee on Military Affairs he said:

"That's so. Oh, well, the Senate will fix that."

CONSULAR BILL PASSED.

It Grades the Service and Provides for Inspection.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The House passed the Consular Reform bill to-day, and the ambition of the Congressional life of Representative Robert Adams of Pennsylvania was fulfilled. The measure had been passed already by the Senate.

For sixteen years Mr. Adams had been working for the passage of such a bill.

"I may be pardoned for expressing my personal satisfaction in moving the passage of this bill," he said when he called the measure up to-day, "for ever since I have been a member of this House I have labored to see this result brought about. There are four features of it which are especially to be commended. First, the consular offices are classified according to their importance and the salaries. Second, provision is made for a system of inspection. Third, all fees will have to be turned into the Treasury, and that abuse will be stopped. Fourth, all consular clerks and employes who receive $1,000 or more a year must be American citizens."

LIMIT ON USE OF FRANKS.

House Committee Provides for Reforms in Mail Service.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads reported the Post Office Appropriation bill to the House to-day. It provides for an expenditure of $191,373,848 for the fiscal year 1907, or $913,221 less than the modified estimates of the Post Office Department. This amount exceeds the appropriation for 1906 by $10,351,755, of free delivery.

Provision is made that hereafter no article shall be admitted to the mails under a frank unless so entitled under laws requiring payment of postage. It will also be made unlawful to lend a frank or permit is use by any organization.

SHONTS FORCED TO REST.

Canal Chairman Affected by Overwork, Boils, and the Grip.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—It was said at the War Department to-day that Theodore P. Shonts, Chairman of the Isthmian Canal Commission, has broken badly in health as the result of overwork.

His nervous system has suffered particularly. An attack of boils was followed by the grip, and finally Secretary Taft, at the instance of Mr. Shonts's physicians, peremptorily ordered him to take a rest for two weeks at Atlantic City. That was on March 8, and Mr. Shonts accordingly has been stopping at the seaside.

Although he came to Washington Saturday on some business, he returned to Atlantic City yesterday, in company with Mr. Pepperman, the Chief Clerk of the commission.

Panama Canal Engineer Contradicts Burr and Parsons by Cable.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Isthmian Canal Commission cabled to Chief Engineer Stevens Saturday the substance of the testimony of Prof. William H. Burr and William Barclay Parsons, that the hill at Gatun was not long enough to accommodate three locks of the length proposed in the report of the minority of the Board of Consulting Engineers.

Mr. Stevens replied to-day: "I have just made a careful personal examination of the exact site of the Gatun dam. There is ample length, with perfect foundations, for longer locks than reported by the minority of the Board of Consulting Engineers. Contradict Burr and Parsons on my authority, and say that if nature had intended triple locks there, she could not have arranged matters better."

BATTLE OF MT. DAJO AGAIN BEFORE HOUSE

Gen. Grosvenor Defends Action of Troops in Killing Moros.

WILLIAMS REPLIES SHARPLY

Gen. Wood Cables Twice More and Secretary Taft Will Defend Him Before Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The fight at Mount Dajo came up again in the House to-day, when Gen. Grosvenor defended the action of the American troops there and John Sharp Williams again denounced it. The discussion was had under cover of the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill.

Gen. Grosvenor had collected several documents and reports bearing on the character of the Moros. He also read two cablegrams received by Secretary Taft from Gen. Wood, supplementary to those previously received. The first is dated yesterday and reads:

> If more detailed information concerning the facts connected with the Mount Dajo fight is desired I suggest that Major Hugh L. Scott be called upon. He is thoroughly familiar with the situation, having spent eight months in the attempt to get these people off the mountain without fighting.

The second is dated Manila, to-day, and reads:

> Sensational cables sent to the United States relating to the Mount Dajo fight were made up in Manila. There has been no reference in any cable from Mindanao to the killing of women and children. On receipt of Col. Andrews's condensed report from me in Washington the American newspapers cabled for details. The reporters here had no other information than was contained in my report to Col. Andrews and supplied sensational features.

After reading these dispatches, Gen. Grosvenor went on to explain what a set of bandits and pirates the Moros are. He declared they had always been and still are an utterly lawless, treacherous, bloodthirsty gang, never amenable to law or civilization.

"These outlaws had gathered in a retreat at the top of an inaccessible mountain," he continued. "They had made that their rendezvous for months, and no efforts of the authorities could remove them. They were in a place strong by nature and made stronger by art. The situation had become intolerable.

"There was no alternative but to get them out. And there was but one way to get them out. That way was the one adopted by the skill and ingenuity of the American commander. The President was absolutely right when he telegraphed, with full knowledge, that it was a significant and commendable feat of arms to destroy them."

Gen. Grosvenor then said he would ask unanimous consent to have inserted in The Record the documents which he had prepared.

"Do they contain any doggerel poetry?" asked Dalzell.

"No," replied Gen. Grosvenor, "they do not. I will only say further that it is regrettable that there should have been on the floor of this House charges that involve the honor of the American Army and that assail the intelligence and integrity of the President."

That brought John Sharp Williams up.

"I seem to catch the usual phrases of Jingoism," he said. "The gentleman objects to considering the battle poetically. Considered prosaically, then, it was the loss of 18 men on one side and 600 men, women, and children on the other.

"The bare fact is that thus far no prisoners have been officially reported. The reports account for the killing of women and children first on the ground that the Moros made shields of them. They tell us that mere robbers, with no higher motive than robbery, made shields of their women and children, and they ask us to believe such stuff.

"Later they have accounted for it in a different way. Now they say that 'if women and children were killed it was by the fire of guns at long range.' But which explanation is true?"

The Major Scott referred to in Gen. Wood's cablegram has been on leave of absence in this country and has just arrived in Washington in answer to Secretary Taft's summons. He was referred to in some of the Manila cablegrams as really having caused the trouble at Mount Dajo by the exercise of too great leniency toward the brigand Moros.

Secretary Taft expects to go before the Military Committee of the Senate some day this week with such information relative to the Mount Dajo fight, and the condition in that section of the achipelago as can be supplied by Major Scott and in cablegrams from Gen. Wood.

Mr. Taft will also throw some light on the subject of Gen. Wood's mileage when he made his trip last Summer from Manila to this country and return, circling the globe in doing so. The substance of the Secretary's communication will be comprised in the statement that this trip was made, as ordered by the army surgeons. It will also be stated that Gen. Wood returned to the Philippines against the advice of the London specialist who operated on his head.

MAY DOUBLE COTTON VALUE.

Virtues Claimed for New Seeds by the Department of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Following a series of experiments extending over several years, the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, today announced it had developed a number of new breeds of cotton, seeds of which are ready to be sent out for next season's planting, and which the bureau avers promise to almost double the value of the cotton crop wherever they are used.

These new cottons have been bred from the native and short staple upland variety and are from a half to three-quarters of an inch longer in fiber than cotton grown from the parent seeds.

BURGLAR KILLS WOMAN.

Shoots Her in Bed While Husband Gives Money to Accomplices.

POTTSVILLE, Penn., March 19.—Mrs. John Morrison of Cumbola was shot and killed as she lay in bed early to-day by a burglar. Morrison and his wife were awakened by three masked burglars, two of whom compelled Morrison to precede them to the first floor and give them a purse containing money which was in one of the sideboard drawers. The third remained in the room with Mrs. Morrison to prevent her from giving an alarm.

It is believed by the authorities that the woman recognized the man, and that when he learned she had discovered his identity he shot her.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.

ALGECIRAS, March 19.—The impression that in regard to the police question the resources of diplomacy have not been exhausted and that Germany has not yet said her last word is being confirmed. This lessens the danger of a rupture, but suggests that the conference may be indefinitely prolonged by new developments.

If the impracticable Casablanca project is abandoned, as now seems probable, it may be assumed that Germany will insist upon some other means of giving the police organization an international character, or, in other words, will require some equivalent precaution against the alleged danger of France's obtaining through the police a predominant political influence in Morocco. This danger may be purely imaginary, but the Germans have from the beginning maintained that the principle of internationalization must be safeguarded.

The problem now under consideration is how to create a police organization which will afford sufficient guarantees of international control without on the one hand giving rise to friction and on the other creating spheres of influence which would be dangerous to the integrity of the Sultan's dominions.

It must be confessed that the problem, when reduced to its simplest expression, has a disagreeable resemblance to squaring the circle. It is impossible for the moment to predict confidently what line of action the Cabinet at Berlin will adopt, but there is reason to believe that in the course of the next few days significant indications will become apparent. There are indications that the Germans may not only abandon the Casablanca project, but practically give up the idea of internationalizing the police and seek the internationalism on which they insist in another way; that is, by persuading France to consent to a diminution of her participation and influence in the State Bank.

PARIS, March 19.—Officials here say that France's position is absolute and final against placing Casablanca under international command. It is maintained that this is not a question of detail but one that involves the entire Franco-German controversy over the internationalization of the police.

After exchanges at the various capitals, officials declare that another vote will show that France is supported by Great Britain, Spain, Portugal, and Russia, with Austria doubtful and Italy and the United States abstaining. Austria's doubt is due to Vienna's wavering in the support she has heretofore given to Germany. The current opinion in official circles is that Germany intends to recede from her position.

The semi-official Temps says: "We await Germany's final concessions. If we await in vain let Germany say so and let the conference record a failure of which German diplomacy must bear the responsibility before the world."

However, statements in the semi-official press are sometimes designed to satisfy public opinion, and the indications are that Foreign Minister Bourgeois is adopting a less peremptory tone.

GERMANY'S LITTLE WAR.

Operations in Southwest Africa Have Cost $150,000,000 to Date.

BERLIN, March 19.—Official dispatches received from German Southwest Africa to-day announce the failure of the comprehensive surrounding movement undertaken by the German troops against Jacob Morengo, the last and most active of the native leaders of the rebels. The movement had been going on for weeks, and six large detachments, with fifteen field and machine guns participated in it.

Col. Deimling, the former Commander in Chief in Southwest Africa, in a speech in the Reichstag to-day, said it was an error to suppose that Morengo was a savage with rings in his nose and ears. He was as hard-headed and intelligent a man as he had met, wore English riding clothes, and spoke Dutch from having lived in Cape Colony. Morengo owned a large farm in German Southwest Africa, and had a certain amount of generosity, for he gave a German whose farm he had plundered $150 with which to return home in the first cabin.

The Reichstag to-day passed the fourth supplementary African budget of $7,500,000. The total cost of the insurrection up to date is about $150,000,000.

PRINCE OF WALES RETURNING.

Sails with the Princess from India for Egypt on a Battleship.

KURRACHEE, British India, March 19.—The Prince and Princess of Wales, having completed a five months' tour of India, sailed to-day on board the British battleship Renown for Egypt, where they will spend a week. Thence they will go to Athens, where they will meet King Edward and Queen Alexandra.

Before their departure the Prince of Wales held an investure. Among the honors conferred was that of Companion of the Indian Empire upon Major Colin F. Campbell, husband of the former Miss Nancy Leiter.

LIEUT. SCHMIDT SHOT.

Officer Who Led Black Sea Mutiny Executed with Three Sailors.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 19.—Lieut. Schmidt, who commanded the vessels of the Black Sea fleet which mutinied in November of last year, was shot to-day at Otchakoff.

Three of the sailors were executed with him.

Danced at Their Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Wilson Burke of 37 West Forty-fourth Street, Bayonne, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding last evening and entertained many guests, among whom were their three children and nine grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Burke each danced several times. The parents of Mr. Burke had their golden wedding in 1883. Mr. Burke has been employed at the Sub-Treasury in this city for a quarter of a century. He and his wife are each 72 years old.

POLISH WOMEN'S VOW.

Will Attend Only Those Church Services in Berlin Held in Polish.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

BERLIN, March 19.—There was a meeting of Polish women in Berlin last night to protest against the ignoring of the wishes of the Poles by the German Church government. A resolution was adopted calling upon Polish women to boycott the Catholic Liebfrauen Church until the equality of the Polish language with German in church services is recognized. The resolution concludes:

"It is said that it should have come to this, but we desire to attend only those church services which are held in Polish. Failing this, we will pray alone before the image of the Virgin and implore her help with the promise that we will be faithful not only to our church but to our nation."

VOICE OF GORKY'S SOUL.

Calls on German Impressionists to Help Create a New Art.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

BERLIN, March 19.—At a reception given to him to-day by the Impressionists, Gorky, the Russian novelist, made a speech in which he said:

"You love art and are its disciples, therefore hear the voice of my soul. You must aid the Russian people to fight for freedom. You must do so that a new art may be the sooner born—the art of a free Russian people.

"In art as in science there are no Greeks nor Jews, but only real brothers. You showed this brilliantly when you came to my aid. Now show the world that you will also aid my people."

POLICE STOP PRINCE HENRY.

Countryman Not Satisfied with Compensation for Fright to Team.

BERLIN, March 19.—Prince Henry of Prussia, while personally driving an automobile, ran into a team near the village of Tarp, not far from Schwerin, and badly frightened the horses. The Prince compensated the owner liberally, but after the Prince had left the countryman telephoned to the police at Schwerin, who stopped his Royal Highness.

The Prince explained the situation, and as the police seemed to be in doubt as to what to do, Prince Henry proceeded with the remark: "You know where I live."

FRENCH OFFICERS PUNISHED.

Prison for Refusing to Order Troops to Break Into a Church.

RENNES, France, March 19.—A council of war just held here has sentenced Major Héry to a year's imprisonment, and Captains Cléret and Spiral each to a day's imprisonment for refusing to order their troops to enter a local church and assist in the taking of an inventory in accordance with the law providing for the separation of Church and State.

The defense claimed that the execution of civilian processes was not part of the duties of the army.

Our Shipping Bill Rouses British.

LONDON, March 19.—The American Ship Subsidy bill is agitating British ship owners and builders, and formed the subject of a question in the House of Commons this afternoon, but Premier Campbell-Bannerman said the Government did not think any useful action could be taken at the present stage. The Government was unable to prophesy the probable effect of the measure on British shipping, but if the bill passed the consequences would of course be carefully considered.

German Armament Improvements.

BERLIN, March 19.—The Cologne Gazette to-day announces that the changes in the rifling and sights of the German infantry arm have necessitated new ammunition. The paper adds that the rearmament of the artillery with the new tubular recoil gun has partly been accomplished, and that the rearming of the remaining batteries is proceeding rapidly.

POISON KILLED McCABE.

Autopsy Confirms Coroner's Belief That "Knock-Out Drops" Were Used.

The autopsy performed yesterday on the body of John J. McCabe, a weaver of Pittsfield, who was found dead in the shaft of a Chrystie Street tenement, reveals the presence of "knockout" drops.

The autopsy was performed by Coroners' Physician Philip O'Hanlon, and he reported to Coroner Harburger that he found evidences of poison. Part of the body was sent to Prof. Larkin of the College of Physicians and Surgeons for further examination.

When McCabe's body was found a policeman reported the man as "unknown," although there were many papers on the body. Coroner Harburger found papers that the police had not discovered, and disputed their statement that McCabe died from alcoholism.

Palma Formally Re-elected.

HAVANA, March 19.—The Cuban Presidential Electors formally met to-day and unanimously elected Tomas Estrada Palma to be President of the republic.

COUNT WITTE TO RESIGN, ST. PETERSBURG HEARS

Statement He Made at Council Meeting So Interpreted.

KOKOVSOFF MAY BE PREMIER

Workmen in Cities Show Inclination to Reject Socialists' Advice and Boycott the Elections.

ST. PETERSBURG, Tuesday, March 20.—In high circles late to-night the rumor was current that Count Witte had definitely decided to retire from the Premiership.

The Associated Press is unable to confirm the rumor, as Count Witte had retired and the Chancellery was closed when the correspondent called, shortly after midnight. From an absolutely authentic source, however, it can be stated that Count Witte, at a session of the Council of the Empire this afternoon, made an enigmatical statement, which is interpreted by many members of the Council as a virtual declaration that his career as Premier is ended and that he will be succeeded by Privy Councilor Kokovsoff, former Minister of Finance.

A project for the solution of the agrarian problem by the purchase of lands from the nobles and other large proprietors through the peasant banks, and their resale to peasants on long-term installment payment, was under discussion.

As the Treasury is in no condition to advance the money to the banks for this purpose, Count Witte advocated a scheme under which the banks should purchase the land with fifteen years' credit bonds instead of cash. A very marked division of the Cabinet developed. Finance Minister Shipoff opposed the Premier. Suddenly M. Kokovsoff arose, and in a warm speech earnestly supported Count Witte's views. When he had ended Count Witte closed the debate in a few words, rather apologizing for his seeming indifference, and thanking M. Kokovsoff for his support, adding:

"I also might have made a better defense had I been as much interested in the future as Alexander Nicholaievitch," meaning M. Kokovsoff, Russians even on formal occasions referring to persons by their Christian names.

On what is apparently reliable authority, it is said that the condition of Count Witte's health is quite unsatisfactory. He is said to have experienced an alarming attack of heart trouble a few days ago. His physicians advised him some time since to give up work. It is known that Count Witte, believing that he had weathered the political storm, formed a determination to relinquish the Premiership upon the meeting of the National Assembly. Recently, however, the strength of the reactionaries increased, and the Premier was obliged to keep up the fight against heavy odds. It may be that his endurance was thus exhausted, and that, feeling that his health was declining, he has reached the decision to retire immediately.

As the elections proceed there is more and more evidence of the virtual exclusion from participation of the radical elements of the population. The preliminary stages of the elections will rob the National Assembly of much of its national character. Its authority to speak will be absolutely denied by the proletariat organizations which bore the brunt of the fight for liberty.

Complaints of interference and duress in the country districts are increasing. Many flagrant instances are cited of the terrorism of local officials in preventing a free expression of the peasants and often practically compelling the selection of priests and village elders. The seeming apathy of the small landowners' assemblies at which an average of only 10 per cent. of the voters was present, is explainable by the feeling that they were not free to choose.

The most serious phase of the situation, however, is the attitude of the workmen in the cities, who constitute politically the most developed and most radical faction of the masses of the population. In spite of repression, wholesale arrests, and frequently the exile of their leaders since the strike disorders, many workmen are inclined to reject the advice of the Socialists to boycott the elections.

The authorities, instead of taking advantage of this sentiment and inducing the workmen as a class to participate, have openly discouraged their participation where the radical elements are in the majority, thus deliberately playing the game of the boycotters and driving the whole working class into revolt.

GET NORTHERN NATIONAL.

Henry Dimse to Head Bank Under Its New Management.

Control of the Northern National Bank, at Broadway and Fourth Street, has been obtained by a syndicate of Connecticut banking interests, headed by Henry Dimse, cashier of the Citizens' Central National Bank, who will become President of the Northern.

The Northern National Bank is capitalized at $300,000, and at the time of the last report to the Controller of the Currency, on Jan. 29, had a surplus and profits of $224,925. Seven of the old Directors are slated to remain in the Board under the new management. They are Jacob C. Simon, Maurice Brill, Sidney Bernheimer, Charles H. Simmons, Leo A. Price, Joseph L. Reiling, and Louis Korn.

SECOND HEAVY SNOW IMPEDES ALL TRAFFIC

Ferryboats Crash on North River—Deckhand Saves Women.

SHOVELING GANGS QUIT

Contractor Gives Up Attempt to Clear Streets Until To-day—Heavy Rain Adds to Trolley Troubles.

With a snowfall of almost five inches yesterday followed by a heavy rainfall; New York had a sorry day of it. The sellers of umbrellas and rubber shoes reaped a harvest. The optimists quoted the proverb about March coming in like a lamb and going out like a lion, and said Spring must come soon. In this prediction they were borne out by most of the unofficial weather sharps who called the storm "the equinoxial."

Local Forecaster Emery, looking over his charts last evening, refused to discuss prospects except to say that it probably would be fair and clear to-day with a temperature below freezing. He agreed that he might be wrong.

A ferryboat crash on the North River was the worst casualty due to yesterday's heavy snow. Shortly after noon the West Shore ferryboat Rochester and the Erie boat Passaic met in midstream with a bump that tilted the Passaic far to starboard. The passengers behaved well at the moment of danger. Truck drivers sprang to their horses' bridles to keep them from plunging overboard. The quickness of both pilots in sheering off probably saved both boats from serious trouble.

James Johnson, a deckhand, who was forward at the time of the collision, seeing that the impact would be on the women's side, rushed into the cabin and hustled the women forward. There were not many, and most of them dropped their bundles. One woman had a baby in arms, and dropped it in her alarm. As she turned back to pick up the child the crash came. Johnson carried mother and child out as they were falling. A man passenger was cut by flying glass.

The Passaic, with the woodwork of her port side badly crushed and one end of the women's cabin smashed in, made for her dock at full speed. When she arrived there she had taken so much water that the list was to port. After discharging her passengers and trucks the Passaic was towed to a dry dock. The Rochester was not injured.

Throughout the snowstorm the pilots found the river almost unnavigable. The white blanket was so dense that it was worse than a heavy fog.

Traffic on the surface roads was badly tied up during the rush hours morning and evening. The snow plows were all in use throwing up heaps of dirty snow, but as the snow changed to rain, filling the trolley conduits with slush, fuses blew out and there were traffic blocks all along the line. A great many left the cars to walk home. The elevated cars sent down their storm weather shooting stars with occasional searchlight-like flashes of blue fire. Traffic was greatly hampered. The Subway trains, crowded so that the guards grew almost considerate, carried an enormous number of home-bound New Yorkers last night.

The miles of streets which the snow removal contractor or the Street Cleaning Department had not touched since the preceding storm were made almost impassable. Heavy trucks and slipping horses made a sad spectacle. But what seemed to amuse people more than anything else were the efforts of chauffeurs to get their automobiles to make way through the slippery, soft banks of snow.

As for the snow removal contractor, William Bradley, he had troubles of his own. He had made up, in part, the lack of implements with which the former storm caught him, but his laborers disappeared with the heavy downfall yesterday. He just gave up altogether.

Word came from the Weather Department that the snow was apt to continue until there came a sharp drop in the temperature, making use of the pickaxe necessary. The contractor sent lieutenants through the city to gather up shovelers, and bought 500 picks and some more shovels from a hardware establishment.

Bradley's agents went to places where new buildings were going up, where the storm had stopped work, and soon gathered up men in droves. They could not be put to work immediately, while the snow was coming down, and so there was the additional task of watching them and keeping them in good humor until the expected let-up. When the rain set in the contractor was ready to remove snow, but the gangs again had disappeared. The work of snow removal will be started at 6 o'clock this morning.

The storm started three days ago in California. Where the winds were warm it fell as rain, quenching the thirst of the orange groves. It poured down over the grazing lands of the Southwest. Twisting to the northeast, the storm clouds swept through the Southern States, skipping those near the Atlantic and deluging the Ohio Valley with a rainfall that was welcomed.

The temper of the storm changed at Columbus, Ohio, where the rain turned to snow. The quantity seemed inexhaustible. It was 10:23 o'clock yesterday morning when the advance flakes began to fall in New York. They were big and only half frozen. They fell on the half-cleaned streets to melt for a quarter of an hour or so, and then began to gather together to give the Street Cleaning Department, and particularly the Bureau of Snow Removal, more work than they could possibly handle.

The officers of the various railroads running out of Jersey City reported last night that they had experienced no trouble from the storm.

PICKS GIRL OUT OF SNOWBANK.

Policeman Finds Her Unconscious—She Blames Headache Powders.

Policeman Barry of the West 152d Street Station was walking along Amsterdam Avenue at 188th Street last evening when he saw a woman half covered by a snowbank near the curb. The woman was unconscious, and Barry had her taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital, where she was revived.

She said she was Charlotte Thompson of 162 West 116th Street, and that she had been ill last evening. She said the last thing she remembered was that she went to a drug store and took some medicine for a headache.

Policeman John Brown of the Liberty Avenue Station found six-year-old David Freedman of 409 Warwick Street half frozen in a snowbank at Pitkin and Pennsylvania Avenues, East New York, last evening. Near him was a book belonging to Public School No. 64, in Berliman Street, nearly three miles away. Brown carried the boy to the police station. After being thawed out the lad said he got lost in the snowstorm while on his way home from school. He had forgotten where he lived. His parents at 9 o'clock called at the police station and got him.

SAY THE MAYOR TRIED TO THROTTLE CRITICISM

McClellan Charged with Using City Advertising to That End.

ALDERMEN HEAR CHARGES

Finance Committee Listens to Witnesses Who Say Their Attacks on the Mayor Lost Advertising.

Charges were freely made at a hearing before the Aldermanic Finance Committee yesterday that the McClellan administration had used the city advertising to "throttle" newspaper criticism of official acts and to compel newspapers to give editorial support to the administration.

Chairman Davies presided at the hearing, which was on a resolution for an investigation of these charges, which previously had appeared in some of the city newspapers. Chairman Davies, by way of introduction, said that the desire of the committee was to look into the charges and to see if it were true that Mayor McClellan and his subordinates had been designating newspapers with a view of getting their support to administration acts. Alderman Peters, a Hearst M. O. L. man, who had introduced the investigation resolution, said:

"The administration has been engaged in a systematic movement to throttle the city papers. The present system is all wrong, for it gives the Mayor the power to buy editorial support with the city printing, and this power has been used and abused by the present administration. An example of this is to be seen with THE NEW YORK TIMES. Its editorials of to-day, praising Mayor McClellan, directly contradict its editorials of a year ago, which were strongly in opposition to him. The answer is to be found in the fact that THE TIMES now receives the city advertising.

"Under the present system the Mayor absolutely dominates the Board of City Record, which designates the papers to carry the advertising. There are three members of the board, the Mayor, Controller, and Corporation Counsel. The latter is appointed by the Mayor, holds his office by grace of the Mayor, and therefore, of course, votes as the Mayor directs. There is a bill pending in the Legislature to have the official papers designated by the Board of Estimate, but I think it would be better to give that power to the Board of Aldermen, the body directly representative of the people.

"There are papers in this town which nightly print attacks on the Mayor and on his policies. The Mayor does not even see these papers, and it is not of record that they are being rewarded with city printing."

Thomas C. Quinn, publisher of The Daily News, appeared before the committee to tell of his experiences with the administration in the advertising mattter.

"I am not here to make a speech," said Mr. Quinn, "but am here to tell what I know to be facts. My first experience with city advertising was three years ago, when I was managing editor of The News and Frank A. Munsey was the publisher. Then the Board of City Record was not trying to further the personal and political ambitions of any one man. When Mr. Munsey dropped The News I made a proposal to take it in charge and I planned to run the city advertising to help me establish the paper on a firm basis.

"To make certain of this I went to see W. J. K. Kenny of the Securities Advertising Company. He told me the city advertising would be worth $40,000 a year. I then went to a friend in Wall Street and asked him if he would lend me $20,000 to put into the paper if I could guarantee him that we would get $40,000 of city advertising in the year. I then went to see Charles F. Murphy at Atlantic City. That was two years ago. Mr. Murphy told me I was crazy to try to do anything with The News. He said I would get gray hair and die without accomplishing anything.

"I told Mr. Murphy that I would run the paper through that year, anyway until after November. I said he might want to nominate McClellan for President, and that anyway Tammany Hall would have need for the organ. I succeeded in interesting Mr. Murphy, and he telephoned to my Wall Street friend, and I was assured of the city advertising. Then I got my money, and for the next year and a half I got the city advertising.

"After last Christmas I got disgusted with the way things were going at the City Hall. The best friend I had was Charles F. Murphy. I saw him and told him that the turning down of good Democrats for appointments at the hands of the Mayor was 'rotten.' Mr. Murphy said, 'Well, we'll have to stand it the best we can. It is a Tammany administration, you know.'

"Along about the middle of January a Buffalo man who knows the ins and outs of things at City Hall came to me and told me that the people at City Hall did not like the editorial policy of The News. I was told that if I desired to keep the city advertising I would have to be careful. Corporation Counsel Delany sent for me and told me the same thing. I asked him where the paper had been unfair, and in reply he cited many things which he said were displeasing to Mayor McClellan.

"At the suggestion of the Corporation Counsel I saw the Mayor, and The News shortly afterward printed in complete detail the result of that meeting, when the Mayor told me he would insist on having 'fair treatment' at the hands of the paper. After this meeting with the Mayor on Jan. 18 I saw Murphy again, and told him I was going to have the paper come out in opposition to the administration. He again told me I was crazy. I told him I would not be throttled; that I thought too much of my profesison and that I intended to tell the truth about things. Murphy told me that, as far as being throttled was concerned, the Mayor had me throttled already."

Chairman Davies then asked if George William Foster had ever represented The News in city advertising matters.

"Yes," replied Mr. Quinn. "First we were represented by Mr. Kenny's company, and Mr. Foster was a partner of Mr. Kenny. We paid Mr. Kenny's company 10 per cent. Then afterward Foster took charge of things personally, and he demanded 15 per cent. That was a year ago. Then I went to Mr. Murphy and told him Foster was sandbagging the paper. Mr. Murphy told me I would have to stand for it. I did."

Thomas T. Williams, General Manager for the Hearst properties, was the next speaker. He said he indorsed the bill which would turn the selection of newspapers over to the Board of Estimate.

"We had the city advertising, but we lost it," said Mr. Williams, smiling. "That was after we had attacked the administration editorially."

"Were you not warned first that if you continued your editorial attacks you would lose the advertising?" asked Alderman Peters.

"Yes," said Mr. Williams. "We printed an editorial attack, and then we were warned. The next day we repeated the attack, and then—it snowed. We also had visits from Mr. Foster, who wanted 10 per cent. to look after us. We refused. Then he offered to do it on a 5 per cent. basis. First we refused, and then we found that the advertising came in in bad shape, and we found that it would take all the time of a forty-dollar-a-week man to look after this business. We figured that it would be as cheap to pay Foster 5 per cent. as to hire this man, and then we made the arrangement with him. We were satisfied with the arrangement, but from things Mr. Foster said I guess he was not satisfied with it."

The committee will hold a further hearing on the subject next week.

YOUNG GLOBE TROTTER BACK.

Herman Kraft of Hoboken, 17 Years Old, Has Traveled 30,000 Miles.

Herman Kraft, a Hoboken boy who three years ago disappeared from his home, arrived in New York yesterday morning as a stowaway on the Cunarder Umbria. When he stepped ashore he was at the end of travels that had carried him over 30,000 miles, and during which he visited most of the big cities of Europe, and many of those in Asia and Australia.

Herman, who is now 17 years old, said that he left home purely through love of adventure, and that although he had had a good time without much money he had seen more of the world than had a majority.

Herman left Hoboken three years ago on the steamship Cecilia, and landed at Odessa, Russia. He didn't like Odessa, and deserted the Cecilia and shipped aboard the German steamship Moltkefels for South Africa. After that he got a job as a printer's devil in East London. Then he went back to Cape Town and shipped for Liverpool, where he remained a few days, and then shipped for Australia on the Largo Bay.

In Australia he got a job as a sheep tender. This place he held until he got homesick, and decided to begin his homeward journeyings. A week later he sailed from Melbourne. After a year's traveling he landed for a second time at Liverpool. There he visited the Cunard docks and decided to come home on the Umbria. The night before the liner sailed he stole on board, hid away, and did not show himself until the vessel was a hundred miles out of Queenstown. The rest of the way he peeled potatoes and scrubbed the decks to reimburse the Cunard Line for his transportation.

When Herman landed yesterday he went straight to his father's home in Park Avenue, Hoboken. They were glad to see him there.

THE BIGGEST SCHOOL OPEN.

It Takes 3,200 Brooklyn Pupils Off Half Time.

Thirty-two hundred pupils were taken off part time in Brooklyn yesterday by the opening of Public School No. 147, Bushwick Avenue and Seigel Street, which, next to Public School No. 62, on the lower east side of Manhattan, is probably the largest school building in the city. The children arrived at the school in six relays of about half an hour's intermission. They were taken from Public Schools Nos. 21, 43, 141, 117, 88, and 145. All these schools, with the single exception of 145, which is in District 35, are in District 33.

Charles D. Raine, formerly Principal of Public School No. 43, Boerum Street, near Manhattan Avenue, was installed as Principal of the new school. With the assistance of District Superintendent Campbell he received the pupils as rapidly as possible and organized them into sixty-five classes. Since the building will accommodate 4,500 pupils, or eighty-seven classes, there remains opportunity for taking 1,300 more pupils off part time.

James O'Donnell of Public School No. 53, Starr Street, near Central Avenue, succeeds Mr. Raine at No. 43. Miss Mary McNulty of Manhattan was installed yesterday at No. 53 as Mr. O'Donnell's successor.

SCHMITTBERGER NOT BLAMED

McAdoo's General Theatre Order Saves Him—Sweeney to be Tried.

Commissioner Bingham said yesterday that no charges of neglect of duty would be made against Inspector Schmittberger, as announced last week, in regard to the Irving Place Theatre license. Charges of neglect and of conduct unbecoming an oficer against Inspector Dennis F. Sweeney of the Harlem Inspection District would be taken up next Thursday afternoon at Police Headquarters, the Commissioner said. The charges have reference to the Inspector's failure to find that the manager of the Fort George Hotel, at 194th Street and Eleventh Avenue, had been giving concerts for some time without a license.

Schmittberger is protected by an order of May 1, 1905, signed by ex-Commissioner McAdoo, to the effect that all theatres be allowed to run except the Lew Fields and the Victoria, licenses having been granted.

The Commissioner also declared that he was not going to allow any one to spend money without his knowing it. As for the expense for meals for secretaries and clerks in the Police Department who stayed a little late at nights, this would cease altogether, unless those concerned were kept until 11 or 12 o'clock at night, when he might allow the price of a meal.

MRS. W. S. RAINSFORD HERE.

Says St. George's Former Rector Will Be Away for Two Years.

Mrs. W. S. Rainsford, wife of the former rector of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church, arrived on the White Star liner Celtic yesterday morning. Dr. Rainsford recently resigned, and is traveling for his health in Northern Africa.

Mrs. Rainsford said she left Dr. Rainsford in Cairo a month ago. He had been suffering from a nervous breakdown, she said, due to overwork. He will start soon on a trip to British East Africa with his nephew, William Watney, and will spend a great deal of his time in the open.

"I will be here four or five months," said Mrs. Rainsford. "My husband will join me in Liverpool, and we will remain in England until late in the Fall. We will then visit the Continent. It is probable that Dr. Rainsford will be on the other side for two years, but I want the story denied that he will never return to this country. He will return."

BLAST SCATTERS TONS.

Policeman Badly Hurt Protecting Tremont Children—Much Glass Smashed.

While leading a number of school children across Tremont Avenue and Bryant Street yesterday Policeman John Holtzer of the Tremont Station was struck on the head by a fragment of rock thrown by a dynamite blast half a block away. He suffered a fracture at the base of the skull, and was in a critical condition last night.

The force of the explosion shook the entire neighborhood. Windows were broken and chimneys demolished. A trolley car was passing Bryant Street at the time, crowded with women and children, and every pane of glass in it was shattered. Several tons of splintered rock were scattered over an area of two blocks.

Frank Spino, the foreman for Gallo & Pinelli of 127 Mulberry Street, contractors on the work, the police say, fled immediately after the blast. He has been arrested twice before. Capt. Brennan of the Tremont Station stopped the blasting.

For several weeks residents have been complaining about the reckless manner of the blasting. Bryant Street is being cut through at this point between Tremont Avenue and Boston Road. A cut twenty feet deep, in solid rock, has been made to a point about 100 feet south of Tremont Avenue. The contractors had been warned to be more careful and to wait until all the children had entered Public School 6, which is only half a block away.

Despite the warning a few minutes before 9 o'clock yesterday morning the cry of "blast" was heard, and several Italians were seen with red flags. Policeman Holtzer ran to hurry a group of children across the street out of danger. He took two of the smallest by the hand and told the others to follow quickly. They had just reached the centre of Tremont Avenue when the blast was fired. The ground shook and the air was filled with fragments of rock.

The children fled screaming to the schoolhouse, while Holtzer was picked up unconscious and carried to the residence of the Rev. Francis A. Barry, rector of the Church of St. Thomas Aquinas, at 1,277 Tremont Avenue, until he could be taken to a hospital. A piece of rock crashed into the kitchen at the home of the Rev. C. E. Ames of the West Farms Methodist Episcopal Church, at 1,262 Tremont Avenue.

CAN'T OUTLAW A PLEDGE.

No Statute of Limitations on Abstinence, a Court-Martial Holds.

Major David Price, Artillery Corps, one of the best-known officers in that branch of the army, was arraigned before a court-martial in the Army Building, on Whitehall Street, yesterday morning, charged with intoxication, conduct unbecoming a gentleman, and violation of a pledge of total abstinence. The charges are the outcome of Major Price's disappearance last February, while on detail to militia inspection in Syracuse, Albany, and Troy.

The members of the court are: Col. George S. Grimes, commanding at Fort Hamilton; Cols. Philip Reade and Calvin D. Cowles, Lieut. Cols. Alexander Rodgers, J. D. C. Hoskins, Robert K. Evans, Medorem Crawford, and Albert S. Cummins, and Major Francis P. Fremont. Major David C. Shanks is the Judge Advocate.

Ex-Assistant District Attorney Charles E. Le Barbier, counsel for Price, declared that the Major was ill at the time specified in the charges. He also asked that the charge of breaking the total abstinence pledge be dismissed on the ground that the pledge was given more than two years ago, and, therefore, fell within the Statute of Limitations. The court overruled the motion.

Robert J. Wood, a clerk in the Yates House, Syracuse, testified that on the morning of Feb. 9, Price was led into the hotel lobby by a policeman, and that at the request of the policeman he gave $50 bail, although he did not know the charge. Price appeared "doped," and not intoxicated, Wood said. Charles Mehan, a Syracuse bartender, said that he had given Price a mixture of ginger ale and Jamaica ginger. He had never seen him intoxicated. The trial will be continued to-day.

CARRIED FROM SCHOOL FIRE.

Teacher and Pupil Rescue Many from Burning Building.

HAVERHILL, Mass., March 19.—The lives of 150 boys and girls were in danger to-day when the Haverhill Manual Training School was destroyed by fire and the adjoining annex, known as the Whittier High School, in which the poet Whittier once taught, was wrecked. Order resulting from a well-practiced fire drill prevented the loss of life. Two of the teachers and several of the pupils were scorched by the flames, and one girl was slightly hurt by jumping from a second-story window.

Walter Bourne, an instructor, guided twelve boys through a wall of fire and smoke which threatened to imprison them.

Smoke overcame Miss Sue Merrill, one of the teachers in the annex, when she returned to recover personal property. At the risk of his life Francis Gorman, a pupil, 15 years old, dashed into the burning building, and after a desperate effort succeeded in carrying the teacher into the open air. Both were burned about the head.

The damage was $25,000.

NEED SUFFOLK CO. WATER.

Commissioner Ellison Urges Legislators to Let the City Have It.

Commissioner Ellison of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity has sent letters to members of the Legislature urging them to support the bill to repeal the so-called Burr law, which bars the city from going into Suffolk County for additional sources of water supply. In his letter Commissioner Ellison says:

"According to the official reports of the Board of Water Supply it will take ten years to utilize the water from up the State, and it is therefore evident that we cannot possibly wait for the completion of the larger works. We must at once find additional sources of supply, and, in fact, should lose no time in the construction of the works required to secure it.

"From no other locality than Suffolk County can the needs of Greater New York be adequately supplied within the required time."

TEASED BOY SLAYS COMRADE.

Afterward in His Prayers He Asks Blessings for Victim.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—William Johnson, 14 years old, killed his comrade, Herbert McArthur, 16 years old, to-day to get a ring valued at 10 cents.

The boys worked in the same textile mill and lived within a few doors of one another, at 4,315 and 4,347 Elizabeth Street. At the mill Johnson showed McArthur a ring, and McArthur playfully took it and then laughed at Johnson's vain efforts to get it back. Finally the smaller boy, who has committed many petty crimes, became beside himself with rage.

"Give me my ring or I'll kill you," he shouted, pulling a pistol from his pocket.

"Go ahead kid, shoot away," answered McArthur laughingly.

Johnson fired a bullet through the other's heart. The slayer was placed in charge of a police matron, and before he went to bed he knelt at her side and said his evening prayer. "Bless Herbert," he said, referring to the dead boy.

FAVORS SHIP SUBSIDY BILL.

The New York Republican Club Indorses the Measure Strongly.

Strong indorsement of the Ship Subsidy bill, now pending in Congress, was voted by the Republican Club last night at its regular meeting. The resolutions were presented by F. B. Thurber, and under them the club will telegraph the Chairman of the House Committee on Merchant Marine, requesting him to grant a delegation from the club the privilege of being heard in favor of the measure.

The club adopted resolutions petitioning the Legislature to adopt a direct nomination plan and requesting the passage of an act to permit the Department of Street Cleaning to supervise sprinkling of the streets in Summer and sanding them in Winter.

BULLET HIS LOVE TOKEN.

Lepinto Shot Rosa Tuzzolino at First Meeting, Then Married Her.

Francisco Lepinto and Rosa Tuzzolino met for the first time on Jan. 6, near where both live in Elizabeth Street. He is twenty-two and she nineteen. Five minutes after he had set eyes on her pretty Sicilian face he asked her to be his wife. She repulsed him.

Lepinto pulled a revolver and fired three shots at the girl as quickly as he could press the trigger. Two bullets went wild, the third inflicted a slight wound. She screamed and ran home. Francisco went his own way unmolested, for no policeman was near, and in Elizabeth Street the first rule of life is to mind your own business.

A few days later the girl went to the Tombs Court, told the story to Magistrate Wahle, and obtained a warrant against Lepinto. Policemen looked for him in vain for weeks.

Yesterday they found him and took him to the Tombs Court, where Magistrate Wahle happened to be sitting. Five minutes later Rosa appeared, tearful and flurried. She made her way to the Magistrate and exclaimed:

"I want Francisco."

One of the detectives tried to explain, but she cut him short by saying:

"He's my husband."

"And he shot you?" remonstrated Magistrate Wahle.

"He made love to me," Mrs. Lepinto corrected.

The Magistrate set him free.

FOOD.

BROKE HER CHAINS

She Wore Them for 30 Years, but Is Now a Free Woman.

A venerable lady of Ia. says that she was a regular coffee drinker for 30 years, and although convinced that the habit was the cause of her increasing nervousness she was loath to give it up.

"I became so nervous," she says, "that when I had callers it would excite my nerves so that I would sit and cry for an hour or more after they had gone. I could not even go uptown to do a little shopping with any comfort, and I would often get all ready and then take off my hat and stay at home and have a crying spell.

"I began drinking Postum Food Coffee about a year ago, giving up the old kind entirely. From the beginning my health showed improvement, and soon I became hearty and strong, free from bodily discomfort, with a tranquil spirit, and so remain to this day. And I owe it all to the use of Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Model Suits from Paris
Now Offered Under Cost.

ONLY A FEW CAN TAKE ADVANTAGE of this good fortune, but it seems fair to print the news so that everybody will have an even chance.

We have twenty-three Suits and three Coats, just from Paris and the most recent productions of such men as Paquin, Drecoll, Francis, Perdoux et Cie, Doucet, Martial et Armand, Bechoff-David, Raudnitz and others.

They were imported to serve as inspiration for American designers. It cost anywhere from $160 to $300 to land them in New York, and of course the retail price would be considerably more than that.

But we can sell them all for $75 apiece.

It is such a chance as we believe never before came at the beginning of a season. The only pity is that it is so limited. The Suits are all tailored effects and the Coats are trimmed styles. Each Suit and Coat bears the label of the French designer who created it. Second Floor, Front.

Women's Finest Shoes.
New Styles : : And Great Values.

DURING ALL THE GENERAL EFFORT to sell cheap Shoes, which has been a noticeable characteristic of the metropolitan shoe business in the last few years, this Store has worked along directly opposite lines.

Our principal effort has been to GET BETTER SHOES—to have in the Loeser Store the finest Shoes that could be made, and to sell them for the lowest prices possible.

The result is that the Loeser Shoe Store for women practically stands in a class alone among discriminating people, and those who want Shoes that fit a little more neatly and are a trifle handsomer than is usual, have come to depend on this Store.

The new Shoes for Spring are as fine as any we ever had and the prices are low, notwithstanding the increased cost of materials and labor.

MARCH 1906

MINERS AND OPERATORS TO CONFER AGAIN TO-DAY

Robbins Forced to Resign as Leader of Coal Chiefs.

J. H. WINDER IN HIS PLACE

Strike Sentiment Grows Despite the Agreement to Carry Out President Roosevelt's Request.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 19.—Bituminous operators to-day agreed to meet the miners once more in a final effort to avert a strike. There is little in the move that promises peace. Strike sentiment continues to grow.

The decision to go into joint conference with the miners and reopen the subject of the disputed wage scale means simply the request of President Roosevelt. It is possible that a compromise settlement in the soft coal fields may be reached. Few believe it, however.

When 500 operators and 1,000 miners' delegates gather, to-morrow morning, in Tomlinson's Hall for the second discussion of the miners' demands since Jan. 1, Francis L. Robbins, the big Pittsburg operator, will not be seen in the position of floor leader for the coal chiefs, which he occupied for so many years. Robbins was forced to-day to resign as Chairman of the operators. In his place was elected J. H. Winder of Columbus, Ohio, President of the Sunday Creek Coal Company, next to that controlled by Robbins, the largest coal concern in the world.

Winder's selection is supposed to be a blow at the faction of operators which favors peace. A few days ago he announced himself as opposed to any advance in wages. Since then he has maintained silence as to where he stands. Because of the doubt existing as to Winder's position there will be no general speechmaking for the operators. Mr. Robbins, however, will head his own delegation from Pennsylvania, and thus will retain considerable influence in the joint conference. Each of the other three States taking part in the meeting—Illinois, Ohio, and Indiana—will have a separate leader.

President Mitchell and the other leaders among the miners made no attempt to conceal their satisfaction over the decision of the operators to meet with them. After they had heard in more detail what occurred in the operators' convention and had tested the temper of many of the Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois employers, however, the miners were less jubilant. Some of the Illinois leaders said a strike seemed inevitable.

President Mitchell was at the Claypool Hotel a few minutes after the operators adjourned, anxious to hear the news. When he was informed that the coal men had agreed to meet the miners, he said:

"That's good."

When Chairman Winder asked the miners' chief to appoint a time for the conference, Mr. Mitchell set 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

NO ANSWER TO MITCHELL.

But Anthracite Operators May Agree to a Second Conference.

It was learned unofficially yesterday that no reply will be sent to the letter of President Mitchell of the Coal Mine Workers to President Baer of the Philadelphia & Reading Company, asking for another conference until the anthracite coal Presidents get together. Mr. Baer will pay his usual weekly visit to this city to-day, and will have a talk over Mitchell's letter with the Presidents of the other coal-carrying companies. It was stated last night, however, that no meeting of the Temple Coal and Iron Company has been arranged for to-day.

It was learned that if Mitchell is anxious for another conference, the operators will be willing to grant it. They will, however, stand by the award of the Anthracite Strike Commission and its methods. No decision up to last evening was reached by the operators as to whether, strike or no strike, the usual reduction in the price of anthracite will be made in April.

Members of the Coal Merchants' Association said yesterday that their customers were going on the theory that forewarned was forearmed and laying in coal. Henry Barber of 377 Water Street, a member of the association, said that the sales agents of the coal carrying companies were taking no new contracts without strike clauses.

The general opinion of the members of the Coal Merchants' Association was that, strike or no strike, there will be no reduction in the prices of the steam sizes of anthracite this year. The next meeting of the association will be held about the beginning of April.

LOST HER $2,000 BRACELET.

But Detective Thinks He'll Recover It —Arrests Two Waiters.

Mrs. E. G. Dupsey of 305 West Twenty-ninth Street, reported at the Tenderloin Station yesterday morning that she had missed a $2,000 diamond bracelet sometime Sunday. She had driven in Central Park Sunday afternoon and had dined at the Hoffman House that night.

Detective James Murphy arrested two waiters in connection with the case yesterday, and in Jefferson Market Court they were held in $1,000 for examination. Murphy says he expects to recover the bracelet, as he knows where it is. The two prisoners, who are charged with grand larceny, are Augustus Trella of 226 West Twenty-sixth Street and Charles Zozzola of 177 West Twenty-sixth Street. The latter is employed at the Hoffman House. The waiters told where they pawned the bracelet, Murphy said last night.

MAYOR DEFIES GAS COMPANY.

Gets a Bill for a City Plant in Troy and Worries Politicians.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—Assemblyman Filley of Rensselaer to-night introduced a measure authorizing the City of Troy to expend $500,000 for the construction and maintenance of a municipal lighting plant.

Behind the legislation is a situation which is giving great concern to the organization controlled by ex-Gov. Black and the Troy Gas Company, which is controlled by Anthony N. Brady and some of his associates. This measure is the same as the bill introduced in the Senate last night.

The Troy Gas Company's contract with the city for city lighting is about to expire. The company wants to have a new contract drawn up. Mayor Elias P. Mann, who as the Republican candidate won last election in a three-cornered fight, caused bids to be advertised for. He considered the bids of the Troy Gas Company excessive and threw them all out.

Then Superintendent of Prisons C. V. Collins, one of the Republican bosses of Troy, stepped in to aid the gas company. The Mayor was requested to ask the gas company to submit other bids. The Mayor refused, and is understood to have remarked that the city would own its own lighting plant before it would again become the easy mark of the gas company.

A conference of Rensselaer Republicans will be called if the gas company and Mayor Mann do not effect a compromise.

SUPPLY BILL CUT $500,000.

Lots of Graft Will Be Lost to Republican Local Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—Speaker Wadsworth, Majority Leader Moreland, and Chairman Burnett of the Cities Committee, having cut the annual appropriation bill hundreds of thousands of dollars, have followed that by announcing that the Annual Supply bill approximating $800,000, nearly $500,000 less than usual, will be reported.

This will be one of the severest blows that the State leaders have had. Scores of small offices will be wiped out, snug little sums for repairs on bridges and highways will not be ready for the "boys" to help carry primaries, and altogether the county bosses will have a hard time.

When the Appropriation bill was so savagely attacked March 1 by Rogers of Broome, votes in favor of it were procured here and there because it was stated that the Supply bill would take care of many things not in it. Now the Assembly leaders expect a great howl to go up from members.

$2,000 PENSION FOR WIDOW.

Grady Proposes Reparation for Troubles of Magistrate Hogan.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—A bill authorizing the Board of Estimate of New York to grant a pension of not less than $2,000 a year to the widow of Magistrate Hogan of New York City was introduced in the Senate to-night by Mr. Grady and advanced to the order of third reading without receiving any attention.

Like many others of its kind, the bill is general in character, but fits only the case of Mrs. Hogan.

Her husband was legislated out of office on two occasions—in 1873 and in 1895—and both times he spent large sums of money for counsel and court costs. The first time he was reappointed for the term of which it was sought to deprive him and others. Later he went out under the law relating to Police Justices and went back as a Magistrate.

It is sought by the bill to recompense his widow for the sums he spent years ago.

Palmer Would Have Bank Investigation Independent of Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—Weary of waiting for the Senate to act upon the Assembly resolution to investigate the Banking Department, and dissatisfied with the bill appointing two Commissioners to investigate, Minority Leader Palmer to-night offered in the Assembly a resolution calling upon the Governor to transmit to the Assembly Committee on Banks all papers and documents relative to the charges against the Superintendent of Banks. The plain purpose is to permit the Assembly to make its own investigation without regard to the Senate.

BARBERS' COMMISSION TO GO.

Senate, Spurred by Brackett, Votes to Repeal the Act.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—The Senate to-night voted to repeal the act creating a Barbers' Commission, which Senator Brackett characterized on the floor as the meanest bit of graft that was ever perpetrated in New York. The Assembly will take similar action.

Bill for Columbia Athletic Field.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 19.—Assemblyman Francis introduced to-night the bill authorizing New York City to "fill in and improve all or any part of the land under water and upland fronting upon Riverside Park, bounded by 116th Street and 120th Street," for the purpose of giving to Columbia University a great athletic field.

Storm Increases Telephone Traffic

That the New York public relies on telephone service is evidenced by the heavy telephone traffic handled during yesterday's storm.

Snow and rain filled the streets with slush and mud. It made travelling disagreeable and dangerous.

Those with Telephones were Comfortable

They could dispatch their business, do their shopping, marketing, all their errands over the wire and save the necessity for trips out in the storm. It meant dry feet and the avoidance of colds.

TO RUN RAILWAY CARS IN HARTFORD'S STREETS

President Mellen Proposes Plan for a Fast Suburban Service.

NO DELAY AT THE STATIONS

Electric Trains Would Be Switched to Trolley Tracks and Run to Business District.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 19.— That the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad plans a great combination of steam and electric service for its suburban traffic was made known here to-night. President C. S. Mellen, in a speech before the Get-Together Club, outlined a plan for the joint use of the company's main line and the street railroads in cities, which will be an advance upon anything attempted at present by railroads.

The scheme in brief is to run electric trains on the main line of the company from the suburban points. These trains will make the same speed that the ordinary suburban trains would. Instead of going into the stations, however, they will be switched off the main line after entering the cities, and will run on the street railway tracks, giving the same service as street cars.

The purpose of the plan is to avoid the necessity of discharging passengers at stations and forcing them then to take the street cars. When the new system is in operation in the various cities of Connecticut the suburban passenger can take his train at his station, have a fast run to the city, and then be conveyed in the same car into the heart of the business district.

This is the second step in the plan under which the railroad recently has acquired many street railroads throughout Connecticut. Large expense will be made necessary, as special cars, heavy enough to make speed on the main railway line, but light and small enough for the street traffic, must be provided. It will be necessary also to lay new rails in the streets in many instances.

In his speech to-night Mr. Mellen said:

"We would like to make the experiment on a large scale to determine whether the two systems of traction—steam and electric—may not be worked in common, each supplementing the other, and we would like to electrify our steam tracks between here and Waterbury, and on the Central New England Railway between here, New Hartford, and Springfield, and on the east side between here and Rockville, Melrose, and Springfield, and upon the Valley line between here and Middletown.

"Instead of running to and from our stations through our yards, with all the switching and delays incident thereto, we want to connect at convenient points with the street railway tracks, and for interurban service make a circuit of the principal streets, collecting and delivering suburban shoppers at the store doors, and we believe both the city and the railroad will be greatly the gainers thereby.

"No city on our lines is so favorably situated as is Hartford for the development of this idea." In order to carry it out Mr. Mellen explained that it would be necessary to substitute T-rails for the usual grooved trolley tracks.

"Now, what we want," he continued, "is that you shall permit us to use on the streets where this suburban service will naturally go, the T-rails we use in other cities, New Haven, for instance, and, waiving none of your rights under your contracts, see how it will work, ascertain if the objections are real or imaginary, and if you find there are more objections than advantages after a two years' trial, we will take up the T-rails, restore the grooved rails, and go back to the old order of things.

"I am not afraid of your decision—I will trust you, and if you are afraid to trust me, I will secure the performance of my part of the contract by a good and sufficient bond to your satisfaction. Let me suggest right here that I am advised the contract requiring the use of the grooved rail is not binding in law, but I have none the less required its observance on the part of our company, and shall continue to until we can agree amicably upon its modification.

"I shall be most seriously disappointed if you force me to go elsewhere to try the experiment. The proposition is knocking at your doors, such an opportunity as no other city has to-day."

FRANCIS SUCCEEDS STORER.

Ex-Minister to Greece to be Ambassador to Austria.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The name of Charles S. Francis of Troy, N. Y., former American Minister to Greece, was sent to the Senate to-day by the President, who nominated him to be Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, succeeding Bellamy Storer. Mr. Francis's father was formerly Ambassador to Austria.

The separation of Mr. Storer from the Diplomatic Service, it is said to-day, is nominally because of neglect of duty. Mr. Storer has had a habit of going to Egypt and other places instead of attending to his duties. He is in Egypt now.

But behind that there is said to be another reason, the really potent one. According to this report, Mr. Storer has been advancing the interests of an American prelate who desires to be a Cardinal. This prelate represents an element in the Church which is not in all respects in accord with other elements, and the report is that the latter have resented Mr. Storer's activity, and have brought to the attention of the President the question whether an American Ambassador should use his official position in behalf of any element in any church.

VIENNA, March 19.—Bellamy Storer, the American Ambassador to Austria, is at present on a vacation visit to Egypt, and no official information that he has resigned his post has reached the Embassy. Mr. Storer is expected to return to Vienna in about a week.

Charles Spencer Francis's first service connected with a diplomatic post was as secretary to his father, John Morgan Francis, while the elder Francis was Minister to Greece. The son was born in Troy, N. Y., in June, 1853. His father was the founder and proprietor of The Troy Times. He was graduated from Cornell University in 1877. While he was a student he won the college single scull championship on Cayuga Lake, and in 1876 he won the intercollegiate championship on Saratoga Lake, establishing a world's intercollegiate record—two miles in 13 minutes 42¾ seconds.

Soon after his graduation Mr. Francis married Miss Alice Evans, the daughter of Prof. Evans of Cornell. He learned the printer's trade in the composing room of his father's newspaper, and became successively reporter, city editor, and manager of the paper. On his father's death, in 1897, he succeeded to its editorial direction and sole ownership. He is a Regent of the University of the State of New York and is a member of the Sons of the Revolution and the Society of the War of 1812.

SERVED 17 TIMES AS JUROR.

But Tillinghast Swears Deputy Clerk Tully Wasn't to Blame.

The hearing in the case of Deputy Court Clerk Edward G. Tully, who is charged with allowing William A. Tillinghast to serve on six juries in 1900, in which the New York City Railway Company was the defendant, when he was not on the panel, was continued before Chief Clerk Thomas F. Smith of the City Court yesterday. Tillinghast, who is serving a sentence in the penitentiary for impersonating a juror, testified in the case. His testimony was favorable to Tully.

Tully, who is a veteran of the civil war, testified yesterday that he served in the army as "Edward Atherton," an assumed name. The only way Tillinghast could have served as a juror in his part of the court, he declared, was by being transferred from some other part.

Edward H. Pyepenbring, a deputy clerk, testified that he had examined the jury panels for 1900, and had found Tillinghast's name on the March panel in Part III., but not elsewhere. It was brought out that John C. Foley, who was dismissed as a deputy clerk from the City Court a year ago, allowed Tillinghast to sit on juries nine times in July, 1902, although his name was not on the panels. The record books indicated that in all Tillinghast served as a juror in Part III. seventeen times when Foley was clerk, and that at none of these times did his name appear on the panels. In five of these cases the railway company was the defendant.

In May, Tillinghast appeared in Part I., in June he did not appear, but in October of the same year he was on hand again without being called.

The hearing was adjourned until Thursday.

Admits Setting Fire to a Tenement.

John Kelly, formerly a tugboat fireman, pleaded guilty of arson before Judge O'Sullivan, in General Sessions, yesterday, and will be sentenced on Friday. He sprinkled kerosene about the hall of a tenement at 18 East Third Street, and tried to set fire to it to "get even" with one of the tenants.

FELL 100 FEET IN SHAFT.

Foreman Killed in the Subway's "Hoodoo Hole" While Defying Bad Luck.

The new Subway station at 181st Street and St. Nicholas Avenue, on the Lenox Avenue branch of the Subway, has come to be known by employes of the Interborough as the "Hoodoo Hole." It got that name because there is to be a 100-foot elevator shaft for passengers when the station is opened, and also for the reason that there have been many accidents of a minor character there since work began upon it.

Samuel Murray of 798 Amsterdam Avenue, a foreman in charge of workmen on the elevator shaft, is the author of the station's name. He said yesterday morning that the station was a generator of bad luck.

Last evening Murray had occasion to make a trip to the bottom of the shaft on the temporary elevator used by the workmen. He started for the elevator when several of his men stopped him. They told him the cable of the lift was in bad condition, and that it would be dangerous to make the trip.

"There's a fall about due from that bum rope," said one of them, "and it's coming on the next trip sure. Better get down on a hemp rope."

"Can't help it," replied Murray, "the hole's hoodooed, I know, and the rope's bad, but the trip's got to be made and I'm going to make it on the elevator."

Murray got aboard, gave the signal to the man in charge of the "dummy" engine, and started down. When he got to the bottom he yelled:

"It's all right, boys. She's a hoodoo, but she can't beat me." He remained below for a few minutes and then gave the signal for the elevator to be pulled up. Murray was whistling as the car shot upward, and six feet below the surface was getting ready to land when the cable snapped. The elevator with Murray upon it crashed to the bottom. Murray's fellow-workmen heard the fall and ran to the hole and yelled to him. There was no reply, and a rope was lowered.

Thomas Hart and Charles Devlin let themselves down to the bottom, where they found Murray, apparently dead. They helped to lift his body to the Subway tracks, and it was put on a car and hurried to Dyckman Street, where the Subway tunnel runs out in the open. An ambulance from the J. Hood Wright Hospital was summoned, but the physician who examined Murray said that his skull had been crushed and that he had died instantly.

MINISTERS SCORE POLICE.

Methodists Attack the Department Because of the "White Slave" Evil.

The Rev. Dr. George E. Strobridge of the Washington Square Methodist Church addressed the Methodist Ministers' Meeting yesterday on the "White Slave Evil." He submitted these resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

> Resolved, That it is the sense of the New York Methodist Ministers' Meeting that the Police Department has been lax in the performance of its duty, that dens of vice and crime such as have been discovered are a disgrace to the fair name of our city; that the wealthy owners of property used for immoral purposes should be held equally with the inmates, and

FIRE SERVICE HAMPERED BY TELEPHONE DITCHING

Automatic Alarms in Hudson Street and West Broadway Cut.

BUT DIGGERS SHOW PERMIT

The Great Eastern Company Not Stealing Streets—Old Concern Is Laying Conduits.

Millions of dollars worth of property in the wholesale district of the lower west side is endangered by the cutting of the automatic fire-alarm wires, according to the statement yesterday of insurance men. Dozens of extra insurance patrolmen have been stationed along Hudson Street and West Broadway to keep watch for fires. The police say that a long ditch being dug to carry the wires of the New York Telephone Company is responsible for the interruption of the automatic service.

Complaints from merchants went to Capt. O'Brien of the Leonard Street Station yesterday, and he cautioned his men to be extraordinarily watchful on their rounds. Edwin T. Holmes, President of the Holmes Protective Electric Company, which runs most of the wires for the automatic alarms, said last night that he did not know of any interruption. But there was unwonted activity last night in Hudson Street, which, after dark, is usually almost as deserted as a graveyard.

"Certainly the automatic wires have been cut," said the Sergeant on duty at the Leonard Street Station. "We heard of it from many different sources, and the insurance patrolmen are on the watch. Besides that, the policemen are taking unusual care to spot out fires."

The ditch along Hudson Street has been causing lots of trouble. It runs north from Duane Street to Beach Street, just off the west curb and is about ten feet deep. Huge mounds of earth piled on the sides of the ditch make the west half of Hudson Street look like breastworks thrown up against a possible invasion by North River longshoremen.

The wholesale houses that take up all the space not occupied by the corner saloons are almost cut off from traffic connections. At the cross streets there is barely room for one wagon to cross the ditch.

Somehow a rumor to the effect that the Great Eastern Telephone Company was digging up the streets got abroad yesterday. The Great Eastern is the concern that wants to start opposition to the New York Telephone Company, but it has not yet established its right to use the streets for wires. Corporation Counsel Delany is passing on the legal points in the case.

The tearing up of the surface of Hudson Street is being effected by the Midland Contracting Company, which has the contract for laying conduits for the New York Telephone Company. A day or two ago the foreman of the job was arrested and taken to the Leonard Street Station because the policeman on the beat thought no permit had been issued. The foreman was carried down to 21 Park Row, to the Department of Highways, and there was able to show that he had a permit to dig. So the digging was resumed.

Last night there were five sets of watchmen. They were the police, the hands employed by the contracting company to watch the ditch, and not let it get away, the insurance patrolmen, the private watchmen, and the Consolidated Gas Company's watchmen. The last were on hand to look out for any damage to the gas pipes.

REVOLVER WOUNDS EXPERT.

Same Bullet Hits Policeman and Dealer in Firearms.

Two men were taken to Bellevue Hospital late yesterday afternoon as the result of the accidental discharge of a revolver. One of the men is Patrolman William Heaney of the East Twenty-second Street Police Station, and the other Max Wirthman, a dealer in firearms and cutlery at 245 East Twenty-fifth Street.

Heaney's revolver had been out of order for several days and he made an appointment with Wirthman for the latter to meet him yesterday afternoon at Twenty-fourth Street and Third Avenue to look the weapon over. When Wirthman appeared the policeman pulled the defective weapon from his hip pocket and Wirthman snapped the trigger two or three times. It failed to explode, although loaded. Then Heaney reached for the revolver.

"Let me show you what the trouble is," he said. Wirthman's right hand still grasped the barrel when Heaney pulled the trigger.

Bang! went the revolver. Wirthman jerked his hand away, but it was too late. The bullet had severed his finger, and at the same time wounded Heaney in the wrist.

WED AS FATHER DIES.

N. B. Brice's Last Request Was to Witness Daughter's Marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—Mrs. N. B. Stump stood at the bedside of her father, Nicholas B. Brice of 1,524 Locust Street, yesterday, and was married to Henry Grant Kimball of New York. At 5 o'clock this morning bride and bridegroom turned away from the bedside—Mr. Brice was dead.

Mr. Brice had been sick several years, but only last Saturday consented to remain in bed. When he found himself unable to move about the house he thought that he would be unable to witness his daughter's wedding, which was set for this Spring. He worried over the matter, and repeatedly referred to it. Mr. Kimball was in Philadelphia, and when the dying man suggested that the wedding take place at once, his daughter and her prospective husband consented.

The members of the family gathered in the room and, with the father of the bride propped up in bed and able only to smile his approval, Mrs. Stump and Mr. Kimball were married by the Rev. J. R. L. Nisbett. Mr. Brice then sank rapidly.

Mr. Brice was a member of the banking firm of Brice, Monges & Co. He was formerly President of the Stock Exchange and was Vice President at the time of his death. He was a member of the Philadelphia Club, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Philadelphia Country Club, and a Director of the Merchants' Trust Company. He leaves a widow and another daughter, Mrs. Paul Barthlow.

HELD FOR COLLEGE THEFTS.

Daughter of a Maine Lawyer Is Accused at Smith.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., March 19.—On the charge of having robbed the rooms of students at Smith College of money, jewelry, and other valuables, Miss Gilmore M. Wilson, 21 years of age, who is said to have passed herself off as a member of the freshman class at the college, was to-day held in the Municipal Court for trial.

Miss Wilson is a daughter of F. M. Wilson, a lawyer, of Sanford, Me., but for the last year has made her home with relatives in Dorchester. She came to this city last Fall. During the year numerous thefts from dormitories have been reported to college authorities.

Severla pieces of jewelry and other missing articles, it is alleged, were accidentally found in Miss Wilson's room yesterday, and the young woman was arrested.

ST. PAUL'S CURATE RESIGNS.

Trinity Vestrymen Vote the Rev. R. M. Kemp His Salary Until July.

After seventeen years' service for St. Paul's Church, at Broadway and Vesey Street, the Rev. Robert Morris Kemp has resigned as curate. The Vestry of Trinity Church, of which St. Paul's is a branch, has accepted the resignation to take effect next July. This means that until then the curate will take a vacation on salary. The Rev. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity Church, said last night:

"Yes, Mr. Kemp has resigned. That's all there is to it. What he is going to do I do not know. That is his concern, not ours. He has been with St. Paul's so long, and we thought so much of him, that we gave him his salary until July. Practically, his withdrawal dates from last month."

Mr. Kemp is a graduate of Berkeley Divinity School, at Middletown, Conn. It is said that he has received numerous calls from other parishes. At the Hotel Martinique it was said that Mr. Kemp was not in last night.

CEMETERY REVOLT FAILS.

New Lutheran Trustees' Ticket Gets But 66 of 2,377 Votes.

Lively times, expected at yesterday's meeting of the shareholders of Lutheran Cemetery, at Middle Village, Queens, did not develop, and the opposition to the old administration amounted to almost nothing. The revolters' ticket was headed by Martin Mager, Jr., of Middle Village. His associates as candidates for trustees were William Wagner and Peter Sprenburg.

Of the 2,377 votes cast, Mager obtained 62 and his associates 66 each. The Trustees elected were Jacob S. Miller, Moses D. Getty, and John B. Kerfott. Charles Dorsch, Chairman of the Slocum Monument Committee, who was expected to lead the opposition, did not attend the meeting.

Col. Barbour Will Pay the Bills.

PATERSON, N. J., March 19.—Through the generosity of Col. William Barbour the General Hospital here will have a new wing. When Gen. Joseph W. Congdon told him that the cost was figured at about $8,500 Col. Barbour remarked that it probably would be more, but that he would pay the bills.

FUNERAL PARADERS RIOT AS OLD FEUDISTS MEET

Citizen Just Saves a Policeman When Italians Turn on Him.

RESERVES CLUB MANY HEADS

Two Hundred Uniformed Marchers Scatter and Five Are Arrested—Croton Dam Trouble the Cause.

Two hundred members of the Sicilise Operia Societas, an Italian organization, were leading a funeral procession through "Little Italy" late yesterday afternoon, when one of the paraders sighted an old enemy on Second Avenue, between 109th and 110th Streets. The vengeful parader, Domingo Branco of Port Chester, made for his enemy and mixed things up.

Policeman Dinnegar of the East 104th Street Station, who was escorting the procession to the Astoria Ferry, at the foot of East Ninety-second Street, did his utmost to separate the combatants. His interference was looked on by the marchers as uncalled for, and in a few minutes there was a free-for-all fight. Nearly all of the 200 paraders took part.

A riot call was sent in. Capt. Tappan, his detectives, and twelve reserves, after a hard fight, dispersed the mob. Five prisoners were taken, several revolvers and knives confiscated, and the funeral was broken up. Policeman Dinnegar was badly used up.

But for the interference of a citizen the policeman would have been shot. An Italian was taking careful aim when the revolver was kicked out of his hand by Fred Schroeder, a coal dealer of 408 East 109th Street.

Dinnegar was game to the end, and, although lying on a pile of snow, pinioned by a group of infuriated Italians, had his revolver in hand and was trying to get a bead on his captors.

Detectives Davis, Curtayne, and Welden made a rush at the group of dark-skinned Italians around Dinnegar, and with well-directed blows on the heads of the gaudily uniformed rioters, scattered them in short order. The other paraders rushed helter skelter, seeking cover in hallways, stores, and tall tenements. Small boys stormed the processionists with snowballs.

Branco was charged with felonious assault. His victim was a fellow-employe on the Croton Dam some time ago. It was found that he had a severe stab wound in the neck. He and Policeman Dinnegar had their wounds dressed by an ambulance surgeon from the Harlem Hospital, but neither was seriously hurt.

Revolvers and dirks were found plentifully sprinkled in the snow after the battle.

CAUGHT BY BRONX RECRUIT.

One of Capt. Hodgins's New Men Grabs a Burglar.

Policeman Livingston, who has been on duty in the Bronx for several years, moved into the Tenderloin yesterday as one of Capt. Hodgins's newly formed "hayseed" brigade.

"They may call some of these fellows 'Rubes,'" said Capt. Hodgins last night as Livingston was going out on post for the first time in the precinct, "but I tell you if all the cops in New York were like that lad we'd have a bang-up force." Livingston stroked his chin for imaginary whiskers, laughed, and walked out.

Later while partolling Fourteenth Street near Fifth Avenue he saw a man step through a hole in the big plate glass window of the "Physical Culture Café" at 21 West Fourteenth Street. The man had several boxes of cigars under each arm.

"What's all this?" said Livingston. "Going into the wholesale tobacco business?"

"Yep," responded the man. "I've got some 'ropes' here. You'd better take one and hang yourself with it."

Livingston made a rush for his man. The burglar fought, and they rolled in the snow. After tussling for five minutes, Livingston got handcuffs on his prisoner and took him to the station. An investigation showed that he had rifled the café cash drawer. He said he was John Clark, living at a Third Avenue lodging house.

Civic Federation Meeting March 26.

The annual meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Civic Federation, which was to have been held in this city yesterday, has been postponed until March 26, because the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, which contains all the labor members on the Executive Committee of the Civic Federation, had called a conference for yesterday in Washington.

McADOO ANSWERS BINGHAM.

Calls Discovery of Alleged Deficit an Effort to Discredit Him.

ALBANY, March 19.—Former Police Commissioner McAdoo of New York was a speaker here to-night at the annual banquet of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick. He gave to The Associated Press a statement referring to recently published matters in connection with an alleged deficit in the contingent fund of the New York City Police Department, reported by the present Police Commissioner, Gen. Bingham, to Mayor McClellan. Mr. McAdoo said:

"The motive for this and other attempts to discredit my administration of the Police Department, to which everything else under the present administration has apparently been subordinated, needs no explanation to those who have followed the course of recent events since my letter of resignation was made public. The lawbreakers and their friends who were made to obey the law under my direction, by the staff attached to my office, evidently suffered greater losses than even I supposed.

"It is rather singular that although nearly three months have elapsed since I went out of office, and that in the ordinary course of business these bills would be among the first presented to the Commissioner, this lurid advertisement of the matter was the first notice I had of the refusal to pay them.

"There is nothing unusual or sensational in the fact that the expenditures exceeded the amount appropriated for the contingent, emergency, and secret service fund, the charges against which, as is known to those cognizant of such matters in the department, often cannot be ascertained until all bills from every source, including precincts, inspection districts, and the Detective Bureau are presented and audited. When I learned that there was a likelihood of there being a deficit I ordered all further expenditures stopped.

"As I have not before me all the facts and papers I cannot discuss the details, including the custom under former administrations."

Mr. McAdoo arrived in this city from Atlantic City this evening, and stated that his statement had been prepared en route.

Police Commissioner Bingham said yesterday that he personally had nothing to do with the formality of notifying Mr. McAdoo's secretary, William Howell, of the apparent deficit of $1,446 in the police contingency fund, and for which Mr. Howell has said that he has the voucher.

"I have no intention of harassing Mr. Howell," said the Commissioner. "I had no ulterior motive in the matter. It was simply done in the ordinary course of business."

"But Mr. Howell has said that you personally sent to him the voucher," some one suggested.

"If he said that I would simply have to reply, as boys do to one another," the Commissioner said smilingly.

Mr. Howell has explained that the $1,466 was given to him to disburse through secret channels. He is keeping the voucher, he declared, to show to Mr. McAdoo when he returns to this city.

SOROSIS HAS A BREAKFAST.

And President Charlotte P. Wilbour Gets an Omar Khayyam Toast.

Sorosis, "the mother of women's clubs," held its thirty-eighth annual breakfast yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria. About 150 women attended. Men are excluded from the meetings of this organization, so the speechmaking and story telling was exclusively done by the twenty-five club Presidents, who sat at the honor table.

Mrs. Doré Lyon toasted the President, Mrs. Charlotte P. Wilbour, in the following stanza "after" Omar Khayyam:

A few choice speeches, e'en without a bough,
A nice hot lunch, a pleasant chat,
And thou before me in thy graciousness—
Ah, surely this is happiness enow!

Mrs. Evangeline Blashfield said that the club taught women precision of speech, clearness of enunciation, and condensation of thought.

"If we can also teach men to be less garrulous than they are," she continued, "we shall have accomplished wonders. In their after-dinner speeches 'a few words' often cover thirty minutes." She told of a man who assured his wife he could explain what he was talking about if only she would give him time. "The wife replied," said Mrs. Blashfield, "'I'm willing to give you time, but you seem to need eternity.'"

Mrs. John H. Judge, President of the Society for Political Study, spoke of that organization as the training school for club life and Sorosis as the college of women's clubdom.

"Sorosis is training women to regain Eden," said Miss Jennie Pomerene, President of the College Women's Club.

RARE BOOKS PURCHASED.

The Storm Fails to Daunt the Lovers of First Editions.

There was a very large attendance, despite the storm, at a sale of rare books by the Merwin-Clayton Company yesterday afternoon.

A collection of the bibliographical works of Thomas Frognall, uniformly bound by Riviere, sold for $218.50. Three very rare catalogues of curious and uncommon books by Pisanus Fraxi sold for $87.

The scarce "Old Nick" edition of "The Decameron," 8vo, London, 1804, brought $28. A fine copy of the rare first Edinburgh edition of "Poems," by Robert Burns, 8vo, 1787, fetched $15.50.

The rare first edition of Lord Byron's "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers," original boards, 1809, sold for $15, and an extra illustrated fourth edition of the same work, $30.

The earliest published form of Lewis Carroll's "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," 8vo, New York, 1866, fetched $35.

The rare first editions of "Poems" and "The Task," by William Cowper, brought $51. The first edition of De Quincey's "Confessions of an Opium Eater," 12mo, London, 1827, fetched $12.50.

A first edition, in the original green wrapper, of Charles Dickens's "Nicholas Nickleby" sold for $20, and the first edition of "The Village Coquettes," by the same author, $17.

"Etchings and Etchers," by P. G. Hamerton, the second edition, folio, London, 1876, sold for $227.50.

WANTS PACKERS IN JAIL.

Moody Says the Government Is After No Soulless Corporation.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 19.—Attorney General Moody argued to-day in the hearing of the packers' pleas for immunity in the District Court before Judge Humphrey. He declared that it is the punishment of the individual and not the corporations that is desired. That imprisonment of the packers is sought by President Roosevelt was obvious to every person in the courtroom.

"I shall say little upon the question whether immunity can be conferred upon corporations as well as individuals, because I care less," he said. "The Government of the United States is too much in earnest in this prosecution to be deterred to the pursuit of a nerveless, senseless, soulless creation of the law. If wrong has been committed, we are seeking the punishment of the men who committed the wrong; the living, breathing human beings. The Government of the United States and the people of the United States will be satisfied with no less than that."

It was hardly expected that Mr. Moody would speak in the case, as it is but seldom that the Attorney General takes an active part in District Court proceedings.

MAIL SACK WRECKED CARS.

Broke a Switch Post and Caused Fatal Train Accident.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, March 19.—The two rear cars of an eastbound passenger train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad were wrecked at Lockbridge, Iowa, this afternoon, as a result of a collision with a work train on a sidetrack. The cook of the work train was killed, and a dozen other persons were injured, four probably fatally.

The accident came about in a peculiar way. As the forward cars of the passenger train passed over the switch a mail sack was thrown out and struck the switch post, breaking it and releasing the switch. This threw the rear cars on the side track, where the work train was standing, and the collision resulted.

Fatally Stricken in Shanley's.

William F. Toner, 41 years old, a salesman, of Westerly, R. I., was taken ill while dining in Shanley's Restaurant, in Sixth Avenue, last night, and died in St. Vincent's Hospital soon after his removal there. He fell unconscious in the restaurant and died without regaining consciousness.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially. MANY PERISH IN AVALANCHES.

Twelve Miners in Colorado Swept to Death by One Snowslide.

SILVERTON, Col., March 19.—Twelve miners employed at the Shenandoah Mine were caught by a great snowslide to-day and swept to their death. The men were on the way to Silverton to escape starvation at the mine, the supply of provisions having run short. At a particularly dangerous point on the trail, in the side of a steep mountain, one of the trail breakers stumbled. This started the snow sliding and the entire side of the mountain seemed to be moving.

One of nine men who escaped hurried on to Howardsville, three miles down the gulch, and telephoned to Silverton for help.

OURAY, Col., March 19.—It is feared that at least twenty miners have lost their lives in the snowslides which have cut off from all outside communication 800 miners employed in the various mines within a radius of twenty miles from Ouray. The exact number of deaths will not be known for days.

ALAMOSA, Col., March 19.—No trains have arrived from Durango for seven days. Six dead engines and one of the big rotary plows are snowed in between that town and this place. It has been snowing continuously for seven days in the mountains west and south of Alamosa, and the cañons are full of snow, and in many places the tops of tall trees are just visible.

FEARS A REVOLUTION.

Only Corporation Reforms Can Prevent It, Says Ludwig Nissen.

In a discussion of "Federal and State Control of Public Utility Corporations," at the regular monthly meeting of the Manufacturers' Association of New York, 16 Court Street, Brooklyn, last night, it was declared by Ludwig Nissen that unless the business men of the country speedily reformed conditions they would be confronted with a revolution.

It was proposed, in a report made by a committee appointed to consider the question, to seek certain reforms through the Legislature and provision for retaining counsel was made. In the report of the committee it was stated that nothing could be legally done to affect franchises already obtained, but recommended that in the future no franchise be given in perpetuity, and that all public service corporations be made subject to State and Federal supervision and control.

WARRANT CLERK'S SUICIDE.

Buffalo City Employe Worried Over Demand for His Suspension.

BUFFALO, March 19.—Charles P. Lytle, warrant clerk in the City Controller's office, shot and killed himself this morning. Worry over a demand for his suspension by Mayor Adam some time ago is said to have caused Mr. Lytle to take his life.

"I am positive there is not a thing wrong with Mr. Lytle's accounts," said Deputy Controller Seereiter in discussing the tragedy. "What caused him to take his life I cannot understand, but this I am sure of, that his honesty was beyond question."

In January last Lytle reported to the Controller that he had found $70 in his safe in envelopes bearing the names of policemen. The money had been deducted from their salaries for fines imposed, and had been overlooked by him. Upon learning of the incident the Mayor demanded Lytle's suspension, but the Controller declined to suspend him.

MURRAY'S REPLY TO REPORT.

Criticises Legislative Committee for Attack on Baltimore & Ohio.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 19.—President Murray of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad sent a letter to the State Board of Public Works to-day, bitterly criticising the Legislative Committee, which published its report on Saturday, attacking the railroad company. The report declared that it had violated its charter and should no longer enjoy the privileges of tax exemption, because of the conduct of affairs of the Washington branch. The report was published before being submitted to the Legislature.

When the Board of Public Works met to-day, with the expectation that the Baltimore & Ohio would come up with a good substantial offer for the 5,500 shares of Washington Branch stock, the members were surprised to receive Mr. Murray's letter, in which he virtually defies the Legislature to do its worst and breaks off all negotiations for the purchase of the State's stock.

Mr. Murray in his letter takes exceptions to the publication of the report, declaring that it was in violation of the understanding of the entire committee.

The regular Democratic organization, led by State Senator Arthur P. Gorman, Jr., started the fight against the railroad. President Murray's reply to their challenge seems to leave the Legislature and the Board of Public Works no other course than to take their grievances against the railroad to the courts.

$7,000 CUSTOMS CASE FINE.

Finkus, Accused of Bribery Attempt, Denies It, but Pleads Guilty.

Because of a misunderstanding on the part of a revenue official, he says, F. T. Finkus, a retired business man, was fined $7,000 yesterday on a plea of guilty to indictments alleging an attempt to bribe a Federal officer in the discharge of his duties as examiner of customs on the dock.

Cadler Walcott, the complaining witness, swore that on June 11, 1904, Finkus said to him: "Pass these trunks and then come and see me," giving Walcott his card. Instead of calling at the Waldorf the revenue officer complained to his superior. It was his first day as an examiner of baggage.

Finkus said he was too old a traveler to attempt such a thing. He admitted saying:

"Pass this in a hurry if you can, so I can get away without waiting here for several hours, and then come to the hotel and see me."

Nevertheless Finkus asked to be allowed to plead guilty and pay a fine and his offer was accepted.

COLER SEES GRAND JURY.

Wants the B. R. T. to Live Up to Its Ash Removal Contract.

Borough President Coler went before the Kings County Grand Jury yesterday to testify regarding the ash removal contract between the city and the American Railway Traffic Association. Mr. Coler carried with him a copy of each contract entered into by the company, which is a subsidiary corporation of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. These contracts, Mr. Coler declares, are being flagrantly violated.

The original contract was awarded to H. Milton Kennedy on Jan. 2, 1903. Later Kennedy assigned the work to the American Railway Traffic Association, of which Capt. Alexander S. Piper is a Director. For the work done last December the company demanded $37,000.

Mr. Coler said yesterday that the contract still has a year and a half to run, and he desires that the corporation shall either live up to its terms or permit someone else to do the work. The Grand Jury will investigate conditions at the various stations either to-day or to-morrow.

FOOD. FOOD. FOOD.

The Coffee Debate.

The published statements of a number of coffee importers and roasters indicate a "waspy" feeling towards us for daring to say that coffee is harmful to a percentage of the people.

A frank public discussion of the subject is quite agreeable to us and can certainly do no harm; on the contrary, when all the facts on both sides of any question are spread before the people they can thereupon decide and act intelligently.

Give the people plain facts and they will take care of themselves.

We demand facts in this coffee discussion and propose to see that the facts are brought clearly before the people.

A number of coffee importers and roasters have joined a movement to boom coffee and stop the use of Postum Food Coffee, and in their newspaper statements undertake to deceive by false assertions.

Their first is that coffee is not harmful.

We assert that one in every three coffee users has some form of incipient or chronic disease; realize for one moment what a terrible menace to a nation of civilized people, when one kind of beverage cripples the energies and health of one-third the people who use it.

We make the assertion advisedly, and suggest that the reader secure his own proof by personal inquiry among coffee users.

Ask your coffee drinking friends if they keep free from any sort of aches and ails. You will be startled at the percentage, and will very naturally seek to place the cause of disorder on something aside from coffee, whether food, inherited tendencies, or something else.

Go deeper in your search for facts.

If your friend admits occasional neuralgia, rheumatism, heart weakness, stomach or bowel trouble, kidney complaint, weak eyes, or approaching nervous prostration, induce him or her to make the experiment of leaving off coffee for 10 days and using Postum Food Coffee, and observe the result. It will startle you and give your friend something to think of. Of course, if the person is one of the weak ones and says, "I can't quit," you will have discovered one of the slaves of the coffee importer. Treat such kindly, for they seem absolutely powerless to stop the gradual but sure destruction of body and health.

Nature has a way of destroying a part of the people to make room for the stronger. It is the old law of "the survival of the fittest" at work, and the victims are many.

We repeat the assertion that coffee does harm many people, not all, but an army large enough to appal the investigator and searcher for facts.

The next prevarication of the coffee importers and roasters is their statement that Postum Food Coffee is made of roasted peas, beans or corn, and mixed with a low grade of coffee, and that it contains no nourishment.

We have previously offered to wager $100,000.00 with them that their statements are absolutely false.

They have not accepted our wager, and they will not.

We will gladly make a present of [illegible] to [illegible] order of old-fashioned coffee who will accept that wager.

Free inspection of our factories and methods is made by thousands of people each month, and the coffee importers themselves are cordially invited. Both Postum and Grape-Nuts are absolutely pure and made exactly as stated.

The formula of Postum and the analysis made by one of the foremost chemists of Boston has been printed on every package for many years and is absolutely accurate.

Now as to the food value of Postum. It contains the parts of the wheat berry which carry the elemental salts, such as lime, iron, potash, silica, etc., etc., used by the life forces to rebuild the cellular tissue, and this is particularly true of the phosphate of potash, also found in Grape-Nuts, which combines in the human body with albumen, and this combination, together with water, rebuilds the worn-out gray matter in the delicate nerve centres all over the body, and throughout the brain and solar plexus.

Ordinary coffee stimulates in an unnatural way, but with many people it slowly and surely destroys and does not rebuild this gray substance so vitally important to the well-being of every human being.

These are eternal facts, proven, well authenticated and known to every properly educated physician, chemist, and food expert.

Please remember we never say ordinary coffee hurts every one.

Some people use it regularly and seem strong enough to withstand its attacks, but there is misery and disease in store for the man or woman who persists in its use when nature protests, by heart weakness, stomach and bowel troubles, kidney disease, weak eyes, or general nervous prostration. The remedy is obvious. The drug caffeine, contained in all ordinary coffee, must be discontinued absolutely or the disease will continue in spite of any medicine and will grow worse.

It is easy to leave off the old-fashioned coffee by adopting Postum Food Coffee, for in it one finds a pleasing hot breakfast or dinner beverage that has the deep seal-brown color, changing to a rich golden brown when good cream is added. When boiled long enough (15 minutes) the flavor is not that of rank Rio coffee, but very like the milder, smooth, and high grade Java, but entirely lacking the drug effect of ordinary coffee.

Any one suffering from disorders set up by coffee drinking (and there is an extensive variety) can absolutely depend upon some measure of relief by quitting coffee and using Postum Food Coffee.

If the disease has not become too strongly rooted, one can with good reason expect it to disappear entirely in a reasonable time after the active cause of the trouble is removed and the cellular tissue has time to naturally rebuild with the elements furnished by Postum and good food.

It's only just plain old common sense.

Now, with the exact facts before the reader, he or she can decide the wise course, looking to health and the power to do things.

If you have any doubt as to the cause of any ache or ail you may have, remember the far-reaching telegrams of a hurt nervous system travel from heel to head, and it may be well worth your while to make the experiment of leaving off coffee entirely for 10 days and using Postum in its place.

You will probably gather some good solid facts, worth more than a gold mine, for health can make gold and sickness lose it. Besides, there's all the fun, for it's like a continuous internal frolic to be perfectly well.

There's a reason for

COLLEGE FENCING MIX-UP DEMANDS NEW METHODS

Contestants Dissatisfied with Way Championship Ended.

SUITABLE SYSTEM SUGGESTED

One Way to Solve the Problem Which Faced Management of Tournament Last Week.

The dissatisfaction of the college fencers with the conduct of their championship tournament at the New York Athletic Club on Friday and Saturday is sure to result in the overturning of existing conditions all along the line. There was scarcely a man competing in the tourney who had not some complaint to make of the methods pursued. The official recorder was utterly at sea at times.

The entire difficulty arose from the fact that the entry of new competitors into the tournament brought out too many fencers to compete in a round robin in which every man met every other man within the limit of time prescribed. The accession of Princeton and Cornell made eight teams entered for honors with three men representing each team. To have all these meet would have meant 276 bouts, while even if a man did not fence his team mates this number would only be reduced by 24. To obviate the difficulty it was decided to hold an eliminating trial on Friday in which the fencers were divided into three classes, each containing one fencer from each team. These were supposed to fence round robins, and the five teams having the best records survive. Had this been followed, some order might have been possible, even with the imperfect system, but all attempts to follow it were speedily abandoned. Five times were arbitrarily chosen and these contested a new series on Saturday that was almost as loosely run.

Why a system should have been lacking is difficult to understand, when an hour's work and a bit of figuring would have supplied one. Taking the conditions as they were, with the men divided into three classes, in each of which a round robin was contested, eighty-four preliminary bouts would have been finished, with each man fencing seven bouts and each team twenty-one. The first four teams could then have been chosen on their record to contest for the team championship, and the twelve best men for the individual. The results of this preliminary should not have been ignored for the final, but recorded and used, and the contests would have worked out very simply.

For each series, A, B, and C, the following schedule have been played out:

CHART FOR SERIES A, B, AND C.

T'm	1.	2.	3.	4.	5.	6.	7.	8.
1.	+
2.		+
3.			+
4.				+
5.					+
6.						+
7.							+
8.								+

Then for both team and individual championships there would have been twelve contestants. On the team championship schedule the matches not necessary to be fenced should have been marked off. The members of the same team would not need to fence each other, so the member of Team 1 in Series A (A1,) would not meet the Team 1 member in Series B (B1,) or in Series C (C1;) neither would B1 meet C1, and so on. This would at once eliminate twelve of the sixty-six bouts provided. Then, recording the matches fenced by these same men in the preliminaries, eighteen more bouts would be disposed of, leaving thirty-six to be fenced to decide the team supremacy. Thus the matches of A men against A men, and B men against B men, and C men against C men, would be recorded on the chart, as shown here, marked F:

TEAM CHART.

When the team contest is decided the individual can be completed. In the preliminary it stands to reason that no more than one man from any one of the four eliminated teams would likely be a factor, as when two men qualified for the individual from one team, the team would also qualify probably. Thus, besides the bouts already decided in the preliminary within each series among these twelve men, eight of the men would have fenced nearly all their bouts in the team competition. For instance, suppose that of Team 1 the A and B representative qualified for the individual; of team 2, A and C; of team 3, B and C, and of team 4, A and C. The other four men to qualify would be five of Series A, six of B, seven of C, and eight of D. Then one of A would have met in the preliminary A2, A4, and A5, and in the team series A2, C2, B3, C3, A4, and C4, leaving only B6 and C7 and B1, who being a member of his own team, he had not fenced in the team series, to meet. So each of the eight in the team series would only have from three to four bouts to fence and the four new men only five or six among themselves in addition, making not more than thirty-six bouts to decide this competition.

This condition is shown in the following chart on which the matches already fenced are recorded duly as F:

Thirteenth Regiment's Annual Games.

The annual games of the Thirteenth Regiment of Brooklyn usually are among the most interesting of the Winter season, but this year all indications point to the best series of competitions ever held under the auspices of the Regimental Athletic Association. The games are scheduled for the armory on next Saturday night, and many of the leading amateurs in metropolitan district have entered. What will be of especial interest is the appearance of several members of the American Olympic team, and it may be their last performances before going abroad.

Archie Hahn, the Olympic champion at 60, 70, and 200 meters, will attempt to equal the record of Bernard Wefers of 0:10 for 100 yards, made on the Thirteenth track in 1899. Schick, the former Harvard University champion sprinter, will also be seen in a 60-yard exhibition dash. A three-cornered medley race, in which the Thirteenth, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Regiments will compete, will bring out a number of fast runners and a close finish will undoubtedly result.

Western Maryland Earnings.

The Western Maryland Railroad Company reports gross earnings for the week ending March 14 of $89,245, compared with $75,004 in the corresponding week last year. The total for the fiscal year to March 14 is $3,205,810, compared with $2,648,635 to the corresponding date in 1905.

JUMPED FROM FERRYBOAT.

Gave Away Money, Then Committed Suicide—May Be James Jordan.

A man, apparently about 30 years old, boarded the Pennsylvania Railroad ferryboat Cincinnati, which left Desbrosses Street for Jersey City at 1:25 A. M. yesterday. No one noticed him particularly until a man who sat beside him began a whispered conversation with him. In reply the young man fished in his pockets and produced several small coins, which he handed to the other, saying that he had no need of them.

Then he arose, left the cabin, and walked to the forward end of the boat. Taking off his black derby hat, he tore out a part of the sweat band and threw it overboard. The hat he cast to the deck. A moment later he mounted the guard rail and plunged into the river.

A cry of "Man overboard!" went up from several persons, and Capt. Skiffington at once stopped the boat. The deckhands held lanterns over the side, but no trace of the man was seen.

The relatives of James Jordan of 114 King Street, proprietor of a liquor store at the corner of Hudson and Desbrosses Streets, believe he is the man who drowned himself. Yesterday afternoon a man who was a passenger on the Cincinnati told William Mayer, a deckhand, that he recognized the suicide as Jordan. At all events, Jordan left his liquor store at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, and none of his friends saw him after that time.

COLLEGE FENCING OFFICIALS.

Columbia's Captain Vice President of Intercollegiate Association.

At the Intercollegiate Fencing Association's annual meeting for the election of officers held at the New York Athletic Club on Sunday, F. H. Scott of Pennsylvania was elected President for the ensuing year. The other officers elected were O. D. Kehrlein of Columbia, Vice President, and S. H. Breckenridge of Princeton, Secretary-Treasurer.

Among the important business transacted was the passing of a four-year eligibility rule, which will limit the activity of the college fencers to a greater extent than the restrictions laid down by the various college Faculties. The new rule provides that no man will hereafter be allowed to have more than four years of fencing.

Another rule, which passed unanimously, provides that any college which is a member of the league failing to send a team to the intercollegiate championship meet will be fined according to the circumstances of the case. Yale failed to send a team to New York for the meet last week.

BAD BASEBALL WEATHER.

New York Americans Have Strenuous Day at Birmingham.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 19.—The Greater New Yorks played baseball this afternoon in the teeth of a regular gale from the northeast. After an hour of this exercise Griffith paced the men for another hour, and returned to the gymnasium, where Trainer Martin got his men busy with the rubbing-down treatment. None of the visitors apparently feel the result of the strenuous exercise of Saturday afternoon. Another game is scheduled for to-morrow afternoon, and Griffith will place Hughes, Whalen, and Hogg in the box. Manager Vaughan will use Wilhelm, Billiard, and Pylant.

Manager Griffith announced this evening that his men are getting into condition faster than at any other time since he has been coming South. This he considers remarkable on account of the cold and rain which the men have encountered on the trip.

Giants May Abandon Games.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 19.—Unless the weather moderates Manager McGraw will abandon the trip to Nashville for games Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. To-day chilly blasts from almost every direction disturbed the training of the players, who followed their manager and Capt. McGann to Red Elm Park. Unsatisfactory work was done. McGraw took the lead in pitching to batters, so that part of the practice could be performed by every regular, and some of the "subs" were allowed to swing at McGraw's "curves," which generally landed square over the plate. The object was to drill the men more in the quick infield ground ball than anything else.

Crescent Shooters Ready for Boston.

Amateur trap shooters in the East are much interested in the match between the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn and the Boston Athletic Association. Both organizations have made excellent records during the shooting season, and the Boston gunners seem to be pretty confident that they will reverse the result of last year when they were defeated by a small margin in a home-and-home match. The conditions of the coming competition call for six or eight men teams, 200 clay targets per man, of which 100 are to be shot at the Crescent Athletic Club traps on next Saturday, and the balance at Boston on April 7. The team breaking the most targets on the two grounds will be declared the winner.

While the Crescents have not officially selected their team, it is almost assured that their representatives will be picked from the following: Frank B. Stephenson, Henry M. Brigham, Lowell M. Palmer, Jr., Henry Kryn, F. T. Bedford, Jr., A. G. Southworth, George G. Stephenson, Oliver C. Grinnell, Jr., and C. E. T. Foster. This, with the exception of J. S. S. Remsen, the champion of last year, is probably the strongest aggregation the "New Moon" organization can pit against the Yankees.

Association Football at Columbia.

Association football as an intercollegiate game has apparently come to stay at Columbia, judging from the schedule announced by the manager. Of the six games to be played by the Blue and White team, three are with college teams, Harvard and Haverford at New York and Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. The remaining games are with field clubs. The schedule:

March 31, Brooklyn Field Club at Brooklyn. April 6, Haverford at New York; April 7, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; April 14, Staten Island Field Club at Staten Island; April 21, Freebooters' Field Club at Flushing; April 28, Harvard at New York.

Ricker Outplays Bartels at Pool.

G. Ricker outplayed J. Bartels at pool last night in the tournament now in progress at the Broadway Billiard Academy. Ricker had 100 to make, while Bartel was handicapped at 90. The former won by a score of 100 to 49. Ricker's high run was 29, and he had only one scratch. Bartels's best contribution was 12, while three scratches were charged against him. In the game to-night E. Gray and C. Johnson, each having 100 to make, will be the contestants.

Automobile Notes of Interest.

The cornerstone of the new clubhouse for the Automobile Club of America will be laid to-morrow afternoon with special exercises under the auspices of the Directors and members of the Building Committee. The new clubhouse will be located on the north side of Fifty-fourth Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue.

C. W. Kelsey, who drove a thirty-six horse-power Maxwell car to Boston late last week on a wager to meet a forty horse-power Jackson car in a hill climbing contest outside of Boston, won that event. The hill was covered with snow when the contest was held, but the Maxwell car ascended twice, its best time being 1:30 1-5. Parker Hill was selected for the test, about one-third of a mile long, and with a grade of nearly 20 per cent. The Jackson car made one ascent.

A smoker and entertainment will be given by the New York Motor Club at its clubrooms in the Hotel Cumberland, Broadway and Fifty-fourth Street, on Friday night.

Chairman Jefferson Demont Thompson said yesterday that the members of his racing board had been selected, but he was waiting to hear from President John Farson, who is now in Chicago, before publicly announcing their names. It may be done to-day and a meeting will be held soon after.

President Dave Hennen Morris of the Automobile Club of America has returned from the South. A meeting of the Board of Governors will be held this week to discuss the plan for the coming tests. Whether the club will hold an automobile parade or not this year has not been fully determined.

The New York Motor Club has decided to repeat its Orphans' Day automobile outing this season, but the date will be in the Fall instead of the Spring, as was the case a year ago. The affair will probably be held immediately after the Glidden Cup tour.

A boon to touring automobilists, in the way of reduced freight rates on automobiles, west of Chicago, has just been granted by the Western railroad companies, after some extensive negotiations by the Traffic Department of the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers. The reduction amounts practically to about one rate and a half on the travel from Chicago to San Francisco and return.

BILLIARD CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY E. W. GARDNER

Poggenburg Defeated in Deciding Game by 300 to 256.

GARDNER TOOK EVERY GAME

Demarest, Wright, and the Liederkranz Player Tied for Second Place in Tournament.

CHICAGO, March 19.—Edward W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., is the amateur billiard champion of America. He won the title to-night at the Chicago Athletic Association in the final game of the National tournament, which has been in progress for a week. His opponent to-night was J. F. Poggenburg of Liederkranz Club of New York, and the new champion won by the score of 300 to 256. Gardner played five games without a defeat.

Tied for second prize are Calvin Demarest of Chicago, Henry Wright of San Francisco, and J. F. Poggenburg, each having won three and lost two games. The tie will be played off to-morrow.

C. F. Conklin of Chicago, last year's champion, finished in fifth place with one game to his credit and four defeats. Charles S. Norris of New York finished in last position, having lost all five games.

Demarest won the prize for the grand average, with 12 8-116. Wright made the high run of the tournament, 127.

The game to-night between Gardner and Poggenburg was fought every inch of the way. Gardner, who is noted for his safety plays, was especially cautious, and nearly every time he missed a shot he left the balls in such an intricate position that his opponent was unable to score. All the luck seemed to be with Gardner.

Poggenburg toward the end missed several shots that seemed comparatively easy of execution. He stopped playing for five minutes while a new cue was being brought for his use, but the change made little difference, and he continued in ill-luck.

Up to the eleventh inning the score was about even, with both men playing a slow and safe game. At this point Poggenburg made a run of 45 and took the lead, which he held until the eighteenth inning. Then Gardner passed him with three points to spare. From this time on Gardner steadily increased his lead until the forty-first inning, when he was 90 points to the good. The next time up Poggenburg counted 20, followed it with a 13, and then with 23 points. Each time he failed on comparatively easy shots and retired to his seat disgusted.

Gardner kept scoring single runs each time up until in the forty-second inning he asked that the table be cleared and a new set of balls be put into play. When everything was ready for him he scored a difficult shot and then failed on an easy cushion carrom. His next time up the best he could do was 1.

By this time Poggenburg had crept up to within 50 points of Gardner, and the latter plainly showed nervousness until in the forty-fifth inning he took a chance on a difficult shot to get the balls together. He made the shot and was loudly cheered for his nerve. After this he kept the balls together, and soon counted the necessary nine points to run out the game and win the championship.

Gardner's average was 6 30-45, and his high run 27. Poggenburg's high run was 45, and his average 5 31-45.

GALLAGHER LEADS HOPPE.

Veteran Has 75 Points Advantage in Handicap Match.

Tom Gallagher leads Willie Hoppe in their six-day match, 3,000 to 2,000, eighteen-inch balk line, one shot in balk. After finishing the afternoon's play, 88 points behind his allotment, the veteran outplayed the champion, and not only made up the 88 that he lacked but ran out his four-hundredth point, while Hoppe still lacked 75 of 600. The old man was in fine fettle, and made one run of 93 and another of 66, and averaged 16 for the evening. The best Hoppe could do at night was a run of 51 and another of 38, with an average of 12 9-11. In the afternoon, however, Hoppe nursed the balls splendidly, and amassed one score of 116 and averaged 20 for his 300 points. Gallagher's best effort was 37, his average 8. The score by innings in the afternoon was:

Hoppe—0 0 3 0 2 1 116 2 37 4 39 47 9 34 6. Total, 300; average, 20; high runs, 116, 39, 34.

Gallagher—6 0 0 9 2 11 2 37 6 19 4 10 1 3 2. Total, 112; average, 8; high runs, 37, 19, 11.

Hoppe took the lead in the evening, but in the sixth inning Gallagher's 66 put him ahead on an even basis for the night's play. He held his own until Hoppe's 51 gave the champion a slight lead, but when Hoppe reached 225 Gallagher got the balls in perfect position and amassed his 93, running out the string. The score by innings was:

Hoppe—35 3 1 33 38 3 7 0 11 6 5 51 7 0 15 0 5 0. Total, 225; average, 12 9-11; high runs, 51, 38, 35.

Gallagher—2 2 11 29 20 66 5 15 3 15 0 8 15 5 5 2 0 93. Total, 288; average, 16; high runs, 93, 66, 29.

The totals and grand averages of the men for the match are:

Gallagher—Total, 400; average, 12½; high runs, 93, 66, 37.

Hoppe—Total, 525; average, 16; high runs, 116, 51, 39.

NATIONAL REVOLVER MEET.

Championship Begins at the Manhattan Association Gallery.

Experts with the revolver and pistol, many of whom have won international honors, last night began the competitions for the National championship with those weapons. The contest is also being conducted in seven other cities. The meeting is the annual indoor championship of the United States Revolver Association. In this city the competitors face the targets in the gallery of the Manhattan Rifle and Revolver Association, One Hundredth Street and Broadway.

From the entry list twenty men will compete at the Manhattan Gallery for the National title, while similar competitions are being shot at Boston, Springfield, Mass.; Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Pine Bluff, Ark., and Pinehurst, N. C. At the close of the contest the targets will be reviewed by Secretary J. B. Crabtree in Springfield. Each competitor has fifty shots with each weapon at a range of twenty yards.

The best score made last night was by A. L. A. Himmelwright at the prescribed twenty yards. He scored 94. All of the ten shots on this target landed on the black. Five were within the heart of the spot counting 10 each, four were slightly off the centre counting 9 each, and one shot was on the edge counting 8. Himmelwright also scored targets of 91, 90, and 89. He was the first to win the National amateur revolver championship of this country some years ago.

M. Hays and J. E. Silliman both shot targets in competition for the pistol title. The former entered two targets of 87 each. He scored a single centre on his first target and four centres on his second. Silliman scored two targets, totalling 90 and 88, respectively.

The Manhattan Association has accepted a challenge from the Circle le Carbinier de Paris of France for an international match with revolver and rifle, which will be contested by cable the latter part of May. The conditions call for teams of fifteen men each. Each man will be allowed 40 shots with revolver at 50 yards range, and 40 shots with rifle at 200 yards range. In two former international matches the Frenchmen have won.

Among those who will shoot in this city are: Lieut. Reginald H. Sayre, John Dietz, Thomas Anderton, and Dr. W. H. Luckett, all ex-champions. Other experts are J. Le Boutillier, Benjamin F. Wilder and others.

CUTS HIS THROAT IN FORT.

Castle Williams Prisoner Holds Off Cellmates Till Guard Appears.

While he fought off his cellmates with his right hand, Patrick Clancy, a prisoner in Castle Williams, on Governors Island, tried to cut his throat with a knife in his left hand yesterday morning. He succeeded in making a gash that may cause death. It was not until a guard appeared with an army rifle in hand that Clancy's cellmates picked up courage to disarm him.

Clancy arrived at the prison a few days ago from a Western post to serve a sentence for desertion. Some callers on Sunday, it is supposed, furnished the knife. At reveille yesterday morning the cellmates discovered the new prisoner standing in a corner and hacking at his throat with a jack-knife. Clancy backed up against the wall and threatened to use the knife on the first man who touched him.

The noise in the cell attracted the attention of Private Lyons, Fifth Infantry, the guard on duty. He looked through the grating and saw Clancy standing in a corner, while in a semicircle about him stood the cellmates.

"Disarm that man and do it quick," shouted Lyons, and the men closed in, but Clancy drew back his hand in threatening manner and they halted once more.

"Take that knife away from him or there will be some shooting," commanded Lyons. The next moment Clancy was sprawling with all his cellmates on top. He was removed to the hospital in a serious condition.

NEW B. R. T. TROLLEY LINES.

Extensions Through Flatlands District Will Now Be Pushed.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has just obtained the right of way through a considerable territory in the Flatlands district of Brooklyn that will enable it to proceed with the proposed extensions in that direction. The donors are the McLoughlin Real Estate Company and Wood, Harmon & Co. of Brooklyn and Manhattan.

At present some of the residents in this district are a mile and a half from the nearest trolley line. By the right of way acquired, together with some franchises already in the possession of the company, it will be possible to construct two additional lines and to place a regular trolley service within half a mile of the furthest. This will open a direct route from Delancey Street, across the Williamsburg Bridge, through Brooklyn proper, and Flatbush, to Bergen Beach.

In addition the extension of the line now provided for will result in the opening of Canarsie by a second road, and by means of transfers will provide residents of the Flatlands and Bergen Beach districts with a shorter route to Manhattan Beach and Coney Island.

The construction of the extension will be begun as soon as possible. It is expected that by the Fall the work will be complete and that service will have been established.

TO PARADE FOR MOST.

New York Anarchists to Meet His Ashes at the Station.

The various anarchist groups affiliated in this city with the International Club Freiheit, the central anarchist body, announced yesterday that they were arranging for a memorial meeting in honor of Johann Most, the late head of the New York anarchists. It will take place in Grand Central Palace, Forty-fourth Street and Lexington Avenue, after Most's ashes are brought here. The body is to be cremated in Cincinnati.

As soon as the groups are notified of the day on which Most's ashes will arrive they will arrange a parade to the station to meet the train. It was learned last night that Most's paper, the Freiheit, will be discontinued.

Temperance Men for Local Option.

The Board of Managers of the Church Temperance Society, of which Bishop Tuttle of Missouri is President, held a meeting at the Church Missions House, Twenty-second Street and Fourth Avenue, yesterday, and unanimously adopted resolutions indorsing the Tully-Wainwright bill for local option.

BASKET BALL CHAMPIONSHIP.

Junior Players Compete for A. A. U. Honors in Round Robin Series.

The junior basket ball championship for teams registered in the Amateur Athletic Union began last night with three games on the Young Men's Hebrew Association court and two games on the University Settlement court. In view of the large number of entries it was decided to play three round robin series, the teams finishing first and second in each tournament to be eligible for the final rounds of the championship.

Six games were scheduled last night, but only five were played. The Bryant Commercial School of Brooklyn was to have met the Prospect Young Men's Christian Association on the University Settlement court, but failed to put in an appearance, and forfeited the game.

ATLAS A. C., 24; ST. GEORGE A.C., 17.

Lack of efficient guard work was responsible for the defeat of St. George Athletic Club by the Atlas Athletic Club. The first half was well contested, Atlas leading by the score of 13 to 10. In the second half the Atlas five ran away from their opponents and won by 24 to 17. The line-up:

Atlas A.C., 24.	Position.	St.George A.C., 17.
E. Petrick	Right forward	Koechlein
Doyle	Centre	Newman
W. Petrick	Right guard	Koolen

Goals from field—Koechlein, (2,) Spilger, (4,) Newman, Nelson, E. Petrick, (6,) Parker, (3,) Trotter, W. Petrick. Goals from fouls—Nelson, W. Petrick. Referee—Charles Warner. Umpire—W. Krug. Timekeeper—Charles Jardine. Time of game—Fifteen-minute halves.

UNIVERSITY SETTLEMENT, 32; MAXWELL, 4.

The University Settlement team won from the Maxwell House five in a one-sided game by 32 to 4. The feature was the goal throwing of Sugarman and Brill, who served eight and four goals respectively. The line-up:

Settlement, 32.	Position.	Maxwell, 4.
Bloom	Right forward	Chance
Engel	Centre	Kenneck
Furschman	Right guard	McEntee

Goals from field—Smith, (2,) Bloom, Brill, (4,) Sugarman, (8,) Furschman, Engel. Goals from fouls—Chance, Smith. Referee—George W. Schoening, Young Men's Hebraw Association. Umpire—J. H. Coggle, Xavier Athletic Association. Time of game—Fifteen-minute halves.

Y. M. H. A., 25; Turnverein, 14.

The Central Young Men's Hebrew Association five won from the National Turnverein by 25 to 14. The game was evenly contested up to the last few minutes, when the Hebrew Association players scored rapidly. The line-up:

Y. M. H. A., 25.	Position.	Turnverein, 14.
Gutter	Right forward	Charrier
Ehrlich, Guttenstein	Centre	Crantlein
Kaplan	Right guard	Shipman

Goals from field—Kaplan, 1; Schwartz, 2; Cahen, 2; Gutter, 2; Shipman, 2; Schade, 1; Crantlein, 1; Schenck, 1. Goals from fouls—Guttenstein, 1; Schade, 1; Cahen, 1; Crantlein, 3. Referee—C. D. Peiffer. Umpire—Mr. E. A. Hanrahan. Time of game—Fifteen-minute halves.

CALVARY A. C., 21; XAVIER A. A., 9.

Calvary Athletic Club won from the Xavier Athletic Association Juniors by the score of 21 to 9. Calvary played a strong game, taking the lead at the start and holding the game safe throughout. The line-up:

Xavier A. A., Jrs., 9.	Position.	Calvary, 21.
Reen	Right forward	Proctor
Marquart	Centre	Moloney
Riley	Right guard	McGowan

Goals from field—Reen, 2; Blackmore, 1; Riley, 1; Proctor, 2; McGowan, 1; Moloney, 4; Murray, 1. Goals from fouls—Spain, 4; McGowan, 1; Marquart, 1; Schultz, 3; McEntee, 3; Bloom, 1; Sugarman, 1; Engel, 2. Referee—C. D. Peiffer. Umpire—E. A. Hanrahan. Time of game—Fifteen-minute halves.

CLARK HOUSE, 21; CHRIST CHURCH, 10.

Superior passing won for Clark House against the Christ Church team by 21 to 10. The Christ Church boys were outclassed from the start. The line-up:

Clark House, 21.	Position.	Christ Church, 10.

AUTO SELLING RACES IN ATLANTIC CITY MEET

Winning Car Must Be Sold to the Highest Bidder.

CHRISTIE RACER IS ENTERED

Mrs. Cuneo Will Drive Her Touring Car in Beach Contests Against High-Powered Machines.

A decided novelty in automobile racing contests will be inaugurated at the Atlantic City beach meet during the first big motor competition of the season in the North on April 26, 27, and 28. This will be the addition to the programme of several selling races, and it will be expressly stipulated that the winning car must be sold to the purchaser who is willing to pay the price specified in the class in which it was entered. Should two or more buyers wish the car, whatever excess above the stock price may be obtained will be devoted, probably, to some practical automobile use, the exact character of which is now being determined by the committee.

Considerable complaint has been made in the past regarding the so-called stock car races in which cars are classified according to their selling price, on the ground that the competing cars have often been fitted out especially for racing purposes. The manufacturer or agent entering the car gets the credit of supplying a fast and serviceable car at a stated price. Those who have entered bona fide stock cars have occasionally demurred at this sharp practice, but formal protests have never been made.

Under this selling scheme the tendency to doctor cars for racing purposes will be lessened, for no one would care to spend more money in equipping a machine with superior mechanical devices if it were known that in case of victory the car must be sold at a fixed price.

Many spectators of automobile races in which stock events are held often ask to purchase the winning car, but the agent usually tells the customer that if he will call around at the shop he will give him one "just as good." With the selling race at Atlantic City this excuse will be untenable.

A car for $1,500 to $2,500 that can go ten or twenty miles on the track at good speed has demonstrated something, and a spectator is liable to be so pleased with it that nothing will suit him but that identical car. The Atlantic City race managers are now going to give intending purchasers who want a practical demonstration of what the machine can do under competitive conditions an opportunity of taking the winning car at the agent's price.

Walter Christie has entered his well-known racing car, the same that competed in the Vanderbilt Cup race last season. It was not a big success then, but it has been thoroughly overhauled and many improvements made. Mr. Christie thinks the car will show not only high speed but satisfactory endurance this year. He will probably drive it himself. Among other high-powered racing cars that have already been entered are a four-cylinder Napier, to be driven by T. M. Hilliard; a six-cylinder Thomas, to be driven by Montague Roberts; a Wayne, to be driven by Charles T. Earl, and the Reo Bird, which will be driven by Dan Wurgis, who piloted it last year at the Empire City track.

In the touring car classes Mrs. Joan N. Cuneo will drive her White steamer, and other cars entered are the Darracq, English Daimler, Aerial, Royal Tourist, Winton, Columbia, Maxwell, and Simplex.

RUBINSTEIN CONCERT OFF.

But the Club Votes $1,000 for Mrs. McLean's D. A. R. Memorial Hall.

The Mi-Carême festival concert that was to have been given at the Waldorf this evening by the Rubinstein Club has been abandoned, and the money received from subscribers has been returned. Mrs. Henry Wallerstein, President of the club, said yesterday that the illness of the musical director, Wilbur R. Chapman, was the cause of the change in the club's plans. She denied that there was any ill-feeling between her society and the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The proceeds of the concert had been pledged to Mrs. Donald McLean, President of the Daughters of the American Revolution, toward the memorial hall at Washington. When it was decided to give up the concert the members of the Rubinstein Club voted unanimously to appropriate $1,000 for the Daughters of the American Revolution out of their treasury, and a check for the amount will be sent Mrs. McLean on Thursday.

LEST WORSE MAY COME.

The ratemaking bill with a provision for review by the courts and amended, very likely, in other particulars, will almost certainly be passed by the Senate, and we think it will be accepted in that form by the House. As a matter of expediency merely, not at all as a matter of wise National policy, it is perhaps well that the bill thus changed should pass to enactment.

Senator TILLMAN's report was not particularly enlightening, it was very far from being convincing. As an exposition of legal and economic principles it had little value. But, in sounding a note of warning to the opponents of the bill, he pictured forth the consequences of defeating it in these words:

> Such action on their part will, in my judgment, be very unwise, and will only dam up the water. The issue will be made the paramount one in the next election, and those who are responsible for delay or inadequate legislation will find that when at last the floodgates of popular wrath and indignation are hoisted there will be some fine grinding done. If those most interested in these great properties will not consent to wise legislation to relieve the distress of the people there is danger of more radical policies and leaders coming to the front, with the result that legislation far more drastic and dangerous than anything proposed in this bill and the amendments to be offered will be enacted.

That, we think, is the wisest and soundest passage in Mr. TILLMAN's report, which, as he explained, presents, not the view of the committee, but the personal opinion of himself and Senator NEWLANDS. It is probable that if the Hepburn bill were defeated altogether the tide of popular resentment would sweep away a good many Republican majorities in the Congressional districts next Fall, and legislative power in the House of Representatives might be committed to the uncovenanted caprices of a Democratic, Populist, Socialist, and nondescript majority.

When Senator TILLMAN speaks of relieving "the distress of the people" by passing a ratemaking bill he talks the purest fustian, the rankest demagogy. There is nowhere any "distress of the people" occasioned by abuses curable by Federal ratemaking. But the persistent efforts and immense personal influence of President ROOSEVELT have raised ratemaking into an issue. He, and those who have joined him in the work—and many of his most zealous coadjutors are Southern Democrats—have brought about an astonishing state of confusion in the public mind, in so much that for the most part it perceives no difference or distinction between exorbitant rates and discriminating rates, between charges too high all around and charges that are unfair because higher for one than for another shipper. The agitators, the Populists, the haters of corporations, and the fomenters of class strife would, if the bill were defeated, so play upon the popular emotions and make such moving appeals to passion and prejudice next Fall that the consequences predicted by Senator TILLMAN might really come about. The House has been scared out of its wits already. It is mere helpless pulp, and, believing the President to be the authorized leader and exponent of public opinion, it would obey him whatever he commanded. The Senate has not yet come to that condition of cowardice and servility, but if there should be a great overturn in the Congressional elections next November even Senatorial resistance might be overcome.

The amendment providing for the review by the courts of the Inter-State Commerce Commission's orders will be adopted in the Senate, probably by a large majority. For effect upon the House and upon the country, as well as upon the bill, it is desirable that the majority should be large. Without that amendment the bill would pretty certainly be unconstitutional, and even this change may not save it. But at least a ratemaking law which gives the carrier his day in court is not at all the same thing as a measure which would hand the carriers' business and their property over to the Commission, to be managed without the privilege which every other property holder enjoys of appealing to the courts of law for protection against injury and injustice. Thus amended the measure ceases to be an engine of wanton destruction, and takes on the form of reasonable legislation.

That the bill, no matter how amended, will be unsound in principle and unsafe in policy is the opinion of THE TIMES. It is only as the alternative of something worse, possibly something very much worse, that its enactment could be regarded as defensible.

DEFENDING NEW YORK.

Coast defense is undoubtedly the most important part of the work of National defense, after naval defense. An unaggressive nation like ourselves needs no armaments for offensive purposes. But there is, if not more than one, at least one of the great Powers of Europe left to remind us that international law does not amount to much in the face of "vis majeure," and that a nation, in the European acceptation, is nothing but a big highwayman, or common pirate, according as its field of operations may be by land or sea.

Capt. MAHAN has "feelingly reminded" mankind that naval defense includes the possibility of taking the navally offensive, and that a navy which cannot, on occasion, take the offensive, is a navy which cannot efficiently defend itself. These teachings have finally penetrated away down to the Congressional consciousness, and we are yearly making appropriations for more and bigger battleships. But at the same time the more immediate means of defending our shores, by means of fortifications for that specific purpose, should not be neglected. And the current talk of Congress indicates that that body is not in favor of neglecting them.

Gen. GRANT's report, published yesterday, shows that he is quite alive to the danger of leaving the ports of his military bailiwick, the Department of the East, unprotected. And the measure of protection which will suffice varies with the progress of military science from generation to generation, almost from decade to decade. It is within the recollection of many New Yorkers that Gen. GRANT's father, about a generation ago, in a speech to the Chamber of Commerce, or upon some other municipal occasion, took credit to himself for having rendered New York "safe." It was a justified boast at the time. But the author of it had scarcely died, if he had died, when it appeared that the guns with which he had provided New York were converted into popguns, and the fortifications with which he had provided New York into hedges, of no military account.

The expenditure which the present Gen. GRANT recommends is of not much more than half a million to protect, according to the present military lights, the entrance to New York by way of the Narrows, and the entrance by way of the Sound. Evidently this is a very low premium for the magnitude of the imperiled interests. Of course, the protection is provisional. Our whole war material is likewise provisional. We have just got a new field gun which we believe to represent "the present state of the art." We also, not so long ago, got a new small arm which our experts then assured us, and may possibly still assure us, represents that state. But, if we have to re-arm the whole United States Army and militia, say, next year, and if we have to re-equip the whole field artillery within half a dozen years, the necessary cost should be cheerfully accepted as also a moderate provision for National insurance. Of course, such expenditures are provisional. Doubtless there are members of Congress who do not "see the use" of the United States Army, and express that short view to their constituents. Some of them even profess it in Congress itself, though one notes that they have professed it with steadily decreasing confidence since the year 1898, when the army had a chance to show to the country what it was good for. Gen. GRANT's recommendations, founded, of course, on the recommendations of his experts, may be expected to prevail, "in the present state of the art," and also in the present state of Congress.

HOW THE MORTGAGE TAX WORKS.

The mortgage tax law has proved disappointing in other respects than in its unsatisfactory yield. It was expected in some way to benefit our rural friends, who are worried by the unjust abundance of funds in the city. As matter of fact it is precisely the country districts which are most prejudiced from the anticipated and now realized results of making borrowing difficult and expensive. In New York County in 1905 there was still 7½ per cent. of mortgage money available at 5 per cent. or lower, although the mortgage tax reform had reduced the percentage from 29 per cent. under the old law in the corresponding and later half of 1904. There was even more money here in the later period, but it was harder instead of easier to get, and those who wanted it had to bid up for it, since lenders were not bidding for borrowers. Nobody here is surprised. We expected to suffer and we are suffering.

But how is it with our country friends? Have they so much as 7½ per cent. of 5 per cent. money available? Rensselaer County in 1904 had over 18 per cent. of 5 per cent. mortgage money. In 1905 it had 0.8 per cent. Chautauqua, Columbia, and Dutchess Counties in 1905 had available in the neighborhood of 1 per cent., more or less. There is nothing peculiar about New York money which makes it shrink under the application of taxation. It seeks good loans as naturally as a duck takes to water, and as certainly as it does in other neighboring States, where lenders have not been vexed by tax vagaries. In Boston in 1905 there was 41.5 per cent. of mortgage money available at 5 per cent. or lower, and in Berkshire County there was 10.8 per cent. Boston's money market is fairly comparable with New York City's, and Berkshire County adjoins Columbia and Rensselaer.

On the other hand, in Boston there was only 21.4 per cent. loaned upon mortgage in excess of 5 per cent., and in Berkshire County only 11.4 per cent. We had to pay over 5 per cent. on 67.5 per cent. of our mortgage loans, but Chautauqua County paid over 5 per cent. on 79.1 per cent. of its mortgages, Columbia County upon 83 per cent., and Kings County upon 86.2 per cent. In city and country alike there is less cheap money and more dear money, and in both respects the comparison is against the up-State counties. If they like it we can accommodate ourselves to it as well as they, but why not make conditions of borrowing easier for both of us? They will appreciate the facts here stated better if they will send to the Tax Reform Association and get the presentation in diagrammatic form, which strikes the eye as the idea ought to strike the reason.

DR. SHEARER'S ARTICLES.

The lively interest aroused by the articles of Dr. WILLIAM J. SHEARER upon the defective organization of the public schools in this city shows that conditions are by no means satisfactory, whatever may be the source of the difficulties or the suitable remedy. His second article, published yesterday, had a special value because it was based on specific personal investigation directed to the explanations currently given as to the admitted defects. His observations seem to make it extremely unlikely that these are due to the foreign element in the schools, to the late age at which pupils enter, or wholly to the lack of room and the degree of half-time pupils. It is the judgment of our contributor that the main trouble is in the long interval between the examinations for promotion and in the unsuitableness of examinations as a basis of promotion.

Certainly the information that Dr. SHEARER supplies is of the greatest importance, and it is submitted in a spirit with which no fault can be found. The attitude of the Doctor toward the gentlemen in actual charge of our schools is courteous and respectful, and his criticism is the reverse of carping. We believe that his motive, like our own, is to promote the efficiency of the schools and to secure for a larger number of the pupils a larger share of the benefits to which they clearly are entitled if it can be shown how these are to be attained. We may say to our readers, as we have already stated, that Dr. SHEARER has a system to suggest which he is confident will accomplish the desired end. We are not ourselves competent judges of his suggestion, but we are persuaded that it deserves careful attention and, when it is disclosed at the proper time in his articles, that it will command such attention. In the meanwhile, it is plain that the discussion will have an excellent effect.

SIGNALS AND OPERATORS.

Happily the death list of the Colorado railway collision shrinks with later intelligence, but its disquieting effect upon the traveling public will rather increase with knowledge of the details. "I went to sleep and did not give No. 3 its orders," said the signalman, according to our telegram. No one who rides in a train, especially no one who rides in a sleeper, can read that without asking how it is possible for a train to proceed merely because a man slept at his post. If No. 3 was to get orders there, why did it not insist upon getting them? Why was there not some signal set so that the train could not proceed without violating orders, no matter who slept nor who assumed to proceed merely without orders?

Nothing can be said in extenuation of the man who slept at the cost of a score of lives, but when he is blamed all is not said. How came he to have worked three days continuously? It cannot be assumed that he was ordered to, and it is not apparent how he was permitted to. His readiness to work three days will not exempt the company from responsibility for permitting him to do such an unpermissible thing. And beyond the question of responsibility lies the question of methods. Was the road undermanned, or unequipped with suitable signals? The German Commissioners who recently studied American railways covered this point. They admired our mechanical ingenuity, but they added that it was no substitute for human intelligence. They figured that if American railways used as many employés as the German railways they would be obliged to employ thirteenfold as many as they do. And they charged that as the result of the failure to do so American railways kill six and a half times as many as the German railways.

With American wages such an increase of staffs would be impracticable, and perhaps it would be unnecessary. Machines may err as well as men may sleep, but when it is a question of human life it is not too much to expect that the man shall be checked by the machine, and the machine shall be supplemented by the man. Both can hardly go wrong together, and when reinforcing each other staffs may be reduced, but not excessively. A bill now before Congress covers cases like this one. Whenever a company "requires or permits" excessively long tours of duty the Inter-State Commerce Commission shall prescribe maximum hours of duty and suitable intervals of rest. This accident happened in the route of large Summer tourist travel, making the matter one of far from local interest. It would have been economy not to have had the accident happen, and it would be better policy to do something more by way of prevention than merely to throw blame upon the signalman.

THE AMBASSADOR TO AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The appointment of CHARLES S. FRANCIS to be Ambassador to Austria-Hungary is not only a promotion for a diplomatist who has already been tested by experience, but it is a curious instance of quasi-heredity. Mr. JOHN M. FRANCIS, the father of the newly nominated Ambassador, was Minister to Greece and Roumania, as the son has been, and was later sent to the Court of Vienna, as the son now is about to be. He was also, as the son is, the editor and owner of The Troy Times, and as the son is, in private and in public life a man of energy, probity, and excellent ideals. The practical temper of Mr. FRANCIS is indicated by the fact that upon his graduation from Cornell University he entered the employ of his father's paper as a compositor and passed to the work of a reporter, and so on to the final control of the paper.

Mr. FRANCIS will go to Vienna in what Mr. GREELEY would have called "mighty interesting" times not only for the diplomatist but for the journalist and trained observer of events. The dual empire is agitated by a most strenuous conflict between the two races of which chiefly its people is made up, and the policy of the aged Emperor in proposing extended suffrage as a conclusive move on his side against the Magyar leaders must tend to important changes, whatever may be the immediate outcome. It is a striking opportunity for a representative of the great Western Republic to watch the effect of a radical democratic policy put into operation by the head of the House of Hapsburg—in its time the most autocratic of the reigning European houses, except Russia—against the Magyars, themselves the most aristocratic and obstinate of races. And it may be Mr. FRANCIS's fortune to see what all Europe has dreaded for a quarter of a century, the death of FRANCIS JOSEPH and the possible change of the balance of power in Europe.

TORICS OF THE TIMES.

Mr. Peters Has Reformed. As preparation for continuing his campaign against the use of intoxicants by women, the Rev. MADISON C. PETERS announces that he has discontinued the "occasional drink" that has hitherto been the limit of his indulgence, and that hereafter it is teetotalism for his. The news, we suppose, will be welcomed with joy in many quarters, not because anybody ever thought or suspected that the good gentleman's "occasional drink" affected the accuracy of his judgment, the moderation of his statements, or the steadiness of his legs, but simply because there are still some people who regard his new policy of abstinence as the only form of temperance worthy of the name. Dr. JOHNSON, who also became an abstainer in his old age, after taking a good many more than "occasional drinks" in his incautious years, said that he did it because he found abstinence easy and temperance difficult. That is an admirable reason for the change, but of course Mr. PETERS will not offer it on his own behalf. He has "sworn off," no doubt, simply because if he claimed the right to exercise his private judgment as to the amount of alcohol he could "stand," it would be difficult or embarrassing for him to deny the same right to other folks, including the women whose perilous declination from an old-time perpendicularity on the rum question he so deeply deplores. It may be, however, that what seems to him to be a declination is merely the conclusion on the part of a number of women that what Mr. PETERS used to do they can safely do now, and that their previous abnegation was unnecessarily complete. In other words, their definition of temperance is what his was, not what his is. Among men there has unquestionably been a general diminution of drinking, as a result of the commoner appreciation of the fact that even the beginning of intoxication is incompatible with the successful conduct of business. The big corporations, too, are doing much to enforce upon their employés a close approach to teetotalism, on the theory that only in that way can the best quality of work be secured where the burden of responsibility is heavy. Mr. PETERS, therefore has a tendency of the time to justify his own abnegation, but that same thing is against his proclamation that women in multitudes are losing their ancient horror of the Demon. He has probably heard too much about the doings of a very small class, and he has argued from the particular to the general. The days of alcoholic excesses for people who count for anything are surely past.

Mr. Washington Makes a Mistake. BOOKER WASHINGTON continues to exploit his curious idea that the fathers of the American negroes had a civilization of their own before they were stolen away from Africa, and that it was a civilization a good deal better than most people think. We doubt if any serious mistake has been made on that point—unless it be the mistake of Mr. WASHINGTON himself in starting an inquiry as to the exact nature and degree of the civilization he vaunts. If anything ethnic is sure it is that in all the centuries the negro has never demonstrated the ability to rise unassisted above the savage state, or, unassisted, to keep himself above it. That is a most harsh saying, but the whole of Africa proves it by failing to present any evidence that its black inhabitants ever established, or even tried to establish, what in other parts of the world has been called civilization. The "rude honesty" to which Mr. WASHINGTON refers seems to have been that of people who had little or nothing to steal from each other; their highest Governmental relations were simply the first extension to the small tribe of something like family laws, and if they ever felt the impulse to build anything better than rude huts the evanishment of their constructions has been curiously complete. There have been many and great civilizations in Africa, but they were never African, or at least they were never negro. It would therefore be the part of wisdom, it seems to us, for the master of Tuskegee to look forward, not backward. The past is not encouraging, but the future may contain all he sees in it, and there he should keep his own eyes and the eyes of others as much as he can. Few doubt the value of the work he has been and is doing, and to many, not the least competent to judge, it seems full of promise. The less said about the original civilization of the negro tribes the better. The first thing he knows somebody will tell him that the only thing his people did not have to learn on their arrival here was—slavery. They knew that by long experience, not only under masters of lighter color, but under their own petty chiefs, and the contention that the American form of it was a novelty to them—except for its mildness—will not endure examination.

Horse Races and Yacht Races. Into such strange confusion of mind has the Rev. Dr. SLICER been driven by his attempt to sterilize gambling that again and again he says that it is as wrong to attempt the suppression of horse racing as it would be to try to put an end to the racing of yachts. There's not a bit of doubt about that, but can he call to mind the name of a single man, woman, or child who has demanded, or even suggested, the abolition of either of these interesting sports? If he can he has a better memory than we have or has read the newspapers more closely. He has fallen into error, however, from a subconscious realization of the fact that it has often been said of horse racing that its existence depends upon the toleration of the bookmaker or some equivalent. Whether this is true or not has not been definitely settled, but a good many things point that way, and Dr. SLICER evidently believes it. No such charge was ever made against yacht racing. What may be called the breed of boats goes on improving, or at least changing, and that is probably improving, despite the moans of the pessimists, without the slightest help from any organized or recognized form of gambling. Bets on the results of regattas have been known, but they certainly are not the reason why the regattas are held, and their prohibition, if practicable, would not cause all the yachts to go out of commission. Dr. SLICER's comparison is most unfortunate—for his position. It admits far too much and far more than Dr. SLICER's allies would care to confess. By the way, whence came the impression that if the Conference of Religions refrains from supporting the Cassidy bill its chance of passage or even of further consideration is destroyed? That is about the most mysterious feature of a controversy that has been and is full of mysteries.

SMALL TALK OF WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—It was the disappearance of Bellamy Storer from the diplomatic service which was under discussion, and some one appealed to Secretary Shaw to know if the decision reached was sudden. Mr. Shaw did not reply directly.

"Out West," said the Secretary, "there was a tenderfoot who struck a new town just as a funeral procession was coming out. He stood and watched it file by, and then inquired of one of the bystanders who the deceased was.

"'Pink-Eyed Bill,' was the reply.

"'Was his death sudden?' inquired the tenderfoot.

"'Sudden?' said the resident. 'No, stranger; he'd been under suspicion a long time.'"

The great apostle of peace in Congress is Representative Bartholdt of Missouri, the head of the American branch of the Inter-Parliamentary Peace Union, which is laboring for universal disarmament. Whenever a hospitable appropriation bill comes along and offers its time to discussion of general subjects in the House, Mr. Bartholdt takes the floor and decorates The Congressional Record with a few gems on the barbarism of war.

The last time there was a big naval programme up for discussion the President sent for Mr. Bartholdt and talked to him in his usual forceful manner. When he returned to the Capitol Mr. Bartholdt was strongly in favor of the Presidential programme, including a new battleship.

"What's that got to do with peace, Bartholdt?" inquired a colleague.

Bartholdt is a profoundly serious statesman. "Formerly," said he, "I was unable to see any connection between peace and a battleship, but while at the White House just now I gave the subject further consideration, and on sober second thought I perceived that the interests of one will best be subserved by the other."

A BRADLEY MARTIN PURSE?

Finder Offered Its Valuable Contents for Its Return.

From The London Express of March 7.

LOST.—A GOLD PURSE, studded with diamonds and rubies, with gold chain attached; was lost in Curzon Street, between Chesterfield Gardens and Queen Street, on Sunday. Finder will be given the contents of purse upon its delivery at 4 Chesterfield Gardens, Mayfair.

The London address of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin is at 4 Chesterfield Gardens.

Art in Skyscrapers.

From The Ladies' Home Journal.

I am told that the new business buildings called "skyscrapers" can never be made architecturally beautiful. Is that true?

No; because some of them have been made beautiful. THE NEW YORK TIMES Building is a success both commercially and aesthetically; and there are several hotels and apartment houses that are distinctly good. Even the much-abused "Flatiron" is not so bad. The problem is new, and the chance for the architect to invent some original design to meet it is as great to-day as ever in the world's history. The opportunity is there; the man is wanted—that's all.

Edward VII. and His Nephew.

From London Truth.

A great deal of nonsense has been printed lately as to a meeting in the South of Europe between the King and the Emperor William, and it has been stated that they had arranged to visit Athens at the same time. This is all moonshine. The Emperor William is well known to be most anxious to receive a State visit from the King at Berlin, and as such a visit is really due from his Majesty, according to the code of Court etiquette, it is highly probable that he will spend three days at Berlin sometime during the present year, at a period convenient both to himself and to his host.

Girls' Anti-Smoking Pledge.

From The London Express.

Cigarette smoking among girls is stated by the Secretary of the Leeds branch of the Anti-Cigarette League to be on the increase. The practice is particularly prevalent among the factory and warehouse girls of Leeds. Many girls, however, have taken the following pledge: "I promise, with God's help, to abstain from purchasing or using tobacco in any form, at least until I reach the age of 21, not only for my own sake, but for the good of my country." The league has now 4,600 pledged members.

Pants and Peaches.

From The Sayre (Oklahoma) Standard.

The only thing that we can complain of is our pants are patched, and we are somewhat uneasy about our peaches. If this weather continues we will have blooms in ten days.

JAPAN'S RAILWAYS AND OURS.

A Comparison of Earnings Favorable to the Former.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial on "Japan's Railways and Ours" you compare the earnings of the 4,496 miles of Japanese railways with the earnings of the 5,588 miles of the Union Pacific system. You show the earnings of the former to be $26,000,000 against $33,958,994, and assume that the Japanese make the poorer showing. You forget that their passenger and freight rates are much less than half our similar tariffs. These are conditions that Mr. Harriman and Mr. Schiff will not change, and it would be only fair to render the Japanese earnings in yen—the dollar of the country, which has more purchasing power in Japan than an American dollar has here. Thus you would find the railways of Japan earning 52,000,000 yen against Union Pacific's $33,958,994.

By either form of stating the case the earnings of the Japanese railways would build, roughly, one and one-third more miles of new railway in Japan than the earnings of the Union Pacific would build in America. The Japanese railways should earn more than the Union Pacific, because they are operated through a densely populated country.

Second class railway fare in Japan is about 1 cent a mile, and corresponds to our travel by ordinary day coach. The only difference between first and second class cars in Japan is that first class cars are upholstered in leather while the second class are upholstered with brussels carpeting. A ticket from Nagasaki to Tokio by second class costs 15 yen and 80 sen; distance about 740 miles. The first class carriages are nearly or quite empty, and the vast bulk of travel is by the third class at a still cheaper rate. W. H. S.

ST. PATRICK ENTHUSIASM.

Shamrocks, Kings and the Slogan "Oh, Erin Go Unum E Pluribus Bragh!"

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I send you under separate cover some shamrock. The wild trefoil under that name is well known to the people of Ireland.

St. Patrick, our great patron saint, used it emblematically on his first introducing Christianity into my nation to represent to the ignorant natives the mystery of the Trinity. The old Milesians contend for original orthography, and write "shambrogue," "shamrogue," or "shamrog."

St. Patrick was happy in the use he made of the shamrock. Nothing could be more adapted to the taste and genius of the people he had to do with, for they were particularly addicted to botanic knowledge.

Oh, Erin Go Unum E Pluribus Bragh!
There's a shamrock of faith in old Ireland's confusion,
A flag and a country await us afar,
A star-spangled banner now spreads in profusion!

Senator Rayner Misinformed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in reading a speech by Senator Isador Rayner, delivered in the United States Senate a few days since, that he says:

"We know that the rate upon first-class freight from New England to the Gulf is less than the rate from Chicago to the same terminal, although the distance is more than 500 miles greater."

You will find that he has been misinformed, and has gotten water rates confounded with rail rates. The rate from New York to New Orleans (which is practically the same as near-by New England ports) is 1.18 per 100 pounds; the rate for the same class from Chicago to New Orleans is 1.10 per 100 pounds, a very different comparison.

I do not know about the other figures mentioned, but after these erroneous statements I do not feel that confidence in figures that I ought to have when made in the Senate Chamber.

This rate question is a very serious one to this country, especially to business men, manufacturers and others, and ought to be discussed with seriousness and accuracy in order that we can arrive at some decision in the matter, and there should be no politics or prejudice mixed up with it. A Good Word for the Subway Guards.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I make two long trips daily on the Subway trains in charge on one who is so helpless as to need more assistance than he can procure from his two crutches. This would make us more troublesome than ordinary passengers, and yet I am free to say that we have received the most courteous and watchful treatment from all employes at all times. My experience enables me to assert that if they are treated as courteously as their conduct and position deserve they will meet you more than half way.

It seems easy to go into print with complaints, but we should consider both sides of a subject. On many express trains there are from 500 to 800 passengers. Is it right for one or two careless, slothful persons to delay so many others, or is it wrong for the guards to make the hurrying suggestion? I am satisfied that a large majority of the traveling public appreciate and approve of the "step lively, please" suggestion and feel kindly toward the guards for it. TRAVELER.

Suggestion for Mr. Conried.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Conreid says it would be a pleasure to remedy the deficiencies of grand operas if they are pointed out to him. Here are a few pointers which would improve the condition of the "inhabitants of the spheres": Abolish the candy mongers; give more light in which to read the programmes in the higher altitudes of the spheres; cut out enough of the surplusage of advertising matter to allow the return of the discarded "Arguments of the Opera." Those of us who have still to take our music here sigh for the good old days of Mapleson and the Academy of Music. This was before the day of the business management and the tremendous receipts, when everything comes in and nothing goes out.

New War on Flat Owners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I for one am in favor of having larger letter boxes in flat houses—letter boxes large enough to hold magazines, newspapers, periodicals, &c. The boxes in our house are not even large enough to squeeze the regular size of souvenir postal card into without the carrier bending it out of shape and practically destroying it. The periodicals are generally stuck quarter way in, and larger mail matter is not put in the box at all, but hung up over the speaking tubes, and apt to be stolen if not removed at once.

Let us make the landlords remedy this.

Lighting of Railway Trains.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent accident has again called attention to the fact that where cars are lighted by gas or oil, and collisions or derailments of trains occur, it frequently happens that the cars take fire, with serious loss of life and property, but where cars are lighted with electricity this has been avoided.

Electric car lighting has made wonderful progress in the last few years and has been taken hold of vigorously by people of prominence connected with the railway world. Should not electric lighting of railway cars be made compulsory by legislation? PUBLICO.

EDUCATION A HANDICAP.

Radical Views of a Man Who Would Cultivate Ignorance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An uneducated man is far happier than a man who is learned in fine arts and literature. The uneducated man has no worries or care. Even the very lowest in life have less to bother them than those who are on a higher intellectual plane. Education never has brought any one happiness, and it never will. We have more uneducated rich men than we have of the other class. An educated rich man will cudgel his brains as to how he should spend his money. An ignorant rich man, on the contrary, will keep his wealth safely stowed away in his strongbox, regardless as to who would like a part of it. It is not hard to see which one is the happier.

Education is not essential for anybody. An "educated fool" is not a bad proverb. A man who knows something and puts it to a bad use is worse than a man who knows nothing and devotes what little powers he has to the task of doing some good in the world. Give me ignorance combined with common sense, and I prefer that to the most educated man who, at the same time, is impracticable in his methods.

School teachers, professors, and other so-called educated people would be all at sea if they were to enter the business world. They would, no doubt, shrink from associating with such ignorant men as form the greater part of the business world. But, when looked into more deeply, these self-same professional people would be shunned by the business element for a far more substantial reason.

No More Statues in the Parks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your paper announced a proposal to erect another statue in Central Park. Mr. Joseph Jefferson is surely worthy of remembrance, and a capable sculptor has been selected.

But the parks are not places for statues. We must face the fact that more than half of those which have been designed to adorn our cities have been unworthy of their subject and of their position. And so it will be in the future. It is time to call a halt to this invasion of parks. Otherwise they will become as crowded as cemeteries with objects that, in part, are effigies. The feeling of being in a rural retreat will be gone. Unsuccessful art will make a discord where nature would have created harmony.

I am not protesting against public statues. They are needed. Outside of our parks, we can well afford to endure some bad ones for the sake of those that are good. Put them along the promenades that surround our public grounds. There the people will enjoy them, and forgive the blunders for the sake of the successes. The past will be commemorated and the future inspired.

Married Life in America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some of your correspondents seem to miss the point of the indictment against the American woman. What foreign observers find fault with is not her devotion to the baby, (every woman is devoted to her baby,) but her disposition to "boss the whole show." A married man in America begins to fall in his own esteem. He is apt to be nervous and crestfallen, in the domestic circle at least. He often calls himself a fool! Why is this? Let the ladies answer. The fact is, that in our superior wisdom we have set up false conventions in this country—and not in the marriage relation alone—conventions that are in opposition to the experience of other nations and even the laws of nature—and we are now beginning, with surprise and sadness, to find it out. But as yet we haven't developed the courage (though assuredly we shall) to sweep away those conventions and be in fact as in name a nation of freemen. VERITAS.

Why the Cost of Living Is Higher.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with interest letters of two "Interested Observers" on the subject of the increase of living expenses. True it is that the cost of necessities is less now than in the '80s, but on the other hand luxuries introduced since have become necessities to most people.

If those who are worried about the increase in living expenses would only put on their thinking caps and get down to the necessaries they would find that the cost of living would decrease wonderfully in a very short time. We can live as cheaply as our fathers, but we don't, simply because we do not want to. There is no extravagant intent upon the part of most of us, but we have simply fallen into line in the use of luxuries. The fault lies not in prices, but in ourselves.

An Outrage on "High-Toned" Citizens.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We see posted in various places the words "Smoking Not Allowed." If this is not a refinement of cruelty it is surely an injustice and an insult to every well-bred gentleman. What can be more offensive to a high-toned American citizen than to have an injunction placed on any of his personal luxuries? As the case stands, a smoking car is a convenience, yet I never enter one without feeling humiliated and that my "rights to liberty and to the pursuit of happiness," anywhere and in any way I see proper, are abridged, and also that the Constitution is violated. I regard it as an outrage—a barbarism—that a high-toned gentleman should be restrained from enjoying his pipe anywhere he pleases. LIBERTAS.

Shakespeare and the Pass Evil.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some of your readers have quoted passages in which Shakespeare foretells such modern necessities as automobiles, Shaws, operations for appendicitis, &c., but the fact that he also makes mention of the Congressional pass system has been neglected. "* * * He is well repaid. He is frank'd up to fatting for his pains."

THE SPONGES.

These are the Children of Ocean, the least of the great Sea People,
Born in her strange wild currents and rocked in her surging tides,
Clinging to reef and coral and shaped to the form of their moorings;
Blind in the dim green waters, they hide where the mollusk hides.

Born of the Mother of all, with aeons of time yet before them,
Naught they know of the sunlight—asleep 'neath her storms and calms;
Soothed in the long, blind ages by the croon of her wistful murmurs,
And shaped by her voice as the air shapes the fronds of the wind-blown palms.

Who shall determine, O Man! the goal of thine infinite reaching,
Up from the lowest deeps where the uttermost life hath birth?
Of fish and reptile and bird, of roaming Lord of the Forest—
Rememberest aught in thy dreaming, O full-grown Child of the Earth?

MANSFIELD'S CARLOS IS VIVID AND HUMAN

A Consistently Beautiful Characterization in Schiller Play.

BRILLIANT BRAVURA PASSAGE

Actor Rouses His Audience to Great Enthusiasm in Scene of Grief and Defiance.

Philip II., King of Spain	Fuller Mellish
Don Carlos, son of Philip	Richard Mansfield
Alexander Farnese, Prince of Parma	Thomas Mills
Marquis de Posa	A. G. Andrews
Duke of Alva	Leslie Kenyon
Count Lerma, Colonel of the Body Guard.	Sheridan Block
Duke of Feria, Knight of the Golden Fleece	Henry Wenman
Duke of Medina Sidonia, Admiral	Sidney Mather
Don Raymond de Taxis, Postmaster General	E. C. Warde
Domingo, Confessor to the King	Clarence Handyside
Grand Inquisitor of Spain	Walter Howe
Elizabeth de Valois	Miss Florence Rockwell
Duchess de Olivarez	Miss Vivian Bernard
Marchioness de Mondecal	Miss Alma Hathaway
Princess Eboli	Miss Eleanor Barry
Countess Fuentes	Miss Adelaide Nowak

It was Victor Hugo who once declared that the audience in a theatre can be divided into three classes—the crowd which expects to see action; women, who are best pleased with passion, and thinkers, who are hoping to behold character.

For each of the three Mr. Mansfield's production of Don Carlos holds something, but it is most to his credit, and the best testimony to the loftiness of his ambition, that in his own performance at least, the present representation of the Schiller play will make the largest appeal to the class—rather limited, perhaps—which is most interested in seeing the development of a poetic character through the masque and medium of the player.

And of Mr. Mansfield's Carlos, whatever may have to be said subsequently as to the value of the Schiller tragedy in its fragmentary form, it may at once be asserted that it is a characterization generally in harmony with the intellectual purpose of each of this actor's more recent efforts.

In point of general appeal no more impressive passage of brilliant bravura acting has been seen for years than that with which, in the fourth act of the version as played at the New Amsterdam, Mr. Mansfield last night roused his hearers to prolonged and most enthusiastic applause. Here, too, was the added satisfaction which comes from knowing that for once the popular verdict was in direct ratio to the merits of the appeal.

Add to this the knowledge that an actor, capable of this lofty height of burning, impassioned eloquence and able at will to lift himself to a pitch sure to bring the electrified response, had throughout proceeded with absolute restraint, such as could alone convey his conception of the character, and one realized that here was something that qualified as art.

There may be points of variance in one's own conception of the character of Carlos and that the actor has chosen to illumine; there may even be moments when his individual performance seems out of key with the play, as it had to be arranged and pruned, (for more than once it sounds Hugo rather than Schiller,) but when all is said and done, his is an insistent, consistent, naturally human Carlos, steadily interesting, vivid, real, and lifelike.

To the romance-loving German, familiar with the Spanish Prince in the flamboyant, colorful portrait in which he has been so often set forth, this Carlos will be a revelation, possibly—yes, probably—an unsatisfying one; to the general public looking for action in its plays and asking a thrill or two (the thrill of deeds, not thoughts,) before each falling of the curtain it may not qualify as the best of entertainments; but to the man or woman capable of appreciating a subtle, studied, keenly analytical, and masterful presentation of character the Don Carlos of Mr. Mansfield will bring a rare amount of sheer intellectual enjoyment. And that after all, is the supreme test of such an enterprise as this.

One may recall with a rare sense of satisfaction the variety of verbal and physical expression in the scene of the first meeting with Elizabeth, the quick transitions from melting passion to biting irony, and the subsequent burst of ecstatic rapture with which the deceived Prince receives the supposed message from the Queen. Dominant throughout, providing the keynote to every scene, a prelude to the passages of emotional delight as to the supreme burst of grief, rage, and reverberating fury, is the suggestion of querulous, nervous excitement or excitability.

It is manifest even in the moments that seem to have the most of repose. It is the visual, physical manifestation of a mind in conflict with itself, of a body weakened and torn with the strain of doubt—a manifestation so remarkable in itself that it must be mentioned, though time does not permit a more detailed account of the varied physical and vocal means employed.

That the play would, of necessity, be largely cut was obvious, and that the cuts are generally judicious as was possible under the circumstances may for the present be taken for granted. One might have asked for more of the Marquis of Posa, and especially of the magnificent passage between him and Phillip. And yet, with secondary actors playing both these rôles, there is, perhaps, wisdom in the omission.

Neither Mr. Mellish as the Monarch, nor Mr. Andrews as Posa, was able to triumph with the fragmentary rôles, the former succeeding the better of the two, with a pictured suggestiveness of cunning that subsequently developed into the evil, malignant and malevolent, but seldom, if ever, royal. Miss Rockwell's Elizabeth was not without charm, though the splendid dignity of Schiller's Queen is not within the range of her powers. Nor was Miss Barry's Princess Eboli a figure to command the attention of its original in the play the poet wrote.

"THE MIKADO" AT CUT RATES.

Only 5 Cents to See the Boys' Club Give It, but Prices Will Rise.

Friends of the Boys' Club, welcome once again,
And hearken to our Prologue's old refrain.

This year, in outward seeming Japanese,
Our wish is still the same—that we may please,
With merry music, quips, and cranks refined,
An audience less critical than kind.

The above, which is part of the prologue read by Charles Stahl before the dress rehearsal of "The Mikado" by the Boys' Club at Avenue A and Tenth Street last night, embodies the spirit in which the annual effort of the boys to present an evening's entertainment is invariably received.

Last year they played "The Pirates of Penzance." In previous years they have played four other Gilbert and Sullivan operas. In last night's dress rehearsal of "The Mikado" they gave a remarkable performance—for boys.

In the cast almost every nation of Europe was represented. The orchestra of the Boys' Club, led by Philip Egner, furnished the music.

Notwithstanding the fact that it was only a rehearsal, the boys of the neighborhood were admitted at the rate of 5 cents each. To-night the first performance will be given for the benefit of the mothers and fathers and sisters of the performers. The price will be 15 cents per seat. The performances will continue at the same price until Thursday, when there will be no more performances for a week.

During that week there will be more rehearsals, and on March 29 "The Mikado" will rise to the dignity of the Berkeley Lyceum, in Forty-fourth Street, and $2.50 a seat.

Yum-Yum stated on several occasions last night that she was the "happiest goil in Japan," while German, Italian, and other accents were let loose in an "artless Japanese way."

Annie Russell Comes Back.

Among the arrivals on the Cunarder Umbria, in yesterday morning from Liverpool, were Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Yorke, (Miss Annie Russell.) They recently closed their London season, and will begin their American tour in Boston on April 9. Next Fall Miss Russell will open the new Astor Theatre in this city.

THE LEO SCHULZ QUARTET.

Second Concert of Its Season in Knabe Hall.

The Leo Schulz Quartet gave its second concert last evening in Knabe Hall. There were a few people who dared confront the horrors of the weather and the walking and who heard an interesting concert. Mr. Schulz and his associates have not yet "found themselves" in the difficult and delicate details of string quartet playing; in the matter of balance and intonation there is much to disturb the listener's equanimity. There is, at best, a certain risk in making the 'celist the leader of the quartet. Mr. Schulz is a musician of the highest rank in skill and experience, but it needs all he has of both properly to keep his part within the frame of the picture.

They played a string quartet by Paul Juon, which seemed on first hearing a singularly labored composition, not without certain effective passages, but as a whole denoting an industrious search for effects that were not inherent or inevitable in the composer's musical ideas. There were severe difficulties in this upon which purity of intonation was more than once shipwrecked. There was Schubert's string trio in B flat, a melodious and unpretentious work, not familiar to concert ears, and the concert closed with Joseph Suk's piano quartet, Op. 1. In this Mrs. Sang-Collins played the elaborate piano part skillfully, and without undue prominence. This quartet is an interesting work, full of life and ideas, and there is much less of the influence of Dvorak to be observed in it than there is in some of Suk's later compositions.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT" REVIVED.

A Large and Enthusiastic Audience Welcomes Old Favorites.

Col. Sir Francis Chesney	R. P. Carter
Stephen Spettigue	Sol. Aiken
Jack Chesney	Frank Hollins
Charley Wyckham	William Elliott
Lord Fancourt Babberley	Etienne Girardot
Brassett	Ernest Elton
Donna Lucia d'Alvadorez	Nina Herbert
Amy Spettigue	Alma Mara
Kitty Verdun	Helena Byrne
Ella Dalahay	Lottie Alter

Despite the bad weather, which affected most of the Broadway audiences, the attendance at the Manhattan Theatre last evening was uncommonly large, and "Charley's Aunt" was revived with a welcome that might have been expected on a far less stormy night. The spirit of the audience seemed not depressed by the outside conditions, for there were just as many laughs and just as much enthusiasm as when the merry farce was first seen here thirteen years ago.

In his original rôle of Lord Fancourt Babberley, who in the emergency becomes Charley's aunt, Etienne Girardot was the favorite of the evening. He played the part with all his old time humor. The remainder of the cast seemed especially fortunate. Frank Hollins as Jack Chesney, William Elliott as Charley Wyckham, and Nina Herbert as the real aunt, Donna Lucia d'Alvadorez, especially pleased the audience. R. Peyton Carter as the Colonel, and Sol. Aiken as Spettigue, also were applauded.

MISS ROBSON'S NEW PLAY.

Young Star Appears in Dramatization of J. K. Jerome Story.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., March 19.—"Susan in Search of a Husband," Eugene W. Presbrey's dramatization of Jerome K. Jerome's story, had its first presentation to-night at the Jefferson Theatre with Miss Eleanor Robson in the title rôle of Susan Gambett.

The young star made a decided impression on a large audience, and at the end of both the second and third acts was obliged to bow her acknowledgments again and again. The dialogue brought out much laughter and also held on sentiment.

Olive May, as Miss Perricoique, was applauded, and H. B. Warner, as Lord Rathbone, was well received.

Miss Robson recently appeared in Clyde Fitch's "The Girl Who Has Everything," and both will probably be played in New York City by Miss Robson during her all-season engagement at the Liberty Theatre next year. Both will be given during her April engagement at Powers' Theatre, Chicago.

Elsie Janis in a New Imitation.

Elsie Janis gave a new imitation at the performance of "The Vanderbilt Cup" at the Broadway Theatre last evening. Near the end of the last act a burlesque on "The Lion and the Mouse" was introduced, with Miss Janis burlesquing Miss Elliston's performance. Otis Harlan and Henry V. Donnelly had the other parts, and the audience appeared to be much amused.

AT THE THEATRES YESTERDAY

"Across the Pacific" was the attraction at the New Star.

At the Circle Harry Bryant's Burlesquers began a week's engagement.

"Human Hearts" was presented at the Third Avenue Theatre.

The offering at the Metropolis was "Bedford's Hope."

At the American "Behind the Mask" was performed.

Edward Harrigan appeared in "Old Lavender" at the Murray Hill.

"The Clansman" returned to the city at the Harlem Opera House.

"York State Folks" was the attraction at the West End.

"The Prince of Pilsen," with Jess Dandy, was seen at the Grand Opera House.

William J. Kelly and his stock company appeared in "Romeo and Juliet" at the Yorkville.

At Proctor's 125th Street Theatre the stock company revived "Rupert of Hentzau."

At the Fifth Avenue Theatre the all-star company was seen in a revival of "Mlle. Marni," with Amelia Bingham in her original role.

The principal attractions at the Eden Musee were the cinematograph, the new wax figure of Haakon II., and the Hungarian Orchestra.

Fred Walton appeared in "Cissie's Dream" at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre. Other entertainers were Wilfred Clarke and Theo Carew, Italian opera trio, and Stuart Barnes.

At the Colonial Charles E. Evans was the top-liner. The bill also includes Therese Renz, Max Welson, Kelly and Violette, Violet Dale, and the Orpheus Comedy Four.

Henri de Vries began his second and last week in "A Case of Arson" at the Victoria. The other principal acts were given by George Fuller Golden, Ward and Curran, and the Four Bards.

There were three headliners at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre—Grace Van Studdiford, Josephine Cohan, and James J. Corbett. Others were Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Crane, Charles F. Semon, and Nettie Vesta.

At the Alhambra the bill included Vesta Victoria, Cliff Berzac's circus, Emma Carus, J. Miller Kent, Frank and Jenny Latona, Charles Fletcher, Millman Trio, and Walter C. Kelly.

May Boley was the topliner at Hurtig & Seamon's. Others were James S. Harrington, Tom Hearn, the Mysterious Zancigs, Smedley and Arthur, and Louise Brehany.

At Keith's Capt. Keller's Zouave Girls were the principal features; Emmet and De Voy, Harmony Four, Bobby North, John and Harry Dillon, Frank Bell, and A. W. Asra also appeared.

The attractions that remain are: "A Society Circus" at the Hippodrome, "The Lion and the Mouse" at the Lyceum, "Humpty Dumpty" at the New York, Francis Wilson in "The Mountain Climber" at the Criterion, Otis Skinner in "The Duel" at the Hudson, Blanche Bates in "The Girl of the Golden West" at the Belasco, "Mexicana" at the Lyric, Clara Lipman and Louis Mann in "Julie Bon Bon" at the Fields, "The Redskin" at the Liberty, Elsie Janis in "The Vanderbilt Cup" at the Broadway, Maude Adams in "Peter Pan" at the Empire, De Wolf Hopper in "Happyland" at the Casino, Fritzi Scheff in "Mlle. "The Greater Love," a four-act play, drawn from the life of Mozart, opened at the Madison Square Theatre last night. The piece is said to be the first stage venture of its author, Mrs. Ivy Ashton Root, who is a New York woman.

Mrs. Root acknowledges her indebtedness to Heribert Rau for certain of the romantic elements of her piece. By choosing a few of the lighter incidents of the composer's life, surrounding him with women, and taking permissible liberties with the historic order of events, Mrs. Root has put together a four-act biographical intrigue of conflicting art and love complicated by the enmity of an unscrupulous operatic manager.

This man Schikaneder has determined that the first performance of "Don Giovanni" in Prague shall fail. He puts men in the gallery to create a disturbance. At the last moment he contrives that the prima donna shall fail to appear. But at the critical instant La Mandini, the famous but mysterious Roman singer, who adores Mozart, and has once before saved him from a similar catastrophe, comes to the rescue, assures the composer she knows every note of his music, and rushes on the stage. From his study adjoining the theatre Mozart hears his overture gradually rise triumphant over the hoots and groans of the gallery, until at last a storm of applause and bravas greets the close of the first aria and duet. This service intensifies the musician's artistic passion for the great singer.

The Weber sisters, daughters of Mozart's old friend and protector, furnish the domestic element in the composer's surroundings. Aloysia Weber is a selfish beauty with a voice—an easy tool in Schikaneder's persecution of the maestro. Sophie is the little sister who does everybody's errands and falls in love with the master's favorite pupil. Constanze, the motherly one of the trio, is secretly in love with Mozart.

The great composer himself has three loves. He delights in Constanze as his dearest friend. He loves Mandini as a kind of passionate dream. But his art is the greater love. He bids Mandini a final farewell, assuring her that every bar of music he writes in future shall be a love letter to her. Directly she has left him there comes the mysterious inspiration of the Last Requiem.

The short final act is a tableau of the death scene following the Muncaczsy painting. During the scene the Last Requiem is played.

Mrs. Root's Mozart himself is a sunny fellow who plays with children when he should be at the theatre on the first night of his own opera. He gives up his dearest wish of being Kappelmeister of St. Stephen's that an older man may realize the hope of a lifetime.

Mozart music on and off the stage gives timely color and vividness to most of the scenes. The settings, particularly that of the Weber living room, in the third act, and the final tableau are notably mellow and natural.

A good sized audience braved the weather and approved the play with applause that was plainly sincere. Howard Kyle was most warmly greeted in his rôle of the composer. Frederic Webber played acceptably the hostile theatre manager, and Fred C. House the favorite pupil. Beverly Sitgreaves made a picturesque and tragic figure as the mysterious Roman cantatrice; and Helen Ware, Kathleen Kinsella and Paula Gloy as the Weber sisters were well received. Flossie Greenthal made a charmingly natural and understandable little girl.

The piece seems likely to prove attractive on more grounds than that of its interest for music lovers.

"HIS MAJESTY" PRODUCED.

It Has Features Like "Man and Superman"—Songs Win Applause.

"His Majesty," described as "a musical diversion," was presented last night at the Majestic Theatre. The book and the music are by Shafter Haward and the idea by George Bernard Shaw.

The theme of the book follows closely the act in "Man and Superman," wherein the Irishman embodied so much of his wit under such stage impossibilities that "Man and Superman," when played here, was played minus the scene which pictured hell.

This scene is given in the first act of the two acts of "His Majesty." The characters are brought up to date, and so far up to date that they are projected into the inferno after a railroad collision in which an entire opera company is killed.

The manager of the company of operatic shades, after his managerial troubles, finds his new surroundings quite pleasant, and is so humble and content with his lot that he terms himself not even a shade, but a tint.

Miss Blanche Ring as Mrs. Brown of Chicago, with six ex-husbands, finds all six present on her arrival. She passes over the disagreeable situation by pursuing one of the half dozen who owed her $600 alimony and collecting the money.

Much of the satire of Shaw is used in the book, and with the slang of the Rialto, instead of the flashing English of the Irishman, it made many laughs.

The cast was: Van Rensselaer Wheeler, Harry Kelly, Walter Dyett, Herbert Carter, W. H. White, Hughey Flaherty, Gus Alexander, Anna Laughlin, May Naudain, Alice Hageman, Emmalyn Lackaye, Margaret Malcolm, and Indiola Arnold. The piece has songs which were loudly encored.

THE EASY OIL.

Scott's Emulsion is "the easy oil"—easy to take, easy in action. Its use insures deliverance from the griping and nauseating sensation peculiar to the raw oil. Nobody who has any regard for the stomach thinks of taking cod liver oil in the old way when Scott's Emulsion is to be had. It is equally certain that no one whose health is properly regarded will accept a cheap emulsion or alcoholic substitute for Scott's Emulsion. It fulfills every mission of cod liver oil and more.

JOHN A. CHANLER SUES COL. MANN FOR LIBEL

Asks $50,000 Damages for a Town Topics Article.

AMELIE RIVES INVOLVED

Plaintiff Was Once Author's Husband—Declared Insane, He Escaped from Bloomingdale.

Col. William d'Alton Mann, editor of Town Topics, was called upon yesterday to defend a suit for libel, filed in the United States Circuit Court by John Armstrong Chanler, the former husband of Amélie Rives, the author. Mr. Chanler asks $50,000 damages.

Mr. Chanler has been involved in litigation for several years, having been both complainant and defendant in a score of actions in the State and Federal courts which have to do with the question of his sanity and ability to manage his estate. This estate, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars, was inherited through his mother, a member of the Astor family.

The Supreme Court declared Chanler insane and appointed a committee of his person to take charge of his property. He escaped from Bloomingdale Asylum and made his way to Virginia, where he owned a large country estate, and where he had, years before, met and married Amélie Rives.

There, safe among friends, Mr. Chanler instituted proceedings in the courts of Virginia which resulted in his being declared sane and competent to manage his own property.

As a result of this verdict Mr. Chanler began action in the United States Court of this district to set aside the decision of the Supreme Court, and requiring the committee of his person to restore to him his property, with an accounting. This action is now pending.

In the action against Col. Mann Mr. Chanler asserts that the Town Topics Company, "to injure the good name, fame, and credit of the plaintiff," and "to hold him up to hatred, ridicule, and contempt of his neighbors, associates, friends, and citizens," published an article charging that Mr. Chanler was guilty of "immoral conduct and other serious offenses," and "attempting to destroy the esteem in which he was held by his friends and associates."

The article objected to, a copy of which is set forth in the papers, was published in Town Topics of Oct. 15, 1903, and purported to be gossip sent up from the South by a correspondent. It had to do with the relations of the plaintiff and his former wife. Amélie Rives, who had married Prince Pierre Troubetskoy, a Polish nobleman. The article said that the Prince was "hanging around" Charlottesville, Va., the girlhood home of his wife, the Princess.

A telegram had been sent, the article said, from the Prince to Chanler, reading as follows: "Our Amélie needs money. Will you supply it? Troubetskoy." The answer to this was said in the Town Topics article to be: "It will be my pleasure. How much?"

The article made the allegation, to which the plaintiff objects, that Chanler and Prince Pierre were the best of friends, and were "constantly seen driving, fishing, hunting, and golfing together."

The article insinuated, the complaint alleges, improper conduct upon the part of the plaintiff.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

This afternoon at 3:30 there will be the last of the three readings by Charles Gibson from "Some Old French Inns" and other of his works at the Waldorf-Astoria.

⁂

The only event of the day that is socially of much importance is the wedding of Miss Evelyn B. Schley to Max Howell Behr at the Schley town house, 845 Fifth Avenue. Relatives and intimate friends only have been asked. The musical programme will be furnished by the Danreuther Quartet and the choristers from Grace Church. There will be a large party of attendants, including the Misses Behr, Schley, Lawson, Lefens, Rossiter, and Thomas, and Messrs. Behr, Schley, Stillman, Reid, Simmons, and Washington. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. W. R. Huntington at 4 o'clock.

⁂

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt left town Saturday on their yacht for a cruise of two or three weeks to Havana and in West Indian waters.

⁂

Capt. James K. Cochrane and Mrs. Cochrane, who was Miss Edith Poor, are being congratulated on the birth of a second child. Mrs. Cochrane is soon coming to this country to spend some months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Poor. Capt. Cochrane is still stationed with his regiment—the Leinster—at Middleburg, South Africa. The Major took his bride to South Africa immediately after their wedding about three years ago.

⁂

The engagement of Miss Katharine Grinnell to Ray Morris is announced. Miss Grinnell is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Morgan Grinnell (Miss Sarah Stone) of 36 East Fiftieth Street, and made her début several years ago. The Misses Charlotte and Dorothy Grinnell are her sisters.

⁂

Mrs. Arthur Mason Jones entertained yesterday with a bridge party at her residence.

⁂

Mr. and Mrs. James Speyer are booked to sail for Europe early in June.

⁂

In addition to the tableaus for charity at the Waldorf on Thursday, and Hindoo dances at the Hudson Theatre, at which well known women will be the hostesses, another Mi-Carême entertainment is a card party at which Mrs. W. Walter Rutherford will be the hostess.

⁂

An American point euchre for the benefit of the Summer work at the country home of the Free Industrial School for Crippled Children, 471 West Fifty-seventh Street, will take place at the Waldorf-Astoria on Tuesday evening, March 20, at 8:15. The tickets are $1 each.

⁂

Mrs. Arthur E. Whitney (Miss Florence Colgate Craig) will be "at home" on Tuesdays in April at the residence of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Henry N. Whitney, 258 West Seventy-second Street. Mrs. Whitney and Mr. Whitney have since their marriage, on Feb. 7 at Colorado Springs, been making a tour of the Californian and Southern resorts.

VERSE WINS HIS RELEASE.

Riker's Island Prisoner Moves Magistrate Breen to Let Him Go.

With a prefatory note saying that he would reform and go to work in New Rochelle if released from Riker's Island, where he was sent for three months for disorderly conduct, on Jan. 27, John Donnelly of New Rochelle sent this appeal to Magistrate Breen yesterday in the West Side Court:

O noble Judge, great, mighty Judge, to you in verse I write,
I ask you for my prompt release—please help me in my fight.
In January at the bar in far-famed Yorkville Court
I was intoxicated and—I thought myself a sport.
While standing humbly, penitent, before you at the rail
You said that I was guilty and then sent me off to jail.
I have to date served half my time, and promise to repent
If you will let me mend my ways before the end of Lent.
Ah, if you do, I promise you that whiskies, ales, and beers
Will not pollute my lips again, I vow, for many years;
For I have found at last that what the temp'rance people say,
A drunken life, O mighty Judge, is life that doesn't pay.
Come, open wide your heart to me and let me out of jail,
And I will promise that for years I'll drink no more mixed ale.
Do pay attention to these words so humbly writ in rhyme,
And if your heart no pity takes—I'll have to serve full time.

Magistrate Breen said that a man who wrote such poetry ought to have a chance to reform, and ordered Probationary Officer Walsh to go over to the island today with an order for Donnelly's release.

WOULD CLOSE THE VICTORIA.

Mount Sinai Hospital Asks Revocation of the Theatre's License.

The Mount Sinai Hospital authorities, through Edward Lauterbach, appealed to District Attorney Jerome and Police Commissioner Bingham yesterday to revoke the license of Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre. The request was based on the repeated publication in the Victoria's Sunday night programme of the words: "Benefit Mount Sinai Hospital."

Mr. Lauterbach explained that the use of the name was unauthorized, that the hospital had received none of the funds, and didn't want any money from the theatre, and that the offense had been committed on three successive Sundays, notwithstanding the fact that the theatre management had ben warned, and had promised to drop the advertisement.

"The theatre people say that the name was used last night because the programmes were printed in advance and they didn't have time to make the change," said Mr. Lauterbach, "but such an excuse is tommyrot. The hospital authorities are determined that justice shall be done in this matter.

"I could seek an injunction, but that method is not severe enough. The point is, whether the theatre, by this insulting action, hasn't forfeited its license. I think it has. It is up to the District Attorney and the Police Department to decide."

ITALIAN SINGER DEAD.

Mrs. Ann Intropidi Was Well Known in Opera Years Ago.

Mrs. Ann Intropidi died at her home in this city on Friday last at the age of 75 years. At the age of 18 she appeared in Italian opera at the Astor Place Opera House, and afterward sang at the Academy of Music under the management of Bernard Ullman, Max Maretzek, Carl Rosa, Max Strakosch, and others, and in casts headed by Bosio, Gazzaniga, Patti, Kellogg, Lucca, and Parepa Rosa.

Among the characters assumed by her are Flora and Annina in "La Traviata," Teresa in "La Sonnambula," Inez in "Il Trovatore," Contessa Ceprano in "Rigoletto," and Bertha in "Il Barbiere di Siviglia." She is survived by a son and two daughters.

DEATH OF GEN. THAYER.

Served in United States Senate and Was Nebraska's Governor.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 19.—Gen. John M. Thayer, 86 years old, formerly United States Senator and Governor of Nebraska, died to-night after a short illness. Gen. Thayer was Territorial Governor of Wyoming in 1875 and Governor of Nebraska for four years, beginning in 1887. He was Senator from Nebraska from 1867 to 1871. He gained renown as an Indian fighter in the territorial days of Nebraska, and fought in the civil war.

Gen. Thayer is survived by two sons, neither of whom was present at the time of his death, though both are on the way to Lincoln.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The disturbance central Sunday night in Eastern Texas has advanced to Pennsylvania and developed into a vigorous storm of rain and snow with high easterly winds and gales along the Southern New England Coast.

It will be colder in Atlantic Coast districts and the prevailing cold weather in other parts of the country will continue for several days.

Indications point to fair weather Wednesday except in the lower lake region, where light snow will continue.

Winds along the New England Coast will be high easterly, shifting to westerly Tuesday; on the Middle and South Atlantic Coasts, brisk to high northwest; on the Gulf Coast, fresh northwest; on Lake Michigan, fresh northwest.

Steamships departing Tuesday for European ports will have brisk west winds and cloudy weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair on the coast, snow in the interior Tuesday; Wednesday fair; brisk west to northwest winds.

New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware—Fair and slightly colder Tuesday; Wednesday fair; brisk northwest winds.

New England—Snow Tuesday, followed by fair in south portion; Wednesday fair; high east, shifting to west, winds Tuesday forenoon.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

HARPERS BOOKS

The Genius

A novel of stirring plot, by Margaret Potter, with a striking presentiment of the artistic temperament in its most interesting phases. The story, based upon the life of a famous Russian composer, is a strange and deeply moving tale of shifting fortunes, dramatic episodes and final artistic triumphs.

"The genuine literary quality of Miss Potter's work has given her a position that commands attention for whatever is published over her name. Her new novel is an excellent story of many merits greater than the facile one of plot. The rise of genius to the heights of world-fame is tellingly traced and thrown into high relief. A notable novel."—N. Y. Mail.

JOHN H. DEY DEAD.

For Forty Years He Was Associate Editor of The New York Evangelist.

John H. Dey, for forty years associate editor of The New York Evangelist, a National organ of the Presbyterian Church, died yesterday at his home in Pelham Manor in his eightieth year. Mr. Dey had been ill only a few days of pneumonia. The disease resulted from a severe cold which he took while attending a farewell reception to Dr. Alexander, pastor of the New York University Church, who was leaving for a trip abroad.

Mr. Dey was regarded as the dean of the religious editors of New York City and was widely known because of his contributions to Presbyterian publications. He was a native of Varick, N. Y. Twenty-seven years ago he went to Pelham Manor and was one of the founders of that village. For fourteen years he served as Treasurer of the Manor. He was an elder of the Presbyterian Church in Pelham Manor and also the New York University Church and a member of the Huguenot Society. He leaves three children, J. R. S. Dey of Texas, Henry E. Dey of Pelham Manor, and Mrs. E. P. Bacon of Milwaukee.

TRAINER ROBINSON IS DEAD.

Had Groomed Winning Football Teams at Harvard, Yale, and Princeton

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, March 19.—Jim Robinson, Princeton's famous athletic trainer, died suddenly at his home here this evening while his family was at dinner. The news will be heard with regret by the Hundreds of graduates of Princeton and other institutions who have trained under him, as he was known the country over.

Death was caused by heart disease, dating from a severe sunstroke sustained last Summer. Robinson was born at Manchester, England, 65 years ago, and came to this country in 1879 as a veterinary surgeon and trainer of race horses. From 1881 until 1884 he was Harvard's football trainer.

In 1884 he came to Princeton, where he remained until 1887. For the next three years he was track trainer for the Manhattan Athletic Club. From 1890 until 1898 he was in charge of Judge Hilton's stables at Saratoga, except in 1896, when he trained the Michigan football team.

In 1899 Robinson served as football trainer at Yale, after which he came to Princeton as general athletic trainer. He had a knack of getting a good deal out of scanty material, and his term at Princeton was marked by four baseball and two football championships. He is survived by a widow, four children, and two brothers.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Fall; Call Money Rates, 3½@5¼ Per Cent.

Deposition of Bituminous Operators' Chairman a Factor—Steels Weak.

Stocks were steadily pressed for sale from the opening to the close of yesterday's session of the Stock Exchange, and prices yielded in all directions, final losses running from 1 to 3 points in most active issues. An unusually large amount of the day's offerings came from commission houses and represented, doubtless, liquidation by tired holders, while speculative selling for the fall made up the balance. Early and sharp declines in the Steel shares, which seemed to attract little support, exercised an unsettling influence in the fore part of the day. Some of the selling of these stocks, transactions in which were heavy, was attributed to more mature consideration of the announced policy of the company in regard to expenditures during the present year, a policy seeming to preclude dividends upon the common shares, and to wholly unverified reports that unfilled orders upon the books of the corporation at the close of the present quarter, which ends with this month, would fall far below the figures reported at the end of the December quarter. Sales of the Steel shares were also brought about, doubtless, by the day's advices from the miners' convention at Indianapolis, where the Chairman of the bituminous operators, who has been working for a settlement with the miners, was deposed. The inference drawn from this news was that the bituminous operators were out of sympathy with this policy, and that the deposition of its originator made more probable a conflict in the soft coal fields. The weakness in the Copper shares, Amalgamated falling 3½ points and Anaconda 8¾ points, and the break of nearly 5 points in American Smelting upon urgent pool liquidation, further tended to unsettle sentiment and to bring about sales elsewhere in the list. Among the active railroad issues to close with sharp losses were Reading, 2¾ points; Union Pacific, 1½ points; New York Central, 1¼ points; Louisville & Nashville, 2½ points; St. Paul, 2⅛ points, and Missouri Pacific 1 point. Missouri Pacific's partial resistance to the downward trend of prices was due in large measure to the publication of the road's excellent statement of earnings for the month of February, in which there was secured an increase of $374,000 in net.

In spite of the fact that rather heavy payments are to be made to-day on the final installment of the last Japanese loan, money rates were practically unchanged yesterday. To-day's call originally amounted to about $12,651,000, but the money turned in will be much less than this, owing to the fact that many subscribers availed themselves of the opportunity to make payment in full in December last under the discount rate of 4 per cent. per annum. There were indications yesterday of preparations for the transfer of money to San Francisco for ultimate shipment to Japan, this representing a continuation of the movement begun some time ago, and the operation is not unlikely to be continued following to-day's payment. In their transactions with the Sub-Treasury the banks have gained since Friday $1,272,000, this comparing with a loss of $301,000 in the same period a week ago. Demand sterling was weak early in the day, but steadied later and closed at a small advance over Saturday's rate. Some attention was attracted to the report of the condition of trust companies as of Feb. 20, the statement showing an expansion of about $60,000,000 in loans on collateral, a decrease of about $5,000,000 in cash on deposit and specie, a decrease of $11,000,000 in bonds and mortgages and the book value of stock and bond investments, and increases of $4,000,000 in surplus and undivided profits, and $15,000,000 in deposits subject to check. Foreign markets were, on the whole, firm. Dispatches from St. Petersburg reported the failure of the largest firm of tea merchants in Russia for an amount said to be $13,500,000, this disaster representing the most serious mercantile trouble yet reported from Russia.

CANADIAN PACIFIC'S ISSUE.

Increase of $40,000,000 Authorized—Total Stock Now $150,000,000.

MONTREAL, March 19.—The proposed increase of stock of the Canadian Pacific Railway was ratified to-day at a special meeting of the Board of Directors. The new issue will be $40,000,000, making the total $150,000,000. Of the stock previously authorized $8,600,000 still remains in the Treasury. This, with $11,680,000 of the increase authorized to-day, will be put out forthwith, and will be offered, $20,280,000 in all, to shareholders at par on a basis of one share for each five shares of their holdings of record on April 20.

President Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, in moving the adoption of the resolution authorizing the increase, said that the issue had become necessary to take care of the company's rapidly expanding business with reasonable economy and with fair satisfaction to the public.

In the fiscal year 1902 the gross revenue was $37,500,000; in 1904, $46,400,000; in the current year it will approximate $60,000,000.

The construction of the second track between Winnipeg and Fort Williams, a distance of 425 miles, is well under way, and will be completed in 1907.

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in New York City for the week ending Saturday, March 17, averaged 6.94 cents per pound. —Adv.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, March 19.—Money was in good demand in the market to-day and supplies were sufficient. Discounts were steady, keeping sympathy with the money conditions.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet and mostly featureless. Consols opened fairly steady and hardened at the close on the influx of gold.

Americans opened irregular. The movements were slight, and stocks were fairly supported at rather above parity, but business was inactive and prices reacted during the last hour and closed at the lowest quotations of the day.

Foreigners were quiet. Internationals were maintained.

Boston copper shares hardened.

Kaffirs were easier on Paris selling.

Japanese Imperial sixes of 1904 were quoted at 104⅛.

Bar silver steady at 30d. per ounce.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 15; Lisbon, 4.50.

Bar gold, 77s. 9⅝d. American eagles, 76s. 4⅛d.

Bullion amounting to £352,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day.

COINS CAN'T TRAVEL FREE.

Government Stops Transportation of Silver Without Charge.

The free transportation of silver coins by the United States Government to practically all sections of the united country will be discontinued after March 31 for the balance of the fiscal year. Notice to this effect was issued by the Sub-Treasury yesterday on instructions from the Secretary of the Treasury.

The reason for the change is that the appropriation covering the cost of this transportation has been exhausted. The ruling does not affect the distribution of nickels and cents. Congress has had under consideration the advisability of discontinuing altogether the free transportation of silver coins, and there is, therefore, some uncertainty about the resumption of free transportation after June 30. The exhaustion of the appropriation has been hastened by the fact that the shipments of silver coins this year have been heavier than in previous years.

C., H. & D. NOTEHOLDERS MEET

Protective Committee Makes No Announcement of Its Plans.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Noteholders' Protective Committee held another meeting yesterday, but took no definite action. James N. Wallace, Chairman of the committee, said that the committee did not yet have any announcement whatever to make in regard to its plan for the protection of the noteholders' interests.

Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton security holders were much interested yesterday in a dispatch received in the financial district from Cincinnati showing that the gross earnings of the road in January showed a large increase over the average monthly earnings of last year.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—General weakness developed among the active stocks to-day. There was a fair show of strength at the start, but the decline in New York induced local liquidation, and, as support was poor, quotations dropped. Reading and United States Steel were the disturbing elements in the market, both being sold heavily for New York account. The public utility stocks held better than had been expected, as no one seems to know what Mayor Weaver will do with the ordinance granting an extension to the Philadelphia Transit Company for its "Market Street Subway." Cambria Steel declined ¾, Electric Storage Battery 1, Lehigh Valley 1, Philadelphia Rapid Transit 1½, Tonopah Mining ⅞, and United Gas Improvement ¾. The market was unsettled at the close.

Total sales 34,707 shares.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 19.—There was a distinctly soggy tone to the price list on the local Exchange to-day. Selling was not heavy, but it was somewhat insistent, and was done on a declining scale. Illinois Brick sold from 66 down to 65. Gossip says the Brick management shortly may elect to cut Brick prices in order to force the independents into a tight position.

There has been some speculative selling on the assumption that this attitude would frighten a few shareholders who might not wish to hold their stocks, even though the company has its dividend for next year loaned out in the money market.

Shipbuilding common sold as low as 55¼, but rose a point later. Edison, possibly hurt by the Eastern weakness in Gas stocks, eased off to 155¼ on odd lots. Can preferred fell to 66⅜ on five shares. Subway came out in small amount and sold down to 48½.

Of the local traction stocks little was seen. North Chicago sold again at 32. Union Traction issues in New York were easy around 5½ for the common and 18 for the preferred. Money was 5@6 per cent., New York exchange 5c discount.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Sagging Prices and Light Sales on the Curb.

Manhattan Transit Most Active of the Industrials—United Copper Falls Off on Small Sales.

Prices on the curb yesterday for the most part sagged in sympathy with the drooping tendency on the big Exchange. Trading was extremely dull. One of the exceptions among the industrials was Manhattan Transit, in which there was considerable activity. The price went up to 4¼, and after sales of 3,000 closed at 4.

Mining stocks shared the general heaviness. United Copper sold down from 67½ to 66½ on light trading, which showed much irregularity, the price ranging as high as 68¼ and as low as 65¾. Nevada Consolidated, which on Friday made its high record of 20, sold as low as 17½, but closed, after sales of 15,000, at 19.

*Decrease.

Trading in the local market to-day was very light, and the tendency of prices downward. Amalgamated and Nevada lost over three and two points respectively, United Copper over 2 points, and Smelting, Bingham, and, in fact, the whole general copper list, show fractional declines. American Pneumatic was again the feature among the local issues, being fairly active and in demand at around 27. The closing was irregular, with selling orders predominating.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The last straw would be to investigate the Stock Exchange and sterilize speculation.

⁂

Dullness makes for bearishness among traders. When it is easier to worry prices down than to put them up, the weight of professional activity will be against the market. Moreover, under such conditions, a bear crowd can count upon a certain amount of liquidation by persons who are simply tired of holding on. Several days or a week of harassing bear tactics, accompanied by such scattered liquidation, almost invariably culminates in a sharp break, such, for instance, as occurred yesterday. The market contended with no new influences, and when brokers were asked to tell why prices were falling away they could only refer to the operations of professional traders, the disinclination of other people to buy stocks, and the general depression of speculative sentiment. There seemed to be no specific reasons for the decline. Lawson hardly counted. He has been hammering away at the market for several weeks. The uptown contingent reported itself bearish before the opening. Throughout the session there was dribbling liquidation, punctuated at intervals by heavier and more concentrated selling. A very prominent operator, who for a fortnight has been tentatively bullish, was said to be selling out a line of casually held stocks, giving as his reasons for so doing that he could see no disposition on the part of the larger financial interests to bull things, wherefore he, with interest charges running heavily against him, was not willing to play a lone hand. There was evidence, too, of bearish initiative of a more aggressive character than anything of the kind seen last week. The Weil clique was supposed to be on top of the market again.

Perhaps the most disturbing feature of yesterday's trading was the apparent ease with which prices declined under what was relatively a small volume of selling. Thus, losses of 1 to 3½ per cent. occurred in stocks like United States Steel common and preferred, Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, St. Paul, Reading, Illinois Central, Pennsylvania, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Atchison, and Amalgamated Copper, while the total of the day's transactions was only 750,000 shares. In this light, it was about as weak a market as has been seen this year. Worse declines have been seen before, of course, but none commensurate with yesterday's decline on so small a volume of trading. The weakness was pronounced in the better class of stocks, and was very general, whereas, previously on bad days it has been the rule for a few vulnerable issues to break extremely. The weakest of the special issues yesterday was American Smelting and Refining. National Lead, also, was conspicuously weak. It could very properly be said that the smelting stocks and "coppers" led the decline, but the weakness elsewhere in the list was altogether too general to be supposed to have developed sympathetically.

⁂

The crowd that made a demonstration in Louisville and Nashville last week, presumably on the satisfactory earnings of the road, found a poor market yesterday on which to sell any stock.

⁂

From the frequency with which references are made to the Guggenheims' operations in the stock market, the uninformed might get the impression, perhaps, that the family had gone in for manipulation on a large scale. That is not the case. The business of the Guggenheims is that of mining and smelting, to which their operations in the stock market are more or less incidental. Controlling various securities, notably, the stock of the American Smelting and Refining Company, they naturally have large interests in the market, in addition to which certain members of the family engage individually in Stock Exchange speculation. It is a large family. The firm is known as M. Guggenheim's Sons, and as a concern it has nothing to do with stock market affairs. Of the Guggenheims there are seven—Meyer, Isaac, Daniel, Morris, William, Solomon, and Benjamin. As a result of their varied activities there has grown up in Wall Street a custom of referring to the "Guggenheim party." The Street is not prone to make fine distinctions in these matters. Then there is the "Guggenheim following," which is often referred to in stock market comment. There is what may be called a "Guggenheim party," as well as a "Guggenheim following," and both have made a great deal of money in the last two years through stock market speculation, but the Guggenheim party which is occasionally reckoned with in the stock market is not to be confused with the firm of M. Guggenheim's Sons. The speculative operations conducted in the last two years, supposedly under the leadership of the Guggenheims, has been almost uniformly successful. They have not been confined wholly to Guggenheim stocks, but in their own stocks, not only the Guggenheims, but their following, have made almost fabulous amounts of money.

⁂

Theodore Price has returned from the Southwest a bull on cotton. While at Hot Springs, where at the outset he had some misgivings as to the manner of reception that might be accorded him in view of his bearish activities in the staple, they invested him with the title of "Colonel" and converted him to the bull side of their crop. About the last thing that Mr. Price did at Hot Springs was to make a bull speech on cotton. It was reported back to Wall Street, and hardly anybody believed it. But on his way home Mr. Price stopped in Chicago and began to buy the stuff, and yesterday he made himself felt in the market.

⁂

Evidences of a letting up in the steel trade have followed the usual course this Spring. At first it was stoutly denied that there was any lull in sight, then the signs pointing that way were minimized and explained, and finally it was admitted that the tension had somewhat abated. The trade is subject to these petty reactions at Springtime. The trouble is that none can tell, not even the trade experts, how far they are likely to run. Last year's Spring lull gave rise to all sorts of speculative forebodings in Wall Street. It was but a temporary condition, though while it lasted Steel common declined from around 38 in April to 25 in May, and the preferred stock in the same period went from around 105 to 91. The Steel stocks have been acting badly for several weeks. They were conspicuously weak yesterday. One of the incidents that upset the general market yesterday forenoon was the sale of 10,000 Steel common by a very prominent commission house. The common stock went to 39⅛, the low point touched on Monday two weeks ago, and the preferred went to 104⅝. Both closed at their lowest eighths.

It may be argued that Steel common anywhere around 40 is high enough, in view of the slenderness of dividend prospects, but there is scarce any apology for the spectacle of the preferred stock, a seasoned 7 per cent. industrial, selling around 105. At that price it yields the investor nearly 6¾ per cent. on his money.

⁂

The time is at hand for declaring a dividend on Tennessee Coal and Iron stock. Nobody supposes that the dividend will be increased. The latest earnings reported showed a slender margin over the 4 per cent. per annum that is now being paid on the stock. As a 4 per cent. security Tennessee Coal and Iron at 150 yields 2 2-3 per cent. What is nearly as bad, there is no longer any market for the stock. It was not quoted yesterday. After a tremendous speculation from around 90 the stock became cornered practically on the level of 150, and there it stands, selling, or, more properly, quoted fully 50 points above its apparent intrinsic value. "If I were long of a line of that stock and wanted to sell it," said a broker the other day, "I should put on my hat and walk over to the Trinity Building and ask for a bid on it. That would be easier than trying to sell it in the open market."

⁂

The lowest prices of the day were made in the last half hour of trading, and most stocks closed at or near their bottom eighths.

Union Pacific declined yesterday to 151. On the last general break in the market it received positive and seemingly unlimited support just under 150, touching 149½ several times without selling at 149. It will be interesting to see if the same kind of support is again forthcoming on any further decline from yesterday's closing price. The interests controlling the movements of Union Pacific are understood to be moderately bullish on the immediate future of the market, having gone on record with predictions of a better market in April, and they have a strong hold on the situation with their command of that one stock. It has been handled recently in a perfectly irresistible manner. It has been about the best and safest stock in the whole active list to buy on breaks. Other interests controlling, or supposed to control, the movements of Amalgamated Copper are also believed to be bullish on the market. Perhaps they cannot afford to be bearish. On the last break Amalagamated was stopped at par. Since then it has been above 108. It sold yesterday at 103¼.

The United States vs. 99 Diamonds.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Attorney General to-day presented a petition to the Supreme Court of the United States for a writ of certiorari in the case of the United States vs. 99 diamonds. It involves the question whether imported articles shall be forfeited in case of false invoice when the Government is not deprived of its revenue. The rings which figure in this case were imported by Henry Bockstruck of St. Paul, Minn.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Iron Buying Brisker, Including Some Good-Sized Contracts.

Iron buying in the last week, according to the latest trade advices, was encouraging, and included some good-sized contracts at prices that have been current for a month. The total volume of sales was small, however, and there were minor recessions in price at some points.

Finished steel business continues active, and many new contracts have been booked by the independent concerns. It is predicted that the total for March will be well in advance of the figures for the same month last year. The American Bridge Company has obtained 80,000 tons of new business in the last two weeks, and expects to double it in what remains of the month. Additional contracts for 80,000 tons of steel rails have been placed by the Northern Railway with the Lackawanna Steel Company. The Georgia Central has also placed additional contracts with the same concern for 8,000 tons, and the San José & Santa Clara for 1,000 tons for shipment this year. Negotiations are under way for 50,000 tons more for home railroads, and about 60,000 tons for export.

COPPER MARKET REPORTS.

Copper metal made sharp advances in the London market yesterday for both spot and futures. The last quotations were: £81 5s. for spot and £79 5s. for futures, an advance of 15s. in each case over the closing prices of Friday.

The closing prices of copper and other metals on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday compare as follows with those of Friday:

	Monday.		Friday.
	Bid.	Asked.	Bid.	Asked.
Lake	18.50	18.75	18.50	18.75
Electrolytic	18.25	18.50	18.25	18.50
Castings	18.00	18.25	18.00	18.25
Lead	5.35	5.45	5.35	5.45
Spelter	6.20	6.30	6.20	6.30
Tin	36.70	37.00	36.50	36.55

The monthly output of refined copper will be increased before the year is out by about 24,000,000 pounds if present plans are all brought to completion. The United Metals Selling Company is enlarging its plant at Raritan, N. J., to handle double the present production and expects to be handling about 25,000,000 pounds monthly by Sept. 1. The American Smelting and Refining Company has already increased the capacity of the plant at Perth Amboy from 9,000,000 to 12,000,000, and contemplates further extensions.

The United States Smelting and Refining Company at Carteret, N. J., is planning to increase its output from 8,000,000 to 12,000,000 a month, and the Nichols Chemical Company has now a refining capacity of 24,000,000 pounds per month. These improvements, it is estimated, will make the refined copper output of this country about 73,000,000 pounds per month.

MISSOURI PACIFIC PROFITS.

January Statement Shows a Great Improvement Over Last Year.

Great improvement in the earnings of the Missouri Pacific Railway, which last year failed to earn the full amount of its dividends, is shown in the January statement of the road issued yesterday. The gross receipts for the month amounted to $3,695,751, an increase of $451,958 over the corresponding month of the previous year. Most of this increase in gross, all but $77,047 of it, was added to net, so that the road's net earnings for January were $907,591, compared with only $532,680 in the same month of 1905.

For the seven months ended with January the Missouri Pacific reports gross earnings of $26,383,634, a decrease of $105,155, and net earnings of $8,734,425, a decrease of $319,935.

$2,000,000 Mortgage for Harper's.

There was recorded yesterday a mortgage for $2,000,000, made by Harper & Brother in favor of the Morton Trust Company as trustee, covering the property of the publishing concern in Franklin Square. The mortgage is given to secure an issue of 5 per cent. bonds.

OTIS ELEVATOR'S GOOD YEAR.

Common Stock May Soon Be on 3 Per Cent. Basis.

The Otis Elevator Company, according to the annual report made public at the stockholders' meeting yesterday, has just completed the most prosperous year in its history, and if the present high rate of earnings continues, President W. D. Baldwin told the stockholders, it is the intention of the Directors to put the common stock on a 3 per cent. basis, the first payment at that rate to be made Oct. 15. Meanwhile the regular 2 per cent. dividend will be paid out of last year's earnings on April 16. If the dividend is increased it will be made payable semi-annually.

One of the accompaniments of the access of business has been the necessity of enlarging the plants. The Directors have purchased property at Buffalo, Chicago, and Yonkers, and have spent large sums on new buildings, extensions, and equipment. To finance these improvements and others which will have to be made in the near future, President Baldwin said it might be advisable to issue the remaining preferred stock in the Treasury, amounting to $772,900, in which case it will be offered to stockholders at par.

The company's report shows net earnings of $912,938 compared with $891,016 for the preceding year. The surplus is now $1,600,000 compared with $1,400,000 in 1904.

TO ENLARGE CAR COMPANY.

Barney & Smith Concern May Reincorporate and Increase Capital.

The Barney & Smith Car Company of Dayton, Ohio, one of the large street-car manufacturing concerns included in the tentative street-car trust which was abandoned a few weeks ago, is to be reincorporated with an increase of capital if there is no hitch in putting through the plans of the Directors.

The new company, which is to be incorporated under the laws of West Virginia or Ohio, will issue, according to the outline of the plan received from Cincinnati yesterday, $2,000,000 of 5 per cent. bonds, half to be used to retire the existing 6 per cent. bonds and the balance as required for improvements and extensions.

In addition to the $2,500,000 8 per cent. preferred stock and $1,000,000 common stock issued by the existing company, $2,000,000 common stock will be put out and will be paid to the preferred stockholders in lieu of 36 per cent. of deferred dividends.

The reincorporated company will thus have a capitalization of $7,500,000, as follows: $2,000,000 5 per cent. bonds, $2,500,000 8 per cent. preferred stock, $3,000,000 common stock.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 19.—Trading was light to-day, and no special features developed.

Atlantic Coast Line of Connecticut went up five points, to 425. In the bond list G. B. S. Brewing first 3-4s declined ½ point. Atlantic Coast Line 4s certificates advanced ⅛ of a point, to 93⅞.

Northern Central 5s ran off ½. Consolidated Gas 6s declined ¼. City and Suburban 5s were ¼ lower, and Maryland Telephone 5s eased off ½, as did also Seaboard ten-year 5s.

On late trading, Consolidated Cotton Duck common jumped half a point, to 12½. The market closed dull but firm. The market was utterly neglected. Sales, bonds, $31,000; shares, 203.

Erie Agent Changes.

H. T. Harlow, Assistant City Passenger Agent of the Erie Railroad at Chicago, has been appointed Traveling Passenger Agent at Memphis. W. O. Rock, Assistant Ticket Agent at Cleveland, will succeed him at Chicago.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT—After selling in the forenoon at the highest price since the recent low point, the wheat market turned rather weak in the afternoon, and at the close was ⅛@⅜c net lower. Much of the early firmness was due to bullish foreign news. The late decline was to some extent in recognition of the splendid crop outlook, further snow having fallen all over the Winter wheat belt, and a break in Northwest markets. Liverpool at the time of our opening, was ⅜d higher, but the close showed only ⅜@½d advance. There was no change at Paris, but Berlin closed 1@1¼ marks higher, while Budapest was off 6 points. Only 572,000 bushels were reported at interior points, compared with 806,000 bushels on the corresponding day last year. The visible supply exerted a bullish influence, as the total represented a decrease of 420,000 bushels from the previous week, where a stand-off had been expected. Last year the decrease was 1,151,000 bushels. The cash market was steady, with prices as follows: No. 2 red, 85⅝c elevator and 87⅝c free on board afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 88½c free on board, afloat.

CORN—Sentiment in corn was bullish. The market had an early advance of about ⅜c, eased off a little toward midday, but was stronger again in the afternoon until right at the close, when realizing depressed the market slightly. Final prices were ⅝@½c net higher. Country offerings have been light for some time, and the day's movement showed its effect, aggregating but 431,000 bushels, compared with 1,239,000 bushels the previous year. At the same time, seaboard clearances reached 978,000 bushels, while the visible supply showed a decrease of 927,000 bushels, compared with an increase last year of 421,000 bushels. World's shipments, according to Broomhall, amounted 3,184,000 bushels, compared with 3,274,000 bushels the previous week. There was a fair trade in the local market and a good business at Chicago, partly on commission house account. No export business was reported. The local cash market closed firm, with prices as follows: No. 2 corn, 52½c elevator and 49c free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 50c, and No. 2 yellow, 50c, free on board, afloat.

COTTON.—The cotton market was fairly active and ruled higher than on Saturday with the undertone showing firmness as a rule, although there was some irregularity, and the close was barely steady and off from the best at a net gain of 7 to 15 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 6 to 11 points in response to higher cables than expected and unfavorable weather in the South. Sales for the day were estimated at 350,000 bales.

Spot sales in the Liverpool market were reported at 14,000 bales, but local spot people said that there was less inquiry from the New York stock.

THE UNITED SERVICE.

The Army.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Capt. W. P. Chamberlain, Assistant Surgeon, will proceed to Jackson Barracks and report for duty, relieving First Lieut. W. L. Little. Lieut. Little will proceed to Fort Sam Houston for duty.

First Lieut. F. L. Casswell, Assistant Surgeon, will proceed to Fort McDowell for duty at the depot of recruits and casuals.

Capt. D. B. Case, Commissary, will report to Major C. R. Krauthoff, Purchasing Commissary at San Francisco, for duty as an assistant in his office.

Capt. S. M. Foote is transferred from the Fourth Battery, Field Artillery, to the unassigned list.

Capt. H. F. Jackson, Artillery Corps, is relieved at Fort Monroe, and will report to the Chief of Artillery, Washington, for duty as an assistant in his office, relieving Capt. D. T. Moore, who upon being relieved will join the Fourth Battery, Field Artillery.

The resignation of Second Lieut. W. N. Campbell, Seventh Infantry, has been accepted.

The retirement of Col. J. D. Hall, Assistant Surgeon General, is announced.

Capt. C. B. Wheeler, Ordnance Department, will proceed to the Sandy Hook proving ground as a member of the joint army and navy board.

Capt. D. B. Devore, Twenty-third Infantry, will join his regiment at Madison Barracks.

The Navy.

Pay Inspector L. Hunt from Navy Pay Office, Washington, and wait orders.

Movements of Naval Vessels.

Arrived—Hopkins, Worden, Truxtun, Macdonough and Stewart at Kingston; Scorpion at Pensacola; Callao at Canton; Yankee at Monte Cristi; Denver at Hampton Roads; Tacoma at Alexandria.

Sailed—Columbia from Hampton Roads for Newport; Don Juan de Austria from Monte Cristi for Guantanamo; Newport from St. Thomas for San Juan; Glacier, Brutus, Caesar, and Potomac from Las Palmas for Port Said.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Japanese Goods Assessed at Higher Rates of Duty—Other Decisions.

In a decision rendered by Board No. 3 of the United States General Appraisers yesterday it was held that various importations of Japanese merchandise from Kaitsu Gomei Kwaisha, S. Honma, and Ishikawa & Co., of Kobe and Yokohama must pay duty on a higher basis than the invoice values.

Several importations of unwashed wool, class 3, were adjudged by the board to be undervalued. Advances were made in all of the entries, the shippers affected by the board's ruling being Stucken & Co., Tiflis and Bokhara; Max Mittag, Shanghai, and Stucken & Co., Askhabad and Meshed.

The board overruled claims submitted by the estate of C. B. Rouss, H. S. Tavananjian, Titus, Blatter & Co., Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, Zimmermann & Meyer, Rooney & Spence, Julius Sternfeld, Campbell, Metzger & Jacobson, B. Ullman & Co., B. Stern & Son, E. H. Behrens & Co., C. B. Richard & Co., Alfred Schiften, L. F. Robertson & Sons, the American Express Company, F. R. Arnold & Co., and J. R. Wierdama, New York, and the Theodore Ascher Company, Chicago, Ill.

A claim filed by George Borgfeldt & Co. of New York was sustained, it being held that the reciprocity agreement with Italy permits the entry of statuary at a reduced rate of duty.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

JACOB MAURER.—Jacob Maurer, jeweler, of 568 Second Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,439 and no assets. The debts were contracted in 1905 and 1906, to twelve creditors. He gave up business last month.

ALBERT FORD.—Albert Ford, residing at 1,839 Lexington Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $4,000 and no assets. He was formerly a druggist at 104 Canal Street, and his liabilities are in connection with the purchase of a drug store on June 12, 1902, the two largest creditors being Emil H. Keidanz, $2,900, and M. Valentine, $1,000.

COHEN & GERST.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Cohen & Gerst, cloak manufacturers, 4 Washington Place, filed by Charles Gerst, show liabilities of $8,525, and nominal assets of $12,992, consisting of stock, $1,500; machines and fixtures, $1,500, and accounts, $9,992. Some of the accounts have been transferred, but he does not know which ones, as Mr. Cohen refused to join in the schedules.

CHRISTOPHER H. FREESE.—Christopher H. Freese, grocer, residing at 475 Amsterdam Avenue, or 101 West Seventieth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,763 and no assets. He made a transfer of all his assets for benefit of creditors on Oct. 13 last, to Henry Minners as trustee, who realized $4,761 on the assets, and the money was distributed to the creditors, they receiving about 65 per cent. of their claims.

GUSTAV ZANDER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Gustav Zander, manufacturer of boys' waists and blouses at 37 Walker Street, by the H. B. Claflin Company, a creditor for $961. It was alleged that he is insolvent, has made preferential payments of $2,000, and transferred merchandise and accounts, $2,500. He came here from San Francisco, started in business in January, 1900, and claimed a capital of $12,000. His liabilities are reported to be $16,000.

BROWN HAT COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Brown Hat Company, manufacturer of women's hats, at 19 Bond Street, by these creditors: H. B. Claflin Company, $365; H. Descours, Genthon & Co., $865, and A. & M. Levy, $301. It was alleged that it is insolvent, has made preferential payments of $2,500, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $2,500. The liabilities are reported to be $8,000, and assets $5,000. The company was incorporated on Aug. 28, 1902, with a capital stock of $5,000. Henry Kamsler, who had been President from the start, announced a month ago that he had withdrawn from the company.

PIETRO CHIRICO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Pietro Chirico, Italian banker and saloonkeeper of 130 Baxter Street, with several other places of business, who disappeared about Feb. 14, by these creditors: Mayer Brothers Company of Ohio, $850 for liquors; Angelo Chiaro, $140 money deposited, and Dominico Mezzatesta, $155 money deposited. It was alleged that, while insolvent, he had transferred and concealed assets, has not been at his place of business since Feb. 14, and the Sheriff has taken control and custody of all his property. Part of his effects were sold out by a City Marshal last week. His safe was recently opened, and all the Sheriff found in it were four watches, a lot of defaced coins, and a few pennies, the whole lot being estimated to be worth about $10. The last time Chirico was seen, it is said, was on Feb. 14, when he left his saloon at Bay Ridge and went to the Sixty-fifth Street Brooklyn Rapid Transit station to take a train for New York.

Discharges from Bankruptcy.

Judge Holt, in the United States District Court, yesterday granted discharges to these bankrupts:

FRANK PIDGEON, contractor, Saugerties, N. Y., formerly New York City; liabilities, $172,760.

ROGER MORGAN, 156 Fifth Avenue, formerly writing tablet manufacturer, Watertown, N. Y.; liabilities, $81,818.

THOMAS R. KEATOR, as T. R. Keator & Co., stock brokers, 44 Broadway; liabilities, $35,646.

ADOLPH C. KLINDTWORTH of A. C. Klindtworth & Co., exporters, 88 Wall Street; liabilities, $36,323.

ALBERT E. WOOLF, patent medicines, formerly 415 Lexington Avenue; liabilities, $43,690.

HENRY M. JOHNSON, mining and real estate, formerly 132 Nassau Street; residence, Morristown, N. J.; liabilities, $26,100.

HENRY LEWIS, as Henry Lewis & Brother, manufacturer women's underwear, 149 Wooster Street; liabilities, $19,708.

CHARLES E. CASTERLIN, hotel, Florida, N. Y.; liabilities, $6,127.

JOHN McDONOUGH, liquors, 518 Sixth Avenue; liabilities, $9,043.

WILLIAM QUICK, liquors, 594 East 137th Street; liabilities, $8,476.

GEORGE STREBEL, policeman, 49 East 131st Street; liabilities, $1,042.

LOUIS TREMMEL, builder, 1,570 Bathgate Avenue; liabilities, $20,313.

FRANK B. WALKER, real estate broker, 55 Liberty Street; liabilities, $3,165.

FRANK E. WARING, insurance agent, Newburg; liabilities, $2,146.

THE NEW YORK TIMES

Next Sunday, March 25th,

Will contain articles on the real estate situation in New York City and surrounding districts, with special reference to their advantages as residential sections. This issue will be of importance to every one interested in real estate matters—to owner, agent, builder, homeseeker, and investor. It will offer an exceptional opportunity for the advertising of real estate propositions.

THE NEW YORK TIMES goes into the homes of the well-to-do and intelligent. It is the best medium for real estate advertising in New York City. Last year over 1,000,000 lines of real estate advertising appeared in The New York Times, an increase of 300,000 lines over the preceding year.

There is no advance in the advertising rate for this issue. Advertising copy should be sent at once to THE TIMES office.

DON'T PAY RENT OWN YOUR OWN HOME

Don't look at to-day or to-morrow; LOOK AT YOUR FUTURE. What is it—one of toil and slavery? Think of your old age and be prepared for it by taking advantage of our proposition while you have an earning capacity, and the old age and future will take care of itself. Do not delay, as delays are dangerous, for time and tide await nobody. The most valuable asset you can have is your own home. Our system of home buying is simple, conservative and safe. The Company is backed by reliable and responsible business men.

Since our plan has been in operation in America it has been very successful. It is patterned after the CELEBRATED SYSTEM which has been operated successfully in England for over sixty years, where thousands of HAPPY HOME OWNERS have benefited by it.

When a Mile a Minute Express will Whirl You from Herald square to Elmhurst Square through the PENNSYLVANIA or BELMONT TUNNELS in less than 10 minutes what will be the value of Lots at Elmhurst Square? FIVE TIMES THE PRESENT VALUE WILL LOOK CHEAP. It will be simply a repetition of what has occurred in other parts of New York. These tunnels will be completed within 18 months.

Do you wonder that bankers and real estate experts are concentrating their buying there?

Last week we sold over 80 Lots, and the balance will go very rapidly.

ELMHURST SQUARE

is an ideal situation for a home or investment, with all city improvements, and you can make no mistake in buying there.

FLORAL PARK.
20 Minutes From Broadway,
On completion of the Penn. R. R. Subway.
Lot $300. $10 Down & $5 Monthly

With improvements, running water, etc.; no interest or taxes for one year. Title guaranteed. This is without a doubt the most beautiful and attractive piece of property and investment that was ever placed on the market before. Everybody knows John L. Childs, the seed and flower raiser; this property adjoins his handsome estate; it is also right at the depot and trolley. Floral Park has the best railroad service on Long Island, owing to four branch roads running through it. These lots are as good as 100 per cent. investment and could not be bought for less than that in a year from now, and a beautiful home site for any one wishing to build. All the new Penn. R. R. tunnels and improvements go straight to this property. For free tickets, booklets, etc., apply to

REFEREES' NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK County.—ABRAHAM NEVINS and HARRY W. PERELMAN, plaintiffs, against ISIDORE D. MORRISON and others, defendants.

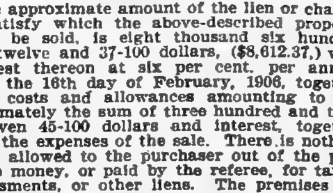
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 23d day of February, 1906, I, the undersigned referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, on the 20th day of March, 1906, at 12 o'clock noon of that day, by Joseph P. Day, Esq., auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All those seven lots of land in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the northerly side of One Hundred and Fortieth Street, distant one hundred and ninety-five (195) feet westerly from the northwesterly corner of Fifth Avenue and One Hundred and Fortieth Street; running thence northerly and parallel with Fifth Avenue ninety-nine (99) feet eleven (11) inches, to the centre line of the block; thence westerly along said centre line of the block, and parallel with One Hundred and Fortieth Street one hundred and seventy-five (175) feet; thence southerly and parallel with Fifth Avenue ninety-nine (99) feet eleven (11) inches, to the northerly line of One Hundred and Fortieth Street, and thence easterly along the northerly line of One Hundred and Fortieth Street one hundred and seventy-five (175), feet to the point or place of beginning.—Dated New York, February 26th, 1906. CHARLES S. SIMPKINS, Referee.

BOWERS & SANDS, Plaintiffs' Attorneys, No. 31 Nassau Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York, N. Y.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is eight thousand six hundred and twelve and 37-100 dollars, ($8,612.37,) with interest thereon at six per cent. per annum from the 16th day of February, 1906, together with costs and allowances amounting to approximately the sum of three hundred and thirty-seven 45-100 dollars and interest, together with the expenses of the sale. There is nothing to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, for taxes, assessments, or other liens. The premises are sold subject to a prior mortgage of sixty thousand dollars, ($60,000,) with interest thereon at the rate of five per cent. per annum from the first day of October, 1905.—Dated New York, February 26th, 1906.

CHARLES S. SIMPKINS, Referee.

Two Hundred Appeals a Day Come to His Office—An Auxiliary Relief Organization Started.

"There are more than 3,000 little ones for whom there are no rooms in the asylums, children of 1,2 widows, who are being starved to death here in New York through the munificence of Jewish charity," said Cyrus L. Sulzberger, in an address made in the interests of the United Hebrew Charities before a gathering of Jewish women at the residence of Mrs. Benjamin Stern, 7 West Fifty-third Street, yesterday afternoon.

"Do you wonder," he continued, "that fathers become consumptives and children orphans when there is $45,000 to divide among 600 poor families, $70 a year apiece, to live on? It is for you to say if this is to continue.

"See the money you lavish upon yourselves for every conceivable extravagance. The money you squander in things you do not want would support these families.

"There are 700,000 Jews in this city, in 150,000 families, and only 4,000 contribute to the Hebrew Charities.

"It was easy enough to collect money when the cry came from Russia, but to this daily slaughter of the innocents no one gives a thought. We do not do it as quickly as they do it in Russia. There they kill them in three days, while we starve them in three years. On the whole, I think they do it more kindly in Russia.

"This is the richest Hebrew community in the world, and I want you each to think these remarks addressed to you individually, not to your neighbors. I want you to go home to-night and think this over, and if you do not then wish to change these conditions you are made of different material from what I think."

Mrs. Allan MacNaughton, better known as Myra Kelly, writer of novels of the east side, had given the company two of her stories. One was of little Morris, who gave his teacher as a present the greatest of the family treasures, a receipt for the rent of their one little room on Monroe Street, and another of the children's excursion to the Park, and the great saving and economy it involved to get together the carfare.

These stories Mr. Sulzberger used as a text for his remarks. He gave the income and expenses of a mother and seven children who live on 16 cents apiece a day. He read a list of the actual expenditures of this family for a week. For meat they spent 97 cents, bread 56, potatoes 6, tea 6, coffee 9, &c. The only luxuries were 8 cents for candy and an unexplained expense, "baby, 1 cent." An occasional article of clothing, washing material, &c., was included in the 16 cents a day.

"You should not put upon us," said Mr. Sulzberger, "the added misery of being obliged to give these poor women less than will support them. They come to us and beg for just 50 cents more a week, and we cannot give it to them. There are 200 persons who come to us for help every day. We get to talking of them as 'cases;' but they are human beings, with all the loves and passions, ambitions and hopes, of other human beings, and they have a right to have them gratified."

Mrs. Alexander Kohn begged every one present to join the organization and pledge for one other member. Mrs. William Einstein proposed the organization of a committee auxiliary to the Membership Committee of the United Hebrew Charities. Mrs. Jefferson Seligman was made Chairman. A meeting to complete the organization will be held at the residence of Mrs. Seligman, 11 East Sixty-ninth Street, next Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Cash contributions began to come in at once and a number of names were added to the organization.

REFEREE TO TEST SANITY.

Mrs. Williams Arrested at Morgan & Co.'s Subject of Inquiry.

At the order of Justice Greenbaum of the Supreme Court, the mental condition of Mrs. Ella B. Williams, the Englishwoman who was arrested last week at the office of J. P. Morgan, will be the subject of investigation by James J. Nealis, who has been appointed referee to take the testimony to-morrow.

Drs. Gregory and Thornton, who examined Mrs. Williams at Bellevue, declare that she is suffering from paranoia and should be confined in an institution. Their report forms part of the court records in the application for an investigation.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Cowie represented the Department of Charities in the Supreme Court yesterday, while ex-Judge Sylvester Taylor appeared for Mrs. Williams. Counsel agreed on a referee, but Mr. Taylor said that in case Mr. Nealis made a report adverse to his client he would probably ask for a jury trial.

Mrs. Williams says that she is the victim of a plot.

CIRCUS BARS SPECULATORS.

Reserves Called to Help at the Box Office—Two Men Fined.

The opening of the box office at the Madison Square Garden yesterday morning for the sale of tickets for the Barnum & Bailey Circus was marked by a downfall of snow, a rush of speculators, and a charge of police reserves.

As early as 5 o'clock in the morning there were persons in line waiting for the box office to open. Among these were many speculators who, when the sale began at 9 o'clock, bore down on the box office to the detriment of about 2,000 legitimate buyers of seats.

Some of the speculators got seats, but others were recognized as old-timers and tickets were refused. These men would not move on unless the tickets were forthcoming, putting up the argument that they had as much right to buy seats as anybody. As they persisted in standing before the box office and the line behind them was growing longer, chillier, and more restless, the Tenderloin Station was communicated with. Reserves were sent over in a patrol wagon with instructions from Inspector Cortright to disperse the speculators and arrest any who made the slightest resistance.

There was a rough time in the corridor of the Garden for a few minutes. The police, swinging their clubs, knocked off a number of hats. Acting Inspector Hodgins lost his hat, too. The speculators retired to the street, where they began to accuse one another of lack of tact. This precipitated a snowball fight in which Frank McCrahom of 237 West Thirty-eighth Street and Louis Phillips of 990 East 169th Street were arrested. They were taken to Jefferson Market Court in the patrol wagon.

Before Magistrate Barlow, McCrahom was charged with interfering with the police and Phillips with disorderly conduct. McCrahom denied knocking off Capt. Hodgins's hat. Both denied that they were ticket speculators. They were fired $2 each, and, after paying up, both started back to the Garden.

The police reserves remained in front of the Garden all day. The speculators gathered in melancholy groups and devised plans for getting seats. Every small boy who came along was bribed to go to the box office and purchase tickets. Adults also had many chances to make 25 cents on the side. Through these channels the speculators managed to get a lot of seats.

FREED WOMAN REARRESTED.

Judge Foster Wants to Enforce Law Against Carrying Concealed Weapons.

After being acquitted by a jury on the charge of shooting the foreman of the factory where she was at work, Josefina Garafolo was rearrested in General Sessions yesterday, by order of Judge Foster, and committed in $500 bail for trial in Special Sessions on the charge of carrying concealed weapons.

That the woman had done the shooting was never doubted, but circumstances came out at the trial which made the jury sympathize with her. Judge Foster remarked after hearing the verdict that the race to which the defendant belonged furnished excellent citizens in all respects but one—their readiness to use dangerous weapons in fits of temper.

"I think the law against carrying concealed weapons, as it was commendably amended at the suggestion of the District Attorney of this county, should be better enforced," said Judge Foster. "If this were done many crimes would be prevented."

Judge Foster referred to the custom of Special Sessions Justices of letting persons charged with carrying concealed weapons get off with small fines as practically licensing the offense.

WANTS HER $25,000 BACK.

Mrs. Ludlam Says Thomas G. Clynes Did Not Invest It.

Deputy Sheriff Burnes has received an attachment for $25,000 against Thomas G. Clynes of North Plainfield, N. J., in favor of Mary J. Ludlam of this city. The attachment was granted by Judge Greenbaum of the Supreme Court on the application of Hays & Hershfield, attorneys for Mrs. Ludlam, in a suit to recover the money which it was asserted she gave to Clynes in May, 1905, to invest for her in real estate. It is alleged that he did not invest the money, and that she has been unable to get it back.

It was said that she is 60 years of age, and is a sister-in-law of Dr. Richard F. B. Seaman. She became acquainted with Mr. Clynes in the Spring of 1905 when he was courting Miss Edith Seaman, whom he married in July, 1905. At his earnest request, promising to invest the money in real estate for her, she stated that she let him have $25,000 by a check on the Oriental Bank, where he afterward opened an account in his own name.

The Sheriff served that attachment on a Wall Street brokerage firm, and also attached $1,073 in the Oriental Bank.

TELEGRAMS IN DUKE CASE.

Tobacco Man Gets Subpoenas for Messages He Thinks His Wife Sent.

James B. Duke, who is suing his wife, Lillian, for an absolute divorce in the New Jersey courts, obtained from Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum yesterday an order for subpoenas for C. C. Adams, a Vice President of the Postal Telegraph Company, and M. R. Vickers, a telegraph operator in the employ of that company.

They will be commanded to produce before a commissioner of the New Jersey Court of Chancery telegrams which Duke alleges were sent to Frank T. Huntoon, who is named as co-respondent in the divorce suit, by Mrs. Duke.

OCEAN TRAVELERS.

Celtic and the Umbria Both In with Full Passenger Lists.

Among the arrivals on the White Star liner Celtic from Naples yesterday were:

Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Duval, Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Ford, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Martin Kirk, W. D. Matthews, Miss Helen W. Hawkins, and Capt. W. S. Evans of the Canadian Militia.

On the Cunarder Umbria, in yesterday from Liverpool, some of the arrivals were:

William Brooks, Gerald Beach Brooks, John R. Barber, Dr. T. W. Eden, Kirby Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Dietze, Joseph Crankshaw and Miss Ruth Crankshaw, G. V. Mitchell, and H. T. Skinner.

MEMORIAL TO E. M. BROWN.

Bust of the Former Yacht Club Commodore to be Unveiled on April 2.

A bust of the late ex-Commodore E. M. Brown of the New York Yacht Club will be unveiled on April 2 in the Fruit Auction Room, West and Beach Streets. Mr. Brown was for forty years a dominant factor in the fruit trade of America.

The Rev. Dr. Heber Newton will deliver the address at the unveiling and F. R. Frank and ex-Commodore Nicholas Kane will speak of his personal traits and his yachting career. The bust is the work of Mr. V. Russo, the Brooklyn sculptor.

Steinbach Will Not Be Boston Leader.

Fritz Steinbach, the German music conductor, who is to lead the Philharmonic Society's concerts at Carnegie Hall Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, denies the report published last Sunday that he would accept the permanent leadership of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He says he will sail for his home in Cologne on Tuesday and remain there.

BLAZE IN RIVER TUNNEL TOO MUCH FOR FIREMEN

Their Lungs Not Trained Up to Even 21-Pound Pressures.

VOLUNTEERS DID THE JOB

Did It Well, Too, While Dynamite Was Added to the Perils—Dead Watchman Taken Out.

When the Fire Department responded to a call from the box at Thirty-third Street and East River yesterday morning, hook and ladder companies as well as engines responded only to find that they had a brand-new job to tackle. Through the snow the apparatus plowed, and the men in the companies demanded, on their arrival, "Where is the fire?" There was neither smoke nor flame.

One hundred and sixty feet under the surface of the East River the fire was blazing, and, entrapped between the eastern end of the Pennsylvania tunnel designated as "C," and the emergency air lock, was the negro watchman, Joseph Edwards, groping blindly, desperately, for a chance for his life.

New York firemen had never fought a blaze under the bed of a river before, but they were willing to try it. The hose was run out, stretched, connected, and spread to the mouth of the shaft descending to the tunnel.

"Wait a minute," exclaimed Dr. McCort, whose duty it is to see how much air pressure a man can stand who enters the air locks connecting the shaft and the tunnel itself. His examination was quick, and one fireman was declared able to stand the pressure of air.

The experience was new to the firefighters. To reach the blaze under the river they would have to stand 35 pounds of compressed air to every square inch of their bodies. Their work had been very much in the open. They could stand stinging smoke and the scorching heat, but this new ordeal, the steady beating in on them of compressed air, 35 pounds to the inch, had never been their lot.

The hose lines were dropped down the shaft, 160 feet, however, and down went the fireman who had been selected as most likely to stand the test.

Pressure Began Gradually.

He entered the lock with Superintendent of Construction Japp. The pressure was turned on gradually. The fireman stood in the dark while the air grew denser. His heart beat faster, not with the excitement of the fight against the hidden flames, but from the gradual hampering of its actions by this pressure.

"Oh, my ears! My ears!" he cried to Mr. Japp, and down his cheeks trickled two little streams of blood. He was dragged out, and instead of 85 pounds of pressure—that is, 35 pounds' pressure in addition to the 16 pounds' pressure of ordinary air—the register showed only 5. No other fireman tried to reach that blaze.

On the other side of the air lock was a human being—the watchman, Joseph Edwards. There were also thirty sticks of dynamite in a box tucked away in the wooden rafters which were burning. The death of Edwards was certain. At the bottom of the shaft an explosion would have meant death and mutilation of the first shift of the tunnel workers who had been sent down to lend a hand in the dangerous and difficult fight with fire. It would also mean the immediate flooding of the shaft with water and the ripping out of the narrow ledge between the river's bottom and the top of the tunnel, which now stretches 250 feet under the river.

The fire had to be fought and extinguished; the dynamite had to be brought out; Edwards had to be saved if there was still a spark of life in him. Firemen could not do it. They were helpless. They could scale a skyscraper, but they had never been trained for fire-fighting 160 feet under both earth and water.

Three Men Volunteer.

Day Supt. C. E. Fraser, George Barr, in charge of the locks, and Harold Day, a machinist, decided to enter the lock, have the steel doors closed behind them, and face fire and dynamite in the chance of saving Edwards, pulling out the explosive, and preventing a wreck of the tunnel.

Day made a hurried connection of air and water pipes through the lock. He is a man of foresight. "The place is packed with smoke," he said, "and we'll need a draught of air. If we are suffocating we will need the water hose, not to fight the fire with, but to pour water in our own faces while we are getting Edwards and the dynamite out."

The three men tried the emergency lock, but it filled with smoke immediately, and they had to signal to be let out. The emergency lock is above the lock through which material is sent to the workers in the tunnel, and the volunteers rightly surmised that on the bottom of the tunnel they would get a chance to work, the smoke going upward. They managed to get into this lock with cloths over their faces, and the water and air pipes to help them.

Day and Fraser reached, by groping on hands and knees, a point near where the dynamite was. The box containing it was in the rafters overhead. In the clouds of smoke they managed to find it and get it to the lock and pass it out. This left them a degree of safety. They returned, two negro workmen going with them to help.

Day stumbled on a prostrate form. It was the dead body of Edwards. The flames were beating against the roof of the tunnel and being fed as with the blast of a smithy by the thirty-five-pound air pressure necessary to keep the bottom of the river from dropping in on them. Day groped up a ladder to the platform overhead, where is built a little storehouse, and tore from it the door. This he dragged below, and on it the negroes put the body. Fraser and Day and the two negroes stumbled with the body to the lock and passed it to the shaft.

Back Again to Fight the Fire.

The dynamite and the dead body were out. Day, Fraser, and Barr returned to the blazing tunnel with lines of hose, the water being sent by hydraulic pressure. As Day held his nozzle he saw Fraser sitting on the platform overhead. He called to him to come down, but he did not move. He was already so stifled that he was in that stage of suffocation which produces complete lethargy. Day climbed up to him and got him to descend, and shoved him into the lock. Barr had also succumbed to the strain, the smoke, and the air pressure. Day alone remained. He fought to the last, and when he, too, was ready to drop he managed to grope to the material lock, get inside, and signal for exit.

Fraser was so badly done up that he was sent to Bellevue Hospital. Day and Barr were taken to the hospital room provided by the contractors. After being treated there by the company's surgeon they went to their homes, Barr to 310 East Thirty-fourth Street and Day to 476 West Thirty-fourth Street. Work began again as soon as the smoke cleared.

Tunnel "C" is one of four being bored under the river by the Pennsylvania Railroad. Two of them are designed for freight traffic and two for passenger service, all centring at Long Island City. There are two shafts, descending 160 feet below the surface. The freight tunnels run close together, and the passenger tunnels parallel at safe distance from the other two. The four tunnels are grouped as "A" and "B" and "C" and "D." Recently tunnel "A" was shut down. The workmen say that there was danger of "A" blowing out, which, it was explained, meant caving in because of too great proximity of the "A" and "B" tunnels.

In tunnel "C," where the fire was, the boring has extended 250 feet toward Long Island City. The tunnel opens with a square at the bottom of the shaft. After the locks are passed the semi-circular form begins. This means the edge of the river, the spans of steel ribs forcing their way gradually, yard by yard, toward Long Island, and, with the wooden beams at their heels, so to speak. It was in this wooden structure that the fire started, how no one seems to know. It is believed that the watchman was asleep on a mass of excelsior or shavings. He may have fallen asleep smoking or his candle may have burned to the boards and set them afire.

MAGIC BOOTS MAN HELD.

Hilgert Will Have to Face Grand Jury on Larceny Charge.

Matthew Hilgert, owner of the Hilgert Curative Footgear Institute and manufacturer of "magic boots," was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Pool in the Tombs Court yesterday.

The charge of grand larceny against Hilgert is made by Mrs. Helva Labbe, who says she paid $350 for a pair of boots for her husband, a helpless cripple. Albert Whitehouse, foreman in the employ of Hilgert, was held in $500 for trial in Special Sessions on the charge of illegal surgical practice.

Indict Parkhurst "Plot" Exposer.

"Larry" Rogers, who "exposed" an alleged plot to kill Dr. Parkhurst, was indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday for perjury. He was to have been examined in the Tombs Court on the same charge, but the proceedings there were dropped on account of the indictment. He will be arraigned before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions to-day.

AUTO PIANO ALL RIGHT.

It Troubled the Dentist Upstairs, but the Court Can't Help Him.

Justice Fitzgerald of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that a man may keep an automatic piano in his place of business, which plays three tunes from morning till night, day after day, even if those on the floor above don't like it.

Samuel M. Goldberg, who runs a dental office and manicure parlor on the second floor of 1,265 Broadway, applied for an injunction to silence the tireless instrument that runs in Milton Hershfeld's salesroom for automatic pianos and phonographs on the ground floor. Goldberg alleged that the offending instrument nearly drove him crazy, and upset his wife and the manicurists to such an extent that they cut the fingers of several customers who were having their nails trimmed. Other customers, he declared, didn't wait when they heard the piano play over and over again "The Irish Washerwoman," the "Silver Heels," and "What Yer Goin' to Do When the Rent Day Comes Around?", but fled in disgust.

Hershfeld maintained that the piano was an attraction instead of a nuisance, and that the dentist couldn't expect quiet in one of the busiest sections of the city.

Justice Fitzgerald denied the application, declaring that the allegations should be upheld upon trial, before such a drastic measure should be invoked.

NO RUSSELL SAGE IN COURT.

Snow Before His House Removed, and Summons Was Dismissed.

When Clerk McCabe of the West Side Court called out "Russell Sage to the bar," yesterday, there was quite a stir in court. But Mr. Sage didn't appear. Instead, Frank Zittell, his real estate agent, responded.

Patrolman Heidelbach of the West 100th Street Station got a summons from Magistrate Breen yesterday for Mr. Sage because the snow in front of a house at 8 West Ninety-third Street, owned by Mr. Sage, had not been cleared away. When Magistrate Breen was told that the snow had been removed, the summons was dismissed.

BAER TELLS MITCHELL OPERATORS WON'T YIELD

"Nothing Can Now Be Done to Improve the Situation."

BIG DEALERS AWAIT A STRIKE

Anthracite Chairman's Letter, However, Indicates That Further Action by the Miners Is Expected.

George F. Baer, Chairman of the anthracite operators' Committee of Seven, replied yesterday to the letter of John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers, in which Mitchell asked for another conference between the respective committees of anthracite operators and mine workers. The letter shows that the operators do not intend to recede from their position, which is that the present conditions should rule and that they stand by the award of the Anthracite Strike Commission, but it states that the operators are willing to meet Mitchell's committee again if he so desires.

It was learned that the wholesale coal dealers expected that the reply to Mitchell's letter would be what Mr. Baer wrote. They say they have been told by the anthracite operators that the indications point more strongly to a strike now than at any time since the demands were first talked of. The general belief among them was that the anthracite miners must strike or back down.

Mr. Baer's letter to Mr. Mitchell was made public last evening, and is as follows:

"20th March, 1906.

"Mr. John Mitchell, Chairman, Indianapolis, Ind.

"Dear Sir: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of March 17. There is no misunderstanding between us as to future meetings of the committee. The minutes of the meeting held on the 15th of February, to which you refer, clearly state the understanding. To my suggestion that committees be appointed the record of the minutes is as follows:

Mr. Mitchell—What we understand is that separate committees be appointed, seven on each side, and that the miners formulate in detail the propositions we have to make and give such reasons as they choose therefor, and after their scale has been prepared they will submit that to the seven representatives of the mine operators for their consideration that the seven gentlemen representing the operators will then reply to the seven miners, the committee, and if there is finally an agreement or disagreement it shall be reported back to our whole committee.

Mr. Baer—I have no objections to that. I speak for myself only. It is a matter of detail.

Mr. Wilcox—There are no objections; only it seems to me it will take a little more time.

Mr. Mitchell—We want to be perfectly frank in this matter, and we do not want to enter into these negotiations under any misapprehension. We do not want to discover later on that there has been any deception; do anything that will lead you to believe we practice deception on our side. Of course, any agreement arrived at by this whole committee would be subject to the ratification of a convention of the anthracite miners.

Mr. Baer—Is that so? Do you come here without power?

Mr. Mitchell—Anything that we do is subject to ratification.

Mr. Baer—All you can do is to make a tentative arrangement, and that has to be reported to the convention and to be passed upon by the convention?

Mr. Mitchell—Yes, Sir. But that really amounts to nothing. That is the instructions from the Shamokin conference of anthracite mine workers.

Mr. Thomas—If the anthracite convention votes for it will that settle it or will it have to go further, to the central committee at Indianapolis?

Mr. Mitchell—That will settle the matter. And there will be no trouble; that is not important. This committee represents the anthracite mine workers and they are the executive officers.

"In accordance with this understanding we have frankly and fully answered your proposition. We made a counter proposition to you to continue the existing conditions, which have been so highly beneficial to the miners and to the community. You have not answered the proposition we made to you.

"We sincerely believe that nothing can now be done to improve the situation as it exists, and has for the past three years existed in the coal regions. The miners are contented. They have been fully employed. They have been paid large wages. They have saved money. All the conditions attending the workingman's prosperity are as favorable in the anthracite regions as it is possible to make them. Under these circumstances we have hoped that you would accept our proposition, and until we hear from you we still continue to indulge that hope.

"I assumed from a report of a conversation over the telephone you had with Mr. E. B. Thomas that, owing to your engagements at Indianapolis, an earlier day than the 26th of March would not suit you for a meeting. We are prepared to meet you at any time you may name. I naturally supposed that you would notify us when you desired to meet us. You will observe that your own statement says: 'If there is a final agreement, or disagreement, it shall be reported back to our whole committee.' We never had a thought of abrogating this understanding, and have acted throughout on the assumption that there would be a meeting of the whole committee to hear our report. Yours truly, GEO. F. BAER,

"Chairman."

The letter was written as the result of a meeting of the anthracite operators' committee of seven, which was held yesterday afternoon in the office of President E. B. Thomas of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, 143 Liberty Street, at which Mitchell's letter was discussed. The meeting lasted about an hour and a half. None of the coal Presidents would talk on the subject after the meeting.

A SLIGHT TO AUSTRIA.

Supersession of Storer an Entire Surprise to the Viennese Court.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

VIENNA, March 20.—The Austro-Hungarian Government had no inkling whatever of the retirement of Bellamy Storer from the American Ambassadorship until late last night a telegram from the Austro-Hungarian Embassy at Washington brought the news that Mr. Storer had been superseded by Charles S. Francis. Social and religious reasons were assigned for the change.

Rumors of many kinds are circulated to explain the action of the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Storer, both of whom are converts to Roman Catholicism, are alleged to have been particularly zealous in manifesting their faith, and to have cultivated assiduously the society of exalted Catholic families. Certainly both enjoyed the favor of the highest Austrian aristocracy, not excluding the heir to the throne and other members of the royal and imperial family. Neither of these circumstances is, however, considered here to constitute a diplomatic misdemeanor such as to justify a sudden recall.

Again, it is alleged that the Ambassador and his wife were unpopular with the American colony and failed to some extent in their democratic duty toward their fellow-countrymen. These are considerations into which public opinion in the Austrian capital is scarcely likely to enter, but they are not thought important enough to account for so drastic a measure as that taken by the Washington Government.

Mr. Storer is now in Egypt. No hint of his impending retirement reached the Ballplatz before last night, and the Chargé d'Affaires of the American Embassy appears to have been as uninformed as Count Goluchowski.

The American Government seems thus to have appointed as successor to persona gratissima to the Austro-Hungarian Court a gentleman doubtless irreproachable, but concerning whom the American Government cannot know whether he will be even persona grata.

WITHDRAWS NIAGARA BILL.

L'Hommedieu's Action Causes a Stir in the Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—Senator L'Hommedieu caused something of a sensation in the Senate to-day when his bill providing that the power companies located above Niagara Falls shall take only a limited quantity of water for their plants came up for final passage by moving to strike out the enacting clause of the measure and thereby killing it.

L'Hommedieu came out later as a champion of Niagara preservation, and declared that his bill limiting the taking of water was along the line of his conversion. On the other hand, it was affirmed that the Senator was making legislation in favor of the Canadian company, of which the Niagara company, in whose interest he has introduced some bills in the past, is the American agent.

The prevention of further diversion of the waters of Niagara River as provided by the Cox concurrent resolution and the Foelker bill, occupied a large share of the time of the Assembly Judiciary Committee this afternoon.

The Cox resolution provides that no water shall be taken from the river except by companies already chartered to use it. The Foelker bill limits the amount of water that may be used to the present maximum. There was no opposition to either measure, and it is believed both will be reported out.

CONDUCTOR FOUND GUILTY.

First Conviction of Manslaughter Under Street Car Provision.

For the first time since the Penal Code was amended so as to make a man guilty of manslaughter who, while in charge of a street car, runs over and kills a person, a verdict of guilty under that section of the code was returned by a jury yesterday. Albert Oreman, a conductor on a Lexington Avenue car, was tried before Judge Foster, in General Sessions, and convicted of manslaughter for killing Bernard McDonald, driver of a United States mail wagon, on June 1, 1905.

At 3 o'clock in the morning of June 1 Oreman was going north on Lexington Avenue in charge of a car run by Motorman Robert Seymour. For some reason or another Seymour left the lever and let Oreman run the car. At Thirty-ninth Street the conductor lost control of the car. He shouted for Seymour, but before the motorman could return to his post the car hit a mail wagon driven by McDonald. The driver was thrown to the street head foremost and died instantly.

Oreman and Seymour went right on at top speed. When they reached the barns at 146th Street and Lenox Avenue, Oreman reported that he had had a collision, but that no damage was done on either side. He started right back with the car. At Thirty-ninth Street they found Lexington Avenue blocked by a crowd surrounding an ambulance. The surgeon was just examining the body of McDonold. As the car slowed down a man in the crowd shouted:

"Why, there is the man who killed this man."

The conductor and the motorman were arrested and later indicted by the Grand Jury for manslaughter. Seymour tried on the stand to throw all the blame on Oreman, while the defendant tried to shift it to the motorman's shoulders. Seymour will be tried later on. Oreman, who admitted on the stand that he was sent to prison for burglary in 1903, may get fifteen years.

TURNS UP AFTER 12 YEARS.

Husband of Mrs. Lawton, Beneficiary Under Salisbury Will, Is with Her.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., March 20.—The settlement of the estate of the late Stephen Salisbury has brought forth many surprises, but none greater than that of to-day, when it was learned that Dr. Charles P. Lawton, husband of Mrs. Sarah Reed Lawton, the largest beneficiary under Mr. Salisbury's will, had come to Worcester quite unexpectedly. He was accompanied by A. M. Parr, an artist. They arrived in New York on Sunday, coming direct from the Island of Jersey.

This is Dr. Lawton's first visit in twelve years. He refused to see any newspaper men. He is at the beautiful home of his wife opposite the Salisbury mansion on Institute Road.

LYNCHING MOB TO FEEL SUPREME COURT'S ANGER

President, Too, Will Act on Killing of Reprieved Negro.

TO PUSH MURDER CHARGES

Offense in Chattanooga Is Without Precedent—Members of the Court Shocked.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The open defiance of the Supreme Court of the United States by the mob that lynched the negro Ed Johnson at Chattanooga, Tenn., last night has no parallel in the history of the court.

The event has shocked the members of the court beyond anything that has ever happened in their experience on the bench. They have met by twos and threes to-day and discussed the matter and the course to be taken to vindicate the power and authority of the court. No Justice can say what will be done. All, however, agree in saying that the sanctity of a mandate from the Supreme Court shall be upheld if the power resides in the court and the Government to accomplish such a vindication of the majesty of the law.

The Supreme Court took a recess yesterday for two weeks and it may be decided to wait until the meeting of the full bench before taking steps to bring the violators of the law to justice. There will be consultations with the Attorney General, and it is expected that the President will take up the matter.

Through the United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Tennessee proceedings may be begun to ascertain the identity of the men who engaged in the lynching of the negro. The local feeling that beset the trial of Johnson may seriously interrupt the action of the Federal authorities, but Justices of the Supreme Court who were willing to-day to say anything about the matter expressed the belief that the men who murdered the prisoner will be punished for their act. The possibility that a Federal Grand Jury would not indict after the District Attorney had found evidence sufficient to justify taking up the matter with the Grand Jury was discussed by members of the court to-day, but that was not considered as an insuperable obstacle to ultimate vindication of the law.

"The fact was," said one of the members of the Supreme Court to-night, "that Johnson was tried by little better than mob law before the State court. A juror arose in the box and demanded of the young woman who had been attacked if she was sure the defendant was the man who had committed the act, and when she said she was not willing to swear that he was the juror demanded that she should swear that he was the man, and he would get down out of the jury box and cut his heart out. There was abundant proof that there was intimidation of witnesses and counsel, and the reason why the court did not allow an appeal or a plea in abatement was the fear that if any such consideration was shown the mob would lynch the prisoner. There was reason to believe that the man was innocent. Some of the leading white people of the place gave money for his defense. But be that as it may, whether guilty or innocent, he had the right to a fair trial, and the mandate of the Supreme Court has for the first time in the history of the country been openly defied by a community."

There is reason to believe from some things that have been said that the President will take action under the recommendations of members of the court within the next twenty-four hours. The crime committed is to be reached by summary process as a contempt, but in the last instance the mob leaders are clearly to be charged with and tried for murder.

MOB OF 20 LYNCHED NEGRO.

No One of the Eighty Spectators Recognized the Offenders.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, March 20.—The lynching of Ed Johnson, a negro, by a mob of white men Monday night, is deplored by the people of Chattanooga. The first attempt to lynch Johnson was made on the night of his capture, but he was not in the county jail. Public feeling then seemed to grow more quiet and there was a disposition on the part of every one to allow the law to take its course.

Johnson was put on trial before a jury in Judge McReynolds's court. The jury found him guilty, and he was sentenced to die on the gallows on March 13. Public opinion generally indorsed this action. At that point the lawyers who had been appointed by the court to represent Johnson held a conference with three of the most prominent attorneys of the city as advisory counsel, and it was decided and agreed to by the defendant's counsel, that the negro was guilty, and that the case should not be appealed, but the negroes raised a fund and filed an appeal.

The crowd which hanged the negro last night was composed of not more than twenty men, though there were probably a hundred persons present, including spectators, when the negro was actually hanged. None of the active twenty included any person well known. In fact, men of wide acquaintance who were present could recognize no member of the mob, though the hanging was done under an electric light.

All day there has been bitter feeling on the part of both negroes and whites. All saloons were closed this afternoon, additional police added, the battery of artillery called out, and everything is in readiness to-night. Various rumors are flying in every direction of plans to kill and burn, but they have proved only idle talk.

DOUBTED PRISONER'S GUILT.

Negro's Attorney Decided, However That Appeal Was Useless.

W. G. M. Thomas of Chattanooga, who is staying at the Hotel Imperial, and who was of the counsel assigned by the court to defend the negro Ed Johnson, lynched in Chattanooga Monday night, said yesterday:

"The crime was a most atrocious one, and there was great indignation over it. Three days later the negro Johnson, who had been suspected of the crime, was arrested. The prisoner was convicted by one of the most intelligent juries I have ever known.

"At my suggestion, in view of the importance of the case, the Judge appointed three additional lawyers to go over the evidence for the purpose of determining whether an appeal should be taken. We six spent an entire afternoon and until 12 o'clock at night going over the evidence. It was our unanimous opinion that no error had been committed upon which we might hope to get a reversal or a new trial. An appeal could mean nothing but delay in the execution of the prisoner. We thought also that a delay might result in another assault upon the jail, with chances of possible injury to other prisoners confined in it. For these reasons we advised against an appeal. That ended my active participation in the case.

"There were times when I had doubts of the prisoner's guilt. The evidence, however, was strong against him. The young woman, when the prisoner was taken before her, would not positively swear that he was the man, but she said she believed he was the man."

BANK ROBBERS GET $432,500.

Twenty Armed, Masked Men Loot a Moscow Institution.

MOSCOW, March 20.—The Credit Mutuel, one of the largest banks in Moscow, was mysteriously robbed by masked men at dusk to-night, the robbers obtaining $432,500.

According to the story of the guards, in the twinkling of an eye they were confronted with revolvers in the hands of twenty masked men, who had entered silently by the main door, which had been locked when the office force left. After a command to the guards to hold up their hands not a word was spoken. The guards were quickly bound and gagged, and thrown into a dark corner. The robbers then took up positions at all the entrances and the curtains of the windows were lowered.

The chief of the robbers, who directed the operations of his associates by gestures and without speaking, showed thorough familiarity with the location of the vaults. When all was ready he went to the heavy burglar proof safe, and, with a few whirls of the knob, threw the combination of the lock. The heavy doors swung open, and the treasure of the bank was revealed.

The plunder, consisting of gold, silver, and notes, was speedily thrust into sacks. When a clean haul of the money had been made, not a kopeck being left, the robbers departed as silently as they had come, making their exit through the main entrance and leaving no trace behind them. They had been in the bank less than half an hour.

Twenty minutes later one of the guards succeeded in freeing himself and gave the alarm. The dumbfounded policemen and house porter, who had been standing in front of the bank throughout, declared that they had seen no one enter or leave it.

It is the general impression that the key to the mystery is within the bank itself.

H. M. TILFORD SUBPOENAED.

Will Be a Witness When Standard Oil Hearings Are Resumed.

Process Server Palmedo, in the employ of Henry Wollman, New York counsel for Attorney General Hadley of Missouri in the suits he is prosecuting against the Standard Oil Company, succeeded in cornering H. M. Tilford yesterday morning and thrust a subpoena and the accompanying fee into the hand of the Standard Oil man.

Mr. Tilford, it is believed, will prove a most important witness in the New York hearing of Missouri's suit against Standard Oil, which will be resumed before Special Commissioner Sanborn Friday morning. Mr. Palmedo has been after him for months. Yesterday morning the subpoena man took a stand in front of Mr. Tilford's home, in West Fifty-second Street, and, when he came out and entered his automobile, was there with the subpoena.

The chauffeur prepared to put on full speed, but Palmedo was on the step. When Mr. Tilford saw that there was no chance to evade him he submitted and acknowledged service. He will be one of the witnesses in waiting when Mr. Hadley takes up the thread of his inquiry here.

The Missouri Attorney General will reach New York Friday morning. Before his arrival it is expected that Justice Gildersleeve will have passed on the refusal of H. H. Rogers to answer questions when Mr. Hadley was here before.

Friday night Mr. Hadley will be a guest of the Missouri Society, which will hold its annual banquet at the Waldorf.

A DEMAND FOR GAZETTEERS.

After They Are Obtained Senate Ratifies Treaty with San Marino.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—"What in blazes is the Republic of San Marino?" was, it is to be regretted, the remark heard to-day from a certain Senator when a treaty of extradition between this country and the sovereign State of San Marino was borught up for ratification in executive session.

This ignorance was, however, excusable. The chances are that not one American in a thousand has ever heard of San Marino, which, nevertheless, is among the few republics in the world, and has the additional distinction of being the oldest and smallest State in Europe.

When the Senate heard what San Marino was—reference to the Statesman's Year Book and the gazetteers furnished all the necessary information—the treaty was ratified with enthusiasm. San Marino has an area of thirty-eight square miles, and is surrounded on all sides by Italian provinces. The population in 1899, when the last census was taken, was 11,002. The annual budget amounts to about $12,000. There is an army, consisting of 38 officers and 950 men, and the legislative power is vested in a Great Council of 60 members, two of whom are appointed every six months to act as Regents.

This little State has had an existence of about 1,000 years, and the Kingdom of Italy is apparently quite content to let it go on being independent. The people are contented and happy, there is no public debt, and, altogether, conditions in San Marino approach as nearly the ideal as conditions anywhere on earth. In future, however, refugees from American justice will no longer be able to obtain sanctuary there.

KILLED BY A SPEEDING CAR.

Samuel Weisen Victim of Practice of Which Residents Complain.

Residents of the neighborhood say that motormen running Madison Avenue trolley cars on that thoroughfare between 116th and 121st Streets have used the stretch which fronts Mount Morris Park as a coasting ground. The practice, they say, is for the motorman to put on full speed and run the distance at a top pace. As a result there have been many accidents—four in the last month.

Yesterday afternoon Samuel Weisten, an aged and retired merchant, of 75 East 121st Street, started across the tracks at 121st Street. Just as he got upon the south-bound track a fast-running trolley car with Jacob Seussman of 243 East Eighty-ninth Street as motorman, appeared. The motorman rang his bell, expecting Mr. Weisen to get out of the way, but he walked slowly, and before the motorman could stop his car it struck Mr. Weisen, hurling him ten feet. Seussman and the conductor, L. Goodline of 309 East Ninety-second Street, put the unconscious man on the front platform and ran to 119th Street and Madison Avenue, where they telephoned for an ambulance from the Harlem Hospital. Two hours later Mr. Weisen died at the hospital without regaining consciousness. The motorman and conductor were locked up by the police.

After the accident Dr. Abraham Korn of 1,837 Madison Avenue, President of the Harlem Property Holders' Association, said he would circulate a petition to have the speeding of cars stopped on the avenue.

JOCKEY CLUB READY TO PAY MORE, NOW

Would Give Up Additional 3 Per Cent. of Racing Receipts.

COUNSEL SEES COGGESHALL

Killing of the Cassidy Bill Would Net Agricultural Societies $100,000 Extra Every Year.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—The Jockey Club put itself on record to-day in favor of giving up to the State, and incidentally to the agricultural societies, 3 per cent. more of the receipts from their race tracks as the price for which the Cassidy-Lansing Anti-Pool Selling bill shall be killed.

When Senator Coggeshall introduced the bill in the Senate providing for an additional 3 per cent. rake off from the race tracks, The Jockey Club people sent to Albany several representatives charged with the duty of circulating the report that they were very much opposed to the increase. Last week when there was a public hearing on the bill a representative of Joseph S. Auerbach, The Jockey Club's counsel, announced that Mr. Auerbach was busy in New York, but would like to have a chance to be heard in opposition to the Coggeshall bill at a later date. To-day was fixed for the hearing.

Mr. Auerbach came to Albany this morning, and after a conference with Coggeshall and some others he went back to New York without making his promised argument, and when the Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment met later it was announced that the hearing was off indefinitely.

It is understood that the deal between the race track people and the proponents of the Coggeshall bill, who include the farmers up State, is that the latter shall use every effort to line up their Senators and Assemblymen against the Cassidy bill. For this the race track people will give the agricultural fairs about $100,000 more a year from race track receipts.

The Albany District Methodist Conference, representing fifty churches and a membership of 10,000 in and about Albany, to-day unanimously adopted resolutions in support of the Cassidy-Lansing bill. The meeting was held in the First Methodist Episcopal Church and was presided over by the Rev. Dr. E. P. Stevens.

SLICER SEES LICHTENSTEIN.

Meets the Bookmaker Where They Sell Books to Discuss Cassidy Bill.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, ruling spirit of the New York State Conference of Religion, attended the auction of rare books at the Merwin-Clayton Company's place in East Twentieth Street yesterday afternoon. So, as it happened, did Sol Lichtenstein, who makes books of a rather different kind, but who had not personally been known to have an interest in first editions, (of books.) Dr. Slicer purchased a few volumes which took his fancy, and Mr. Lichtenstein did likewise.

When the last bit of business had been transacted Mr. Lichtenstein sent a commissioner to Dr. Slicer to seek an introduction. He desired to discuss sterilized betting. Dr. Slicer readily acceded to the request for a meeting, and there was a talk which lasted about a quarter of an hour.

"Really," said Dr. Slicer last evening, when asked what had been said at the conference, "there was nothing premeditated about the meeting. One of the gentlemen who was in charge of the sale said that Mr. Lichtenstein desired to meet me, and I at once gave my consent.

"Naturally we talked about the Cassidy-Lansing bill. Mr. Lichtenstein, who, I noticed, seemed to know when he wanted a book, and refused to plunge when somebody else went over the figure he was willing to pay, told me I was perfectly right in the stand I had taken, and that there was not the slightest doubt that the poolroom interests were behind the measure now pending. He did not tell me anything which I did not already know. His statements were merely corroborative. He seemed to be a very well-informed man, and I was much interested in what he had to tell me.

"He made several suggestions, in response to questions asked by me, looking to the best methods for minimizing the betting evil. Of course, he is a bookmaker himself, and earns his livelihood by making bets, but he showed me how things could be run so as to do the least harm.

"His suggestions were all along the lines upon which the racing Stewards and myself have been working. Nearly all of them have already been incorporated in the agreement which has been reached between us."

Mr. Lichtenstein, when asked last evening about his talk with Dr. Slicer, had completely forgotten the meeting with the preacher.

"It must have been some other Lichtenstein," he said. "It might have been my brother. Of course, I know who Dr. Slicer is, but I really haven't had the pleasure of an introduction to him."

Dr. Slicer thought the bookmaker's lapse of memory an excellent joke. He laughed heartily when told that Mr. Lichtenstein pleaded not guilty to having met him.

"Well," he finally conceded, "Mr. Lichtenstein surely ought to be a good authority on the subject."

"Is it possible," he was asked, "that somebody else, posing as Mr. Lichtenstein, deceived you?"

"Oh, no. It was Mr. Lichtenstein, the bookmaker, all right," said Dr. Slicer. "Perhaps he has reasons for wishing to say nothing about our little chat."

Dr. Slicer said that he had heard nothing yesterday from Dr. A. S. Gregg, Field Secretary of the International Reform Bureau, who said on Monday that he would give the New York minister twenty-four hours to retract his statement that the Cassidy-Lansing anti-racing measure was inspired by Peter De Lacy and other poolroom men.

"Dr. Slicer's got to retract," is the way Dr. Gregg is said to have expressed himself. "If he doesn't, I'll make a fool out of him."

"I have not retracted anything," Dr. Slicer declared. "I have nothing to retract."

ASTOR WEDDING IN VIRGINIA.

Young Couple Are to Have Cliveden and an Income of $100,000.

LONDON, Wednesday, March 21.—It is stated that Waldorf Astor will marry Mrs. Nannie Langhorne Shaw at the end of April, in Virginia.

The couple will reside at Cliveden, the Thames residence of William Waldorf Astor, which will be the wedding gift from Mr. Astor, who will also bestow upon his son an income of $100,000 yearly.

RULE AUTOISTS BY BUMPS.

Professor-Mayor Will Shunt Them Into River if They Run Fast.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., March 20.—Mayor Fisher, the Wesleyan economics Professor elected Mayor two months ago, has received numerous complaints regarding automobile scorchers, and has hit on a novel plan to end the nuisance.

He will have the Street Commissioner build a series of bumps and knolls along the highways leading into the city. Automobilists, if they are exceeding the speed limit, will be thrown out of their machines, or seriously shaken up when they meet these bumpers. Other places will be so fixed that if the automobiles go fast they will be shunted off into the Connecticut River.

ARMORED AUTO FOR GOLD.

T. M. Hart Orders One to Carry Treasure Through Yaqui Country.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 20.—In order to insure the safe passage of gold from his mines in Mexico, Torran M. Hart of Cambridge, Mass., has placed an order for an automobile which will be plated with armor and will carry in its tonneau two Gatling guns for use in case of attacks by Indians. Besides fulfilling this purpose, the automobile will be used to convey Mr. Hart about his properties.

Mr. Hart, whose business as an attorney keeps him in New York a large part of the time, has extensive mining properties in Mexico. He has suffered occasionally from attacks by the Yaquis. They have stormed the trains transporting the ore from the mines, and he figured that the only way to secure safe transportation of the gold was to have the train placed under guard.

BARGE AND CREW MISSING.

The Martha McCabe and Three Men Went Adrift in Gale.

The tug Margaret, Capt. Hickman, arrived in port yesterday with the tug J. R. Dempsey in tow, after a rough experience at sea in which Capt. Hickman was compelled to abandon the barge Martha McCabe, with Capt. Willard Massey and a crew of two sailors, and the barge Virginia Hudson. The crew of the Hudson were taken off after a desperate struggle against wind and wave in a small boat by the crew of the tug, but it is feared that Capt. Massey and the two sailors were driven out to sea in the storm which raged when she was last seen by Capt. Hickman, and that they have gone to the bottom with the barge.

AN EXCISE ACT INVALID.

Ambler Special Law Exceeded the Legislature's Powers.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 20.—The Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the decision of the Appellate Division, Supreme Court, in declaring unconstitutional the Ambler Special Excise law of the last Legislature. This provided that in New York City hotel liquor tax certificates issued for the year 1905 might be revoked if the buildings did not comply with the building laws governing hotels.

It was supplemental to a similar law to regulate the issue of hotel licenses in the future. The law expired on Jan. 1, 1906, and the decision is important only as fixing the power of the Legislature in such a matter.

KILLS SEVEN WITH CROWBAR.

Foreman, Unaided, Overcomes a Conspiracy to Murder Him.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, Tenn., March 20.—With a steel crowbar for his weapon George Haverly killed seven Italians, one by one, who were attempting to murder him to-day, near Marion, N. C., where construction work is in progress on the South and West Railroad.

Haverly is foreman in charge of the work. The Italians say they were being driven too hard. It is alleged that they combined to murder Haverly with spades and picks.

They made a rush for him, but Haverly seized a long crowbar and placed himself so that he could not be attacked from behind. As the first of the Italians came in reach, Haverly swung the crowbar. They kept coming, and Haverly continued to swing the bar, until seven lay dead in front of him.

WM. ROCKEFELLER NOT ILL.

His Throat Trouble Cured, Says a Friend of the Family.

Reports of the illnesses of William Rockefeller, now in Europe, were denied at 26 Broadway yesterday. Mr. Rockefeller's private secretary said that no word that he was ill had been received at the office, as would surely have been the case had the story been true. In fact, he said, the last news of Mr. Rockefeller had told that he was in good health.

The statement of the secretary was borne out by a personal friend of the Rockefeller family who did not wish his name used. This man said that while it was true that Mr. Rockefeller had suffered from an affection of the throat before his trip abroad, it had never been said that the trouble was of a virulent nature.

"Only a short time ago Mr. Rocekefeller's son told me," said this friend of the family, "that his father's throat trouble had been cured abroad. The last word from Mr. Rockefeller that has reached his family was entirely reassuring. I believe he is in the best of health. In fact, we expect him soon to return a well man."

BLISS WON'T DISCUSS RECEIPT TO HAMILTON

Leaves Town When a Picture of It Is Given Out.

THE "JUDGE" TALKS FREELY

But Not Going Before Jerome—An Explicit Denial by Mr. Mackay That He Knows Hamilton.

Andrew Hamilton made public yesterday a photographic reproduction of that $75,000 receipt which has been the source of much annoyance recently to the friends of Cornelius N. Bliss.

Mr. Bliss has denied all along that he gave "Judge" Hamilton a receipt for $75,000 which the New York Life Insurance Company gave to the Republican campaign fund in 1896, when Mr. Bliss was Treasurer of the Republican National Committee. He declined to talk about it yesterday morning when the reporters saw him. In the early afternoon he left the city, and it was reported that he had gone to Washington to confer with Postmaster General Cortelyou and other Republicans about the gifts which the Republicans have received from the insurance companies in the twelve or more years that Mr. Bliss has had charge of the fund-gathering.

"Judge" Hamilton, the New York Life's legislative generalissimo, spent a good part of the afternoon in the Hoffman House and talked freely about certain phases of New York Life affairs.

"I can't quite understand Mr. Bliss saying that he never gave me that receipt," said "Judge" Hamilton, "for I don't suppose that any one is accusing me of manufacturing it. And I hope, also, that they won't think I am telling tales out of school, for Mr. McCall and Mr. Perkins both told about this payment and the others when they were on the stand."

The Receipt.

The receipt of which a reproduction was printed is a composite affair, made out first for $10,000, with an additional line that makes it read, "Received from Andrew Hamilton, ten thousand dollars and sixty-five thousand doll'—total seventy-five thousand dollars," and the numerals below, first written as $10,000, were subsequently raised to $75,000. The receipt bears the two dates, Oct 1-20, 1896. The reason suggested for this was that after the first call for money on which the $10,000 was paid, other calls came along, to meet which Hamilton raised $65,000 on his notes, afterward taken up by the company.

"He had given me a lot of individual receipts for these other amounts," said Hamilton yesterday, "and then one day I went down to his office, at the office of Bliss, Fabyan & Co., and he fixed up the blanket receipt by adding on the sixty-five thousand. It was all done right there in his office, and I can't see how he can say that he never signed any such receipt.

"I cannot tell about the 1900 and 1904 contributions, for I didn't have anything to do with them. Particularly in 1904 I was out of it because some of these gentlemen who are so piously disturbed now stepped up then and thought it would be a fine thing for them to put up the money for the New York Life. They said: 'Let us do it,' and I let them. I didn't have any anxiety to go around and raise the price on my individual notes pending the time when the company should be able to take them up."

Mr. Perkins Later.

The statement of Hamilton threw some light on the evidence taken by the Armstrong Committee that the $48,000 paid in 1904 to the New York Life was advanced by George W. Perkins through checks of J. P. Morgan & Co. and at last paid by a check of the New York Life to that firm. Mr. Perkins, it is generally understood, will be considered in one of the subsequent chapters of Hamilton's story, when he is through with William B. Hornblower and some of the other Trustees. "Judge" Hamilton in his talk yesterday refered to Clarence H. Mackay, who recently declared that he did not know Hamilton, and had never seen him so far as he knew.

"Mr. Mackay must have a very short memory," said Hamilton, "to say that he never has seen me and doesn't know me. He is an estimable young man, and no doubt has forgotten the circumstances of my introduction to him some time in 1905, by John A. McCall. The fact is that Mr. Mackay and I met each other at the time when the Commercial Cable Company was negotiating loans aggregating about $2,000,000. The $2,000,000 didn't include all the loans, but was a single set of the loans. I met Mr. Mackay in Mr. McCall's office in the New York Life Building, and Mr. McCall explained the proposition to me.

"'Judge,' he said, 'I hope that now that you have met Mr. Mackay you will make your fee for searching the titles in these loans a little smaller than usual, for Mr. Mackay is a Trustee of the New York Life.' I said that I would see what I could do, and we parted. As a matter of fact, Mr. Mackay saved about $3,000 by the introduction."

Denial by Mr. Mackay.

Referring to this assertion of the "Judge," Mr. Mackay made this statement last night:

"In regard to Mr. Hamilton's statement, Mr. Mackay said the Commercial Cable Company has never borrowed any money from the New York Life Insurance Company. In fact, the Commercial Cable Company has not borrowed any money from anybody for some ten years, and has no occasion to borrow any. The loan which Mr. Hamilton refers to was not to the Commercial Cable Company, neither was it to me, but it was to a company which owns the Commercial Cable Building, 20 Broad Street, and I would add that the Commercial Cable Company has no interest in that building or company, either directly or indirectly, except as a tenant for a part of it.

"Moreover, the loan that was made to that building company was arranged some time before I became a director in the New York Life Insurance Company, and had nothing whatsoever to do with my becoming a director in that company. In fact I had nothing whatsoever to do with the negotiation of the loan, which was a customary first mortgage loan. As to Mr. Hamilton's further statement that there was a series of loans, there was but one loan, and that was secured by a mortgage which was a first mortgage on real estate worth over twice the amount of the loan, and the regular rate of interest was paid, 4½ per cent., and no graft. I again repeat that I have never met Mr. Hamilton and do not know him, and any statement to the contrary is false."

In the last preceding statement he issued in connection with "Judge" Hamilton's assertions Mr. Mackey said that he became a trustee of the New York Life on April 13, 1904.

Not Going to Tell Tales.

"Judge" Hamilton was asked yesterday whether he intended to go to see District Attorney Jerome.

"No, I'm not," he said, "and I may as well say right here that if any one has any idea that I am going to tell tales about the people with whom I have dealt in my operations they are mistaken. I have a family that I think a whole lot of, but I'd sacrifice everything before I would go back on any one with whom I have had confidential relations.

"And let me say about Hiram R. Steele of the Fowler Committee," said Hamilton, as if by afterthought, "that he is a splendid man, and would be all right and square if he could only stand up against the pressure that is being brought to bear on him by the Trustees of the company who are running this thing."

A reporter called Hamilton's attention to Louis F. Payn's comment that if the "Judge" had come home sooner he might have saved John A. McCall's life.

"Well," said Hamilton, "from the standpoint of the insurance men generally I think that the management of the investigation was badly bungled. Mind, I am not conceited enough to think that I could have conducted it as it should have been conducted, but I think I could have done a better job than was done by the companies."

William B. Hornblower, whom Hamilton had dubbed the Pecksniff of the New York Life, had a conference yesterday with Vice Presidents Kingsley and Buckner. They considered the reply to be sent to Samuel Untermyer's letter to President Orr warning the management of the company that it would be held responsible for all expenses incurred in the proxy campaign now going on and in the opposition that the New York Life is making to the insurance legislation proposed by the Armstrong Committee. The conferrees would not say anything about their talk. It was learned, however, that the great mass of literature which the New York Life had prepared for distribution among policy holders has not yet been mailed.

$148,000 ? SAYS PAYN.

Why, That Was an Insurance Bagatelle to Platt.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—Louis F. Payn, who was known to have some information about the legislative side of the insurance question, appears to know something about the political side. He was in a talkative mood to-day as he sat in the Senate lobby. After the elder statesman had talked a while THE TIMES reporter said:

"How about Hamilton's threats to produce vouchers showing what he did with the 'yellow dog' fund?"

"No need to produce vouchers on that proposition," was the reply. "Everybody knows that corporations of all kinds have contributed to campaign funds of both parties in National, State, and municipal campaigns. Of my own knowledge I know of one corporation that contributed $70,000 in one campaign to the Republican and $75,000 to the Democratic Party.

"It's rather funny to hear so much talk about the $148,000 which is charged was contributed by the insurance companies in the National campaign. Why, that amount would not begin to cover the sums paid by the insurance companies to Senator Platt alone in one period of years. All the corporations made these contributions, and they will do it again. The campaign managers will get together in the future, just as they did in the past, and figure out how they can make this or that corporation give up."

The elder statesman began his talk on insurance with the declaration that in his opinion the Armstrong insurance bills were going to be passed.

"Yes," he said, "the bills will go through. In my opinion the insurance companies made a bad blunder when they attacked them at this time and tried to get any compromise. If the bills as they stand put the companies out of business they should nevertheless have let the Legislature go ahead without protest. This is a bad time to kick. The public wants blood and is bound to have it. When it had been shown that the lawmaking power had gone too far then the companies could get in their work—some time next year—when they would be in better shape to ask for reasonable legislation and could point out the errors that had been made when the clamor for a change was at its height."

Asked what he thought of the speech of Andrew Hamilton before the Armstrong Committee, Mr. Payn said:

"There's no doubt that Hamilton told a lot of truths, but his speech will not affect the situation one bit. I don't know Hamilton and can't predict what he'll do next, but the thing that seemed to actuate him last week was his desire to throw shot into the detractors of John A. McCall. It was that which brought him home. But he made his mistake in not coming back four or five months ago. If he had done that McCall would be alive to-day."

"What was your experience with Pecksniffs and Talleyrands?" Mr. Payn was asked.

"As I am not under oath," he said, smiling, "I'll have to refuse to answer that question."

Then Mr. Payn thought a minute. He continued thus:

"Now, with this new legislation on insurance matters, the great danger lies in the fact that the Legislature may overstep the limit. The general howl has confused everybody. The public must have a victim, and it is not satisfied even if McCall is dead, and McCurdy and Alexander have been brought to the verge of the grave. It will take several years to have matters simmer down to such shape that we can have careful and intelligent legislation on this important subject. But first of all the present bills, even with a lot of absurdities in them, will have to pass. That can't be avoided. I am surprised that a lot of smart people like the insurance men should not have seen that their objections at the present state of public opinion was like butting their heads against a stone wall.

"The committee, I understand, is now meeting in New York considering changes in the bills as drafted. They may be tinkered, but not much. But suppose that their drastic acts put the big insurance companies practically out of business, do you think that the public will stand for that when they get the full force of what such action means? Not much. They'll put up just as big a howl to conserve these interests a year or two from now as they are putting up at this time to restrict them. The more harshly the companies are treated now the better will be their chance to get some sane legislation later.

"As a matter of fact, the companies made something of a spectacle of themselves at the hearings. What one man wanted another denounced. Every one seems looking for his end of it, and the result was not impressive."

A REAL MUTUAL INQUIRY

Indicated in New Requisition Made on the Company's Trustees.

The Mutual Life's investigating committee has at last sent to all the Trustees of the company a requisition for information drawn by Joseph H. Choate, which is quite as searching as that drafted by counsel for the Truesdale Committee, turned down by President Peabody and then withdrawn by Chairman Truesdale of the investigators. As one Trustee put it yesterday afternoon, "It is as drastic as if Mr. Fish himself drew it up."

This is the first sign of life that the Truesdale Committee has manifested since the split that followed the refusal of Mr. Truesdale and John W. Auchincloss to send the original requisition to the Trustees direct or to instruct President Peabody to submit it. It is taken as an evidence that Mr. Choate is trying to put under way in the Mutual Life something like a real investigation.

The attention of the committee has been called to the fact that in the amended requisition which it sent out after its original counsel, Messrs. Dill, William G. Choate, Herrick, and Bainbridge Colby, resigned, the information required about leases of space in the Mutual Life Building was limited to the leases in force on Oct. 1 last.

Reports have been current that a lot of the leases of space in the Mutual Life Building were modified after the Armstrong Committee got its work under way, and that those leases which were in force on Oct. 1 were rather different from those which had been in force. Accordingly, those who have followed the Mutual situation are watching with some interest to see whether the Truesdale Committee will go into the general question of leases, particularly with a view to seeing on what terms firms in which certain Trustees have been interested got the quarters which they have occupied for many years.

The new requisition to the Trustees goes fully into the relations of the Trustees with subsidiary companies of the Mutual and their stockholdings in these companies, a subject that is understood to be capable of interesting investigation should the committee undertake to trace the sales of stock in these companies between the Mutual and members of its "inner circle," as President McCurdy called them on the stand before the Armstrong Committee. It also takes up the loans which have been made by the Mutual to its Trustees, the rates of interest on these loans, and times of repayment; similarly the sales of securities by or through these Trustees to the company, and any purchases from the company in which they may have been interested are to be canvassed, aswell as all underwriting and syndicate participations of every kind in which the Trustees and the Mutual were both concerned.

ROOT AND HIGGINS DENY IT.

No Promise by the Governor to Smother the Insurance Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Secretary Root to-day denied Andrew Hamilton's statement that he (Mr. Root) had extracted from Gov. Higgins a pledge that the insurance question should not be injected into the extra session of the New York Legislature. Mr. Hamilton was quoted as saying: "Go ask Elihu Root and Gov. Higgins if they did not agree between themselves that no insurance business was to be transacted at the extra session."

"The statement is entirely untrue," said Secretary Root.

ALBANY, March 20.—Gov. and Mrs. Higgins returned to Albany to-night from Atlantic City. Concerning the Hamilton statement the Governor said:

"I do not recall ever having passed a word with Mr. Root on the subject of insurance, and I can say most positively that I never made any such promise to Mr. Root or to any other person."

MAY AMEND BILLS.

Armstrong Conferrees Likely to Liberalize Expense Restrictions.

Charles E. Hughes, Senator Armstrong, and Assemblyman Prentice of the Armstrong Committee began at Mr. Hughes's house here yesterday a series of conferences on the amendments that are to be considered for the committee's insurance bills. The conferences will last for several days, and other members of the committee are expected down from Albany to participate.

It is understood that there is good probability of a liberalization of the bill that the committee reported for the restriction of the expenses of new business. The amendment, if it is made, will be based on the fact that the items of such expense reported by most of the companies included a good deal more than did those reported by the Northwestern Mutual and Connecticut Mutual, which were two of the three companies that the committee singled out as being able to keep the expenses of new business within the loadings. Several technical amendments to meet objections raised by the out-of-the-State companies are also under consideration.

The committee has also been urged strongly to advance by a month or two the date which it has set for the elections of new Boards of Trustees in mutual companies next Fall.

This date is now Nov. 15. Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the International Committee of Policy Holders, suggests that Sept. 1 is a more practicable date, and that delay after that time will simply strengthen the managements of the companies.

Mr. Untermyer started last night for Columbus, where he is going to speak this evening at the invitation of the Insurance Committee of the Ohio Legislature on the insurance bills that have been introduced there.

Delay for Mutual Reserve Men.

Because of the inability of ex-Assistant District Attorney Rand to be in General Sessions yesterday, Judge O'Sullivan gave President Frederick A. Burnham and Vice Presidents George Burnham, Jr., and George D. Eldridge of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company another week to plead to the indictments for grand larceny and forgery returned against them by the Grand Jury.

Thirty-six prisoners were gathered in by the Detective Sergeants of the Central Office last night, under the standing orders of Inspector McLaughlin to lock up all crooks on sight. Twenty-six of the prisoners were locked up in Police Headquarters, eight in the Mulberry Street Station, two in Mercer Street, and two in West Forty-seventh Street. It was the largest number ever locked up as suspicious persons since Inspector McClusky cleaned Broadway.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS NOT CRIMINAL—JEROME

Not Explicitly Prohibited, and Felonious Intent Absent.

ANSWERS THE GRAND JURY

Neither Larceny Nor Any Other Crime Shown in the Evidence About Political Contributions.

In a brief submitted to Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions yesterday District Attorney Jerome expressed the opinion that, whatever criminal offenses, if any, the executive officers of the great life insurance companies may have been guilty of, they are not indictable on account of contributions made by them to political campaign funds out of the corporate funds in their charge. Such contributions do not constitute larceny under the law, Mr. Jerome holds, because the element of criminal intent mentioned in the law is absent and because there is no law explicitly making such contributions illegal.

The brief was filed to guide the Judge in advising the Grand Jury on the five questions contained in the presentment made by that body two weeks ago. The evidence obtained by the Armstrong Committee was assumed to be fact. The five questions in relation to political contributions were:

First—If the executive officers of the life insurance companies had committed the crime of larceny.

Second—If they were not guilty of larceny, whether some other crime was committed.

Third—If the facts should be held to constitute larceny when the contributions were unauthorized, whether there was any way in which those acts could be authorized by Directors or stockholders so as not to constitute larceny.

Fourth—Whether the facts constituted larceny if it could be proved that the officers making the contributions were moved by thought of personal advantage.

Fifth—If there should be any doubt as to the intent of the officers making such contribution, whether it was then necessary to give such officer the benefit of that doubt.

Mr. Jerome's Brief.

This is the substance of Mr. Jerome's brief:

"The fundamental idea in the English Common Law of crime was that there could be no crime without the evil intent. All the old text writers and authorities assume and repeatedly state this proposition, quoting the maxim of the civilians, 'The act does not make guilt unless the mind be evil.' The English Common Law of crime became the law of this State.

"The principle is subject to construction, certain refinements and legal fictions, and apparently to some exceptions in our modern criminal law. These exceptions generally apply to misdemeanors created under the police powers, e. g., selling adulterated milk, where intent or knowledge is not necessary to constitute a crime. As to common law felonies, and those crimes created by English statutes which became a part of our common law, the principle applies in full force.

"In our Penal Code, Section 528, are grouped under the title larceny four offenses separate in character:

"1. Larceny by trespass; the taking, stealing, and carrying away form of the common law.

"2. Larceny by trick and device.

"3. Larceny by false pretenses.

"4. Embezzlement.

"It is only the latter which can have any relation to the inquiries of the Grand Jury.

"The officers of a corporation having custody or control of the property of the corporation undoubtedly belong to the group of persons mentioned in Subdivision 2 of Section 528. For such officers to give the property of the corporation or any part of it to a political organization is undoubtedly, in the words of the statute, to appropriate it to the use of a person 'other than the true owner * * * thereof.' Such appropriation to be larceny must according to the same section be 'with intent to deprive or defraud the true owner of his property, or the use and benefit thereof.'

"In the American and English Encyclopedia of Law it is said: 'In order that the taking and carrying away of the goods of another may constitute larceny it is necessary that the act should have been done animo furandi, or with a felonious intent, that is, an intent, without any claim or pretense of right or justification, to deprive the owner of his goods permanently.'"

Several decisions and opinions bearing on the definition and construction of "felonious intent" are then given in the brief. The last of them is:

The case of McCourt vs. People, (1876,) 64 N. Y., 583, is instructive on this point. In that case the prisoner with two companions stopped at the house of C. in the daytime. He asked C.'s daughter, who was alone in the house, for a drink of cider, offering to pay for it. She refused to let him have it, and he thereupon opened the cellar door, although forbidden to do so by her, went in and drew some cider. The Court of Appeals held that this was not larceny. The Court at p. 586 says:

"Every taking by one person of the personal property of another, without his consent, is not larceny; and this, although it was taken without right, or claim of right, and for the purpose of appropriating it to the use of the taker. Superadded to this, there must have been a felonious intent, for without it there was no crime. It would, in the absence of such an intent, be a bare trespass, which, however aggravated, would not be crime. It is the criminal mind and purpose going with the act which distinguishes a criminal trespass from a mere civil injury."

Mr. Jerome's brief continues thus:

"The term 'felonious intent' is like the term 'fraud' in a court of equity. We find nowhere a clear definition of it, but the authorities enable us to recognize it in most cases without great difficulty.

"From the above cases and similar ones which could be cited very numerously, it appears that in the law of larceny criminal intent, or, as it is usually called, felonious intent, is something necessarily present, or there is no crime, even if the act done is prohibited by law and the doer is sane.

"Now in the presentment in question the act or acts supposed in the four first hypothetical statements to have been done are not in themselves prohibited by law. There is no legal prohibition against giving to a political party. If these acts are criminal they must be so because the property was the property of a corporation.

"All our crimes to-day are statutory, and unless the acts supposed constitute larceny, I am unaware of any statute making such acts a crime.

"If it be suggested that the facts assumed in two of the assumed hypothetical statements constitute bribery, the groundlessness of such a contention at once appears when an attempt is made to frame an indictment on this hypothesis.

"So also as to conspiracy, as a mere inspection of Section 168, Penal Code, discloses.

"Section 541, Penal Code, obviously has no application.

"If the assumed statements of fact constitute larceny, why does not every ultra vires [beyond one's powers] disposition of the property of a corporation constitute larceny?

"From an extended and careful examination of the authorities I am led to the conclusion that the acts embodied in the four statements of facts found in the presentment do not show the commission of the crime of larceny or of any other crime. This conclusion is, of course, based upon an assumption of the facts therein embodied alone, without the addition or subtraction of anything.

"If I am correct in this conclusion the answer of the court to the first three questions should be as follows:

"To the first question—No.

"To the second question—No.

"To the third question—It is not necessary to answer this question, as it falls with the reply to the first two.

"As to the fourth question: It is obvious that acts of the character therein assumed, done with the intention therein specified, constitute larceny. It is clear, however, from all the authorities, that the selfish interest must not be remote or small.

"As to the fifth question: It is elementary that the Grand Jury must give the benefit of a reasonable doubt to the person charged with crime, as to every element essential to be made out to prove the commission of a crime."

Mr. Jerome declined to add anything to his brief last night. It is understood, however, that if the court should take the position indicated in the brief another set of facts will be submitted to the Grand Jury, with a view to investigating whether criminal offense can be proved by some other part of the evidence obtained by the Armstrong Committee. Then the jury would have to act on the alleged appropriation of funds for personal use, the making of false reports, the falsifying of accounts, and other acts.

STEAMER JUMPS THE BAR.

Remarkable Feat of the Bodo, Now on Shore Duty for Life.

The United Fruit Company's steamship Bodo, from Port Antonio, Jamaica, is practically off the maritime lists. The men who go down to the sea in ships can't quite puzzle out where she does belong since she gaily jumped the bar off Gilgo's Inlet, Long Island, early yesterday morning and crawled ashore.

The Bodo lost her way in the snowstorm of night before last, and when Capt. Berger N. Larsen thought he was off the Jersey coast he felt a bump, after an eaglelike swoop on the top of a big wave. He immediately began firing off rockets, in the hope of awakening the Jerseyites.

The Bodo, which draws eleven feet, had been groping her way through very high seas. The bar off the inlet is exposed at low tide, the beach sloping gently to the water line. Beyond is deep water. In the hollow of a sea the Bodo would have struck upon the bar and have been smashed to pieces. As it was, she was riding the crest of a mighty wave when she reached the bar. She didn't bump until she hit the beach, the wave that carried her there scurrying back to sea and abandoning her.

The life-saving crews of Oak Island and Fire Island answered the signals, but it was high tide and the surf was too heavy for them to go to the Bodo. When the tide went out there was not a drop of water within 200 feet of the vessel. The crews of Fire Island and Oak Island strolled out to the vessel and paid a morning call.

The Bodo is loaded with bananas—at least she was before the life savers called. The rest of the cargo will be saved, but there is no way of getting the Bodo on the maritime lists again unless a canal is dug for her. Her four passengers, men employed in the Panama work, advised otherwise.

Crew and passengers walked to Long Island before the tide rose. Old inhabitants, who remembered wonderful shipwrecks half a century ago, declared that they'd be hornswoggled but they'd write to The Brooklyn Eagle about it.

FINE RESCUES AT THIS FIRE.

Scores of Factory Workers Saved by Two Men Who Made Ropes Serve.

At a fire on the third floor of the six-story factory building at 478-480 Pearl Street last evening several scores of employes were rescued in various ways. Paul Gaturna, a young Italian who works for the Boussier Electric Company, which firm was burned out, rescued more than a score with a clothes line. Frederick Hummel, foreman for D. Messer, pocketbook manufacturer, on the fourth floor, got out twenty persons by means of a rope which he made from a canvas apron. The fire was confined to the third floor. The damage was $4,000.

The fire cut off exit by the stairs, and in a short time dense smoke poured up. There are several firms in the building, and in nearly every instance the employes, many of them women and girls, were still at work. The smoke started a small panic among them.

In a previous fire in the same building Gaturna jumped to the roof of a rear tenement back of the factory, and saved several with a clothesline that is usually suspended between the front and rear tenements.

He could not find a rope there last night, but Mrs. Ladd, one of the head workers of the Five Points Mission, who was at the fire, ran to the mission and got a new clothes line and tossed it to Gaturna. He in turn threw it to one of the cooler men on the fourth floor and one end was fastened to the window ledge. Then the employes slid down the rope to the roof of the tenement, and in that way made their escape easily.

D. J. Nolan, manufacturer of chandeliers, had about twenty employes on the fourth floor. Most of the employes, Italians, became frightened and made a dash for the windows. Hummel, the foreman, a big man, thrashed several of them. He then took off his heavy canvas apron and tore it into strips, making a rope of considerable length. Opening a side window, he compelled the Italians, one by one, to get out of the window and lower themselves to a pile of lumber fifteen feet beneath. All but two did so with perfect safety. Those two were only slightly hurt.

DELAY FOR COL. MANN.

Perjury Trial Goes Over Pending a Decision on the Colonel's Rights.

When Col. William d'Alton Mann of Town Topics was arraigned before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions yesterday on the charge of perjury growing out of his testimony at the Hapgood criminal libel trial, his counsel, Martin W. Littleton, asked leave to argue a motion to quash the indictment on the ground that its return while a hearing on the charge it contained was still going on before a Magistrate involved a violation of the constitutional rights of the defendant.

Mr. Jerome opposed the motion. Judge O'Sullivan gave both sides until Friday to file briefs. In the meantime the plea was postponed.

FOR CUTTING OFF THE GAS.

A Westchester Company Ordered to Pay $5 a Day Damages.

Under the verdict of a Westchester County jury, handed down in the Supreme Court at White Plains, the Westchester Lighting Company, which is a branch of the Consolidated Gas Company of Manhattan, will have to pay $2,260 to John A. B. Shelly of Yonkers for turning off his gas.

Mr. Shelly sued for $5 a day penalty, under the statute, for 450 days during which the gas company refused to serve him with gas. The company contended that he had failed to pay a bill for $15 which he declared to be outrageous. He offered $10, but the company shut off his gas.

IDE ACQUITS TROOPS OF KILLING MORO WOMEN

Says the Sultan and Populace Indorse Our Army's Action.

WOOD A PEACEMAKER—SCOTT

How Gift of a Dog Ended One Uprising—Governor of Moro Province Tells Experiences.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Secretary Taft received the following cable message from Governor General Ide at Manila, dated to-day:

"Newspaper reports from Manila announcing wanton slaughter of women and children at Mount Dajo extremely sensational and in all essential details false.

"The situation occupied by Moro outlaws on the crater of the volcano 2,100 feet high was exceedingly difficult, and required great display of heroism on the part of the army, navy, and Filipino and Moro constabulary, who rendered most valued service.

"Some women and children were killed or wounded by preliminary shelling at a distance. Moros were outlaws and fanatics, and refused to surrender to the last, attempting repeatedly to murder our forces who were rescuing wounded Moros.

"Moro Sultan and leading Dattos rendered great assistance, and the surrounding population is in great sympathy with the course taken to remove the gang of cutthroats which was preying upon the community, retreating as occasion required to what they supposed to be impenetrable fastnesses.

"There was no killing of any one except such as was indispensable to end intolerable situation. Attack not ordered until every resource looking to possible adjustment exhausted. Troops and officers deserving of highest praise."

Secretary Taft also has made public an exhaustive report from Major Hugh L. Scott, who was Governor of the Moro provinces just preceding the engagement, respecting the habits of warfare of those people, as follows:

"The recent trouble in Jolo had its beginning more than a year ago, when a Sulu Moro by the name of Pala ran amuck in the streets of Lahud, Dato, British North Borneo, and ran away after killing and wounding twenty-six persons. He returned to his cotta on the south side of the Sulu Islands, about fifteen miles from Jolo.

"It was not to be tolerated that the citizens of a friendly power should thus be murdered by savages under American jurisdiction, and an attempt was made to arrest Pala by surprise. His cotta was taken and destroyed, but he escaped to the jungle. He had many sympathizers, relatives, and friends in various parts of the island.

"Gen. Wood came down with troops from Mindanao to surround Pala's jungle and arrest him. He was fired upon on the way to Pala's jungle in the Tambang Pass by the Dajo people. One soldier and several Moros were killed. Many of the Dajo people then ran up on Mount Dajo and began fortifying themselves.

"The troops went on, fought Pala, who would not surrender, and killed him. They then went to Tando Looc, where another band of sympathizers, who had been depredating upon friendly Moros, were fortified in a crater on a mountain about twenty-five miles from Jolo. By means of an old Moro, who was captured on the way, the chief of this band was induced after many efforts to surrender.

"On the return of Gen. Wood to Jolo it was considered that the ringleaders were dead and the Moros had been punished enough. It was soon discovered that Dajo fugitives from the Tambang fight were on top of Mount Dajo. They put a crop of rice and sweet potatoes inside the crater, and had plenty of water there the year round. A demand was made on their dattos, Joakanain and Kalbi who persuaded about 150 of the 200 reported on the mountain to come down and settle in their old homes.

"A day or so before Thanksgiving I went to Zamboanga, 100 miles north, and returned about Dec. 1. In my absence some Moro had told the Dajo people that the Governor would attack them at daylight on Nov. 30. They all ran away to the top of the mountain, sounded their gongs all night, and made ready for the attack. Pressure was put at once upon Joakanain to allay this excitement. All through December he kept them quiet, and brought in Ahko, the most prominent man there.

"Ahko very much wanted a dog. The Governor gave him one and he went away pleased and did his utmost to make the others come off the mountain. The Sultan and his two brothers, Raja Muda and Dato Attick, also Majarajah, Opaus, and Sawajain, all influential Moros, went to the mountain and used their utmost endeavors.

"I saw Gen. Wood last about Dec. 26, and told him troops would not be needed as the Moros were being kept down by Joakanain. An order sending two companies of the Nineteenth Infantry was revoked. I started on leave of absence on Jan. 1.

"The policy of Gen. Wood in that archipelago always has been to bring about peace and order as gently and with as little loss of life as possible. The plan always has been, when the chief could be got at, to talk to him, but when he refused absolutely to talk and answered overtures with bullets no recourse was left but to fight him.

"Maharajah Indianan, who appears most unfavorably in the records of the former Governors of Jolo, in which it may be read, 'That no peace or order can be expected in Jolo until Indianan is killed,' in 1904 was made to pay 1,000 pesos for stolen cattle and to tear down the new portions of his fort made to resist the law, and this without a shot or a drop of blood. He now controls the district of Parang, and has under him probably 2,000 men, whom he controls in American interests better than any other section of the island is controlled. He offered to send 1,000 men to fight the Moros on Mount Dajo.

"All the resources of diplomacy exerted for six months in the case of Laksmana Usap failed, because an Arab from Mecca sold him charms to make him and his fort invulnerable, which he believed in. He was called upon to surrender, but answered with bullets. When the fort had been bombarded for half a day he was called upon again to surrender and replied:

"'You cowardly Americans may know what it is to surrender, but we Moros do not understand what it means.'

"After he had been killed and two walls of the fort had been taken, the survivors put up a white flag. The soldiers, knowing well the feelings of the officers, ceased firing before a command could be given. Several men were taken out, their wounds dressed by the surgeons, and sent to their homes, thus advertising throughout the archipelago that those who surrendered would be well treated and not killed.

"It is not conceivable that this policy of humanity, carried out in every case in the last two years and a half, should now have been changed, especially as Gen. Wood was there in person."

FLYWHEEL KILLS ENGINEER.

Man's Sleeve Was Caught by Wheel and He Was Crushed.

While oiling the motor that runs the elevator in the annex of a dry goods store at 17 West Thirteenth Street, yesterday morning, Adam Wissert, 33 years old, of 423 Fifth Street, an engineer, was caught in a 36-inch flywheel and crushed to death between the wheel and the wall. The motor had to be taken apart before his body could be extricated.

Wissert was wiping the machinery with cotton waste when his sleeve caught in the fly wheel. In a second he was drawn upon the wheel and flung against the wall, where the wheel crushed his skull and the upper part of his body. His helper heard the noise and stopped the motor, but it was too late. Wissert was married and had two children.

trict, comprising Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Western Pennsylvania, adjourned this afternoon after referring the demands of the miners to the Joint Scale Committee, which will begin its deliberations to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

The conference, the direct result of mediatory efforts by President Roosevelt, was called to order by John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers. George Traer, a Chicago operator, was made permanent Chairman.

On motion of President Mitchell the rules of the previous joint conference, requiring that the vote of Presidents on all main and principal questions be cast as a unit, were adopted.

Mitchell outlined his views as to the purpose of the extraordinary joint conference, at the close of which he moved the adoption of the scale of wages demanded by the miners in the February joint conference, providing an increase of 12½ per cent. The motion was lost, the operators voting unanimously in the negative.

John H. Winder of Ohio, the newly elected Chairman of the operators, moved adoption of the present wage scale with all attending conditions for one year beginning on April 1. This was defeated. Mr. Winder said:

"When we assembled six weeks ago the operators felt that, under the conditions existing, they were entitled to ask a substantial reduction in wages. But, knowing how difficult it would be to convince you of the other side of these conditions, they decided to sacrifice their own interests to some extent and to offer to you the scale of 1904 for another year. Since the adjournment there has been no change in these conditions."

Mr. Robbins moved that the matter at issue be referred to the joint Scale Committee. Mitchell seconded the motion, and it was carried unanimously.

The joint conference of the southwest district, which had been arranged to meet at 10 o'clock to-day, was adjourned until later. Its action will be determined largely by the result of the joint conference of the central competitive field.

PITTSBURG, March 20.—Telegrams received here to-day from Indianapolis said that John Mitchell had decided on an assessment of 20 cents a week for the local miners, to be used in case a strike is called on April 1. Some months ago the miners were assessed 10 cents a week for a strike fund, but the order was effective but one month. The miners locally do not regard this as an indication of a strike.

A JERSEY M. O. CONFERENCE.

200 Who Would Upbuild the Democratic Party Meet.

Some 200 New Jersey Democrats met in conference, as it was called, in the New Auditorium at Newark, yesterday. They adopted a set of resolutions declaring for municipal ownership of all local public utilities and of railway, express, and telegraph lines; also for the election of United States Senators by popular vote, and for taxation of all property on an equal basis.

The conference showed many signs of Hearst influence, and these signs provoked several warm discussions.

The purpose of the conference, it was stated, was to effect a permanent organization to build up the Democratic Party in New Jersey.

The meeting was about the most animated political gathering the State has seen in a long time. Although ex-Congressman Allan Benny of Hudson County said positively at the beginning that it was no one man's movement, it was intimated that Mr. Hearst was behind the whole scheme. The skeptical and conservative members were also interested in a telegram purporting to have come from Mr. Hearst. This was received while the discussion was warmest. This telegram, which is believed to be a hoax, was sent in the regular way from a Greenwich Street office of the Western Union Telegraph Company, in this city. It was handed to Chairman Benny, who read it aloud, asserting that it was the work of some spiteful person. The message was directed to the Chairman of the meeting and read:

"Have sent cash to Robert Bremner to pay all expenses.

"WILLIAM R. HEARST."

Chairman Benny announced that he would place the telegram in Mr. Hearst's hands with the request that he find the sender.

The conference pledged itself to support the regular nominees at the next Democratic Convention. Some of the clauses in the platform are:

Deprecating the contempt for and defiance of the laws of the land exhibited by corporations, their officers and agents, and others possessed of great wealth and power, we demand the enforcement of law as the first duty of government.

We favor municipal ownership and operation of all local public utilities and Government ownership and operation of all railway, express, telegraph, and telephone lines. Until public ownership shall be accomplished we demand that franchises to operate such utilities shall be granted to private individuals or corporations for short terms only.

We demand the immediate abolition of all tariff duties on the products of protected trusts sold at lower prices to foreigners than to Americans, and a gradual reduction of other tariff duties.

We are in favor of direct nominations by the people of all candidates for public offices at the primaries.

We urge the passage and enactment of an eight-hour labor law.

WRECKS STREW THE COAST.

Six Lives Lost, Many Craft Disabled, in Downeast Blizzard.

BOSTON, March 20.—Wrecks are strewn all along the New England coast and on the Connecticut shore of Long Island Sound as a result of the worst blizzard and gale of the Winter that prevailed last night.

Five persons, it is feared, are lost in the wreck of four sailing vessels on the ledges and shoals about Boston Harbor and Cape Cod.

Fragments of the schooner Lady Antrim of Booth Bay, Me., were found to-day strewn along the outside of Marblehead Neck. It is thought the crew of five were lost. Two bodies were found in the wreckage. The searchers picked up a woman's glove in the wreckage. The Lady Antrim sailed from Provincetown yesterday morning with a cargo of sand for Rockland, Me.

After being lashed in the rigging of the Winnie Lowry for twelve hours, Capt. Whelpley and his crew of four were rescued by a sloop yacht from South Yarmouth. The schooner struck on the sands off West Dennis in the night.

NEW HAVEN, March 20.—Five barges were wrecked and one life was lost in the Sound last night.

Capt. David Bush of Barge 14 of the New England Transportation Company and his wife were aboard the barge at the ore dock late last night when the boat went down. The couple got out of the cabin, but could not get ashore, and before help came Mrs. Bush was drowned in her husband's arms. The Captain probably will recover.

CONFESS AND GET LICENSE FOR CRIME, SAYS MOODY

Attorney General's Comment on Plea of Beef Packers' Counsel.

SUGGESTS "IMMUNITY BATH"

Serving a Confession on a Government Agent Easier Than Dodging a Subpoena.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 20.—"The immunity bath" is a phrase coined by Attorney General Moody to-day in his argument against the packers' immunity plea before Judge Humphrey. He made reference to John D. Rockefeller which caused shouts of laughter. The Attorney General also paid his respects to John S. Miller, one of the counsel for the packers, as the discoverer of the immunity plea, saying:

"For this uncounted generations of captains of industry will thank him."

At another point in his address Mr. Moody compared the packers with two prisoners, one of whom confessed his crime, being ignorant of his constitutional rights, and the other stood on the rights given him by the Constitution. In the part of his speech referring to the "immunity bath" the Attorney General said:

"Washington will become the Altruria to which they can resort for the pardon of their offenses. It will be much easier instead of running away from a subpoena to run toward the Government agency and serve a confession upon the Government agent. Anybody in this land who is now seeking to avoid the service of a subpoena will thank my learned friend for giving him a very much shorter road to travel. Washington under such circumstances would become a great resort, not only in Winter, but in Summer. All the people who are violating the laws of the land may go there at intervals and obtain their immunity. All they have to do is to go there in obedience to the compulsion of the law.

"All the corporation has to do is to go there in obedience to the compulsion of this law and serve upon the Commissioner of Corporations a statement with regard to its conduct and obtain immunity. He can do it at intervals. And the law is the license to commit crime.

"I can fancy those gentlemen gathering together there. I can fancy Mr. Swift or Mr. Armour on their journey to Washington, meeting some other great magnate who has been there, and who has washed in what I may call the Miller bath—because they would go as they go to Carlsbad or to the French Lick Springs in order to cleanse themselves of misdoings.

"I can imagine them meeting and saying, 'Good morning, good morning, Brother Rockefeller, have you had your immunity bath this morning?'

"Look at the absurdity. Look at the absurd consequences, which I am not overstating at all, if any one has a right in obedience to this law, voluntarily to make a statement and thereby claim immunity from it. And yet it is absolutely essential that our friends should resort to that ground in order to maintain their case."

Mr. Moody also referred to the letter written by President Roosevelt to the Attorney General, which was placed in the record of the case by the attorneys for the packers. He said:

"It has been said here that the President wrote a letter referring to this matter. I am the last man in the world to say that these gentlemen should not give their best to their clients, but if they felt it their duty to place that letter in evidence, when it touched upon another subject, against the man in the White House, who is unable to come here to protect himself—if they felt it their duty to make that attack upon him, I have little more to say."

"Injustice to us," said Attorney Miller, "I would like the Attorney General to explain how, since the letter was made a public document by him, it would be an attack upon the President."

"I will allow my statement to stand unqualified," replied the Attorney General.

In ending his address, Attorney General Moody said:

"If on these propositions these defendants escape a trial into the truth of these charges, it will be a calamity to the Government and for these defendants."

OVER $10,000 saving to be distributed during this great sale, for the lowest price suit or overcoat in this purchase was intended by the maker for a $25 price mark. We want the most critical judges of men's attire to visit this store to-day, and show us wherein this clothing differs in quality from the $25 grades sold by any first-class clothing house in New York. Second Floor.

Another comparison we wish to emphasize is this: Same grade of fabrics—same grade of tailoring—same linings—same style in suits, overcoats or cravenettes as the custom tailor would ask thirty-five dollars or more for. We have examined these suits thoroughly, and know that they're just as good inside as outside—just as much care taken with the hidden parts as those that are shown upon the surface.

The manufacturer from whom we received this purchase is one of the foremost in the entire world---not more than three others equal him in output, and few enjoy as high a reputation for workmanship.

The men who make up these ready-to-wear suits and overcoats have served long apprenticeships with the custom tailors, and know just how to infuse the custom tailor appearance into every garment and give them those distinctive style attributes which the particular dresser desires—know how to make them too, so that the fit and hang are equal to the made-to-measure clothing.

Such are these $25 suits and overcoats at 15.50.

Stamped designs.

FOR hand embroidered lingerie hats, parasols, corset covers, chemise, and waists—New York's latest fad, but each article must be of your own creation. Second Floor.

Women were never so industrious with the needle as they are to-day—and many a fascinating creation is completed in a few hours. This year the smart woman will carry a parasol, the work of her own hands, and wear a dainty sheer waist as a glowing testimonial to her needlecraft.

While the new embroidered articles are a fad, it's a sensible fad, because they are inexpensive, yet when made up they are as effective as the very highest priced creations.

Another important feature is the use of the new mercerized cottons for embroidering, which give each article a laundering life that makes the work worth the while.

We are headquarters for these new embroidery features, having originated many of the new ideas—all of our designs are exclusive with us—elaborate and effectively stylish, but not intricate. A competent instructor will show you how to work each design.

MARCH 1906

SEVASTOPOL IN FLAMES, REDS IN CAPITAL HEAR

Great Mutiny Said to Have Followed Schmidt's Execution.

A MASSACRE OF OFFICERS

Fortress Reported to Have Fired on the City—Schmidt Is Being Made a Hero and Martyr.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 20.—Reports are current to-night that the execution of ex-Lieut. Schmidt, which has made a deep impression throughout Russia, has been followed by an extensive mutiny of sailors at Sevastopol, the massacre of their officers, and the firing upon the city by the fortress.

The story is doubted, this being the "psychological moment" for the appearance of such wild reports. No press dispatches confirming the story have been received, but if it should prove to be true the absence of these might be accounted for by the imposition of a censorship.

The alleged news came in the form of two cipher telegrams to a prominent member of the Social Revolutionary Party, such as the Revolutionaries have sometimes been able to transmit through accomplices in the telegraph offices when the public, and even the Government, has been unable to communicate.

As translated and displayed at the offices of radical newspapers here the telegrams say briefly that the sailors, infuriated by the refusal of Emperor Nicholas to pardon Schmidt and their fellow-sailors, rose in their barracks and seized and imprisoned the majority of their officers.

The dispatches add that the City of Sevastopol is almost entirely in flames.

It is stated that a student at the Technological Institute has received a similar telegram.

The Admiralty affects ignorance as to any such affair. The papers, in view of the menace of the new press law, which provides that they may be suppressed for spreading false reports affecting the army or navy, are afraid to take chances by publishing the story to-morrow.

Schmidt is being made a hero and martyr by the revolutionists. The boys of the St. Petersburg Gymnasium struck to-day in order to compel the offering up of prayers in school for the repose of the soul of the Lieutenant.

The Russ prints a detailed account of the execution. When Schmidt received the news that the authorities had refused to commute the death penalty he wept for the three sailors, his companions, saying they were so young and honest and he would prefer to die alone. The condemned men were taken to the small deserted Island of Borizan and were shot at sunrise. Schmidt addressed his executioners, sixty sailors of the cruiser Teretz, saying:

"I die for the Russian people and the Fatherland, and many of you doubtless will hereafter share my death for the same cause."

Schmidt refused to accept the sacrament and asked not to be blindfolded. He met his death with head up and eyes open. The firing party was stationed at a distance of fifty paces. Two of the sailors were killed at the first volley, and one more at the third. Schmidt did not fall until the fourth volley.

MOSCOW, March 20.—The Social Democrats and Revolutionaries of this city are mourning the death of ex-Lieut. Schmidt. Thousands of workmen to-day wore crape on their arms, and funeral services were held in the chapels of many factories.

The population generally is also deeply affected. Requiem masses have been said in several of the churches.

KUROPATKIN A LIBERAL.

Blames the Bureaucracy for the Disasters in the Far East.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 20.—Gen. Kuropatkin's last order of the day to the First Manchurian Army, printed in the Russky Invalid (the military organ) to-day, is a remarkable exposure of the causes of the Russian defeats, showing that they were partly due to lack of preparation and equipment and to the fact that there were no explosive shells for the mountain artillery, &c., in the early stages of the war.

Kuropatkin does not shirk his own responsibility as Minister of War before the war broke out, but points out that the causes of the defeats were deeper, namely, the morale of the troops and of the officers, who did not display initiative, independence, or enthusiasm, in spite of the iron nerves and heroic spirits of the soldiers. All this, the General boldly announces, is attributable to the oppression of bureaucratic rule during the last fifty years, which in the case of the officers drove men of independence from the service, leaving only worthless drones. He congratulates the troops on the advent of liberty and hope for the regeneration of the people.

Gen. Kuropatkin gives the entire losses of the First Manchurian Army, which averaged a strength of 100,000 men and 2,200 officers, as 395 officers killed and 733 wounded and 10,435 men killed and 56,850 wounded. He concludes by expressing the opinion that the army should be so strengthened in time of peace that victory will be certain in time of war.

SAYS WITTE IS TO RESIGN.

The Rech Asserts Durnovo Will Be Left to Face the Douma's Wrath.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 20.—The Rech to-day says that Premier Witte is about to retire.

It understands that Count Witte will be appointed President of the Council of the Empire, leaving Interior Minister Durnovo "to face the wrath of the National Assembly."

No confirmation of the report is obtainable at the Premier's Chancellery, but on the contrary the possibility of his relinquishing his task pending the meeting of the National Assembly is not admitted. In fact, there is a disposition to treat Count Witte's reference to M. Kokovzoff, which created such a stir in the Council of the Empire yesterday, as an ironical thrust at the ambition of the ex-Minister of Finance.

It is also denied that the condition of Count Witte's health is desperate. He is more or less constantly a sufferer, but no alarming symptoms have developed.

DOG DROWNED AT SEA.

They Dropped His Dead Child Mistress Overboard and He Followed.

When the Anchor liner Columbia, in yesterday from Glasgow, was in mid-ocean a week ago to-day, Mary, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew MacDonald, died of acute seasickness. The little girl had a Scotch collie named Daisy. So great was the affection of the dog for her little mistress, that when the little body was dropped overboard, the dog leaped to the rail and plunged into the water after it.

The little girl was taken ill at a time

RUSSIAN HERE FOR FIREARMS.

Revolutionist Leader, Tchaykovsky, Says Great Events Are Impending.

The founder and father of the Social Revolutionary Party in Russia is here, his friends say. He is Nicholas Tchaykovsky, and he came here on the Umbria last week. His mission, as he explained it last night at 8 Fifth Avenue, surrounded by a group of American sympathizers, is to raise funds for munitions of war. He frankly admitted that he would get armament to Russia by hook or crook, but added, cautiously, that that didn't mean that "they will be shipped from here."

Mr. Tchaykovsky is a kindly looking, elderly man. He speaks English fluently and explained that he had been sent out by the Social Revolutionary party to act as an educator of America regarding conditions in Russia and the tenets of the Social Revolutionary Party, as well as for the purpose of raising funds, because he was a merchant and had a degree of business acumen, "something which is very rare in the party," he said.

The group of men surrounding Mr. Tschaykovsky added a little to their leader's discription of himself by explaining that he was the man who had been most active in supplying arms to the revolutionists in Russia during the recent uprisings, that he had been the organizer of the earliest groups of young revolutionists who had "carried the gospel of liberty to Russian peasants," among his earliest colleagues being Sophie Perovsky, Sergius Stepnak, Prince Kropotkin, and Catherine Breschkovsky, "the grandmother of the revolution."

"The Russian revolution is not dead," declared Mr. Tchaykovsky. "The revolutionists are perfecting their organization and making ready. Great events are to be expected. The army is getting tired of bearing the responsibility for the innumerable atrocities and murders committed by the Government in its name. The State Douma has no chance of success because it is completely compromised by the open packing of the elections. Most of the popular candidates who might give the appearance of its being a representative Assembly are being daily arrested, and either kept in prison or banished to the north.

"These arrests are made for no particular reasons except because the Government considers those arrested untrustworthy.

"The latest instruction of the Minister of the Interior to the local police directs them to remove all 'undesirable' individuals from the primaries, and to hang on the door a list of those candidates whose election will not be confirmed by the Government. The Russian people are learning that a representative Government under these conditions does not mean liberty, but is merely a farce."

Mr. Tchaykovsky told a number of stories of the bravery of the Revolutionists. One of them was the story of Engine Driver Ukohtomsky, who was shot at Lubertze for taking a party of Revolutionists out of Russia, through a hail of bullets fired at the train by the soldiery.

He said that the strongest sentiment against the peasants existed in the Balkan provinces, where the German land owners entertained mediaeval sentiments toward the peasants.

The building into which Mr. Tchaykovsky invited the reporters last evening is a newly appointed house. Mr. Tchaykovsky and his group of sympathizers were in an upper room. On the lower floor another group of persons were spending a social evening, most of them being women, among the party being J. G. Phelps Stokes and his wife.

TO AID BRITISH SHIPPING.

Bill Introduced Applying Regulations to Foreign Vessels.

LONDON, March 20.—The long-promised bill amending the Merchant Shipping acts so as to place British and foreign ships on the same footing was introduced in the House of Commons this afternoon by David Lloyd-George, President of the Board of Trade.

The bill, which undoubtedly will pass, makes the British regulations concerning the overloading, undermanning, and unseaworthiness of vessels, the storage of grain on board ships, the furnishing of adequate life-saving apparatus, and the control of emigration and passenger traffic, which heretofore have only applied to British ships, applicable to all foreign vessels using British ports.

Commenting on the measure, Mr. Lloyd-George referred to the demands for the exclusion of foreign seamen from British ships, and said he found that in 1904 there were 39,000 foreigners so employed against 176,000 British subjects. He feared that the exclusion of foreigners would ruin the mercantile marine, but under the new law foreigners hereafter must know sufficient English to understand words of command.

Continuing, Mr. Lloyd-George explained that the Government only proposed to impose on foreign ships the obligations imposed on British vessels for years, and where the Government was satisfied that the regulations of any particular country were substantially equal to the British regulations, the ships of that country would be exempt as a whole from the British rules in regard to loading.

DEWEY WANTS BIG SHIPS.

Two 18,000-Ton Battleships Should Be Authorized Now, He Says.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Great battleships like England's 18,000-ton Dreadnought are the great need of the American Navy, according to Admiral Dewey, who appeared before the House Committee on Naval Affairs to-day. At least two 18,000-ton vessels, with ten 12-inch guns each, should be authorized at once, he declared.

He would have these warships of American design and thinks we should be creative rather than imitative in developing the navy. Admiral Dewey also believes extensive experiments with submarine boats should be carried on. In case of attack by a foreign navy an American harbor of supply would be necessary, and submarines, in his opinion, are admirably adapted to prevent a foe from gaining such a harbor.

The Admiral did not favor additional cruisers or armored cruisers. Scout ships of the monitor type, he said, should be built.

Japanese Famine Fund $120,000.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Another contribution of $20,000 came to the State Department to-day through the Red Cross from The Christian Herald of New York on account of the Japanese famine fund. This makes the total contributions from that publication $100,000, and the total collections from all sources $120,000.

NEW COMPROMISE PLAN EVOLVED AT ALGECIRAS

But It Is Not Certain If France or Germany Will Accept It.

DELEGATES VERY WEARY

English Foreign Office Hears Something Important Will Be Done To-day—Hopeful News in Washington.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ALGECIRAS, March 20.—The mountain is again in travail and we, who are anxiously watching the proceedings of the Conference, must wait to see what it brings forth. It is hoped that a nouveau né may be presented to the delegates assembled at a plenary sitting on Thursday or Saturday, and it remains to be seen whether it will be able to solve the complicated problem described in my dispatch yesterday as having a disagreeable resemblance to squaring the circle.

In any case, it is pretty certain that this new development will considerably prolong the deliberations of the Conference.

A rumor was current last night that the Austro-Hungarian delegate would shortly put forward a new proposal according to which the eight ports which were to receive the new police organization should be reduced to four. The other four, I presume, would be left in their present lamentable condition.

When such a suggestion can be seriously considered the hopes of regenerating Morocco by the united diplomatic wisdom of the great and lesser European powers must be at a very low ebb. It is comforting to hear on good authority that this proposal will not be put forward at present.

ALGECIRAS, March 20.—A basis for the adjustment of the rival proposals of France and Germany before the Conference on Moroccan Reforms has not yet been found.

Henry White, the chief of the American delegation, is taking the lead among the neutral delegates in active endeavors to effect a settlement.

VIENNA, March 20.—Austria has instructed Count Welsersheimb, her delegate to the Algeciras Conference, to endeavor to arrange for a sitting of the conference on Thursday or Friday, when he is to put forward an amendment to Article 4 of the Austrian police proposals, providing for the appointment of a superior officer belonging to a neutral power, who is to be attached to the Diplomatic corps at Tangier and will exercise supervision over all eight Moroccan ports and the police force.

BERLIN, March 20.—The German representatives at Algeciras have been instructed by the Foreign Office here, provided France meets the German views on the question of the Moroccan Bank, to yield on the police question to the extent of giving up Casablanca as the headquarters of the Inspector-General, but retaining a neutral Inspectorship with real powers of control over the police.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The Washington Government feels assured, in the light of dispatches from Algeciras, that an agreement there is in sight.

How far Mr. White, the chief American delegate, has been responsible for the compromise proposal which it is believed will be adopted officials here will not say, but European diplomats have information that Mr. White was the author of the modified proposal.

ODELL'S FRIENDS WIN FIGHT.

Leader Moreland Defeated on the Rhinebeck Railway Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—With but one more vote than was necessary, after a scurrying for support, the friends of State Chairman Odell and Robert H. Hunter to-day got through the Assembly the Gray bill, which gives the franchise of Hunter's Rhinebeck and Rhinecliff Street Railway another year of life.

Senator Smith, friend of Leader Hunter of Dutchess, and of Lou Payn, accompanied by a number of Dutchess politicians, rushed over to the House, and aided by Merritt, Rogers, Wade, Apgar, and Yale, four of the Nixon old guard, sought votes. The change to the affirmative of two members put the measure through.

Majority Leader Moreland denounced such legislation. Chairman Hooker of the Committee on Railroads, who did his best to keep the bill in committee, aided Moreland, and was derided as "the Reform Chairman."

CANDLESTICKS NOT WORTH IT.

No More Lives to be Risked in Taking French Church Inventories.

PARIS, March 20.—Minister of the Interior Clemenceau, replying to a question in the Senate to-day, tersely expressed the Government view relative to the employment of force to carry out the inventories of Church properties.

"We intend to enforce the law," he said, "but the numbering of candlesticks in churches is not worth the risk of sacrificing a single human life."

This is construed as indicating that where resistance is offered other means will be adopted of attaining the end.

CRUISE FOR MRS. ROOSEVELT.

Will Take Children on the Mayflower to Cuba and Porto Rico.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by Archie, Quentin, and Miss Ethel, and possibly by Kermit, who is at Groton School, will leave Washington the latter part of next week for Florida. At some convenient port there, possibly Fernandina, they will go aboard the President's yacht Mayflower and cruise to the West Indies.

They will visit Cuba and Porto Rico, stopping at Havana and San Juan. It is expected that the party will be absent ten days or two weeks. The Mayflower left Washington yesterday for Fernandina.

Distinctive Silk Lined
Spring Overcoats for Men
At Fifteen Dollars

Before the Great Rise influenced the cost of production, most shops plumed themselves with a spring coat at Fifteen dollars, which each heralded as the Standard of Value. So did we.

Through the great law of averages we have been able to maintain our standard Fifteen-dollar Spring Overcoat at Fifteen dollars, despite the upward tendency of the cost of production. The coat is fashioned of Thibet in black or oxford, lined throughout and faced with a good serviceable silk or without the facing, if you prefer.

ALDERMEN WANT TO BUY SOUTH BROOKLYN FERRY

Recommend That the City Pay $950,000 for It.

COMPANY WANTS $1,100,000

Board Has No Power in the Matter, but the Resolution Causes a Wrangle Nevertheless.

After its usual Tuesday wrangle, the Board of Aldermen, by a vote of 43 to 21, adopted a recommendation yesterday that the Board of Estimate and the Sinking Fund Commission purchase the South Brooklyn Ferry at a price approximating $950,000. This was on the report of the Committee on Docks and Ferries, but it was conceded that the board was without power and could only "recommend" the measure, leaving the Board of Estimate and the Sinking Fund Commission to use its own discretion.

Alderman Linde of Brooklyn presented the report in his capacity of Chairman of the committee. The report said that the price of $1,100,000 asked by the ferry company for the property was too high, but fixed $950,000 instead as a right price. Of this sum the report apportioned $500,000 for the land at the Brooklyn terminal, $150,000 for the structures there, and $200,000 for the property at the Manhattan terminal. A further sum of $100,000 was to be allowed for the two boats would help Linde in his district, where the Brooklyn terminal of the ferry is.

Aldermen Meyers and Goodman fought the measure, holding that it was the work of an engineer to fix terms or to attempt to fix terms, and that it was none of the business of the Aldermen. The report was adopted over their protests and votes.

The board passed the resolution to allow the Bridge Commissioner to buy two automobiles for $6,500 without public letting.

Artistic Mirrors.

A MIRROR ARTISTICALLY FRAMED will often double the attractiveness of a room, and more and more people are realizing this fact and giving study to appropriate Mirrors in their homes.

Thoroughly artistic Mirrors cannot be found in every store, however. Here, for some years, we have devoted special attention to this branch of the business, making the Mirror Room a part of the Art Galleries and gathering in it a collection of Mirrors that are absolutely correct in adherence to period decoration and that are especially beautiful in themselves.

There are Colonial Mirrors in simple, dignified setting of mahogany or other dark woods. There are Mirrors of the French periods, graceful and dainty in gold. There are Florentine framed Mirrors, rich with wood carvings. The collection is large, distinguished and satisfying. The Mirrors possess that individuality which appeals to good taste and is unfailingly recognized.

We make a specialty also of Mirrors built to order to fit particular spaces or conditions, and this work, if intrusted to us, will not be as expensive as it is in other places.

Just now we are giving up one of the large galleries to the Mirror show. It is worth seeing.

CANAL AT SEA LEVEL WOULD PAY--WALLACE

Locks Involve Problems That No Human Mind Can Discount.

FAVORS CONTRACT DIGGING

Former Engineer of the Isthmian Project Gives His Conclusions Before Senate Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—John F. Wallace, the former Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal, again appeared before the Senate Canal Committee to-day, discussing the type of canal and problems connected with the methods of performing the work.

Senator Morgan endeavored to lead him into a statement calculated to refute some of the testimony of William Nelson Cromwell, but Mr. Wallace declined to say anything that might be considered personal.

The sum of his conclusions was that it was simply a job of digging. He urged a sea level canal, estimating the cost at not more than $100,000,000 increase over the lock type, and the extra time required at not more than three years as compared with a canal sixty-five feet above tide.

The lock canal, he said, involved a number of problems that no human calculation could undertake to discount. A sea-level canal could be operated at less cost, would have more traffic, avoided the danger of building dams where such structures could not be anchored to rock foundations, and in many ways would prove safer and more satisfactory.

Estimating that the canal would have the present tonnage passing through the Suez, the Panama Canal would have a revenue at $1 a ton of $10,000,000 a year, which would warrant the outlay for a sea-level canal. Reaching the administrative features of the project Mr. Wallace said:

"It is important to decide whether the canal shall be constructed under the present method or whether a contract for the work shall be made with a single firm. In the latter case the specifications should be of the most broad and general nature, leaving all detail engineering plans to the engineers of the contractor in order that he may have the fullest latitude in immediately meeting and overcoming such local difficulties as are sure to arise.

"After the contract is let there would be no reason for retaining a cumbersome governmental organization in reference to the work, for there is no doubt that the corps of engineers of the United States Army could efficiently supervise the contractor. All governmental functions, including policing and sanitation, could be performed easily under the Governor of the Canal Zone.

"In considering the additional time required for the construction of a sea level canal, the prompt and efficient utilization of the Panama Railroad is a matter of very great importance; for if the railroad is provided without unnecessary delay with the very best modern facilities and equipment, many of the advantages the world's commerce would derive from the completion of the canal will be afforded at once.

"The railroad should be completely separated from any steamship line at either end, as the canal itself will be, and the charge for transfer from ship to ship should be a flat rate per ton, regardless of classification, not exceeding $1 a ton.

"The road can be far better controlled by a single competent railway manager on the Isthmus, who would be under the direction of the general contractor in case the entire work was let under one contract. This arrangement would save a large annual expenditure, now apparently wasted on the Panama Railroad organization.

"It must be remembered, and it is well known to persons engaged in large transportation problems, that it is much easier to retain and regulate the movement of traffic along lines to which it has been accustomed than it is to regain it after it has been once diverted to new routes, and the committee ought not to overlook the competition of the Tehuantepec route, which is now being provided with every kind of facility for handling traffic from ship to cars and from cars to ship across that isthmus.

METZ WILL RAISE SALARIES.

But Will Watch Graft—With Tammany and Against Lofty Reform.

At a meeting of the Tammany Club of the Tenth Assembly District, at 42 Second Avenue, last night Controller Metz declared his position was well within the Tammany organization, and that he was opposed to municipal ownership. Of Borough President Coler he said:

"My friend in Brooklyn says I'm a pretty young man to be holding a big job, and that I know little about politics. I thank God I know very little about some kinds of politics, but when I think I'm right on a proposition I'm going to stand for it, and no amount of newspaper talk or professional hot air is going to change me.

"The city has to spend $65,000,000 in salaries each year. There are 50,000 employes, and half of them are only paid a small part of what they earn. In many departments the employes receive less than they did ten years ago. Only last week I raised the salaries of 200 employes, and I'm going to see that more salaries are raised. The men who handle the city's millions are certainly worth more than $1,200 a year. I'll open the front door to better conditions so far as salaries are concerned, but I'll watch the back door, where the graft jobs sneak in.

"I won't stand for any silk-stocking reformers around me. If these park schemers and open-air reformers had their way we'd be over in Jersey looking at the beautiful park they made of Manhattan. I favor parks and playgrounds and the like, but we can't have a Central Park in every block."

FOOD.

THE DOCTOR HABIT.
And How She Overcame It.

When well selected food has helped the honest physician place his patient in sturdy health and free from the "doctor habit," it is a source of satisfaction to all parties. A Chicago woman says:

"We have not had a doctor in the house during all the five years that we have been using Grape-Nuts food. Before we began, however, we had the 'doctor habit,' and scarcely a week went by without a call on our physician.

"When our youngest boy arrived, five years ago, I was very much run down and nervous, suffering from indigestion and almost continuous headaches. I was not able to attend to my ordinary domestic duties, and was so nervous that I could scarcely control myself. Under advice, I took to Grape-Nuts.

"I am now, and have been ever since we began to use Grape-Nuts food, able to do all my own work. The dyspepsia, headaches, nervousness, and rheumatism which used to drive me fairly wild have entirely disappeared.

"My husband finds that in the night work in which he is engaged, Grape-Nuts food supplies him the most wholesome, strengthening and satisfying lunch he ever took with him." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

HOUSE SITS ON REFORMERS.

Decides After Weighty Debate That It Needs Packing Boxes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The House gave an hour this afternoon to the momentous question of packing boxes. It came up in the discussion of the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill. When the paragraph appropriating $3,500 for these boxes was reached, Mr. Hardwick made the point of order that the sum named was an increase over that appropriated last year, and therefore changed existing law. This produced a profound discussion. Champ Clark led off.

"What I want to know," he began, "is why we can't have some boxes that are worth something. I never had a box yet that was worth the nails that were in it. They are measly little skimpy things, so limp that you have to jam your knee against the side to poke back the place where it bulges out so as to get the lock to work. They always have to be reinforced with rope, and then ten to one they burst before they had gone ten miles."

"Why can't we have as good boxes as the Senate?" demanded Mr. Butler of Pennsylvania.

"Well, the way to do it," retorted Clark, "is to go to the Senate, and some of us here haven't been able to get there yet."

"What color are we going to have this year?" eagerly asked Mr. Mann.

"It ought to be blue," replied Clark. "Last year it was red and the year before white."

"Last year we had cedar boxes," explained Mr. Littauer, "and before that they were pine. The Senate pays $975 for material and employs three carpenters at $900 a year each. That is $3,755 for 90 boxes. We had $3,000 last year for 391 boxes, and the gentleman from Georgia has made the point of order against raising it to $3,500 this year."

The Chairman, Judge Olmsted, ruled that inasmuch as the box-making was already in progress, the point of order was not well taken, and so the provision of the bill stood.

Then Mr. Hay of Virginia moved to strike out the paragraph entirely on the ground that the boxes were not needed. Butler supported this view, but the votes showed the House against him, and he called for a division. Eight men rose and were counted. When Judge Olmsted announced the result, Butler threw up his hands.

"Only eight reformers in the House," he cried. "Well, I'm through."

So the House will have the packing boxes.

BURGLARS GOT LITTLE BOOTY.

Stole Child's Trinkets at Broker Smith's, but Missed Jewels.

Two burglars broke into the home of Augustine J. Smith, broker, of 49 Wall Street, who lives at 329 Lexington Avenue, early yesterday morning. In the house is a safe containing about $3,000 worth of jewelry. The two cracksmen forced an entrance, but they didn't get to the safe, and, after trying to surmount innumerable obstacles, including a surprise party, in which Mr. Smith was the chief actor, they pocketed $20 worth of trinkets and escaped.

The burglars broke in through the rear and entered the room occupied by Mr. Smith's six-year-old daughter, Edith. She was awakened by their footsteps and sat up in bed.

"Is that you, papa?" she asked as the thieves trod softly about the dark room.

"Yes, little one," replied one of the burglars in a soothing whisper, "this is papa. Go back to sleep baby, and I won't disturb you again."

Miss Edith returned to her pillow, and the burglars, after pocketing a stickpin and some other small jewelry belonging to her, started out of her room toward the safe. Just as they got into the hallway they heard a growl. Miss Smith's little spaniel Sport was awake.

"Pretty doggie," whispered one of the burglars, snapping his fingers gently in the direction of the interruption. "Come, doggie; nice doggie."

"B-r-r-r-r!" replied the invisible Sport. Then he began to bark. The barking awoke Mr. Smith, who overheard the two men trying to pacify Sport. He got out of bed and ran into the hall to the telephone. Softly lifting the receiver, he waited for Central to reply. There was no response, and finally he yelled:

"Central, give me Police Headquarters, quick! There are burglars in the house!" Central didn't answer.

"Quick, Central," persisted Mr. Smith, "I want 3100 Spring immediately—"

Mr. Smith's efforts to call the police were interrupted by the burglars who broke for the stairs.

"Cut it out, old chap," cried one of them as they leaped down, "you won't get no answer there. We fixed that game when we came in."

Mr. Smith dropped the telephone and ran after them. He was unarmed, but he ran fast. When he got to the bottom of the stairway both men jumped through the front door and out on Lexington Avenue. Mr. Smith wasn't attired for an open air chase, so he closed the door, turned on the lights, and made an examination of the premises.

He found that the telephone wires had been cut. The safe was intact, and Miss Edith's jewel box was the only thing which had suffered.

TEWKSBURY OUT ON BAIL.

Wife's British Lawyer Meanwhile Declares She Has Been Deserted.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—Lewis G. Tewksbury was released from Moyamensing Prison to-day on $1,000 cash bail, pending argument on a writ of habeas corpus. The bail was deposited by Mr. Tewksbury's attorney, John R. K. Scott, who acted for men said to be interested in the plan to purchase the site of the old Bellevue Hotel.

Mr. Tewksbury went directly to the Bellevue-Stratford. He talked there about his arrest, and declared that the entire proceeding was a scheme to keep him from carrying out a real estate deal which had brought him to Philadelphia.

"Just as soon," said Mr. Tewksbury, "as certain men in New York had heard that I had obtained an option upon the old Bellevue property—an option which I hold, by the way—they started to embarrass me. I suppose no one cared for the property until it was known I wanted it. The plan to hamper me was carried out in that it delayed my plans in consummating a real estate deal, but I cannot refrain from saying that the deal which brought me to Philadelphia has been but blocked, to say the least."

LONDON, March 20.—Violet Tewksbury, wife of Lewis G. Tewksbury, the financier of New York, who was arrested in Philadelphia on March 18 on a bench warrant issued in New York in 1903 following an indictment for grand larceny, appears anxious to return to England from France, where she was recently arrested on an extradition warrant. Her attorney in the High Court of Justice to-day complained of the delay in the extradition proceedings. He said Tewksbury had deserted his wife in France after the couple fled from England in December. The attorney applied for a writ of habeas corpus, but the court refused it on the ground that the writ would be ineffective in France.

Lewis G. Tewksbury failed in 1900, leaving debts aggregating about $400,000. He went to England, and when his first wife, Mary Mills Tewksbury, got a divorce from him, he married Mrs. Violet Butler, the divorced wife of Guy Butler, an Indian fighter. In November last Mr. and Mrs. Tewksbury were arrested in London charged with passing worthless checks, and were released on $1,000 bail each. They failed to surrender themselves on Dec. 4, and their bail was forfeited. Tewksbury is under arrest in Philadelphia, awaiting requisition papers from New York on a charge of swindling here.

SNOW GRAFT THE LIMIT, DECLARES MR. BRADLEY

Contractor Says He's Lost at Least 5,000 Shovels

AND $40,000 IN FAKE TICKETS

Sun Helps to Clear Streets of the Latest Snowfall—Work to be Over by Sunday.

With 3,500 trucks and 12,000 men William Bradley, snow contractor, cleared the snow from about 30 miles of city streets yesterday and last night. The sun did some of the work, the Spring warmth of its rays reducing heaps of the "beautiful" to ugly masses of slush.

Broadway, from the Battery to Fifty-ninth Street was cleared by nightfall, and Fifth Avenue from the Washington Arch to the Park, was also clean, and in the afternoon the 'bus line resumed its steady jog on schedule time. The line had been held up by the snow and the horses used in the service got a little holiday.

A large gang of men was kept shoveling all day in the financial district, and the slush was pretty well cleared from the streets around the money marts. The Bowery was fairly well cleaned by sunset, and the gangs were shifted to Seventh and Eighth Avenues and the more important of the intersecting streets. The street railroad companies helped in the work, and their territory was quickly put in shape.

The warmth of the sun yesterday was the only good luck the snow contractor has had this year. Mr. Bradley says that there is no chance of his breaking even on the contract for this Winter.

"Last year," he said, "we moved $2,000,000 worth of snow. But this year we have moved only $97,000 worth of the blamed stuff in this borough, and $60,000 worth in Brooklyn. At that, we have been bunkoed out of $40,000 by dishonest foremen. We got the double cross from the weather man and the double cross from our own employes.

"Say, young man, there is plenty of talk about graft in contracts, but the snow graft is the limit. Why, in the matter of shovels I'm getting grafted hard. I would be willing to bet that in the junkshops of New York there are now at least 5,600 shovels I paid for at 75 cents per shovel.

"They represent at least 25,000 drinks that have burned paths down the throats of 'bums,' who have applied to me for work, have got shovels, and have never shoveled unless it was necessary to shovel their way into the junkshops, where they could get 25 cents on my property. I estimate that I lose from 5,000 to 6,000 shovels a year by theft.

"Here's a shoveler's ticket with bum punches in it. I pay the men 20 cents an hour, and when they can buy a punch or borrow one they let the foreman punch it once for himself and then punch the ticket full of holes after one hour's work. That's frenzied finance all right."

Mr. Bradley has had so much dishonesty to contend with among his laborers that he is now employing experts in the handling of the pay tickets, young women who count rapidly and can detect the slightest irregularity in any of them as they count. The tickets are engraved to guard against forgeries. Yesterday he had thirty detectives at work among his men trying to land a case against the swindlers who have been selling drivers' tickets in bunches of 100 at $10 a bunch, the purchasers cashing them. He said that he had every hope of landing the biggest of the operators in this swindle. The $40,000 loss has gone in this way.

By only twenty-four hours New York missed a hopeless outlook in the matter of clean streets. Bradley gave up the season last week, thinking that there would not be another storm. He sold 250 teams, and had decided to close up his contract on Thursday last. On Wednesday he sent out trucks to collect the shovels, and these were busy when the storm started. In another day he would have been absolutely without men and tools for a snow fight.

"By Sunday," said Mr. Bradley yesterday, "we will have New York clean, and the hardest Winter on a snow contractor will be over—provided, of course, that the unexpected does not happen again."

Including the pay for trucks, shovelers, foremen, and others actually engaged in street work the pay roll for yesterday, which Mr. Bradley had to "O. K." came to between $50,000 and $60,000.

58 New Spring Regals Ready to Try On

All the 114 Regal stores now have the new Spring styles—58 of them. This is a greater variety of new styles than most stores can offer you—new and old together!

One good thing about buying Regals:—You don't have to take anybody's word for what they are made of. The Regal is the only shoe that proves before you buy.

But we'll assure you this beforehand: Your Regals will be made of exactly the same grade of leather that goes into the best of the standard six-dollar shoes.

If you don't say your Regals are $2 better than their price, you certainly must have found somewhere a better $6 shoe than we ever saw.

$3.50 The cost of raw hides and leather has been rapidly advancing for two years and you now have good reason to be suspicious of any shoe offered you at the same price as last year until satisfactory proof of its quality has been given you. We maintained our uniform $3.50 price for all Regals as long as possible, but there is no longer any possibility of a lower price of leather and consequently there has been just one of two things for us to do: Either to stop making some lines of Regal shoes or else charge a price increased sufficiently to balance their increased cost. We have built into every pair of Regal shoes the best materials suited to that particular style and we shall never change that policy. We have anticipated our needs for some time to come, and can still supply you with many styles at the $3.50 price. We guarantee that in every Regal model you will get absolutely the best materials suited to that style. $4.00

Safety in Foods.

There has never been a time since food became a matter of purchase, rather than of pursuit, when the unwary buyer ran more danger than now from adulteration and false labeling.

Stuff is sold labeled with phrases that fairly drip sweetness and purity—yet which in actual character runs all the way from mere trash to downright poison. There are as many as a dozen lying forms of labels on canned salmon alone. June packed butter is freely advertised and sold in this city as "Fresh Made Creamery." Cold storage eggs, a year old, are advertised and sold as "Fresh Laid."

We have the largest Grocery, Meat and Delicatessen business done under one roof in the world.

We have won the business by giving, first of all, PURE FOODS; second, by giving them at LOW PRICES.

We NEVER sell "seconds" in anything meant to eat. We NEVER handle inferior grades under false labels. We protect you against adulteration and dilution with the whole power and ability of a very large force of carefully selected buyers, life-trained in detecting frauds in foods.

If you buy your foods here, you're safe.

And yet, our prices are the lowest in town—often lower than those asked for "seconds," "culls" and adulterated goods.

Some examples:

Sugar Corn. SUGAR-LOAF BRAND Extra Fancy EVERGREEN. It's all corn—very tender and fine flavor. Doz., Regular 12c. can, 90c. 8c.

VILLAGE BLACKSMITH WINS IN NORTH PELHAM

Cornered the Sleighs and Is Elected President.

A TIE IN PELHAM MANOR

Rockefeller Employes Elect a Candidate in North Tarrytown Whom They Opposed Last Year.

James Reilly, the village blacksmith of North Pelham, having cornered all the sleighs in the village, carried the day for the Municipal Ownership ticket in the village election yesterday. It was one of the most interesting contests in Westchester County, which had village elections in every corner yesterday.

The Municipal Ownership people elected their whole ticket, defeating the Republican and Democratic nominees by a good plurality. Mr. Reilly was elected by a plurality of 26; W. G. Barker was chosen Trustee by a plurality of 43; D. Paul O'Flynn was chosen Treasurer and James Lyon Collector.

In Pelham, which is one of the smallest villages in the United States, only 84 votes were cast, and T. Le Claire Jacques, former manager of the Murray Hill Hotel, was elected President. In Pelham Manor Lewis W. Francis, the Republican candidate, and C. H. Pond, the Prohibition nominee, who is connected with J. Pierpont Morgan's banking house, each received 39 votes for President.

The tie caused considerable excitement, and candidates will draw lots to see which shall take the seat. At Pelham John M. Dey, candidate for Treasurer, died on the eve of election. Mr. Dey was for forty years associate editor of The New York Evangelist.

In Bronxville the well-to-do residents voted down the plan to change the name of the village to Gramatan.

Alfred Marshall, yachtsman and whip, was chosen Trustee of Mamaroneck without opposition. Mr. Marshall is a brother of Wilson Marshall, owner of the yacht Atlantic, which won the Kaiser's Cup.

Mr. Marshall, in order to get out a big vote, hired a large number of sleighs, and also had rigs from his stables at Marleton Hall, his country seat on Orient Point, pressed into service to carry the voters to the polls. Daniel Warren was re-elected President of Mamaroneck, and a proposition to spend $150,000 for local improvements was carried by a large majority.

Isaac W. Turner, the New York "lodging house king," was successful in Mount Kisco, defeating his opponent, Townsend Matthews, for Village President, 122 to 6. Mr. Turner was running on a citizens' ticket which favored local improvements. The taxpayers of the town voted to spend $3,000 to build a sewer system with the understanding that New York City will construct a disposal works to be used in connection with the sewers. The city has agreed to build the disposal works in order to protect the Mount Kisco River from further pollution.

In Pleasantville W. H. Jahne was elected Village President without opposition. A proposition to spend $70,000 for village improvements was carried.

Although John Wirth, the North Tarrytown butcher, defeated John D. Rockefeller's candidate for Village President last year, the Rockefeller faction supported Mr. Wirth to-day, and he was re-elected by 140 plurality over Samuel Thorn Horton, Assistant Warden of the county jail.

Mr. Rockefeller, it is said, approved of the administration of Mr. Wirth, and word was received from Mr. Rockefeller to get all his men to vote. As a result, just before the polls closed about 200 Italians and other men employed on the Rockefeller place at Pocantico Hills were taken to the polling place in big sleighs and lumber box wagons, and every one of them cast a ballot for Mr. Wirth, which made him a winner.

It has been Mr. Rockefeller's custom to visit his estate on election day, but the desire of subpoena servers to see him is said to have kept him away to-day.

In Dobbs Ferry the trolley ticket, which was put in the field for the purpose of obtaining a trolley road on Broadway, was beaten by the rich men, who voted against the scheme. Lyman C. French was chosen President on the Independent Citizens' improvement ticket.

There was only one ticket in the field at Briarcliff Manor, all the retiring officials running for re-election. The candidates were Walter W. Law, Jr., for President, J. Sidney Baylis, Trustee for two years, and T. Everett Bishop for Treasurer.

COOK BURNS HER RIVAL.

Lies in Wait in Male Attire for Her Fellow-Artist.

Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, saw melodramatic doings last night when the cook of No. 185 put on some of her brother's clothes and lay in wait for the cook of No. 187. Both cooks are of the same dark hue.

A man was at the bottom of it—the man being Fannie Fitzgerald's husband, husband of the cook in No. 185. This man is the butler in No. 187. His wife heard that he was unduly attentive to Lucy Hubbard, the cook in the same house.

She decided on immediate action. Dressing for the part, she lurked in the shadows for Lucy Hubbard to come along. She had a solution of lye in a flask. When Lucy walked around the corner of Pierrepont Street the bottle of lye was smashed in her face. She moaned and fell.

A policeman was turning the corner behind her. He saw the fell deed and saw the stubby legs of a supposed colored man twinkling up the street. He caught the fugitive easily and locked her up in the Adams Street Station.

The unfortunate Lucy Hubbard was severely burned. One of her eyes is in a bad way, but the other was pronounced all right by Dr. Moore of the Brooklyn Hospital. The news has yet to be broken to Fannie Fitzgerald's husband.

FORMOSA TOWNS DESTROYED.

Damage by Earthquake $45,000,000—Several Thousand Dead.

LONDON, Wednesday, March 21.—According to The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Tokio, it is now estimated that several thousand people were killed by the earthquake in Formosa.

The whole island was shaken from early morning on Saturday until late at night, the shocks being continuous. On the same day slight shocks were felt in Japan, and from Saturday night until the following morning five distinct shocks occurred at Kumamoto.

Telegrams from Formosa state that the prosperous towns of Datiyo, Raishiko, and Shinko were completely destroyed. At Kagi alone 2,000 natives and seven Japanese were killed. The Government departments are transacting business in the open air or in hastily constructed sheds. At Datiyo 600 bodies have already been recovered from the open fields, to which the people fled only to succumb to their injuries.

At a rough estimate the damage amounts to $45,000,000.

FOR PEACE WITH MURPHY.

Mutual Friends of Mayor and Leader Are Working to That End.

Mutual friends of Charles F. Murphy and Mayor McClellan were responsible last night for reports that the Mayor and the Tammany leader might yet come together and agree to co-operate again in political matters until the end of the Mayor's new term.

Some of these mutual friends have been making efforts to restore the old-time harmony between the two, and the Tammany General Committee meeting of Monday night, when the organization took a firm stand against Socialism and municipal operation of public utilities except as a last resort, was pointed to as an evidence that there was no truth in the reports that Murphy may make an alliance with the Hearst forces.

While efforts to bring about peace between Murphy and McClellan have hardly passed the "sounding-out" stage, there is believed to be some ground for the opinion that peace may be restored. The Mayor has frequently told his friends that, politically speaking, he is "lonesome," and would like to feel again the warm support of his organization friends.

Associates of Mr. Murphy, on the other hand, concede that the position of the Tammany leader would be stronger if the organization felt that he had the goodwill and active friendship of the Mayor instead, as now, of knowing that there is warfare between them and that the powers of the executive are directed against the ruling power in Fourteenth Street.

Whether or not peace comes out of the present situation, however, the friends of the two men are working for it, and the situation gives at least some sign that the efforts may prove successful.

As a further indication that the opposition to Murphy's leadership has been vanishing in the last few weeks it became known last night that the Democratic Club had practically abandoned the proposition to nationalize the organization and rename it the National Democratic Club. This means that the club will continue as an adjunct to Tammany and its leadership, as has been the case ever since Richard Croker rescued it from obscurity and made it a Fifth Avenue organization.

WED AT THE UNDERTAKER'S.

Lawyer, Bookkeeper, and Their Brides Saw Nothing Strange in That.

Two couples went to Patrick McDonnell's undertaking "parlor," 374 Seventh Avenue, at 8 o'clock last night to get McDonnell, who is also a notary public, to marry them, but he was so busy with his regular duties in the back room that he simply couldn't perform the double-jointed ceremony at that time. They weren't put out by that so much, and said they would be back.

At 9 o'clock they came back. Patrick O'Donnell having done full justice to the body in the back room, prepared to do the same, as he saw it, to the four in the front room. He noted that their licenses were all right, asked the proper questions, and, having received the proper answers, said that they were husbands and wives.

Jerry Sullivan assisted. Just what part Jerry had in the marital operations is not clearly known, but as he assists Patrick McDonnell in the business, and as Mr. McDonnell himself told the reporters later that Jerry assisted, why, then, he must have had something to do with it.

The couples thus wedded comprised George Beauchamp, a bookkeeper, who married Miss Eva Stolinska of Buffalo; and Roscoe C. Nelson, a lawyer, who married Miss Mary E. McCarthy of Canada. It appeared from the conversation at the undertaker's that the two men have been roommates at 228 West Twenty-fifth Street, that the two girls ran away from their homes to marry, and that the two roommates decided to make a double wedding. Each of the husbands handed Patrick McDonnell 50 cents, and one of them offered a reporter a cigar. They were happy couples.

A POCKETFUL OF WATCHES.

"For My Aunt," Said Meagin, but J. Kayser Says They're His.

Detective Sergeant Barry, one of the many Police Headquarters men Inspector McLaughlin of the Detective Bureau has had patrolling the residential sections of the city recently, was walking at Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue yesterday afternoon, when he met John Meagin of 351 West Fiftieth Street.

Meagin had recently been in "the line" at Police Headquarters, and Barry, seeing that his pockets were bulging and that a man with him carried a paper box under his arm, questioned them.

"What's all this you've got in your pockets?" asked Barry, feeling Meagin's coat.

"It's some stuff I'm going to take around to my aunt," replied Meagin. Just then the younger man broke away and ran down Columbus Avenue, and Meagin was about to follow him, when Barry grabbed him and took him to Headquarters.

Meagin's pockets contained four gold watches, a pair of opera glasses, and some silverware, all of which articles were identified later by J. Kayser of 72 West Eighty-ninth Street, who said they had been stolen from his home yesterday forenoon.

Meagin was locked up, and last night Barry, while in front of the Majestic Theatre, caught sight of the youth who had run away. He ran again, but the Detective Sergeant captured him at Fifty-eighth Street and Broadway. He said he was William Davis of 121 Erie Street, Jersey City.

IDENTIFIED AS DYNAMITER.

Prisoner Also Said to Have Figured in Barrel Murder Mystery.

SCRANTON, Penn., March 20.—Paul Trapi and Giuseppe Cagliano, the Italians arrested last night while marked money was being handed to them by Giovanio Fazio, a macaroni manufacturer whom, it is alleged, they had repeatedly threatened, and whose store was dynamited on New Year's eve, had another hearing before Alderman Kasson to-day and were put under additional bail, making $9,000 bail for each man.

At the hearing the young daughter of Fazio swore that Trapi was the man whom she saw throw the bomb which wrecked her father's store. Fazio himself swore that Trapi and Cagliano came to his store no fewer than a dozen times after the explosion, demanding money to use their influence to prevent further explosions and the death of himself and his family.

Trapi, who has a number of aliases, is said by the police and Capt. Walsh of the United States Secret Service to be one of the men implicated in the "barrel mystery" in New York, in which a wealthy Buffalo Italian was robbed and murdered and his body packed in a barrel.

STATEHOOD FIGHT TO-DAY.

Thirty Insurgents Against Cannon's Plan to Get Bill to Conference.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The Statehood bill will be taken up in the House to-morrow under a special rule, the adoption of which will be the necessary step by the House to get the bill into conference committee. Forty minutes' debate will be divided between the friends and opponents of the rule before a vote.

Thirty insurgent Republicans met in Representative Babcock's committee room to-day and agreed to stand together in opposition to Speaker Cannon's plan to send the bill to conference. The insurgents say they favor sending the amended bill to conference, but will not support any rule designed to shut off debate and prevent the House from instructing its conference members. Babcock, Mondell, and other insurgent leaders insist that the Speaker's plan will railroad the bill to conference in such a way that the House members must insist on the bill practically as it was framed and passed by the House.

STANDARD OIL MOVE COUNTERED BY HADLEY

Missouri Prosecutor Acts on Hearing of Republic's Absorption.

CONCERNS CAN'T QUIT STATE

H. Clay Pierce, Head of the Waters-Pierce Company, Absent from Court on Plea of Illness.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, March 20.—On advices from Indianapolis to-day that the Standard Oil Company had sought to evade the prosecution instituted in Missouri by absorbing the Republic Oil Company, Attorney General Hadley instructed Secretary of State Schwanger not to allow either of the companies to withdraw from the State.

Telegrams from Indianapolis stated that the Standard had taken over all the business of the Republic Company, which it was admitted by counsel yesterday was owned chiefly by the Standard officials, and closed the offices.

"If the Standard hopes by this move to stop prosecution in Missouri," said Attorney General Hadley, "it is going to be sorely disappointed. The absorption will have no effect whatever on the prosecution in Missouri. The move was not unexpected, but it will prove abortive."

H. Clay Pierce, head of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, failed to appear as a witness this morning, and sent word that he was ill. Commissioner Anthony refused to accept the unsupported statement of the counsel and a certificate by Dr. Young H. Bond, and, at the instigation of Attorney General Hadley, the physician was brought in to take the stand.

He testified that Mr. Pierce was sick in bed, suffering from an acute attack of tonsilitis, accompanied by pulmonary trouble and could not speak above a whisper. He averred that should Mr. Pierce leave his bed to-day he would be in great danger of pneumonia. On this presentation Mr. Pierce was excused until to-morrow morning.

Charles M. Adams, Secretary-Treasurer of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, admitted under the questioning of Attorney General Hadley that the Standard held a majority of the stock of the Waters-Pierce Company. Adams was made to produce the old stock book of the company prior to its reincorporation, in May, 1900. He traced the ownership of the stock from the time of its incorporation, and was forced to admit that a majority of the stock had been in control of Standard interests since June, 1882.

He testified that Pierce held 1,250 shares until the reincorporation, when his holdings were increased to 3,996 shares. In June, 1904, Pierce transferred 2,747 shares to M. M. Van Buren, son-in-law of James D. Archbold, of the Standard Oil Company. A receipt for the dividends on the 2,747 shares, dated June 27, 1904, was produced by the witness.

Another receipt showing that a dividend on 3,996 shares, amounting to $99,850, was paid to H. Clay Pierce on June 16, 1904, was submitted in evidence. Adams was asked if Pierce did not pay Van Buren his portion of the dividends out of this money, but he did not know.

Adams's mind was much clouded and he "did not know," "did not remember," or "had forgotten" when any questions were put to him that the Attorney General could not dig out of the stock book himself.

Son Follows Father's Crime.

George Crowley, 22 years old, was found guilty in Special Sessions yesterday of assaulting 14year-old Margaret Reuning of 651 Elton Avenue, the Bronx. He is the son of a former police Sergeant who was sentenced some years ago to seventeen years' imprisonment for a crime identical in nature and similar in circumstances to that recently committed by the son.

BINGHAM MAKES CHANGES.

Inspector Titus Placed in Charge of the Bureau of Supplies.

Police Commissioner Bingham announced yesterday that he had transferred Inspector George F. Titus from the Fifth Inspection District to the Bureau of Repairs and Supplies, at Police Headquarters.

Gen. Bingham made it plain that Titus had been put in charge of the bureau because of the confidence the Commissioner has in the Inspector. In police circles it is believed that this bureau offers the greatest opportunity for graft of any department of the police.

When Commissioner Bingham became head of the department he placed Deputy Commissioner Mack in charge of that bureau, but relieved him of the duties six weeks later. Since then Sergt. Richard Enright has been in charge

Commissioner Bingham has placed Capt. Edward Gallagher of the Flatbush Avenue Station, Brooklyn, in Titus's old berth.

Commissioner Bingham announced yesterday that the Brooklyn Bridge Station had been placed under the supervision of Inspector Flood, in charge of the Traffic Squad. This was done because of the good work done by Inspector Flood in regulating the bridge nuisances when he was in charge of the First Inspection District.

WALTHAM WATCHES.
Fifty years ago the founders of the watch company of Waltham, Mass., revolutionized watchmaking. The American Waltham Watch Company make and sell more watch movements than any other concern in the world.
The "Riverside" movement is particularly recommended—made in all sizes.

Every hundred cigars that I sell are subject to approval.

Here is something about my way of doing business that you may not know. Out of every hundred cigars that I sell the buyer has the privilege of smoking ten at my risk and returning the balance if they are not satisfactory.

This applies not only to the first hundred, but to the second hundred or the fiftieth hundred.

That ought to prove that the quality of my cigars isn't let down after I have secured a customer, and that the first hundred cigars I send a man are not especially prepared "bait." It is to my interest to have my cigars uniform in quality and I make the fiftieth box as good as the first that you buy.

MY OFFER IS: I will, upon request, send one hundred Shivers' Panatela Cigars on approval, to a reader of The Times, express prepaid. He may smoke ten cigars and return the remaining ninety at my expense if he is not pleased with them; if he is pleased, and keeps them, he agrees to remit the price, $5.00, within ten days.

The fillers of these cigars are Clear Havana of good quality—not only clear, but long, clean Havana—no shorts or cuttings are used. They are hand made, by the best of workmen. The making has much to do with the smoking qualities of a cigar. The wrappers are genuine Sumatra.

In ordering please enclose business card or give personal references, and state whether mild, medium or strong cigars are desired.

GETS FRANCHISES BACK FOR PHILADELPHIA

Mayor Weaver Also Arranges a Revolution in Transportation.

RAPID TRANSIT IN 3 YEARS

Subways and Elevated Lines to be Built and the Way Opened for Competition.

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—Mayor Weaver to-day met the officers of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, which controls all the railway facilities of the city, and practically concluded an agreement by which the system of transportation will be revolutionized and the city recover millions of dollars' worth of franchises. Certain legal forms must be complied with, the Mayor says, before he will formally attach his signature.

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company agrees to complete within three years subways under several streets in the business centre of the city, and an elevated railway from the southern section of Philadelphia to Frankford, in the extreme northeastern section of the city.

The company surrenders franchises for surface lines on Broad Street, for two elevated lines, which opens the way for future competition, and the franchise for a subway under Chestnut Street, which, it is believed, will permit the Philadelphia & Western Railroad, a new company, to construct its proposed line from West Philadelphia through the heart of the city to the Delaware River, connecting on the west with its road to Parkersburg, Penn.

At the last meeting of Councils Mayor Weaver sent a letter to that body containing such a proposition from the Philadelphia & Western Railway Company.

While the old Republican organization under the leadership of ex-State Insurance Commissioner I. W. Durham was in control of the political situation here the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company obtained franchises which precluded the possibility of competition.

The company's failure to complete the Market Street subway within the stipulated time compelled the corporation to seek an extension of three years in which to finish the work. It was within the Mayor's power to hold up this work and, supported by the various business men's associations, he procured the concessions stated by agreeing to grant the extension of time.

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company will also pay to the city $400,000 in cash, to be used in abolishing Philadelphia & Reading Railway grade crossings.

GRIFENHAGEN'S BOMB.

Caused a Scare, but Was Only a Basket of Fruit.

Alderman Grifenhagen and his family were greatly excited last night by the presence of a supposed infernal machine in the house. About 7:30, just as the Grifenhagens were sitting down to dinner at their home, 522 West 149th Street, there was a loud ring at the door bell. The maid found two Italians there. Neither of them could talk enough English to explain what they wanted. They carried a large basket, which seemed to be very heavy. This they deposited on the doorstep with the simple statement:

"Mista Grifenhaga, fina man."

The men then left, and the maid hurried into the dining room to tell the Alderman of the strange gift. When he heard that it had been left by Italians who had immediately vanished he was not over anxious to open the basket. Stories of bombs that look all right on the outside have been going around lately, and no one likes to take chances in a matter of that kind.

The police of the West 152d Street Station were notified, and two detectives and a patrolman arrived. The detectives suggested the customary police watercure method of throwing the thing in the bathtub. But the patrolman said:

"These bombs, understand, go off at a certain time. If they don't shoot then, they will if you drop 'em on the sidewalk. But no one ever heard of one of 'em blowing anyone up if he took a knife to it, did they? Well, here goes."

With that the patrolman poked the basket with a penknife. When he drew out the blade he started.

"It's wet!" he cried. "What d'ye think of that?"

This startling discovery puzzled all for a few moments, but the thin stream of liquid that began to trickle down the steps looked so very innocent that Alderman Grifenhagen took the cover off the basket.

Two dozen juicy Florida oranges, several bunches of grapes, and a plentiful supply of bananas met the astonished gaze of the policemen. They departed at once, while the maid took the fruit inside.

EAGLETON KEEPS HIS SEAT.

Assembly Committee Finds He Was Not Fraudulently Elected.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—The Assembly Committee on Privileges and Elections to-day reported that it had decided that the claim of George S. Husch, Republican and Municipal Ownership, to the seat now held by John T. Eagleton of the Third New York District was not proved; that Eagleton had not been elected through fraud, as alleged, and that therefore Eagleton was entitled to hold his seat until Dec. 31. Both Republicans and Democrats applauded the reading of the report. Eagleton, though a minority member, is very popular.

The contest of Husch against Eagleton was the first of half a dozen that the committee has to pass upon. As the plurality of the sitting member in most other cases is less than Eagleton's it would not be surprising if in one or more of the other contests, nearly all of which were instituted by lieutenants of W. R. Hearst, sitting members were unseated.

TRUST COMPANY BILL PASSES.

Assembly Unanimously Adopts the Wainwright Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—The Assembly today unanimously passed the Trust Company Reserve bill, introduced by Mr. Wainwright, which requires trust companies in first-class cities to carry in reserve 15 per cent. of their deposits. One-third is to consist of cash, another third of United States or New York State bonds, and the remaining third of money on deposit subject to call in any bank or trust company having a capital of $200,000.

Anti-Docking Bill Passes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—Averill of Monroe put his anti-horse docking bill through the Assembly to-day by a vote of 91 to 17. He made an appeal for the horse, describing oratorically the cruelty of the practice of docking.

MANAGER FOR THE STORK.

Pretense of an East Side Doctor, Whose Victims Are Prosecuting.

Two women from the east side, who swore they had paid money to Julius Benjamin of 343 East Seventeenth Street to coax the stork to their homes and had been disappointed, appeared in the Yorkville Court yesterday as complainants against the "doctor," who was charged with practicing medicine without a license.

Benjamin is being prosecuted by the New York County Medical Society. John S. Cooper, who appeared as counsel for that organization, said in court that in the last twelve years, the "doctor" had been receiving from $100 to $150 a day in two-dollar and one-dollar fees paid by east side women without any return. Harold Spielberg, who appeared for Benjamin, said he had received numerous offers from Christian Scientists to appear in court and testify that the treatments given by his client were in accordance with the doctrines of their cult. H. Cornell Wilson, Chairman of the Publication Committee of the Christian Scientists in the State, was in court but was not called to the stand.

Hyman Goldfarb, a real estate dealer of 254 Seventh Street, who is one of the complainants against Benjamin, will tell his story to-day when the hearing is to be resumed. In a complaint filed with Magistrate Moss yesterday, Goldfarb swears that he and his wife wanted a girl baby. He called upon Benjamin with his wife. The doctor told him that he was too sinful to see his hopes fulfilled.

"You must buy a silver-handled whiskbroom," the doctor told him. "When you get it bring it to me and I will brush your sins away."

Goldfarb swears he did as directed. The "doctor" brushed him industriously for several days at $2 a session, he says, and finally told him that he thought it would be all right. The Godfarb hopes were not realized. The whiskbroom will be produced to-day as evidence.

Benjamin himself did not seem very much concerned, and did seem a little amused when his former patients gave their testimony. He is a man of middle size, probably fifty years old, with jet black whiskers, a face of ascetic whiteness, and brown eyes.

The first witness was Mrs. Bessie Hyman of 105 Fifth Street. She told of many visits to the doctor and of the payment of fees amounting to $100. She was followed by Mrs. Sophie Jacobowitz of 233 Seventh Street, who said she had gone to the doctor for six months. He had given her six small pills, and she had given him $150. Describing her visits she said:

"Well, he looked at me and said, 'Good morning. How do you feel? That will be a dollar, please. Now you can go. Come back to-morrow.' Then Ella Friedlander, the servant, would cry 'Next.' The doctor was so busy."

Mr. Spielberg, for the defense, tried to get the witnesses to say that they had signed a circular in English, German, and Hebrew, which was headed, "Benjamin's Ten Commandents." Both women denied they had read or signed it. The fifth and sixth commandments run as follows:

"Fifth—Persons coming to me to be healed must know that God is the healer, not my personality; that I am a spiritual teacher, and those that come to me should carefully follow the instructions given and should prove themselves that the teachings are to do God's will.

"Sixth—Persons who think that I see them for the sake of money should not come to me. Persons should find out before they come to me whether my main object is money, or whether I am desirous that persons should be benefited."

MORTGAGE TAX BILL OUT.

Reported by Assembly Committee and Likely to Pass the House.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—The Dowling bill, wiping out last year's mortgage tax law and substituting a recording tax, was reported from the Assembly Taxation Committee to-night. No doubt is entertained here that it will be passed by the Assembly, but some of the combination that beat the banking investigation in the Senate will try to defeat this bill in the upper branch of the Legislature. Majority Leader Raines of the Senate is against the bill.

Chairman Arthur C. Wade of the Assembly Taxation Committee made no effort to exert his influence to keep the measure in committee, although some of the State leaders, it is said, put pressure upon him to do so. He is against the bill, and he told his committee so this afternoon. But he also stated to the members that he believed a large majority of the 150 Assemblymen wished to vote on the bill, and he thought they should have the opportunity to do so.

The present mortgage tax law imposes an annual tax of one-half of 1 per cent. on all mortgages. The Dowling law repeals this and provides a tax of one-half of 1 per cent. on mortgages at the time they are recorded and exempts them from all taxation thereafter.

PALISADES BILL DEFENDED.

Answers to Arguments of Opponents of the Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 20.—Senator Carpenter asked the Finance Committee of the Senate to-day to report out his bill for the extension of the Inter-State Palisades Park to the Stony Point reservation. This is the measure which has been advocated by the commission on the Inter-State Palisades Park and the American Scenic and Historical Society as against the stone companies who are ruining the Palisades.

Senator Stevens, one of the advocates of the bill, has received a letter answering the argument that the proponents of the measure are not acting in good faith because they will not volunteer to state what they are going to pay in case the bill goes through. The points made are:

First—That there is over $100,000 of contributed money now in the hands of the Palisades Park Committee.

Second—That if they offered a certain sum of money now they would be met with the suggestion that it was not adequate to pay the owners of the property.

Third—There exists at this time nobody authorized to receive any such contributions.

Fourth—If it was offered to the Legislative Committee in the way of a letter the people interested in opposing the bill would immediately claim that the law was of no effect because of the bribery of the Legislature.

"And, in my opinion," said Senator Stevens, "that would meet with success."

BLOCKS JURY INQUIRY.

Senate Resolution Affecting City Railway Cases Is Put Over.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—For the second time the resolution of Senator Marks calling on the Governor to make inquiry into the charges of wholesale jury fixing and impersonation of jurors by employes of the New York City Railway Company was laid over in the Senate to-day. Senator Brackett wanted the resolution to lie on the table a while longer because the Governor was away. The Lieutenant Governor was Acting Governor, and Senator Raines was presiding in his stead in the Senate, and Mr. Raines had stated that he wanted to debate the measure.

Mr. Marks will call up his resolution to-morrow, and there promises to be a lively time if any further attempts are made to side-track it. When the resolution was first introduced Mr. Raines unsuccessfully sought to have it committed to the Railroad Committee.

Patent Medicine Bill Amended.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 20.—Senator Stevens to-day obtained the amendment of his bill relative to the labeling of patent medicines, making it more stringent and giving Boards of Health in cities of the first class power to make regulations for the enforcement of the law.

WIFE WAS LEAVING HIM, SO HE STRANGLED HER

Then Joseph Byland, Bartender, Shot Himself to Death.

HAD THREATENED THE WOMAN

Drink Causes Tragedy in an East Side Flat—Wife's Appeal Had Saved Byland from Prison.

Joseph Byland strangled his wife, May, yesterday morning in their apartments, 336 East Fifteenth Street, and then shot himself. He was a bartender and was married last May. He was given to drinking and was frequently out of employment. There were continual quarrels, and his wife decided to return to her stepfather, Richard Nurse of 25 Second Avenue. She slept at his house Monday night and left it about 8 o'clock yesterday morning to go to her home to finish packing the furniture for conveyance in the afternoon to a storage warehouse.

Her brother Charles was alarmed for her safety and wished to accompany her. On Monday afternoon he had gone with her, had heard her husband threaten to kill her, and had seen him make for her with a piece of an iron bedstead. On Monday night Byland had come around to the Nurse house and raised a disturbance, and it was evident he had been drinking. After he had left Mrs. Byland's brother wished to again accompany her to her home, but she refused to let him go with her.

"If you come, Charlie," she said, "he'll only beat me harder after you're gone." So she went alone.

At about 1 o'clock the expressmen tried to get into the apartment. No one answered their knocks and the door seemed locked, so they went round to the Nurses' house to report the matter. Charles Nurse hurried to his sister's and forced open the door of the apartment.

In the bedroom at the back he found Joseph Byland, dressed only in his underclothes, a revolver in his hand, lying on the floor. He had a wound in his right temple.

Underneath the window the woman was lying. The room was dismantled for the packing of the furniture, and the body was between a roll of carpet and the wall. She was completely dressed.

Nurse notified Policeman Gettling and he telephoned the East Twenty-second Street Station and for an ambulance. Coroner Harburger made an examination of the bodies. Beneath the woman's dress he found the impress of fingers on her throat and a red mark running around her neck. In his opinion, it was a clear case of murder and suicide. Byland had first strangled his wife and then shot himself.

No one in the house had heard the revolver shot, but Mrs. Jeanne Reynolds, who lives on the second floor, says that between 9 and 10 o'clock there was a heavy fall in the room above. As she knew the Bylands were moving she thought nothing of it, supposing that they were shifting the furniture.

Both bodies have been removed to the Morgue for an autopsy. Mrs. Byland's family will bury her, but refuse to have anything to do with her husband's body.

About three months ago Byland attacked and stabbed his father-in-law, Richard Nurse. He was drunk at his house and a quarrel began between him and Charles Nurse over his treatment of his wife. Richard Nurse interfered and Byland stabbed him in the breast and twice in the face, also cutting Charles in the hand. He was arrested and brought before Special Sessions. He would have been sent to jail, but at the request of his wife her family withdrew the charge.

ALIMONY CLERK OUT.

Commissioner Dismisses F. R. Kelly—Shortage Being Looked Into.

Announcement was made yesterday by Commissioner Robert W. Hebberd of the Charities Department that he had dismissed from the department Frank R. Kelly, alimony clerk, employed in the outdoor poor division. The specific charge was three weeks' absence without leave. During Kelly's absence accountants have been at work on his books, and the Commissioner alleges that certain discrepancies as to moneys said to have been paid and those accounted for as paid have been found. The result has been put in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Nott.

Commissioner Hebberd said yesterday that when he took office a report was filed showing that for the five years previous to 1902 there had been stealings in the department to the amount of $50,000. Of this amount $25,000 was subsequently returned.

This report prompted the Commissioner to promulgate his famous order that all mail coming to the department and employes should come to his office and be opened by his private secretary, Mr. Baker. This order went into effect on Feb. 12. Soon afterward, Mr. Hebberd said, Kelly disappeared, and has been absent ever since. Meantime he has received affidavits from women showing that they were forced to sign receipts for smaller allowances than the books said they should receive.

BARGE CHILDREN NOT PUPILS.

Floating Truant Population Is Said to Number Thousands.

It is estimated that there are from 2,000 to 4,000 children of school age living on the coal barges moored along the water front who do not attend any public school, despite the compulsory education law. This estimate was furnished to Associate Superintendent Andrew W. Edson yesterday by a Mrs. Meyers, who, with her two children, lives on a barge now at the foot of East Twenty-ninth Street.

Boy Burned on Barren Island.

Five-year-old Felix Carmino lost his life last night in a fire which destroyed his parents' tenement home on the eastern end of Barren Island. His father, a laborer in the fertilizing plant on the island, was absent when the fire started, and his mother fled from the building, forgetting the boy. When she remembered her child it was too late to save him. Gaetano Salvator, a laborer, lost $400, the savings of a lifetime, in the blaze.

A return to the scenes of "Eben Holden."

SILAS STRONG
EMPEROR OF THE WOODS
BY
IRVING BACHELLER

In this new novel Irving Bacheller returns to the Scenes of "EBEN HOLDEN." The chief figure is an Adirondack "guide and contriver," as he styles himself—a philosopher of the woods who expresses himself always with laconic brevity and characteristic humor. His shy, silent courting of the woman who has waited long years for him to speak is an original and delicately tender contribution to the literature of wooing; and the scenes in which two small children and a real dog appear are rich in humor. There is a delightful woodland maiden whose virginal romance breathes of the mountain air. The whole novel is redolent of the woods in Spring.

TOO MANY CAR ROBBERIES.

Conductors Should Open Their Eyes, Says Magistrate—Prisoners Freed.

The three men accused of having robbed Floyd Quin and his wife on a Seventh Avenue car on Saturday night were discharged yesterday in the West Side Court. Quin was unable to swear to their identity.

Chief Inspector Parker of the New York City Railway was present in the interests of the conductor, who was accused of having been in league with the pickpockets. He complained of the publicity given the charge.

"The company should be glad of the publicity," replied Magistrate Breen. "It will probably open the eyes of the public and the eyes of the conductors on the rear platforms. These robberies are too frequent, and the conductors ought to be able to detect them once in a while."

"A month ago," responded Parker, "one did, and the policeman let the pickpocket go."

"You might train conductors in detecting robberies," said the Magistrate.

Last night Detective Peabody, who has been working on the robbery of Mr. and Mrs. Quin, arrested Peter Fitzsimmons and Dan Warner as suspicious persons. The arrests were made at Forty-third Street and Seventh Avenue in a billiard room. The police say that the men's pictures are in the Rogues' Gallery.

PROBATION VS. REFORMATORIES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The statement of the Deputy Clerk of the Children's Court that Protestant children convicted of wrongdoing or whose guardianship is improper are committed every day to Roman Catholic institutions is startling, but not disgraceful to Protestantism, as the court officers maintain. It is in fact the logical outcome of the failure of the great juvenile reformatories to reform. This failure is perceived so clearly by the managers of the Protestant institutions that they have greatly reduced their capacity to receive children, and they have removed to the country and established the cottage system, as nearly like family life as the conditions permit. By this plan they hope to know more intimately the individuality of each child and its needs, so that the right influence may be brought to bear.

Many people regard the old-fashioned, barracklike institutions and reformatories with admiration, imagining them to be beneficial, but they are beneficial only in one way, as they relieve the Children's Court and society of the burden and responsibility. But, in fact, they make for a kind of life that is unnatural in its dull routine, where nothing is left to the initiative of the children and where their imagination receives no uplift to save the children from impurity and from conspiring together for future depredations on society.

The Roman Catholic institutions have an advantage over all others in that they may draw upon the services of members of the religious orders as caretakers and teachers of the children. The religious enthusiasm and devotion of these good brothers and sisters may offset in some cases the evil influences of a crowded institution. But the managers of the Protestant, Jewish, and non-sectarian asylums have no such body of workers to draw upon, and consequently the character of the caretakers that they are able to obtain at the very moderate salaries offered is of poor quality.

These are the reasons that discourage the Protestant and non-sectarian bodies in New York from assuming a difficult and doubtful task. If it were possible to remove the children permanently from their old environment and place them in families in the country, after the manner of the plan originated by the Children's Aid Society and carried out by that society with such marked success, the problem of the care of Protestant children could be readily solved. But the children in question are not orphans. They have a parent or relatives who refuse to give them up and who hope later on to be able to care for them.

What is needed in New York is not more institutions, but a better probation system, by means of which an efficient organization of volunteer probation officers, working under the supervision of a salaried chief, may study the needs of each child brought by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children before the Children's Court. In most cases timely advice and assistance to the parents and a friendly interest in the daily life of the child will make it unnecessary to send him to an institution.

This whole question has been given careful study by the Probation Commission, which has prepared bills which it is hoped the Legislature will adopt.

The commission is of the opinion that there is not likely to be an effective probation system until there is a considerable number of citizens who are willing to become publicly identified with and responsible for such work, who in turn will create and extend public opinion in its favor, demand higher and higher standards in its administration, and protect it from improper influences. It is not a problem which requires primarily administrative capacity, as does the work of most city departments, but is [illegible] a human problem, involving many delicate and difficult factors and requiring for its successful development a wide range of knowledge and experience, breadth of view, constant revision of method, and intimate relations with other agencies for social improvement in each locality. For these reasons the commission regards as its most important recommendation the suggestion that in each city of the first and second classes there shall be appointed an unpaid board of probation commissioners, who shall have substantially the powers of a Board of Directors in relation to probation officers and probation work.

There is a hearing at Albany to-day (Wednesday) before the Senate Judiciary Committee to consider the bills prepared by the commission to give effect to its recommendations. We favor this legislation, believing that there is in our city a large number of experienced workers among the poor who would offer their services in behalf of neglected children if given official standing before the Children's Court.

When YOU Read

you will learn something about the peril of judging by circumstantial evidence; the craftiness abounding in diplomatic circles; the secret service; the ways of a hard man in love and the heart throbs of a lovable woman.

You will know nothing about the passing of time as you are reading, for this is a story of gambling for a country—of success—of defeat, and again of success—of struggles where nations' fate wavers in the balance.

A story which fascinates you until you learn which way the pendulum swings. Founded on facts which are almost as romantic as this fictional dress. Your Bookseller has it!

TAMMANY IN THE FIELD.

In Mr. BOURKE COCKRAN'S resolutions, presented and adopted at a special meeting of the General Committee of Tammany Hall Monday evening, and in his speech upon them the windbags of Socialism were thumped, punched, and punctured in a very effective manner. These two paragraphs, notably, expose to the public view fundamental vices of municipal ownership and operation:

> Whether a public utility be administered by Government itself, or by a private corporation, we hold that every person who uses it should be held to pay the cost of the service which he receives, and that no man should be compelled by taxation or otherwise to bear any part of his neighbor's expenses for light, and power, for telephone service, or for transportation of himself, or of his goods.
> Every proposal that a municipality assume operation of all public utilities and reduce rates to persons using them, regardless of what the service may actually cost, is an attempt to force some men to bear the expenses of others, because where the outlay for operation exceeds earnings, the deficit must be made up by taxation, and this we denounce as Socialistic, and therefore hostile to justice and subversive of democratic government.

Of course the municipal ownership agitators will reply that they have no intention of reducing rates below cost of service. That is no answer. The trouble is that under the political conditions that exist in American cities the cost of service must continually tend to outrun any income that reasonable rates would produce. Mr. DALRYMPLE told the truth about Chicago when he gave his reasons for believing that the experiment of municipal ownership there would fail. We do not need the testimony of experts from Glasgow to convince us that we should encounter a similar or perhaps a worse failure in New York.

Mr. COCKRAN in his resolutions and in his speech set forth a good deal of sound Democratic doctrine. By way of contrast he pointed out that the prevalence of such an unconscionable lot of unsound Democratic doctrine has led the people to believe that, although they have no great confidence in the Republicans, they have been shut up to "a choice between the rogues whom they distrusted and lunatics of whom they were afraid." Corporate extortion upon the one hand and the Government tariff bounties that aid and abet it upon the other are alike repugnant to the spirit of Democracy. Yet the false Democratic leaders instead of advocating a resort to true curative measures have laid hands upon pretty much the whole materia medica of quackery and are vociferously urging their preparations upon the people as cures for maladies to which they bear no relation.

The significance of this meeting of the General Committee of Tammany and of the adoption of what is in effect a platform is too plain to be missed. It means that Tammany has not been captured by Mr. HEARST, and that its chiefs have resolved to combat the doctrines and the aims of Hearstism. It means that if the organization holds to its present disposition its delegates to the State Convention will not go pledged to Mr. HEARST.

TO MAINTAIN THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

It is announced in Washington that the Secretary of State will attend the Pan-American Conference in Rio Janeiro next Summer on behalf of the United States. It is not imaginable that Mr. ROOT would take a journey so tedious and, at the season for which it is set, so unpleasant for an inhabitant of the temperate zone, unless he considered that he could do important public service thereby.

The nature of the service he could render is so obvious that the reports of the meaning of his mission may be matters of conjecture as well as of information. The belief which Mr. ROOT'S predecessor held, and which this journal has frequently inculcated, is that the natural supplement of the Monroe Doctrine in our time is the absolute prohibition of the use in this hemisphere of public force to enforce the payment of private claims. A declaration to that effect by all the American republics would have its proper effect upon Europe. At present, when any European claim against an American republic becomes of enough consequence to enlist the assistance of the claimant's Government by means which go beyond diplomatic representation, the suspicion at once arises that the power concerned has motives ulterior to the mere collection of the claim, and the Monroe Doctrine is at once suspected to be challenged. We ourselves, as the "big brother" of all the smaller republics, are at once drawn into the controversy. It is very well—or, rather, it is not—for the big brother, through the agency of his "big stick," to impress upon the smaller brothers the necessity of living within their means and paying their debts. But it would be at least equally effective, and far more convenient, for the whole family to agree that only civil process shall or can be used for the collection of the debts of any one of them. Nobody would object to this, on this side of the water, except some extravagant ruler like CASTRO, who might not desire to have his borrowing capacity restricted to the extent of his commercial credit.

If Mr. ROOT can obtain the adoption of such a declaration by the Pan-American Conference, he will be doing a great service to his country. And not only to his country, but to both Americas.

SENATOR BAILEY'S PLAN.

Senator BAILEY of Texas is said to be a good lawyer, but does he suppose that he could convince the Supreme Court that Congress has the authority to take away from the inferior Federal courts their equity jurisdiction and their right to issue injunctions in a particular class of cases arising under a Federal statute? His plan for making the rate-fixing bill court proof is to have the act specifically annul the power of the court to grant injunctions suspending a rate during a judicial inquiry into its lawfulness.

The Supreme Court, having been created by the Constitution, is secure from Congressional attempts to abridge its powers. The inferior courts, having been ordained and established by Congress, are in the large sense under its control. Having created it might abolish them, and establish an entirely different judicial system. Conceivably it might withdraw altogether their equity jurisdiction. But that it could deny to them equity jurisdiction and the right to issue restraining orders in special cases or in suits arising under a certain statute is a proposition of such doubtful soundness that a Constitutional lawyer not altogether sure of his ground might be damaged in his reputation when the Supreme Court came to examine his doctrine.

IS CHINA RESPONSIBLE?

The Shanghai correspondent of The London Times narrates that the "native papers" have published, "all using the same block," a ghastly picture of the head of the late Nan-Chang Magistrate. This was the Magistrate, it is to be remembered, who was either murdered or committed suicide after opposing the demands of the foreign missionaries in his district.

The deduction of the Shanghai correspondent that the picture was published in order to "stimulate the passions of the people against foreigners" seems to be fairly warranted. Not so by any means his further deduction that "the matter undoubtedly calls for diplomatic intervention."

What is sauce for the goose is, internationally, sauce for the gander. It is familiar knowledge that our own "native journals" are in the habit of printing ghastly pictures, evidently intended to "stimulate the passions of the people against foreigners," or against natives, as the case may be. But suppose some foreign Power should undertake "diplomatic intervention" against us on account of these concerted attempts to stir up the populace against it or its "nationals"? We think that the Secretary of State would return a rather curt retort to such a demand. It is true that most of our "native press" does its stimulation severally. But nevertheless the device of the "patent inside," which appears to be so popular in China that all the frugal newspapers print the same ghastly picture, is not entirely unknown in this country. The State Department would not, we imagine, pay much more attention to the foreign representations against a "syndicated" caricature than to such representations against a caricature emanating sporadically from the office of an individual print.

Internationally, China has exactly the same right to "diplomatic intervention," to remonstrate against the anti-Chinese excesses of the British press that Great Britain has to remonstrate against the anti-British excesses of the Chinese press. But only conceive of China's attempt to make such a remonstrance!

JOHN MOST.

It is satisfactory to be informed that JOHN MOST'S Freiheit perishes with him. The most conspicuous and characteristic fact about the man was that he did not represent anything which required or deserved an organ. And, indeed, this is true of the European Anarchist in general. The American inquirer is prone to believe that Anarchism must have some body of doctrine, some "cult." But, after painful inquiry, he finds out that it represents no aspiration whatever. It is not only not a beautiful dream; it is not a dream of any kind. It merely embodies "envy, hatred, and malice, and all uncharitableness." It has no future.

Anarchism, in the sense of the European "Red," may be an arraignment of society, to the extent and in the sense that a better social order would not produce human beings actuated merely by hate and envy. But it remains true that hatred and envy are the inspiring passions of the European Anarchist. JOHN MOST may have called himself an enemy to the social order. In fact, he was an enemy of the human race, a mere misanthrope, hating and envying whomsoever was richer or happier or decenter than himself. A human mad dog whose rabies was chronic! Under the stern old English common law, now obsolete, a man so actively "anti-social" was by a formal judicial decree put out of the protection of the law. It was lawful for whoever met him to kill him, just as it is now lawful for anybody to kill a four-legged mad dog. Really, although such a disposition of the human mad dog is abhorrent to the sensibilities of our era, it is hard to see what better disposition could be made of him, when once his rabies is established, and the outlaw was always entitled to dispute the decree of outlawry. If the protection of the society it was his mission to assail had been withdrawn from JOHN MOST twenty years ago, and the mediaeval consequences had befallen him, it would be hard to prove that any ill consequences would have ensued to society. At any rate, it is evident that the journal which consisted of his snappings and snarlings, and barkings with incitement to biting, has no reason for surviving him. This is not a genial soil to which to transplant European Anarchism.

THE PROBATION QUESTION.

We publish this morning an extremely interesting letter from Mr. C. LORING BRACE of the Children's Aid Society with reference to the practical working of juvenile reformatories and the need of a more comprehensive and efficient mode of dealing with those children who tend to become undesirable members of the community.

As is well known to our readers, the work of the Children's Aid Society has been of immense benefit to the class with which it is fitted to deal, and is based on the sound principle that the surest way to save children exposed to temptation is to surround them with a totally new and good environment. As Mr. BRACE points out, this process is necessarily limited in its application to the children who can be taken away from the city. For those who cannot so be removed, there remains the problem of how to replace evil influences by good influences and how to awaken in them the capacity for voluntary resistance to the tendencies by which they must continue to be surrounded. This unquestionably can be done to a considerable degree by the system aimed at in the children's courts and in the work of the probation officers. Quite enough has already been done to make it entirely certain that a great deal more can be done, if the appropriate machinery and supervision be provided. That is the purpose of the bills relating to probation on which a hearing is to be given at Albany to-day.

The general scheme of these bills, as we have already explained, is to place the supervision of the system in the hands of the State Board of Charities, to place its immediate administration in local commissions, and to provide these with volunteer probation officers under the charge of a paid chief officer. This plan enlists the co-operation of the many excellent organizations in the various parts of the State which are interested in the work, while providing for central supervision and co-ordination. There is no more promising field of beneficence in our city life than that to which the probation system may be applied. We thoroughly believe in the principle of the bills in question and we trust that the Legislature will perfect and pass them.

NOT A NEW YORK COUNTY QUESTION.

In behalf of the aborigines living, or at least existing, beyond the great gulf fixed by an All-wise Providence between Manhattan and the strangers scattered through Cappadocia, we wish to dissent from Mr. COCKRAN'S idea of "a single fare from one end of New York County to another." For this is not a question of New York County. It is a question of New York City, and there is nothing at all the matter with either Kings or Queens, or the other back counties. They all help pay the taxes which support the railways built on public credit, and they ought to have an equal look-in at the benefits derived from the expenditure. Nor do we speak solely in their interest. As Mr. COCKRAN remarked, the earnings derived from their fares are necessary to the traction companies' profits. It is a clear case of "do ut des," and the principle should be applied in the broadest sense for the benefit of all concerned. We remember very well that the best subway contract ever let was that to Brooklyn, and we should like to see another let upon the same principle. The biggest profits, and therefore the best hope of competition, lie in the next tunnel to Brooklyn. The Manhattan bidder would increase his bid on Manhattan routes for the sake of entering Brooklyn. And the Brooklyn bidders could be made to increase their bids in Brooklyn by the chance of entering Manhattan. That was the way it worked before, and there are millions in it for New York City if that example could be repeated.

Already the President of Brooklyn Borough and our esteemed contemporary The Brooklyn Eagle are speaking up in meeting about what they seem to think is a Brooklyn question, "No Manhattan tunnels without a Brooklyn connection!" is their slogan. "Same here," we say, speaking for Manhattan. Manhattan must pay the lion's share of taxes. Moreover, Manhattan's shops and offices need the shoppers and shop assistants who come over to work and buy among us. Manhattan needs them as much as they need Brooklyn's cheap and comfortable lodgings, which Manhattanites are discovering, if we may judge from the mobbing of some of us who went over to look at some Brooklyn flats where there was a rent strike. This was unkind, and unfair besides. All we do to exploring Brooklynites is to take their pocketbooks. We do not club them away from our shops or tenements. Brooklyn an alien town was one thing. But Brooklyn on our own Subway, and with a rent strike, is another proposition. We are becoming more sympathetic with Brooklyn as the time approaches when it will outvote us, and we need its help to pay taxes on our subways. No more subways without bridge or subway connections is as good doctrine for Manhattan as for the transpontine districts.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Horse Racing and the County Fairs.

There are the best of reasons for suspecting that the upholders and beneficiaries of the Percy-Gray law do not ascribe anything like the importance Dr. SLICER imagines to their purchase of the Conference of Religions by a comic opera promise to sterilize betting, but that they rely much on the purchase of rustic votes by the assurance that the county fairs shall not only continue to receive financial assistance from the race tracks, but that their share of the profits shall be materially increased. ANTHONY COMSTOCK talks nonsense, it seems to us, when he says that he believes Dr. SLICER to be in the pay of the racing interests, but he might well say something of the sort about the up-State politicians and farmers who so cynically make it evident that they will see no wickedness in localized felony so long as it provided them with the funds for conducting their annual fairs, and that they will never vote for its suppression until assured that they can get as much or more money for that purpose from some other source. There are many gradations in bribery, and between some of them and the legitimate influencing of votes by promising legitimate advantages to the whole or a part of the public it is sometimes hard to draw the line, but the recent introduction of a bill raising the percentage allotted to the county fairs from the race track revenues is bribery of a pretty crude and open sort. It differs chiefly from the passing of money from hand to hand in that—well, that the money, or most of it, is passed from hands to hands, and that isn't a difference of any great moment. If the fairs cannot support themselves, or if those who attend and supposedly profit from them are not willing to supply from their own pockets the money they cost, we are aware of no good reason for their perpetuation. Of course they supply much-needed amusement of a fairly innocent character to the rustic population, and are of great value to the rural bosses and politicians, but these are poor excuses for their existence at the expense of anybody except those directly concerned. According to reports from Albany, there is not the slightest chance for the Cassidy-Lansing bill unless the farmers, or, rather, unless the representatives of the farmers, can be made sure that they will not lose anything by changing the present status of affairs. This is a pretty disgraceful situation, and one not calculated to convince city folk that all they have heard about country virtue was the exact truth. For that matter, it's most curious how country virtue always looms big at a distance, but when viewed close by grows very small or disappears altogether.

Luxuries and Necessities.

One of our correspondents — fortunate man!—finds himself able to corroborate the elaborate computations by which the commercial agencies prove that "the cost of living" has steadily decreased in recent years, and that it is now much less than it used to be. There is, we think, something more than a general impression, at least among people of small or moderate means, that these computations are vitiated by a mysterious inaccuracy, and that, as a matter of fact, the ordinary expenses of running a modest household have in the last decade increased nearly if not quite 75 per cent. More than one domestic account book seems to demonstrate this lamentable phenomenon beyond a doubt—to those who keep them—and yet the agencies go on figuring out that the necessities of life cost less than formerly! Our correspondent supplies the explanation. Things really are cheaper, he says, but everybody has been transferring items from the category of luxuries to that of necessities, and that is why the salary or the income no longer seems to go as far as it did ten years ago. There may be something in this theory; indeed, there probably is. It will be extremely hard, however, to convince everybody that it accounts for everything. One cannot but regret that it is impracticable to figure out these averages from retail prices—that is, from the prices that everybody pays. It is a sad fact that a slight reduction in wholesale prices makes no difference in retail prices, while an advance of the same size makes a difference of from five to ten or twenty times as large. Perhaps here is the key of the mystery—the advances have all counted, while a good many of the decreases have never reached the consumer. Anyhow, it is of little use to advise a return to the simplicity of our fathers. It cannot be done. The fathers were as simple as they had to be, and no more, and they were comfortable merely because they had not learned what comfort is. Their luxuries really are our necessities, and there is no help for it.

A Cause for Thought.

Having heard that the venerable JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, to guard himself from intrusion, has had to equip his country home with armed guards and searchlights, The Montreal Gazette is moved to read its neighbors a lesson. "The awkward thing," it says, "is that this extraordinary precaution is possibly necessary to protect Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S life. The assassination of men quite as prominent as he is has been attributed to yellow newspaper attacks less virulent and persistent than he has for years been made the object of. The situation should make some people in the United States think." It is, it is! Among the things of which we think is the wisdom showed by The Gazette in inserting that queer "possibly." We also ponder the fact that the enemies from whom Mr. ROCKEFELLER is so laboriously and expensively secluding himself are very quiet, personally harmless, and inoffensive young men, bearing no more dangerous weapons than court documents of one sort or another, which they would very courteously submit to the great man for perusal. Indeed, it sems to us that even a Canadian might realize that the effectiveness of Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S precautions against unwelcome guests prove that Americans have a most meticulous respect for the letter, as well as for the spirit, of the law. He is a prisoner, to be sure, but only as long as he chooses to be his own jailer. The present peril is not to Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S life, but to that of some representatives of a legitimately inquisitive law who may encounter one of his overzealous guards.

SMALL TALK OF WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The House has grown tired of the delay in completing the digest of private claim bills which it ordered eight or ten years ago, and to-day when the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation came along, carrying $4,800 to pay the clerks who are not completing the work, there were numerous protests. Johnson of South Carolina was especially concerned. He wanted something done, and he wanted it right away. Finally he proposed an amendment withholding 80 per cent. of the pay of the clerks until the work was finished.

"How would you like to have a third of your pay held up until the end of your term?" asked Mr. Livingston of Georgia.

"It ought to be held back till I earn it," replied Johnson.

"Then I'm afraid you'd never get it," retorted Livingston.

Another source of weariness to the House members is the Summer janitor. Thirty or more of the House committees have separate janitors for their rooms, who now receive an annual salary. During the Summer recess of the House these janitors have a great snap. They club together, six or eight in a bunch, and hire one colored man for $1.50 a week to do their work, while they draw their $60 a month each and enjoy life. To-day the House voted to make these janitors responsible to the Doorkeeper during the Summer, so that they could be kept at work. In arguing for that scheme Mr. Littauer gave this account of the performance of one janitor last year:

"One of these janitors was a thief," he said. "He stole some things from the committee room and ran away with them, and it actually took a large part of the time of the disbursing officer of the House to hunt that man around the country in order to pay him his salary."

The maddest man in seventeen States to-day was Chairman Tawney of the House Committee on Appropriations. Yesterday he made a two-hour speech in favor of reducing the pay of Government clerks who have become superannuated. To-day when Prince and Hardwick began to obstruct the reading of the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill, Tawney got ready for a fight. Presently his time came and he jumped up.

"Mr. Chairman," he shouted, and then stopped. His voice went up and down like a syren whistle, and a look of pained surprise came over Tawney's face. He caught his breath, swallowed hard, and tried again. The result was worse than before. His voice was beyond control. Sometimes he struck the tip-top notes, sometimes he growled in double bass. Sometimes he barely whispered. He stuck to it for a minute, then cut it short, and gave up. Two or three times afterward he could not help getting into the fight, but always with the same result. When the House adjourned Tawney was too angry to even swear.

"I never drink water while I'm making a speech," he said, "but yesterday a page brought me a glass and I took it. I didn't notice anything wrong until I began to speak to-day, and then you heard what happened. That's what comes from drinking water."

It has been vaguely rumored one or two times that Senators sometimes discuss with much eloquence topics which they have not taken the trouble to look up.

Senator Perkins was doing his best to-day to make clear the argument for fortifications in the Philippines. He had occasion to mention the dry dock Dewey now on its way to the Philippines.

"If it had been built on the Pacific Coast it would now be at Manila," declared Mr. Perkins.

"Where was it built?" asked Lodge.

"At Boston, I think," replied Perkins.

"Oh, no," said Lodge. "It was built, I think, at League Island."

"Well, League Island then," acquiesced Perkins.

"Now that we know where the dry dock was built," interrupted Spooner, "we can wonder why it was not built on the Pacific Coast, convenient to the Philippines."

The rest of the Senate was laughing. The Dewey was built at Sparrows Point on the Chesapeake.

Senator Fulton of Oregon yesterday entered into the full togaship of his office. For many years—so many that no man now in the Senate remembers when he did not do it—the late Senator John H. Mitchell, Mr. Fulton's colleague, had been in the habit of giving to his friends of the Senate a luncheon from the largest salmon to be had from the Northwest. Yesterday Senator Fulton invited the Senate down to the restaurant to partake of the noblest salmon that ever graced a plank. It weighed fifty pounds and was a magnificent sight. The negro cooks planked it on a piece of oak 6 feet long and cooked it to the King's taste. When they had garnished it with salad greens and whittled turnips and beets, it was a picture that made it almost sacrilege to plunge a knife in it.

Delegates Smith of Arizona and McGuire of Oklahoma, the men more interested in the Statehood fight than any one else in Washington, except, perhaps, Uncle Joe Cannon, had a conference which was so deeply important as to demand absolute privacy. They wandered about the House end of the Capitol, from committee room to committee room, trying to find a place where they could talk without interruption, but in vain. At last they hit on a great scheme. Uncle Joe was in the chair, and busy. He could not get away. Smith and McGuire trotted off to the Speaker's room and bulged in. There they found Mr. Busby, the Speaker's secretary. But they did not mind him. They went over in a corner and began to plot.

"Look here," said Busby, after a while, "what are you up to? Trying to fix up a plan to kidnap the Speaker?"

"Well," replied Smith, "We'd like to. I know a place down in Arizona that if we could get him into he would not get out of in six months."

Corneille's House.

From The London Standard.

PARIS, March 8.—The latest instance of the Frenchman's philosophical good humor comes from Rouen. For years the reputed house of Pierre Corneille has been a Mecca to pilgrims. The Corneille Society met there regularly, but no one showed a wish to change "reputed" into "real" until last year. The committee appointed to organize the Corneille Tercentenary Festival then appointed a commission of inquiry. The commission has just decided that the house—in the old-fashioned street, Rue de la Pie—is "the real and true house in which Pierre Corneille was born and passed his childhood, and of which he became proprietor on the death of his father, in 1639."

STERILIZED GAMBLING.

No Room for Any Alliance Between Church and Race Track.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Anent the most restrained and innocent ("sterilized") gambling which the holy alliance of Rev. Dr. Slicer and The Jockey Club would bring into effect on the race courses of the State of New York, the following extract may prove timely. It is from "The Charitable Samaritan, a Sermon by Ezechiel Carré, Minister of the French Colony in Narrhaganset," printed in Boston, 1689:

> Finally, we will put amongst this troop of Robbers and Murderers those Wretches who bare away the Goods of their Brother by Gaming: And I positively assert, That there is no person who gives his mind to Gaming, but forms a resolution to rob his Neighbor. I speak not here of those slights and cheats that accompany Gaming, I speak of that which is the most innocent in these sort of things (if at least one may say there is anything innocent in them) which is that each Gamester purposeth to win, and one of necessity must win, behold the Robbery, according to the Law of right, which defines Robbery, by enjoying the goods of another contrary to the will of the Possessor; so that following this Maxime, wherever there are two Gamesters, there are two Thieves, the one by inclination, the other real and Effective: because he which loses, desires to win, and would not willingly see his money in the others hands.

Whatever may be said about this dishonest business, and although it may be claimed that a man may not be forbidden to make a wager with the man next to him at a race track, one thing can be done, and, to put an end to the horrible evils which flow from gambling, must be done—namely, public gambling and the professional gambler must be abolished. The gambler or bookmaker has no more place in a civilized community than a professional pickpocket or burglar.

The people of the State of New York will not tolerate the continued frustration of their deliberate choice in the adoption of the present Constitution of the State. And they will call to account the politicians who are the tools of the gambling fraternity.

As for the Rev. Dr. Slicer, men of the best intentions sometimes make grievous mistakes; and the writer confidently expects that the reverend gentleman will himself realize that he has been led into an indefensible position and that his future usefulness in reform movements will be seriously injured unless he abandons it.

ANTI-GAMBLING.

LIFE INSURANCE RESERVES.

President Hegeman of the Metropolitan Reassures Policy Holders.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the interesting letter to you published on Sunday last entitled "Getting Rid of Surplus," which can only refer to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, because this is the only non-participating company whose assets and surplus are about the figures mentioned in the letter.

Let me say that the provisions of the Armstrong bill respecting contingency reserve do not apply to non-participating business. This is shown by the words with which the section begins: "Any life insurance corporation doing business in this State may accumulate and maintain a contingency reserve out of the surplus attributable to policies issued," &c. In a non-participating business there is no surplus attributable to policies.

Permit me to add that policy-holders in this company need not be disturbed at our surplus. The dividends to stockholders are limited to 7 per cent. There never has been shown any disposition on the part of the company to accumulate large surplus. The company has kept it down to about 10 per cent. of its assets by yearly distributions to non-participating policy holders of the profits made out of their policies. Millions of dollars have thus been paid out to policy holders whose contracts have not given them the right to participation in surplus. The act on the part of the company has been a voluntary one, and the distribution has been made in the manner best adapted to getting the surplus back into the hands of those who built it up. Ten per cent. as a surplus is considered by the company to be only a reasonable margin of safety. It is approximately that which was laid down as a proper surplus by the statutes of the State of Massachusetts before the laws of that State were changed so as to permit the writing by its domestic companies of tontine insurance. The policy in the Metropolitan is a well-settled one, and neither policy holders nor the public have any occasion for alarm or criticism as to the disposition of its surplus earnings or the accumulation of unnecessary funds.

JOHN R. HEGEMAN, President.

THE WEAKER SEX.

Man Drinks When Woman Asks—Why Doesn't He Stop When She Asks?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Does man or woman belong to the stronger sex?

The column THE TIMES devotes to quotation from Dr. Peters's sermon of yesterday gives rise to this question, and, let us hope, some one of your readers will answer it satisfactorily. Does the weaker follow the lead of the stronger? Or, are the strong led by the weak? And which is which?

Dr. Peters calls upon women to stop the evil of drink, (as if all good women had not been struggling against it from time immemorial.) He says, "If a woman mixes a cocktail a man will drink it."

Since the day of Eve, if a woman offers a man anything he likes he will take it. Does that argue woman's influence over man, or man's unrestrained desire?

If the woman offered him a load of wood to chop with the same sweet smile she offered the cocktail would he as readily comply? The same time-honored excuse should serve, "The woman offered it to me."

Again, Dr. Peters suggests that the woman can make the man drink, but she cannot make him stop. Where, then, is her influence? Is it not his own taste he gratifies when he appears to yield to, and throw the blame on, her? Why does not Dr. Peters endeavor to make man work out his own salvation?

Is it any wonder woman is (if she is, which I do not admit,) taking to drink, when for nineteen-hundred-odd years she has been called the "weaker sex" and yet is asked to hold herself responsible for all the sins of "strong" (!) men?

The Rev. Madison Peters is trying to prove that man's intemperance is caused by woman's example. Does the fact that women do not smoke deter men from smoking?

Plain Talk.

From The Poughkeepsie News-Press.

It behooves the conservatism of these days to make it plain that it is something more than the determination of erstwhile radicals to become conservatives now that the bones are all on their own side of the manger, before it can hope to stem the tide of radicalism now setting in all over the world.

WIVES AND MOTHERS.

More Comment on the Observations of "An Englishwoman in New York."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am an English bachelor of thirty-two Summers, and about ten of these are American, so that my attachment to both countries is about equal. I mention this to show that my opinions are, or ought to be, untrammeled by prejudice.

The controversy over the Mary Mortimer Maxwell articles in THE SUNDAY TIMES has appealed to me not a little, and it seems to me that the crucial point has not been hit, except by the editor of THE TIMES, for is not the keynote to human life absolutely without nationality?

It strikes me that in the words of one of Chevalier's songs, where, after describing the union of forty years, the Coster says: "Wot a wife to me she's been, and wot a pal!" we find the solution. "Pal" has the true ring to it, so if two people are mated as they should be, it is a matter of character and character alone that will bring them the right kind of happiness.

Is it not a question of understanding each other? And how can this be arrived at without analyzing one's self first and last and always, so if one party to the union forgets to do this, then the life of the other must of necessity become a sacrifice. Tact, judgment, and thoughtfulness founded on love must of necessity promote happiness. The homes of America and of England have much in common and much to learn from each other, and does not all this revert to the simple education and development of character?

Trouble Ahead for the Englishwoman.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The "Englishwoman in New York" has been too hasty in forming favorable conclusions as to New York flats. She has yet to form the acquaintance of the petty tyrant, the New York janitor, who expects constant tribute, with little or no service in return. After a short experience with him she may conclude that London possesses some advantages even in the matter of flats.

Liberty for "High-Toned" Citizens.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent in this morning's paper who signs himself "Libertas" brings me to my feet, as it were, in behalf of the gentlemen who smoke. Why should a gentleman be restricted as to when or where he shall smoke? What is it that makes the smoking car such a disagreeable place? Only because every gentleman must smoke there or not at all on the train. If gentlemen were allowed to smoke anywhere and everywhere the smoke would be distributed.

These restrictions will eventually kill the noble art of smoking, as has nearly happened already with the art of chewing tobacco, and a moment's reflection will satisfy any one of the injury this would cause to the community at large and of the great loss to the gentlemen who now carry cigars, both lighted and dead, into elevated and Subway trains.

Parsimony of the Street Railways.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I have a small space in your valuable paper to express my indignation at the cruelty and parsimony of the New York City railroads in not protecting their motormen from storms and cold by inclosing the platforms? Why is this city so far behind the times?

And now they add insult to injury with this new rule about transfers. Didn't the poor public have quite enough to suffer without that? I think if passengers would invariably ask for a transfer when they paid their fare, whether they want it or not, it might force the companies to withdraw this absurd and annoying rule.

Give the Horse a Chance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

By all means in your power urge forward a Horse Parade Day as suggested by "W. B. C." in your last Friday's issue. Pleasure and profit would certainly accrue to owners, to speculators, and to the horses themselves. America is slow to realize the possibilities of the horse as the ancients understood them; when a rider scorned harsher measure than a caress or a whisper to the intelligent friend, who was in no mythical sense a part of his own body and will.

One cultivates oneself in cultivating one's horse. The parade would be an easy and efficient way of cultivating public sentiment and of giving the horse his just rights.

Not a Christian Scientist.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES is the paper of my daily choice, and a fortnight or so ago I saw in a prominent place in its columns a statement made at length and in detail to the effect that a Staten Island lady had recently been brought home from Florida in a state of violent insanity, which her friends ascribed to her having attended some Christian Science services or meetings just prior to the mental attack referred to.

I am informed that, upon investigation of the alleged circumstances, it was found that there was no foundation for associating the name or condition of the unfortunate woman with Christian Science, as she had just joined and been baptized into the Methodist Episcopal Church of West Palm Beach, Fla., only two days prior to her mental break.

Dangerous Dust in the Subway.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Unquestionably the metallic dust in the Subway is harmful. If not, why are grinders and polishers of metals so short lived?

The remedy is exceedingly easy—powerful magnets placed at suitable intervals would gather the dust as fast as formed and thus absolutely remedy the trouble.

As to the foul air, I believe that, too, could be easily remedied if the managers will connect the Subway with as many smoke shafts in the adjacent buildings as the owners will permit. If this was done properly there would be a complete change of air in the Subway many times in each twenty-four hours, while at present there is simply a swishing about of the air, without any change whatever.

ON A ROOF'S COPING.

After wild storms, born strong and blue,
The big, fresh Day is here anew;
His breath is gales, his gaze is sun,
His touch, electric, is outrun
By the pouring heart: we are up, a-swing
Down the splendid street whose struck stones sing.
Here, by the whole roused city heard,
On a roof's coping, clings a bird,
Vibrating with a newer note
That pours tumultuous from his throat.

PRIZES ARE OFFERED FOR SCHOOL DECORATION

Municipal Art Society's Bid for Historical Paintings.

FOR MORRIS HIGH SCHOOL

More Important That City Should Be Safe Than Beautiful, Says Dr. Strong.

The city beautiful came in for discussion at the dinner of the Municipal Art Society of New York, held in the banquet room of the National Art Club, 37 West Thirty-fourth Street, last night. Charles R. Lamb presided, and many artists with their wives and daughters were present.

The hall was decorated with sketches of designs for the beautification of the city and particularly for the decoration of the interior of the Morris High School, which is regarded by the artists and architects of the city as the finest example of what may be done in that line by a rich municipality.

President Lamb announced in behalf of the society a competition for the decoration of the school with historical paintings, the subjects to be: "Gouverneur Morris Addressing the Convention for Framing the Constitution of the United States" and "The First Treaty Made Between the Weekquaisgeek Indians and the Dutch at the Residence of Johannes Bronk in 1642."

The first prize will be a commission to execute a full-size detail of one of the compositions. If this is not satisfactory, the commission is to pay the artist $500. If acceptable, the winner is to receive $3,000 for his completed work. The second prize will be $200, the third $100, and the two "honorably mentioned" are to receive $50 each.

J. Q. Adams, the first speaker, said that the powers of the Municipal Art Commission under the charter of 1898 gave it the power to approve or disapprove, and that these had been usefully arbitrary, but this had been followed by a new spirit, where, instead of a simple "yes" or "no," the commission gave detailed reasons for its decisions.

He said that the influence of the commission ought not to be purely negative. Well-meaning people came every day with generous offers to beautify the city. To guide the misdirected the Commissioners' judgments should be like the decisions of the Supreme Court, positive and without revision.

N. Taylor Phillips, Deputy Controller of the city, said that in his department the society was regarded as almost an arm of the City Government, and its counsel was always heeded and usually followed. The city was filled with monstrosities called works of art, and every department of the City Government could profit through working in harmony with the society.

The Rev. Josiah Strong, President of the American Institute of Social Service, began his remarks with the statement that the safety of the city was more important than that it should be beautiful.

"The cornerstone of our Republic," said Dr. Strong, "is labor, which is inadequately paid. Laborer's work should be done in reasonable safety. None of us knows the daily peril of the laboring man. It is cheaper to avoid paying for safety appliances than it is to pay for funerals. The public is indifferent.

"The best statistics show that 232,000 perish every year in factories, and this, of course, does not include those killed by the railroads and on the construction of our tall buildings, where men perish and there is no record other than that they died by accident. Better than museums of art would be a museum showing appliances for public safety."

THE SOCIETY'S COMPETITION.

Details of Its Plan for Decoration of the Morris High School.

The Municipal Art Society of New York has arranged a very interesting exhibit of mural paintings, art potteries for street and public buildings, plaster models of civic edifices, and other things that belong to the life of the town. Under the direction of Mr. Charles R. Lamb and Charles M. Shean the galleries and anteroom of the National Arts Club, 37 West Thirty-fourth Street, have been turned into bowers and arbors from which blossoms hang.

There is no distinction of age or sex in the competition for the decorations of the Morris High School. No member of the jury can compete. The jury consists of John La Farge, Frederick Crowninshield, C. Y. Turner, mural painters; Karl Bitter, H. A. MacNeil, H. K. Bush-Brown, sculptors; Prof. Hamlin, C. B. J. Snyder, and R. H. Hunt, architects; C. R. Lamb, President, and Messrs. Charles T. Barney, John De Witt Warner, William T. Evans, and Calvin Tomkins, members of the Board of Directors of the Municipal Art Society; Robert W. De Forest, President of the Art Commission of New York, and Francis Pendleton, President of the City Improvement Commission. Mr. Snyder is the architect of the Board of Education. According to the rules of the society, the jury must consist of fifteen persons, ten of whom shall be professional artists—that is, architects, painters, and sculptors—and five shall be laymen.

The wall spaces available for decoration are surrounded by a wainscot of polished Tennessee marble of a pale pinkish tone. They are eleven feet long by eight feet high, and the lower edge of the picture will be six feet above the floor.

Each competitor is required to submit sketches in color for both panels, mounted on stretchers 30 by 40 inches, the designs to be on a scale of three inches for one foot. They must be signed, or else marked with a fictitious name or device, and delivered by 6 o'clock P. M. on May 15 to the Secretary of the society, William Walton, 37 West Thirty-fourth Street. Competitors who wish to be anonymous must place in the hands of the Secretary a typewritten specification or memorandum explaining the design, and a letter sealed with wax bearing the same fictitious name as the design and containing the real name and the address of the artist; this is not to be opened until the jury has made the award.

The vestibule to be decorated is about 25 feet long and 15 feet wide. There is no toplight; what there is comes from one side only. The school can be visited.

This is the most important public gift from the Municipal Art Society since the erection of the Hunt Monument on Fifth Avenue, opposite the Lenox Library.

HADEN'S ETCHINGS SOLD.

His "Shere Mill Pond" Knocked Down at Auction for $283.

The announcement that fine examples of Sir Francis Seymour Haden's etchings would be sold at Anderson's last evening drew a large crowd of print collectors. Haden's "Shere Mill Pond," the large plate, second state without the sky, and signed by him, was knocked down to J. O. Wright for $283. According to P. G. Hamerton, "with the single exception of one plate by Claude, this is the finest etching of a landscape subject that has ever been executed in the world."

Haden's "Egham," first published state, three large birds in the sky, and the coloring of the large bust white, went to "H. W." for $200.

"Harry Kelly's Putney, 1865," second state, with the autograph signature of Haden, fetched $61 on order.

"The Village Ford," etching and dry point, 1881, second state of the plate, signed by Haden, went to F. K. for $62.50.

MANSFIELD AS BRUMMEL.

The Role Still One of His Most Popular Ones.

An audience that filled the New Amsterdam Theatre greeted Mr. Mansfield last night in his familiar rôle of Beau Brummel. This favorite piece of the actor's repertoire seems to have proved a wise choice for the second night of his engagement. In fact, no selection of plays for Mr. Mansfield can ever be quite natural or complete unless it includes the "Beau," which the actor first presented in New York in 1891. Of all his parts it is one of the two or three most popular.

The resplendent man of leisure who set the fashion for a generation of London dandies; who never lost his own temper and who snubbed a Prince for making himself ridiculous by forgetting to keep his; who renounced for the sake of a younger man the only real love that ever beat beneath his immaculate waistcoat; and who, at last, overtaken by poverty and neglect, proudly stuck to his garret and starved gracefully—this king of fashion is well known to all American theatregoers. It is safe to say that for the present generation there is likely to be no Beau save Mr. Mansfield's.

Though it is fifteen years since Mr. Mansfield first played the part, the audience last night seemed to find in him the same charming, debonair man of youth and distinction. Mr. Mansfield seems never to lose his faculty of portraying young and active men.

The famous reprimand to the Prince, and the cutting, "I say, Sherry, who's your fat friend," delighted as they have always delighted. The dying whisper in the dingy attic with trembling, uplifted hand, "If any one calls, tell them I have a pressing engagement with His Majesty," proved as heart-rending as ever.

There were curtain calls for the actor at the close of the second and third acts.

The other members of the cast were well received. The second performance introduced another member of Mr. Mansfield's company—Irene Parker—in the rôle of Mariana.

CIRCUS READY TO OPEN.

Dress Rehearsal at the Garden To-night—Groom Injured by a Horse.

The arrangements for the opening of the Barnum & Bailey Circus season in Madison Square Garden Thursday afternoon have been practically completed. Yesterday the new Peace Spectacle was tried on the big track, with the horses, camels, and other accessories, and was found to be well fitted for presentation in the Garden auditorium. There were also rehearsals of the acrobatic, aerial, riding, and trained animal acts. To-night there will be a general dress rehearsal.

There was no trouble with speculators at the Garden box offices yesterday. Only a few applied for tickets, and were refused. The sale, however, was large—considerably in advance of last season, it is stated—and the prospects for a successful circus season are believed to be promising.

At the rehearsal of the pageant yesterday afternoon George Bowler, a young man from Bridgeport, employed as a groom, was thrown from his horse and badly bruised by the animal's hoofs.

PROCTOR'S SILVER JUBILEE.

Special Week's Bill to Celebrate His Twenty-five Years as a Manager.

F. F. Proctor is to celebrate his twenty-fifth year as a manager next month with an "anniversary jubilee" at his Fifth Avenue Theatre.

The entire week of April 9 will be devoted to a varied entertainment, changed daily, and participated in by the principal members of the Proctor vaudeville and stock company forces—notable among them being Mme. Yvette Guilbert, Fred Walton, Grace Van Studdiford, Amelia Bingham, Mabel Taliaferro, and James Young.

TO PICK NEW THEATRE PLANS.

Architects Who, with Mr. Conried's Help, Will Pass on Them.

The architects who, together with three of the founders and one theatrical expert, will judge the competitive plans for the building of the new theatre will be Stanford White and Donn Barber of New York and Edgar V. Seeler of Philadelphia. Mr. Conried will act as theatrical expert on the jury.

The general manager, who will have the assistance of a dramatic director (American or English) and an operatic director (probably French), will not be chosen until next Autumn.

METCALFE IN THE LIONS' DEN

And Was Not Bitten, Nor Did the New Amsterdam Ceiling Fall.

It came out yesterday that James S. Metcalfe, dramatic critic of Life, had spent Monday evening in the New Amsterdam Theatre, home of the "syndicate" and Klaw & Erlanger. Not only did he dare to enter the lions' den, but he enjoyed Richard Mansfield's performance of "Don Carlos," and nothing happened.

Somebody who evidently didn't like Mr. Metcalfe set about a story last evening that he was able to pass the door because he was unknown, whereupon Mr. Metcalfe said he would certainly arrange to keep any date for a visit that the management might set.

FOR NEW PLAYS ONLY.

Theatre to be Established in Cleveland to Try Out Dramas.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 20.—An "original production playhouse," the only institution of the kind in the country, is promised for Cleveland. The idea has the support of all the local managers in the "syndicate." Unless one of the present playhouses can be obtained permanently a new theatre designated as a permanent stock house will be built.

A. F. Hartz, proprietor of the Opera House, moved to New York several months ago. He returned to Cleveland on Saturday. After a talk with Manager Klein of the opera house the new scheme was decided on.

The Eastern managers are welcoming a scheme that will provide an opportunity for trying out the best manuscripts submitted to them.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Shuberts announced, yesterday, that on Thursday, March 29, De Wolf Hopper would give a matinee of "Happyland" at the Casino "for women only." No men will be admitted. Moreover, to be in keeping with the occasion, the ushers and doormen will be replaced by women. Mr. Hopper is scheduled to make a speech on matrimony.

The Actors' Society of America will hold its annual benefit at the Hudson Theatre on Friday afternoon, May 4.

MEMORIAL TO MISS ANTHONY.

Mr. Ivins and Prominent Women to Speak at a Sunday Meeting.

A memorial meeting to Miss Susan B. Anthony is to be held at the Hudson Theatre, in Forty-fourth Street, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It will be under the auspices of the Interurban Political Equality Council, which on Feb. 20 gave a luncheon at the Hotel Astor to celebrate the eighty-sixth birthday of Miss Anthony. She was too ill to attend. There will be many speakers.

William M. Ivins will speak of the character of Miss Anthony; Mrs. Charlotte Wilbur, President of Sorosis and a onetime worker with the suffragist leader, will say something of her work from an educational standpoint; Mrs. Terrell will speak of her abolition work, the Rev. Phebe Hanaford, the Rev. Antoinette Blackwell, Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake, and Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, a daughter of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, will also speak. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is President of the council.

TAFT GUEST AT FEAST IN FAR EASTERN SETTING

Given in Washington by His Fellow-Travelers in the Orient.

TABLE UNDER FILIPINO SHACK

Scenes of the Trip Recalled by Islands, Jungle, Chinese Gate, and Gorgeous Sunset.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The long-promised dinner to Secretary Taft by the members of the party who traveled with him in the Philippines was given at the New Willard this evening. The company was not strictly the official party of last Summer, although nearly all those from Washington were present, and in addition were some special guests of the hosts, notably the daughter of the Speaker.

The seventy guests were received in the pink ballroom, and when they were assembled were led into the adjoining ballroom, in the centre of which was a huge Filipino shack, under which the table was laid. The entrance was over a real gangplank, upon which stood the Captain of the vessel to welcome the party, and at the end of which a Jap ushered them into Japan. Next to Japan was a perfect Filipino jungle, with a real carraboa peeping through the thick foliage, and behind him a brilliant sunset. Immediately next to the jungle was a portion of the Sandwich Islands, with a gorgeous sunset effect produced by calcium lights behind the scenery.

At the extreme end of the room was a gate of the City of Peking, through which one passed into the further ballroom. At the side of the gate was a Chinese pagoda. On the other side of the room opposite to the Sandwich Islands were the different islands of the Philippines, with realistic foliage and brilliant lights behind them. At the end of the room opposite the Chinese gateway was a picture of the Manchuria tied to the wharf at San Francisco. Electric sparks in the National colors, with cartoons illustrating the itinerary of the party from Chicago to Canton, were among the spectacular features of the evening, which was further notable as being the first appearance since their marriage at any Washington function of Representative and Mrs. Longworth.

The company was made up as follows: Secretary and Mrs. Taft, Senator Warren, Senator and Mrs. Scott, Senator and Mrs. Dubois, Senator Foster, Senator Patterson, Senator and Mrs. Newlands, Senator and Mrs. Long, Representative and Mrs. Payne, Representative and Mrs. Grosvenor, Representative and Mrs. Hepburn, Representative and Mrs. Smith of Illinois, Representative and Mrs. De Armond, Representative and Mrs. Cooper, Representative and Mrs. Curtis, Representative Gillett of Massachusetts, Representative Foss, Miss Cannon, Representative and Mrs. Hill of Connecticut, Representative Otjen, Representative Cockran, Representative and Mrs. Howard, Representative and Mrs. Driscoll, Representative and Mrs. Wiley, Representative and Mrs. Longworth, Representative Sherley, Miss Critten, Representative and Mrs. Loud, Representative and Mrs. Parsons, Representative Gilber, Miss Halford, Representative McKinley of Illinois, Representative and Mrs. McKinlay of California, Major and Mrs. Edie, Mr. and Mrs. Pedigo, Mrs. Sherley, Mrs. Mondell, Miss McMillan, Miss Boardman, Miss Slater, Miss Kehoe, Miss Mattis, Miss Doyle, Mr. Eversman, Mr. Breckons, Mr. Carpenter.

Senator Warren, Senator Foster, Representative Swager Sherley, and Representative William B. McKinley were the committee in charge of arrangements, with Mr. Sherley also serving as toastmaster. The Secretary of War responded to the first toast, "Pleasant Memories."

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

BEHR—SCHLEY.

The wedding of Max Howell Behr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Behr of Morristown and New York, and Miss Evelyn Baker Schley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant B. Schley, was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Schley town house, 845 Fifth Avenue, by the Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington of Grace Church. There was an unusually fine musical programme, the choristers of Grace Church singing and the Danreuther Quartet playing. The ceremony took place in the large dining room, where the bride and bridegroom stood in front of an immense fireplace and mantel banked with yellow flowers.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore an Empire gown of tulle, profusely appliqued with chiffon butterflies over satin; her long tulle veil had a white lace butterfly poised half-way down its length. The veil was caught to her coiffure with a large butterfly set with diamonds, the gift of the bridegroom. The satin Empire girdle was also embroidered in silver butterflies. She wore a pearl dog-collar with butterflies in diamonds, and a rope of pearls, the gift of her father. The flowers she wore were white sweet peas and natural orange blossoms.

The maid of honor was Miss Margaret Hall Behr, sister of the bridegroom. She wore an Empire robe of white chiffon and moiré, topped by a large white moiré hat trimmed with white ostrich plumes and a golden butterfly. The bridesmaids were the Misses Olive Schley, a cousin of the bride; Katharine Lefens, Aileen Lawson, Edith Rossiter, and Lloyd Thomas. They were in Empire gowns of yellow chiffon cloth trimmed with yellow moiré, with yellow moiré and velvet boleros. Their large picture hats had golden butterflies at the left and long yellow ostrich plumes at the right.

Mr. Behr's best man was his brother, Herman Hall Behr, and the ushers were Frederick Hall Behr, Carl Behr, Walter Stillman, Joseph Ferris Simmons, Joseph Washington, Archibald Reid, and Evander Schley, a brother of the bride.

Relatives and intimate friends only were invited to the ceremony, which was followed by a large reception. The house was decorated throughout with yellow flowers. The table decorations were American Beauty roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Behr, on their return from their bridal trip, will have two residences at their disposal, the house at 2 East Sixty-sixth Street, and a beautiful Summer home at Far Hills, near Froh Heim Farm, the Schley country place at Far Hills, N. J. Both are wedding presents from the bride's father.

SMITH—ROSS.

PLATTSBURG, March 20.—Miss Elizabeth Swetland Ross, daughter of John Ross of this city and granddaughter of Gen. Henry Howard Ross of Essex, was married to-day to Frank Eugene Smith. Mr. Smith is a son of the late Joseph H. Smith, who was a leading physician here. He is a member of the law firm of Smith, Conway & Weed, with offices at 21 Cortlandt Street, New York City. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will live in New York.

WINDOLPH—SCHRENKEISEN.

Miss Mary L. Schrenkeisen and Arthur J. Windolph, President of the Junior Arion Society, were married last evening in the Marble Collegiate Church, the Rev. Dr. D. J. Burrell officiating. Miss Claire Hall was the bridesmaid and Henry Siefke Mr. Windolph's best man. A reception was held after the ceremony in the Hotel Astor. Mr. and Mrs. Windolph will make their wedding tour through the South.

To Help a College Settlement.

A public meeting in the interest of the Normal College Alumnae Settlement, at 446 East Seventy-second Street, is to be held at 3:30 this afternoon at the College Chapel, Sixty-eighth Street and Park Avenue. Among the speakers will be Miss Lillian Walsh of the Nurses' Settlement, who will tell of her fifteen years' experience in settlement work, and Dr. John L. Elliot of the Society of Ethical Culture, who will discuss "Settlement Ideals." Miss Grace Elliston of "The Lion and the Mouse" company, is to read selections.

SMALL JOKE ON SPRING.

Monopolizes Attention in the Tenderloin Till the Police Grow Weary.

There have been grave allegations for some time that the Tenderloin is getting slow.

Late yesterday afternoon a faithful policeman picked up about twelve dozen wire springs from a bed belonging to a Brooklyn man which had been dropped by a careless truckman at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. The springs were taken to the Tenderloin Station. The moment he set eyes of them Sergt. McCarthy spoke up, without a moment's hesitation:

"Ha, Spring is here."

Two minutes later Acting Captain McCann came in. From the bright light that slowly overspread his face it was evident that he was awaiting a chance to distinguish himself. And when there was a complete lull in the conversation Acting Captain McCann declared openly:

"Ha, Spring is here."

"Say," yelled Sergt. McCarthy to the doorman, "leave those springs in full view here. We'll see how many others are floored with this Spring thought."

About everybody who came in used the springs. By 10 o'clock a small group hung around the Fifth Avenue find, watching intently the faces of people who drifted in. They noted the bright light breaking upon the faces of every person the moment his eyes fell upon the springs. And always it came out in one form or another: "Spring is here!"

A professional bondsman, who knows that not a great deal of conversation is allowed to him in the station, could not hold himself in check. He had to get it out:

"Ah, there is Spring even in the Tenderloin."

The families of two raided disorderly houses saw their chance and seized it. Even a drunken woman, sent up from the West Twentieth Street Station, gazed fixedly at the wire tangles, and, shutting one eye, whispered over the desk:

"Sho-oh! it's Shpring here, is it?"

By 11 o'clock the Spring chestnut had become so wearisome that Sergt. McCarthy commanded the doorman to take the bundle of wires into the cellar.

"Get 'em out of my sight," he complained. "B' gee, I'll be dreamin' about springs this night. Talk about the Tinderloin bein' slow. It's the quickest lot of folks in the city."

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

The wedding of Cornelius Bliss, Jr., of this city and Miss Zaidee Cobb of Washington will take place in the latter city on April 26 in St. Margaret's Episcopal Church.

⁂

The wedding of Miss Marie McKenna, daughter of Justice McKenna, and sister of Miss Hildegarde McKenna, who recently married John Leggett Pultz, will take place on April 25, and still another important Washington wedding, that of Miss Anna McCauley and Charles O'Donnell, is also scheduled for April 25.

⁂

Miss Martha Prentice Strong will have five attendants at her marriage on April 17 to Harold M. Turner. Miss Kate de Forest Prentice, a cousin of the bride-elect and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. P. Prentice, will be the maid of honor, and Miss Hildred Harbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Harbeck, and Miss Ruth Hubbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bulkley Hubbell, both of New York; Miss Rhoda Sargent of New Haven and Miss Martha Pitkin of Boston are to be the bridesmaids. All of these girls were school chums of Miss Strong. Mr. Turner, who is a grandson of the late Alfred S. Barnes and son of Mrs. E. B. Turner, will have his brother, Spencer Turner, as his best man, and his ushers are to be Theron S. Strong, a brother of the prospective bride; Clarence Young, Robert Tilney, Murray Sargent, Edmund Rogers, and N. Buel Hollister. The wedding will take place on April 17 in the Brick Church, Thirty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue, at 4:30 o'clock, and will be followed by a reception for relatives and intimate friends only at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Theron G. Strong, 29 East Sixty-fifth Street.

⁂

Miss Daisy Pierson, who has Miss Annie Lyman of Boston as her guest, has given several dinners and other small entertainments in her honor.

⁂

Among the members of the amateur orchestra that is to play to-morrow afternoon at the tableaux for the benefit of the Maternity Hospital are Mrs. George C. Clark, Jr., Mrs. Trenor Park, Mrs. Morgan Goetchius, Miss Gladys Rice, Miss Katharine Barney, Miss Eleanor Alexander, Miss Dorothea Miller, and Miss Frances Ives.

⁂

A concert will take place this afternoon at the Buckingham Hotel at 2 o'clock for the benefit of the New York Home for Convalescent Women. Tickets at $2 each may be procured at the Buckingham.

⁂

A concert by the Tuesday Morning Singing Club took place yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria. The list of members of this class includes the names of Mrs. Stephen H. Pell, Mrs. Howard N. Potter, Mrs. Henry Seligman, Mrs. Frederick Edey, Mrs. Henry Burden, Mrs. Edward La Montagne, Mrs. Edward Wasserman, Mrs. Duncan Wood, and the Misses Alice Fellowes, Cicely Sheldon, Susie Valentine, Louise Wilmerding, Ruth Sibley, Ethel Morris, Eleanor Erving, Hedwig von Briesen, Alice Demorest; Mrs. Thornton Chard, and Mrs. Durant Cheever. Victor Harris was the conductor, Frank Sincere the accompanist. Julian Walker, basso, and Hans Kronold, 'cellist, assisted. The programme opened with two part songs, composed especially for the club by Charles Fonteyn Manney. They were "Snow-Flakes," the words by John Vance Cheney, and Lassen's "Spanish Gypsy Girl." Julian Walker sang a group of songs. There were also two unaccompanied four-part songs, the words by Charles Becker and Tennyson, the music by Victor Harris. Mr. Kronold played, and there were other numbers. There was a fashionable audience. No tickets are sold, but are given by members to their friends.

New Education Commissioner.

George J. Gillespie of 146 East Sixty-second Street has been appointed a member of the Board of Education by Mayor McClellan, to succeed Henry Schmitt, who died on March 13. His term will expire on Jan. 1, 1908. Mr. Gillespie is an attorney of the firm of Gillespie & O'Connor of 56 Pine Street, and was a Tax Commissioner under Mayor Low.

Our reason for advertising is twofold:
1. To inform readers of The Times that we know hundreds of families in distress, through no fault of their own.
2. To ask your help in providing food, shoes, clothing, medicine, or shelter for those whom you would want to help could you see what our visitors see. Robert Shaw Minturn, Treasurer, 105 East 22d St.

TO HEAD FRANKLIN UNION.

Prof. Rouillion to be Director of the Boston Institution.

Louis Rouillion, Director of the Mechanics' Institute of 18 West Forty-fourth Street, has been appointed First Director of the new Franklin Union of Boston. He will enter upon his duties at once, but will not resign his present post. The Franklin Union cannot possibly be in operation before October, 1907, as the site has not yet been chosen. For the present Prof. Rouillion will spend half the week in Boston and half in New York.

The Franklin Union is the result of a provision in the will of Benjamin Franklin. He left to trustees £1,000, which was to accumulate for 100 years and be then devoted to the foundation of an institution for "young apprentices" in Boston. In 1890 the century was up, and the trust had become almost $400,000. The will was was contested, but litigation resulted in a victory for Boston, and then the trustees were faced with the problem of the disposition of the money. The days of 'young apprentices' were over, and it was not clear what application of the money would be most in line with Franklin's wishes.

President Henry S. Pritchett of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who was one of the Trustees, consulted Andrew Carnegie. He thought it would be best to establish a mechanics' institute on the lines of the Forty-fourth Street one, and promised to give a dollar for every dollar the Trustees had for the project. They accepted his counsel, and the City of Boston subscribed $100,000 for a site.

Altogether the fund is now between $900,000 and $1,000,000.

Prof. Rouillion has been for six years at the head of the institution in Forty-fourth Street, and has seen it grow from 176 to 1,100 pupils. For eight years he has been Assistant Professor of Manual Training at Columbia. In 1903-4 he was President of the Eastern Manual Training Association, and last year he went to Ireland to act as chief Inspector of the Technical Institute of Ireland.

The aim of the Franklin Union will be to turn the workman into the artist in his own line. It will not teach him his trade, but to the man already earning his living it will explain the reason of the things he does by rule of thumb. The bricklayer will be instructed in the use of plans, the dyer in the effect of mixing certain acids and alkalies, and so on.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Gen. James C. Tappan.

Special to The New York Times.

HELENA, Ark., March 20.—Brig. Gen. James C. Tappan, one of the seven general officers furnished to the Confederacy by Phillips County, Ark., died at his home here last night.

Gen. Tappan was born in Tennessee, and was a graduate of Exeter Academy, New Hampshire, and Yale. As Colonel commanding the Thirteenth Arkansas Regiment he received the first shock of Gen. Grant's first onslaught on Belmont, Mo., and with his single regiment held the Federal forces in check until reinforcements crossed the river from Columbus, Ky., and swept the field. He also fought at Shiloh and other famous battles of the civil war.

After the war ended Gen. Tappan served both his State and his reunited country in high offices. Virtual election as Governor of Arkansas was twice offered to him, but he declined each time.

Bernard Woods.

Bernard Woods, for a long time known as a trainer of athletes, died Monday night in the home of his son, the Rev. John T. Woods, 57 Lenox Road, Brooklyn, pastor of Holy Cross Church. Mr. Woods was born in Ireland seventy-five years ago. His death was caused by the grip.

He came to this country in 1853 and established Woods's Athletic Grounds, Wythe Avenue and North Ninth Street. Here many of the competitors in the old-time six-day races trained and many boxing bouts were held. Mr. Woods was a member of the Williamsburg Volunteer Fire Department, and became a power in politics, although he never held public office. He leaves two sons, Father Woods and Harry B. Woods, a lawyer, and three daughters. Funeral services will be held Friday morning in the Church of the Holy Cross, Flatbush.

Isaac Gellis.

Isaac Gellis, well known among east side Jews, died yesterday morning at his home, 138 Henry Street, after three days' illness. Mr. Gellis, who was 55 years old, came to this country thirty-five years ago. He accumulated a large fortune in the provision business, and was widely known for his many charities.

Mr. Gellis was President of the Congregation Kahal Adath Jeshurun, at 14 Eldridge Street. He was a Trustee of the Beth-Israel, Mount Sinai, and Lebanon Hospitals, the Montefiore Home, the Home of the Daughters of Jacob, and the Hebrew Sheltering Arms Society. He leaves a widow, three sons, and four daughters. Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock to-day at the Synagogue of the Congregation Kahal Adath Jeshurun.

Edward La Montagne.

Edward La Montagne, 85 years old, died yesterday morning at his residence, 24 West Fifty-fourth Street, of old age. He was the senior member of the firm of E. La Montagne & Sons, wine importers of 45 Beaver Street. He leaves four sons and a daughter. Three of his sons, Ernest C., René L., and Maurice, were associated with him in business. The fourth son, Edward La Montagne, Jr., is a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Mr. La Montagne had been retired from active business for some time. He was a member of the New York Yacht, Racquet, Turf and Field, and Coney Island and Jockey Clubs. Funeral services will be held Thursday at the Church of St. Vincent de Paul, in West Twenty-third Street. The burial will be in the family vault in Calvary Cemetery.

Frederick Bang.

Frederick Bang, 84 years old, a retired designer, died on Sunday at his residence, 66 West Fifty-third Street, of old age. He was born in Marburg, Germany, and came to this country fifty-eight years ago. He is survived by three daughters and a son.

He was a member of the so-called Old Men's Club of Central Park, also known as the "Aldermen of Central Park," and was known among them as "the Mayor." The club has been in the habit of meeting every day and taking long walks in the park. Up to a month before his death Mr. Bang had gone on these walks regularly. Funeral services were held at his late residence yesterday evening.

John R. Gubbins.

LONDON, March 20.—John R. Gubbins, the well-known horse owner, is dead. He was born in 1839 in Ireland, and in 1886 was High Sheriff of County Limerick. He won the Downshire Plate on J. D. Whyte's Fairyland in 1870, won the Weller Cup at the Down Royal Meeting in 1888, the Two Thousand Guineas, the Derby, and the St. Leger in 1897 with Galtee More, and the Derby with Ard Patrick in 1902. Galtee More was bought by the Imperial Russian Stud in 1899 for $100,000, and in 1904 was sold to the Imperial German Stud for $65,000.

A LADY IN WAITING
By CHARLES WOODCOCK SAVAGE.

"An agreeable volume. The old-time atmosphere is well maintained, and history and fiction are neatly dovetailed into each other."—NEW YORK HERALD.

"These reminiscences come upon one with something of a surprise. They are so marked by naturalness and youth and the unconscious dignity of self respect. They are so free from egotism that the reader gains unexpected bits of close descriptions of character that are most interesting."—BALTIMORE NEWS.

"It is indeed refreshing in this day of trash to find something so invigorating and sincere as this young French girl's diary."
NEW ORLEANS PICAYUNE.

"Nobody could complain that Charles W. Savage's brisk tale of the French Revolution lacks incident or action."

It is possible for a manufacturer without imagination to be a successful manufacturer, but it is not possible for him to be a successful advertiser. The manufacturer who makes a product which in any way concerns the American woman should consider as a buying centre each home, however widely scattered over this country. The manufacturer who gets her attention first and best will be the manufacturer whose goods will be used the most, and who will receive most of her money.

The manufacturer need only consider one instance; need only consider one advertisement addressed to one woman; need only consider one publication read by that woman. If his deductions are correct in that one instance; if he has found one home where arguments will introduce his goods; if he has found one publication that is strong in that home, then he can multiply his selling chances by the number of homes that publication reaches.

THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL is a high-power telescope which multiplies the vague, confused, cloudy buying American public into more than a million concrete, actual, human homes, just as Alvin Clark's Polariscope multiplies the vague white cloud of the Milky Way into millions of worlds and fixed stars. This may be imagination, but it is also good business.

Obituary Notes.

Ex-Congressman W. C. ARNOLD of Dubois, Penn., died suddenly at Muskegon, Mich., yesterday, where he was looking after legal matters.

Ex-Mayor JOHN O. SHAW of Bath, Me., one of the oldest merchants of that city and a Past Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Maine, Knights Templars, died yesterday, aged 68 years. He was an officer of the National Naval Veterans' Association.

WILLIAM H. RILEY died at his home in North Plainfield, N. J., yesterday, aged 72 years, of angina pectoris. Until 1884 he was engaged in business in New York as a tea importer. After retiring he removed to Scotch Plains. He leaves a widow and two sons.

ROBERT D. CHANDLER of Fairhaven died at Red Bank, N. J., yesterday of pneumonia at the age of 60 years. He was a noted boat builder, architect, and designer of fast ice yachts, among the latter being the Wizard and other fast boats. He was once Postmaster at Fairhaven. He leaves a widow and three children.

WALLACE D. LOVELL, for many years a leading Boston broker and well known as a promoter of trolley lines in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, died at his home in Newton on Monday night. For a long time he was a member of the Boston firm of Potter, Lovell & Co., bankers and brokers. The firm failed in 1893, just previous to the collapse of the Maverick National Bank, with which Potter was connected.

WILLIAM PARKER, who, within the memory of the present generation, operated a stage line between Irvington and Springfield, N. J., died Monday night at his home in Hilton, N. J. He was 77 years old and was a native of Norfolk, England, coming to the United States in 1875. When the trolley came the old man's occupation was gone and he became a farmer. He knew many of the noted men of the State.

ARTHUR A. STILWELL, a wholesale dealer in drugs at 28 Cliff Street, died at his residence, 118 West 121st Street, yesterday. He was the son of the late United States Commissioner Richard E. Stilwell, and was 52 years old. Mr. Stilwell was a native of New York, and for thirty years he had been engaged in the drug business here. He leaves a wife and four children. The funeral will take place at his late residence at 10:30 o'clock to-morrow morning.

ELIAS B. SCHLESINGER, 46 years of age, the eldest son of the late Charles and Hannah Schlesinger, died Monday at his residence, 2,643 Broadway, after a lingering illness. Death was due to a complication of diseases. He was born and educated in this city, and as a young man entered the wholesale liquor business with his father. Owing to poor health, he retired from the firm several years ago. He was well known in Masonic circles. Funeral services will be held at his late residence this morning and the burial will be at Cypress Hills.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The severe storm of Monday has reached the mouth of the St. Lawrence, and is rapidly passing beyond the field of observation. The weather has cleared in its rear, and the winds are slowly diminishing.

In all other parts of the country except the Pacific Coast the weather has been fair and cold. In the South the temperature has fallen decidedly in the last twenty-four hours, and light to killing frost was reported this morning from Eastern Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Alabama. The temperature has risen over the eastern Rocky Mountain slope and the Missouri Valley.

For Wednesday and Thursday generally fair weather is probable in all parts of the country east of the Rocky Mountains. The temperature will rise in the Mississippi Valley Wednesday and in the Ohio Valley and South Atlantic States Thursday.

Winds along the New England Coast will be fresh to brisk westerly. Along the Middle Atlantic Coast, fresh to brisk westerly; South Atlantic Coast and East Gulf Coast, fresh northwest; West Gulf Coast, light and variable, becoming southeast; Lake Michigan, fresh to brisk southwest.

Steamers departing Wednesday for European ports will have fresh to brisk west winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware—Fair and continued cold Wednesday and Thursday; fresh west winds.

New England—Fair Wednesday, colder in north portion; Thursday fair, fresh to brisk west winds.

Western New York—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; warmer Thursday.

Western Pennsylvania—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; warmer Thursday, fresh west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1905.	1906.		1905.	1906.
3 A. M.	42	26	4 P. M.	38	35
6 A. M.	40	26	6 P. M.	37	31
9 A. M.	40	33	9 P. M.	35	30
12 M.	38	34	12 P. M.	33	30

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 32; for the corresponding date last year it was 38; average on the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 36.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 33; at 8 P. M. it was 30. Maximum temperature, 35 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 29 degrees at 4 A. M. Humidity, 79 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 67 per cent. at 8 P. M.

HIGHLY PROFITABLE COMMERCIAL TIES of common interest are extremely desirable between America and England. Practical plans have been prepared by experts, submitted and highly commended by many of the great bankers, statesmen, etc., of both countries. WANTED, gentleman of large independent means, world knowledge and experience, abundantly able to provide about $20,000 in amounts as required, to join in promoting enterprise as above. RARE OPPORTUNITY to make great and lasting name, enlarge circle of acquaintance with leading men of England and surely make great fortune. Principals only. Address in strictest confidence. LOU DILLON DRUGGING DENIED BY SMATHERS

New York Horseman Says He Won Memphis Gold Cup Fairly.

NO TRUTH IN ALLEGATIONS

Answer Filed in Supreme Court Contradicting Conspiracy Charge—Claim Right to Trophy.

The charge of drugging Lou Dillon in her race with Major Delmar for the Memphis Gold Cup was yesterday denied by E. E. Smathers. The denial was contained in an answer filed by John J. Adams, counsel for Mr. Smathers, in the Supreme Court, to the suit brought by the Memphis Trotting Association against Mr. Smathers to recover the Gold Cup, which was trotted for at Memphis in October, 1904.

The charge, which was brought by Murray Howe, Secretary of the Memphis Trotting Association, caused a sensation in the trotting world. It was alleged that Mr. Smathers, who, in 1904, drove his horse, Major Delmar, in the race with C. K. G. Billings's Lou Dillon and won the Memphis Gold Cup, was a party to a conspiracy to drug Lou Dillon and thereby insure a certain victory for Major Delmar.

Mr. Smathers in his answer asserts that he fairly and honorably won the cup, and alleges that "on information and belief this action was not brought or instituted, and is not maintained and prosecuted by the Memphis Trotting Association, the plaintiff named therein, but, on the contrary, the same is solely brought or instituted, and is being maintained and prosecuted, by one Murray Howe, claiming to be the Secretary of the Memphis Trotting Association, without lawful authority, and that the said Memphis Trotting Association never authorized Murray Howe, by resolution of its Board of Directors, or otherwise, to bring, maintain, or prosecute this action."

The denial also sets forth that the Memphis Cup was offered upon certain conditions, and among others "that it was to be annually contested for at the meeting of the Memphis Trotting Association until twice won by the same driving club, and when so won to be and become the property of the said club."

In the contest for the cup in 1902 Mr. Smathers says he won the trophy, driving Lord Derby and representing the New York Driving Club, and that in the year 1903 C. K. G. Billings, "representing, or pretending to represent, the Memphis Driving Club, and driving his mare Lou Dillon, won the contest."

The answer to the allegations of the complaint continues as follows: "In the year 1904 this defendant, driving the horse Major Delmar and representing the New York Driving Club, again fairly and honorably won the contest, and was thereafter, and thereby became, as representative of the New York Driving Club, entitled to receive the cup, and the same was thereupon duly presented to him as representative of the New York Driving Club, and thereafter defendant duly turned over and delivered the cup to the New York Driving Club, which club did thereupon and thereafter duly present and give the same to defendant, and defendant (Smathers) is now and ever since has been the lawful owner and entitled to the possession thereof."

In the complaint brought by the Memphis Trotting Association against Mr. Smathers it is alleged that "upon information and belief on and prior to Oct. 18, 1904, the defendant, together with George Spear, Edward Sanders, and others unknown to the plaintiff, conspired together for the purpose of deceiving and defrauding the plaintiff and obtaining possession of the Memphis Gold Cup and inducing the plaintiff to part with it, and deliver the same to the defendant (Smathers) and the club represented by him, with the intent upon the part of the defendant and his fellow-conspirators to deprive the plaintiff, the true owner, of its property and the use and benefit thereof."

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 20.—"I have kept out of the case thus far, and intend to keep from any public expression as long as it is possible." This statement was made by President Jones of the Memphis Trotting Association when asked concerning a dispatch from New York which stated that E. E. Smathers had in his defense filed in court asserted that the suit for possession of the Memphis Gold Cup was not brought by the Trotting Association, but by Mr. Howe without legal authority.

In answer to a direct question as to whether Secretary Howe had been authorized by the association to bring the suit, President Jones said: "I will have nothing to say one way or the other."

RACING AT NEW ORLEANS.

Favorites Win at City Park and Lose at Fair Grounds.

NEW ORLEANS, March 20.—St. Valentine and Uncle Henry were the only successful favorites at the Fair Grounds to-day. The former lasted just long enough to win, while the latter had plenty in reserve at the end. Weather clear; track good. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—Half mile. Sister Huffman, 101 pounds, (W. McGee,) 10 to 1, won; Glad Pirate, 109, (Feicht,) 3 to 1, second; J. J., Jr., 104, (L. Jones,) 5 to 1, third. Time—0:49 4-5. THIRD RACE.—Mile and three-sixteenths. Aurumaster, 109 pounds, (Obert,) 3 to 2, won; Nameoki, 110, (Feicht,) 15 to 1, second; R. F. Williams, 111, (Bedell,) 13 to 10, third. Time—2:03. Imboden, Stonewall, Magic Power, Nones, Pretty Nellie, Birdwood, and Light Note also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Mile and a sixteenth; handicap. St. Valentine, 115 pounds, (Robbins,) 7 to 10, won; Hallowmas, 97, (Obert,) 12 to 5, second; Little Scout, 104, (W. McGee,) 9 to 2, third. Time—1:49. Footlight's Favorite also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Six furlongs. Raviana, 101 pounds, (Belac,) 16 to 1, won; My Gem, 105, (Macey,) 8 to 1, second; Simon Kent, 107, (Robbins,) 4 to 1, third. Time—1:16 2-5. Trossachs, Van Hope, John Randolph, Monis, Potente, Dance Music, Ogontz, Ben MacDhui, Dromio, Little Red, and Hudson also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Mile and seventy yards. Uncle Henry, 102 pounds, (Bedell,) 13 to 10, won; Water Pansy, 104, (Livingston,) 7 to 1, second; Lemon Girl, 100, (W. McGee,) 7 to 1, third. Time—1:47 1-5. Ethel Mark, Katie Powers, Hortensia, Jungle Imp, and North Wind also ran.

Airship was the only beaten favorite at City Park to-day. The weather was clear, and the track good. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Three and a half furlongs. Tom Dolan, 114 pounds, (Nicol,) 9 to 10, won; Beau Brummel, 111, (D. Austin,) 12 to 1, second; King Leopold, 114, (Troxler,) 14 to 5, third. Time—0:42 2-5. Irene A., Vendido, Black Flag, Alyth, and Enolia also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Mile and an eighth. Liddon, 105 pounds, (B. Smith,) 11 to 10, won; Two Penny, 105, (Munro,) 13 to 1, second; Dunganon, 104, (Koerner,) 9 to 2, third. Time—1:57. Asclepias, St. Sever, Turrando, Piller, and Fox Hunting also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Six furlongs; handicap. Husted, 97 pounds, (J. Hennessy,) 11 to 5, won; Airship, 109, (Nicol,) 2 to 1, second; Lucy Young, 97, (Graham,) 9 to 2, third. Time—1:14 4-5. Chief Hayes, Elliott, Cascine, Billy, and Handsel also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Seven furlongs. Kercheval, 110 pounds, (Allen,) 13 to 20, won; Rickey, 114, (Nicol,) 3 to 1, second; Nonie Lucille, 112, (McIntyre,) 8 to 1, third. Time—1:27 3-5. Merely Mary Ann and America II. also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Five and a half furlongs. Percy Clark, 110 pounds, (Nicol,) 7 to 10, won; Adare, 101, (Harrigan,) 13 to 5, second; Julia M., 108, (D. Austin,) 6 to 1, third. Time—1:08 2-5. Sir Andrew, Wellesley, Tennyburn, and Hulda also ran. Southampton left at the post.

SIXTH RACE.—Seven furlongs. Goldie, 96 pounds, (Harrigan,) even, won; Ezra, 94, (Koerner,) 6 to 1, second; Fugurtha, 106, (S. Allen,) 40 to 1, third. Time—1:28 2-5. Capitano, Virgie Withers, Suzanne Rocamore, Little James, Heart of Hyacinth, and Malt also ran.

SEVENTH RACE.—Mile. Begonia, 100 pounds, (Harrigan,) 8 to 5, won; Glenclare, 106, (W. McIntyre,) 2 to 1, second; Galmeda, 98, (Farrow,) 100 to 1, third. Time—1:42 3-5. Rain Devils, Ruth W., Welsh, and Ann Hill also ran.

COMMEND FENCERS' PLAN.

Dr. Hammond Says Suggested Tournament System Is Adequate.

Fencers about New York were considerably interested by the suggestion of a new plan made public yesterday for the conduct of the intercollegiate tournament, which is unique by reason of the large entry in both team and individual competition and the necessity of completing the entire play within two days. They declared the tourney completed last week was thoroughly unsatisfactory and revealed a sore need of such an adequate system as proposed. Dr. Graeme Hammond, who is certainly one of the most experienced and thoroughly efficient officials in New York City, in discussing the matter, said last night:

"The difficulty encountered by the Intercollegiate Association was due first to the lack of an adequate system, and second to the inexperience of officials. There was no preparation of a plan to be followed prior to the tournament, and officials were chosen who had had little experience with tournaments, or none at all. The whole matter might better have been left to the New York Athletic Club to conduct, in which case the work of running off the contests and the judging would have been done with dispatch, and an effort would have been made to devise a plan of procedure beforehand.

"The ideal way to conduct a tournament is, of course, to have every man fence every other man, but as this is obviously impossible in the available time, some means must be found to eliminate at least half the teams in the preliminary bouts of the first night, and to have no greater number in the individual tournament. The plan suggested provides for both fairly and simply, and seems entirely adequate.

"By running three strips, eighty-four preliminary matches can be run off successfully in one night for the elimination test. Then when the team contests come, six matches in each of the three preliminary contests need not be fenced again if the results already obtained are used. The total requirement is further reduced by the fact that members of the same team need not fence each other. This cuts out twelve more bouts, leaving only thirty-six to fence, which can easily be handled in an afternoon.

"When the individual tournament comes to be decided, the utmost limit required will be thirty more matches. If one man qualifies from each of the eliminated teams, only thirty bouts are needed. It is unlikely that one would qualify from each, so the chances are that not more than twenty bouts would be necessary if that many were required."

MASS PLAYS IMPOSSIBLE.

Not by 10-Yard Rule, but by Another Prohibition.

In persistent advocacy of the placing of seven men in the forward line as the especial desideratum of football legislation, The Princeton Alumni Weekly publishes a statement questioning the opinion of the National Intercollegiate Rules Committee that mass plays would be impossible under the altered code. It cites "documentary evidence" to disprove the claim that it will be impossible with mass plays to gain an average of 3⅓ yards per down as required by the new rules, showing that in specific instances in former championship contests larger averages were made when touchdowns were scored.

The argument advanced is specious for two reasons—that it would be easy to select any series of plays that would average over 3 yards, if one long run intervened, and that the instances cited usually preceded touchdowns which most often follow such successful plays, and, second, that an average of 3⅓ yards is not alone required, but a consistent average of that amount. Reference to the records in the particular instances cited will probably reveal the fact that even in them frequently the question of which team possessed the ball was a matter of inches, with only a five-yard requirement.

The principal objection to the line of argument used, however, lies in the fact that it is not the ten-yard rule which the legislators hope will eliminate mass plays, and such a theory was never advanced by them, but the rule which requires any man withdrawn from the forward line to retire five yards behind the line.

The whole theory and success of mass plays has been to strike a given concealed point in the line quickly and unexpectedly with a massed weight before the opposing players could brace to meet it. It is necessary for the mass to start not more than two yards behind the line to do this, and the five-yard withdrawal makes successive mass plays impossible, whether the defense is weakened or not, in the opinion of most capable experts.

Furthermore, the separation of the two lines by a nine-inch neutral zone will make such plays more difficult, to say nothing of the restriction of holding, since the opposing forwards could not be gotten out of the way quickly enough, even though support could not reach them in time to stop the play.

HIGH SCORES WITH PISTOL.

Himmelwright Makes Good Targets in National Championship Meet.

Ex-Champion A. L. A. Himmelwright changed from the revolver to the pistol last night in the continuation of the National championship on the ranges of the Manhattan Rifle and Revolver Association's gallery, 100th Street and Broadway. His aim with the smaller weapon at the twenty-yard range was just as true as with the revolver on the first night. His two best targets totaled 94 and 91, respectively. In shooting the former target he practically destroyed the entire black centre with his ten shots, with four that counted 10 each and six that counted 9 each.

After trying several ammunitions, J. E. Silliman scored several targets with the pistol, his best showing a total of 89. Three of the competitors devoted themselves to the revolver. H. Klotz made one of 98 and several others above 90. Thomas Anderson's best target scored 87, while Thomas Le Boutillier's best was also 87.

Among those who are competing in the other cities in which the championship is simultaneously being contested, are R. S. Hale, Louis Bell, Clement L. Bouve, and E. E. Patridge of Boston; J. B. Crabtree, ex-champion at out-of-doors shooting; Dr. W. A. Smith and Dr. J. R. Calkins of Springfield, Mass.; E. L. Harphan and C. L. Burlingham of Chicago, Sidney E. Sears, ex-champion; E. H. Kessler, ex-champion, and William G. Kreige of St. Louis; Frank W. Berry and R. Swartz of Pine Bluff, Ark.; W. C. Pritchard, J. E. Gorman, ex-champion; Paul A. Becker, and F. S. Washburn. A number of expert women shots are competing in the revolver and pistol events on the range at Pinehurst, N. C.

Olympic Men for 22d's Games.

The Spring games of the Twenty-second Regiment Athletic Association promise to be more interesting than ever before because of the invitation extended to the members of the American Olympic team to compete, a majority of whom have accepted. As an inducement that all the members of the team may be present Mayor McClellan, it is expected, will give to each man who is going to Athens a souvenir gold medal.

One of the special features of the games will be a round robin series of relay races between the Thirteenth, Twenty-second, and Twenty-third Regiments for the military championship. The Thirteenth will have three Olympic men on its team, Hillman, Cohn, and Robertson, with Greene as the fourth member. The Twenty-third will have Valentine, Bacon, Sedley, and Northbridge. Myer Prinstein, the broad jumper; William G. Frank, who is to run in the Marathon race, and James P. Sullivan, the champion miler, will take part in the regular events.

Big Entry for the Seventh's Games.

A record-breaking entry has been received for the games of the Seventh Regiment which are scheduled to take place in the armory, Park Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street, on next Saturday night. Especial interest is being shown in the 300-yard run for the championship of the regiment, and as a fast field will toe the mark a new record will probably be established. Among the prominent men who will compete will be Paul Pilgrim, Vic Andrews, and Walter Cimiotte.

The programme is made up of twenty-four events, and contains as features a rescue race, a wall-scaling contest, a 350-yard run in regular heavy marching order uniform, a three-legged race, and a sack contest. Company K, which holds the world's record for wall scaling, has invented a new system by which the time for the event will undoubtedly be reduced.

Metropolitan Cricket League Meeting.

The Metropolitan District Cricket League held a special meeting of the Executive Committee yesterday at the Cosmopolitan Hotel to consider an application for membership from the Paterson Cricket Club, winner of the pennant in the New York Cricket Association last season. The application received unanimous approval, and Paterson will enter a team to compete in the league championship series for 1906, the other clubs comprising Staten Island, Brooklyn Team A, Brooklyn Team B, Kings County, Manhattan, and Montclair.

The league also resolved to form a second section for the minor elevens, and applications were received from the Manhattan, Brooklyn, Kings County, and Bound Brook clubs to compete in a regular championship schedule. Organisation was effected, and a schedule for both sections will be made up on March 26.

COLUMBIA'S STADIUM HELD UP BY STATE LAW

Projected Field Extends Out Beyond the Pier Line.

INVOKE SPECIAL PERMISSION

Legislature Asked to Pass Enabling Act, but Even If Granted, Long Delay Is Feared.

The optimism that greeted the announcement of the elaborate plans for a million-dollar stadium for Columbia as almost an accomplished fact has received a considerable setback by reason of legal complications that have developed to handicap the projectors of the scheme and to give rise to the fear that several years may have to elapse before the way can be cleared for carrying out the idea, even if it is not defeated entirely. The main difficulty lies in the fact that while the pier line fixed by the National Government is sufficiently far out into the Hudson River to permit the field to be laid out as planned, there exists a State law which prohibits the extension of piers out to that line and restricts them from approaching within 100 feet of the Government line.

An appeal to the city Board of Estimate and Apportionment for permission to take and use, or rather to make and use, the land desired developed the unexpected obstacle and entailed an appeal to the Legislature for a special enabling act to permit its transgression. Such an act was introduced into the Legislature on Monday, and the hope is expressed by the Columbia authorities that it may be speedily passed and the objection overcome, but there will assuredly be delays, and even if favorable action is eventually secured, it will be some time before the other steps can be taken.

While the unexpected difficulties have dampened the hopes of the students, who looked forward to the completion of the project within their own college careers, the committee feels that the benefits to be derived are sufficient to commend the needed legislation to the authorities at Albany.

Another prohibition confronting the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is in the New York City charter. This forbids the making of grants of public property to any private corporation without the consent of the Legislature. Yet a precedent was established for the requested consent in the cases of both the Museum of Art and the Museum of Natural History, which occupy ground forming part of a public park.

Aside from the difficulty attendant upon obtaining the consent of the authorities to extend the required distance, another statutory obstacle, limiting the width of piers, may have to be overcome. The present law provides that no pier shall be more than ninety feet wide, and where two or more piers are to be built a space of at least 100 feet must separate them. The Columbia Stadium will, in the rough, extend over a distance of four city blocks, making a solid mass about 800 feet wide. If the field is technically a pier, it may be necessary, in order to overcome this provision, to invoke the Government's aid.

Action by the Legislature on the pending bill will be anxiously awaited by students and alumni.

BOYS PLAY ROUGH HOCKEY.

Cutler School Defeats Berkeley—One Player Severely Cut.

There was considerable roughing, which led finally to serious injury, in the hockey match between teams of Cutler and Berkeley Schools last night at the St. Nicholas Rink. Cutler won by the score of 3 goals to 0, and within a few minutes of the finish of the contest Fox, the cover point of the winning team, cut Lawrence Suydam, the Berkeley point, in the right leg so badly that Dr. Young took five stitches to close the wound. Fox had previously been penalized for tripping and rough checking, as had also Capt. Sturgis of the Berkeley School.

Feeling between the two schoolboy teams ran high, because the match was of the interscholastic championship series now nearing the end. From the first face-off the skaters of the Cutler team devoted themselves to pocketing Capt. Sturgis and keeping him out of the play, as he is regarded as the strongest follower of the puck on the Berkeley seven. There was some furious stick work during the first half before Perry shot the rubber disc into the goal netting for Cutler.

With only a few minutes of the match left Berkeley desperately tried to score so as not to be "shut out." It was during the fast skating of this period that Suydam fell, and Fox, in passing, accidentally cut him on the leg with the blade of his skate. The line-up:

Cutler, 3.	Position.	Berkeley, 0.
Morgan	Goal	Ferguson
Rutherford	Point	Suydam
Fox	Cover point	Sturgis
Perry	Forward	Wilson
Le Duc	Forward	Barber
Norris	Forward	Nathan
Reid	Forward	Purdy

Referee—William Russell, Hockey Club of New York. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Birmingham Too Cold for Baseball.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 20.—It is exercise of the legs only that the Greater New Yorks are able to get here. Cold has set in good and stout, and the city is as frozen as New York, Griffith believes. Throughout the morning the men exercised at the Athletic Club and this afternoon the players indulged in a game of hare and hound. Elberfeld and Chesbro were the hares, and the remainder pursued. "Noodles" Hahn again led the runners to the hotel. The visitors and the Birminghams will play a regular game just as soon as the weather permits. The sight of the sun to-day just before evening leads many to believe that Spring is on the way. It is the coldest March that has struck this section in many years.

Baseball Changes in National League.

Henry C. Pulliam, President of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs, yesterday issued the following bulletin:

Contracts.—With Chicago—Edward M. Reulbach, Harry Steinfeldt, Robert Wicker, John J. Evers, Charles A. Miller, Carl L. Lundgren, John F. McCormick, L. O. Smith, Peter J. Noonan, Fred L. Beebe, Oscar E. Knolls, Willard Dodge, and Claude T. Rothgeb.

With Brooklyn—J. H. Doscher, H. H. Gessler, and John J. McCarthy.

With Pittsburg—Samuel Leever.

Releases—Pittsburg to Toledo, Otto F. Knabe and Edward Kinsella; Pittsburg to A. J. and G. of New York State League, Jerry T. Hurley.

Slow Galloping Only at Gravesend.

Galloping was possible at the Gravesend track yesterday, the weather having moderated enough to soften the course. It was far from being in good condition, however, and only slow going could be asked the horses. It was the first outing for most of them for two days, and almost every set under saddle was indulged in a long, slow gallop. Fred Burlew was on hand with the big Bennington string, and Tom Welsh showed his lot on the track. With McLaughlin already at Benning, there is a decided depleting of the Gravesend colony of horses, but others are on the way to New York, and with the season at hand, there will surely be busy times from now until the opening at Aqueduct on April 16.

Cornell's Football Captain Dropped.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 20.—Capt. Ray Van Orman of the Cornell football team has been removed from the university for the rest of the year for cribbing in an examination. At a meeting of the Faculty Committee on Student Organization last Saturday Van Orman was found guilty of fraud in an examination in veterinary surgery. Van Orman has played on the Cornell team for two years, and at the close of last season he defeated E. T. Gibson, the popular half back, for the captaincy, in a close contest. Although Van Orman will be able to enter next Fall it is certain that he will never be allowed to act as Captain of the football team.

Vanderbilt's Horse Maroc Won.

PARIS, March 20.—W. K. Vanderbilt's Maroc won the Prix Gulliver at the Maisons-Laffite races to-day.

GIANTS' LIVELY PRACTICE.

Fitzgerald Makes Good Impression as Catcher—Mathewson Out.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 20.—George Ferguson and "Matty" Fitzgerald, a possible battery for the Giants for the coming season, showed up in great form during practice at Red Elm Park this afternoon. Ferguson pitched a full inning and was effective without men on bases. His tremendous speed seemed to bother the batsmen who confronted him, but when he was asked to pitch with men on bases his speed diminished. Those familiar with Ferguson's American Association record say that this is the only reason why he was not in the fastest company before now.

With another change in weather conditions, resulting in sunny skies and fairly warm atmosphere, the Giants had the liveliest practice within a week. The teams lined up against each other in the afternoon. Capt. McGann led one side. Manager McGraw played second base and captained the other side. In this manner steady practice was taken and the pitchers were all worked out, care being taken by McGraw to allow but an inning to each in the box.

The "find" of the season continues to be young Fitzgerald, the Sharon (Penn.) youth, whose backstopping in practice has attracted attention from spectators and players. The veterans in the Giants' line-up have tried young "Fitz" out several times, and today, when McGann tried to block the throw to second, he was surprised to find Fitzgerald too quick. The youngster displays the fight-back principles McGraw admires, and seems possessed of enough accuracy and speed in the throwing. If he can show generalship, there seems no doubt about his falling heir to the position of understudy to Bresnahan and Bowerman.

Christopher Mathewson was an interested spectator at the afternoon practice. He promises to take part in to-morrow's game.

Graham, the outfielder sold by McGraw to Memphis, refuses to join that club at the salary offered.

POGGENBURG BEAT WRIGHT.

New York Billiardist Gets Average Prize in Championship.

CHICAGO, March 20.—Again showing his excellent form with the billiard cue J. Ferdinand Poggenburg of the Liederkranz Club of New York, former holder of the National championship, defeated Harry F. Wright of San Francisco in the play-off of the triple tie for second place in the National tournament at the Chicago Athletic Association. Poggenburg relatively outclassed his opponent, who before the competition began was rated the favorite for the title and honors. The New Yorker completed his string of 300 points at the fourteen-inch balkline game, two counts in balk, leaving Wright with only 114 points to his credit. As Poggenburg finished with an average of 11 14-26 it was evident that he was in much improved stroke over the match in which he met defeat at the hands of Edward W. Gardner of Passaic, N. J., who won the championship title last night.

Wright competed in two matches to-day, and as he was defeated in both, will have to be satisfied with fourth prize and the honor of making the high run of the tournament. His first opponent was Calvin Demarest of Chicago, and the local man won by the score of 300 to 92.

With Wright's position in the tournament settled, Demarest and Poggenburg are left to play it out to-morrow for second and third prizes. By defeating Wright to-day Poggenburg wins the prize for the single high average of the tournament. He and Wright were tied for this honor with an average of 16 12-18, and it was decided that the winner of to-day's game should draw the prize for this honor. Demarest in his game with Wright surpassed his former single high average by nearly a point, but as it was not made in a regular scheduled game it does not count. Summary:

Poggenburg—Total, 300; high run, 80; average, 11 14-26. Wright—Total, 114; high run, 25; average, 4 10-26.

In the first game of the tie Demarest made runs of 47, 76, and 80, and his average was 17 11-17, which was the highest made during the tournament. The summary:

Demarest—Total, 300; high run, 76; average, 17 11-17. Wright—Total, 92; high run, 37; average, 5 7-17.

HORSES AT BENNING.

August Belmont's String Arrives from South—McLaughlin's Big Lot.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20.—The stables at Benning are filling up rapidly for the meeting which begins next Monday, the latest arrival being James McLaughlin. There are eighteen horses in his string, five being turned over by Billy Garth, who had them in charge during the Winter. Race King heads the bunch, accompanied by Jack McKeon, the four-year-old Blue Coat, the three-year-old Kuro, Paloro, The Poet, and High Brush; while in the Garth addition Old Guard and Society Bud swell the three-year-old division to half a dozen.

The McLaughlin two-year-olds number nine, including The Galloper, a chestnut gelding by Golden Garter-Fascination III.; Moccasin, a bay gelding by Meadowthorpe-Lady Moccasin; Mode, chestnut filly by Sir Modred-Jennie Riley; Sunburst, bay filly by Peep O'Day-Smier; Miss Dixon, brown filly by Sir Dixon-Miss Annie, and Prince Paul, bay colt by Gerolstein-Salvation, while the three-year-olds turned over by Garth are Speed Queen, Sure Foot, and Campaigner.

All the horses show forward condition, bearing out the reports of the open Winter up North. Race King has let down and furnished so that he looks a larger horse than he was last year, and seems sound as the proverbial bell. Certainly on looks the Benning trainers have nothing on the McLaughlin lot so far as condition goes. In the words of this well-known owner-trainer, they have not missed a week's work all Winter.

The August Belmont horses have also arrived at the course from Garnet, S. C. John Whalen is in charge of the Belmont horses, which are headed by Lord of the Vale, while eleven two-year-olds make the stable particularly strong in that division. The youngsters are Okonite, Curriculum, Fond du Lac, Lady Vincent, Woodwitch, Brookman, Velocity, Nancy, Ramona, Shackle, and Wild Dance. Of these Okonite, a chestnut gelding, by Hastings-Orienta; Curriculum, a black gelding, by Hastings-Carlotta, and Fond du Lac, a bay gelding, by Don de Oro-Fond Hopes, are entered in the two-year-old stakes here. All of these youngsters are growthy and well developed, and look as if they have not been idle at Garnet.

Gray Wins in Pool Tournament.

In the amateur handicap pool tournament now in progress at the Broadway Billiard Academy Charles Gray (100) beat C. Johnson (100) last night by 100 to 68. Gray made a high run of 22 and 1 scratch, while Johnson's best run was 20, and he had 2 scratches. The players to-night will be W. Crowell (125) and C. Jackson (90.)

Church League Fives Close Together.

Basket ball among the Church League clubs is growing intensely interesting. The Xavier Athletic Association five leads at present, with the St. George Athletic Club and Bethany Athletic Club a tie for second place. To-night the leaders and St. George Athletic Club will meet on the court of the St. George Athletic Club, 207 East Sixteenth Street, and the St. George players are anxious to win because it will place them a clear second.

AUTO RACING BOARD NAMED BY CHAIRMAN

Strong Technical Committee Is Most Noteworthy Feature.

ALL SECTIONS REPRESENTED

Expected That W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Will Advise Several Changes in Big Road Race.

Jefferson De Mont Thompson, the new Chairman of the Racing Board of the American Automobile Association, and who, by virtue of that position is also Chairman of the Vanderbilt Cup Commission, gave out yesterday the full list of members comprising the committee this year. There are several changes, but there is nothing as radical as had been looked for in certain automobile circles. The board is William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., E. Russell Thomas, Samuel Walter Taylor, and S. M. Butler, Automobile Club of America; A. G. Batchelder, New York Motor Club; H. L. Bowden, Bay State Automobile Club, Boston; R. Lincoln Lippitt, Rhode Island Automobile Club; Frank G. Webb, Long Island Automobile Club; Ira M. Cobe, Chicago Automobile Club; George L. Weiss, Cleveland Automobile Club; Col. E. H. R. Green, Dallas Automobile Club, Texas; Dr. W. H. Bergtold, Colorado Automobile Club, Denver; L. P. Lowe, Automobile Club of California, San Francisco.

The members of the Technical Committee are Peter Cooper Hewitt, New York; E. R. Thomas, Buffalo; A. L. Riker, Bridgeport, Conn.; Henry Ford, Detroit. Each section of the committee is larger by one man than was the case last year. Of the old Technical Committee, Mr. Riker is the only one to be reappointed. The other two who served last year were E. T. Birdsall and Rollin H. White. With the exception of the Chairman, all but five members of the main committee served under the Chairmanship of Robert Lee Morrell. Those who have been dropped are James L. Breese, George Isham Scott, T. M. Hilliard, William Wallace, and F. C. Donald, the latter being Chicago's representative, who has now given way to Ira M. Cobe.

A change has been made this year in the relations of the Technical Committee to the main board. Formerly the Technical members had a vote in the board. That privilege has been withdrawn, and hereafter the Technical Committee will act simply as advisers to the board.

With the exception of A. G. Batchelder, the two new local representatives, Samuel W. Taylor and Frank G. Webb, are unknown quantities in automobile managerial or racing experience. The Denver and California Clubs are represented on the board for the first time, not so much in expectation of their attendance at committee meetings, said Mr. Thompson, as to recognize the growing automobile conditions in the West. The presence of a few of the old timers whose ability is unquestioned, backed by the mechanical knowledge of the technical members and a business like Chairman, insures a favorable prospect for success in managing the Vanderbilt Cup event this year.

"I hope to call a meeting of the committee within a week," said Mr. Thompson yesterday. "I cannot say that much more will be done than to map out our work and get organized. We expect William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., to return by April 3, and I understand he has some important matters concerning the conduct of the next cup race to lay before the board. Nothing, therefore, will be announced about the closing of entries until after a meeting which will be held as soon as convenient to Mr. Vanderbilt. It is barely possible that a few slight changes may be made in the racing rules, but that is a matter for the committee to consider."

An entirely new Vanderbilt Cup Commission will probably be formed after Mr. Vanderbilt's return. This is composed of a smaller body of men than the Racing Board, but while all of the work and conditions regarding the race are virtually done and drawn up by the American Automobile Association Board, the commission will doubtless assume somewhat more importance this year in view of the fact that representatives of the leading automobile clubs abroad will be asked to serve. Besides France, it is Mr. Vanderbilt's wish to have England, Italy, and Germany represented, and it is believed that he has already secured these foreign club members.

The members of the new Touring, Law, and Highway Committees will not be announced until next week, when Sidney S. Gorham, the American Automobile Association Secretary, will return from Chicago.

Autoists Will Lay Cornerstone To-day.

President "Dave" Hennen Morris and ex-President A. R. Shattuck will be the chief speakers this afternoon at the laying of the cornerstone of the new clubhouse of the Automobile Club of America, West Fifty-fourth Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue. The exercises will be held at 4:30 o'clock, and members of the club have been invited to attend with their automobiles. President Morris will make the opening address. He will review the history and growth of the club, and Mr. Shattuck will give a prophecy dealing with the future of the automobile. Dr. Schuyler Skaats Wheeler, Chairman of the Building Committee, will lay the cornerstone.

The new house will be the most complete in all requirements for motor car owners in this country, and it will be exceeded by few if any abroad. It is hoped that the organization, now located at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, will be able to move into its new quarters next Fall. There are now 800 members. The garage will be one of the features of the new home, storage facilities being provided for 250 machines.

HOPPE'S HIGHEST AVERAGE.

Splendid Run in Billiards of 375 in Seven Innings.

Willie Hoppe, the world's champion billiardist, made the remarkable average of 53 4-7 yesterday afternoon at 18.1 balk line in his game with Thomas Gallagher. Hoppe ran out a string of 375 in seven innings, his highest run being 123, and immediately after this he made a run of 97. It is the finest exhibition of billiards that Hoppe has given in his billiard rooms, 56 West Thirtieth Street, since he began practicing for his world's match with Slosson. Gallagher was in poor form and only scored 61, he too, playing 18.1 balk line. Score:

Hoppe—40 39 123 97 42 31 3. Total, 375. Average, 53 4-7.

In the evening Hoppe and Gallagher met in a 300-point game under the same conditions and Hoppe ran out in eleven innings, with an average of 27 3-11, his highest run being 96. Gallagher scored 57, his best run being 23 and his average 5 7-10. Score:

Hoppe—47 10 42 6 0 96 30 1 38 18 12. Total, 300. Average, 27 3-11.

The same men will meet again to-day, both afternoon and evening.

THE ORMOND

THE handsomest of Spring Overcoats, and a very welcome innovation to the man who has tired of styles brought out in former seasons.

The Ormond drapes to the calf, has the shapely back, very deep center vent and full length side pleats which spread and give extra seat room when wearer sits down.

Prices $25 to $40.

NEXT SUNDAY

The New York Times will review the present Real Estate Market in its various phases next Sunday, March 25th, at the height of the busiest Real Estate season that New York has ever known.

THE REMARKABLE VOLUME OF DEALING IN MANHATTAN AND BRONX and the year's unprecedented developments in the surrounding territory will be fully discussed.

The widespread interest in Real Estate and real property investments justifies the promise that this issue of The New York Times will command an unusually large degree of public attention.

The more remote parts of the Bronx and the adjacent regions in Westchester; Queens, where hundreds of acres are changing hands daily; Long Island, the whole of which is now regarded as a suburb of New York; Brooklyn, with its immense speculative and business activity; New Jersey, to which the prospect of improved transportation is attracting thousands; Staten Island. These are but a few of the topics which will be dealt with in an interesting manner in the coming issue.

The advantages of this issue for Real Estate advertising, intended to be timely and profitable, must be apparent.

The New York Times is not only a medium of wide circulation in professional Real Estate channels, but the general character of the paper brings it every day into the hands of over 100,000 people in the City of New York of the sort likely to be interested in Real Estate opportunities.

IVINS TO HELP WALL.

Alleged Irregularities in Merger Financing to be Discussed To-day.

William M. Ivins has joined forces with Judson G. Wall, who is seeking to bring to light the details of the financing of the New York City Railway Company and the Metropolitan Securities Company. Some time ago Mr. Wall called the attention of Gov. Higgins to seeming irregularities in the accounts of the New York City Railway Company, and the Governor referred the matter to the State Railroad Commission. The commission is to hold a public investigation into the matter at a meeting in Albany to-day. Mr. Ivins is to appear at this hearing with Mr. Wall, and both intend to make statements to the commission.

Attorney General Mayer is to conduct the investigation on behalf of the Railroad Commission. The Attorney General held a conference Saturday afternoon with Mr. Ivins and Mr. Wall, and, it is reported, outlined a plan of procedure for to-day's session of the Railroad Commission.

The items specially brought to Gov. Higgins's attention by Mr. Wall were transactions in relation to the issuance by the New York City Railway Company of 3 per cent. notes which were sold at 70 per cent. of their face value to the Metropolitan Securities Company, and paid off a few months later at par. These facts, it is said, did not fully appear in the statements made by the companies to the Railroad Commission, but were set forth in a statement made to the Commissioners by Controller Ludlam of the New York City Railway Company after the inquiries of Mr. Wall were referred to the company by the Commissioners.

Mr. Wall expects that the investigation by the Railroad Commission will throw more light on transactions by which, he charges a considerable part of the assets of the New York City Railway Company, which guarantees the 7 per cent. dividends on Metropolitan Street Railway stock, was transferred from its own treasury to that of the Metropolitan Securities Company.

OUR 'PHONELESS EMBASSY.

Diplomat at Paris Has to Run In Next Door—Contingent Fund Gone.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—As the result of the failure of the State Department to get deficiency appropriations aggregating $70,000 for contingent expenses of embassies, legations, and consular offices, many consular offices have been obliged to stop routine work. One Consul in Japan asked by cable to-day whether he should refuse to receive invoices of shippers to America. He lacks the means to perform the necessary clerical work. The department sent out a circular letter to-day to all its offices abroad notifying the incumbents that the contingent fund was exhausted and directing them to refrain from making any further drafts.

The American Ambassador at Paris is obliged to pay out of his pocket a fee to a concierge next door when he wishes to send a telephone message, for the embassy is not allowed its own telephone. Another Ambassador must go without a typewriter.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

LOUIS ROUTENBERG.—A meeting of creditors of Louis Routenberg, manufacturer of clothing at 62 Walker Street, was held yesterday at the office of Nathaniel A. Prentiss, referee in bankruptcy, at 120 Broadway, and Harry Osterman was elected trustee. His bond was fixed at $5,000.

GUSTAV ZANDER.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed Howard S. Harrington receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of Gustav Zander, manufacturer of boys' waists and blouses at 37 Walker Street, and fixed his bond at $2,500. The assets are estimated at $6,000 and liabilities $15,000.

JASSOY COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Jassoy Company, manufacturing jewelers at 14 John Street, show liabilities $21,165 and nominal assets $10,101, consisting of stock $8,073, machinery and fixtures $3,107, accounts $4,543, and cash $378. The largest creditors are Ingomar Goldsmith & Co. $11,503 and the Greenwich Bank $3,600.

WILLIAM NUSBAUM.—Schedules in bankruptcy of William Nusbaum, manufacturer of women's hats at 58 East Eighth Street, show liabilities $10,877 and nominal assets $3,975, consisting of stock $600, fixtures $20, accounts $2,790, and cash in bank $565. Among the creditors are Augusta Nusbaum $2,400, Ben Wertheimer & Co. $2,325, Bernhardt Brown $1,000, and Heinsheimer Brothers $1,028.

BROWN HAT COMPANY.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has appointed Burgwyn Maitland receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of the Brown Hat Company, manufacturers of women's hats at 19 Bond Street, and fixed his bond at $2,500. It was stated that dissensions have arisen among the officers and stockholders of the company, and threats have been made to bring proceedings to dissolve the corporation and to distribute the assets.

MRS. LUCY P. MORGAN.—Schedules in the bankruptcy proceedings brought by creditors against Mrs. Lucy P. Morgan, proprietor of a private school at 13 and 15 West Eighty-sixth Street, on Feb. 2 last, were filed yesterday by Elbert B. Hamlin, the receiver. Mrs. Morgan died the day after the petition was filed. They show liabilities $13,027 and assets $4,734, consisting of cash $1,312, furniture $1,000, pictures $25, and accounts $2,397. Among the creditors are Ellen Newell $1,410, A. Balthaus $987, Charlotte E. Jones $881, Eva Murphy $765, Alice Donlevy $750, Overbeck Brothers $720, and Ida Griffiths $660.

LOUIS L. TODD.—The bankruptcy proceedings which were begun against Louis L. Todd, proprietor of the Hotel Vendome, at Broadway and Forty-first Street, on April 17, 1905, were finished yesterday by Judge Holt of the United States District Court confirming the report of John J. Townsend, referee in bankruptcy, in favor of a composition with the creditors. Weil, Wolf & Kramer, attorneys for Mr. Todd, said that the composition was 50 cents on the dollar, payable 25 cents cash and 25 per cent. in the preferred stock of the Broadway Vendome Company; all of the preferred stock was issued to the creditors. The total liabilities of Mr. Todd were over $900,000, of which about two-thirds were secured by mortgages.

LEGAL NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE SUPREME Court of the State of New York, held at the County Court House, in the City and County of New York, on the 9th day of March, 1906. Present, Hon. Samuel Greenbaum, Justice.—In the matter of the application of C. F. BOND, INCORPORATED, for authority to change its name to C. F. BOND COMPANY.—Upon reading and filing the petition of C. F. Bond, Incorporated, a domestic corporation, duly verified by C. F. Bond, its President, wherein said petitioner prays for an order authorizing it to assume another corporate name, to wit, the name C. F. Bond Company, and upon filing the certificate of the Secretary of State annexed thereto, certifying that the name which such corporation proposes to assume is not the name of any other domestic corporation or a name which he deems so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, and upon filing due proof by affidavit showing that notice of the presentation of said petition has been duly published for six weeks in The New York Law Journal, a daily newspaper published in the County of New York, and in The Sun, a daily newspaper published in the County of New York, in which county such corporation has its business office, and the court being satisfied by said petition and by the affidavits and certificate presented therewith that the petition is true and that there is no reasonable objection to the change of name proposed, and that the petition has been duly authorized and that notice of the presentation of the petition, as required by law, has been made,

Now, on motion of Francis S. McDivitt, attorney for the said petitioner, and no one opposing, it is Ordered that said petition be, and the same hereby is, granted, and that the petitioner herein, C. F. Bond, Incorporated, be, and it hereby is, authorized to assume another corporate name, to wit, the name C. F. Bond Company, on and after the 16th day of April, 1906, and it is further ordered and directed that this order be entered and the papers on which it is granted be filed, within ten days from the date hereof, in the office of the Clerk of New York County, the county in which the certificate of incorporation of said corporation is filed, and that a certified copy of this order, within ten days after the entry thereof, be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and further that a copy of this order be published once a week for four successive weeks in The New York Times, a newspaper published in the County of New York, beginning within ten days after the entry hereof. Enter S. G., J. S. C.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE SUPREME Court of the State of New York, held in and for the County of New York at Part I. thereof in the County Court House, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on the 26th day of February, 1906. Present: Hon. James Fitzgerald, Justice.—In the matter of the application of the Trustees of Lenox Presbyterian Church of the City of New York to change the corporate name of LENOX PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH to that of ST. NICHOLAS AVENUE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—Upon reading and filing the petition of the Trustees of Lenox Presbyterian Church of the City of New York, dated and verified the 10th day of January, 1906, praying for leave to the corporation known as "The Lenox Presbyterian Church" to assume the name of the "St. Nicholas Avenue Presbyterian Church," in the place of its present name, and the certificate of the Secretary of State thereto annexed, and the notice of motion herein and proofs of due publication thereof, and after hearing Everett P. Ketchum, Esq., counsel for said petitioners in favor of said motion, and no one appearing in opposition thereto, and the court being satisfied by said petition and certificate that there is no reasonable objection to said Lenox Presbyterian Church assuming the name proposed, it is hereby Ordered that the said corporation, "The Lenox Presbyterian Church" of the City of New York, be and it hereby is authorized to assume the name of "St. Nicholas Avenue Presbyterian Church" in the place of its present name on the 2d day of April, 1906, provided the petitioners cause a copy of this order to be published, within ten days after the same is entered in The Law Journal and The N. Y. Times once a week for four successive weeks, and that within ten days after the making of this order they cause the same to be entered, and the papers upon which it was granted to be filed, in the office of the Clerk of the County of New York, and that they cause a certified copy of this order within ten days after the entry thereof to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and after the said requirements are complied with said corporation must on and after the said 2d of April, 1906, be known by the name it is hereby authorized to assume and by no other name.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Rise; Call Money Rates, 4½@5½ Per Cent.

Foreign Markets Cheerful—Cotton Falls on 10,697,000 Bale Estimate.

On a diminished volume of trading, prices in yesterday's stock market scored advances equal to the declines suffered by them on the previous day, there being as little in the way of actual news developments bearing on the one movement as on the other. The upward swing yesterday seemed to represent an entirely natural recovery from declines which had been brought about largely by professional traders, who summoned to their assistance a host of absurd and entirely false reports regarding the health of many prominent Wall Street men. If the object was to depress prices to such an extent as to bring about sales of stocks on stop-loss orders and to attract a heavy volume of overnight selling orders from out of town, it failed rather signally, for improvement was persistent from the opening of yesterday's session to the close. In the graver matters upon which the stock market is quite evidently waiting for some cue as to its future course there was little change yesterday. Foreign advices were, if anything, a trifle more cheerful regarding the outlook for a happy issue of the Moroccan difficulties. It was even asserted that the conference would reach an agreement with two more sittings, and European markets were disposed to accept this information as authentic. Indefinite reports were received of the prevalence of a better feeling on the part of both miners and operators engaged in a discussion of the bituminous situation at Indianapolis, while the anthracite operators concluded their conference in this city upon the latest proposals from the mine workers after the close of the Stock Exchange.

Payments of the final installment on that portion of the recent Japanese loan subscribed for in this country were made yesterday without disturbance to the money market; in fact, the bulk of the day's loans on call was made at a rate appreciably lower than that prevailing for some few days, while time money was unchanged. In spite of heavy purchases of sterling bills to meet maturing obligations to foreign bankers, the indebtedness representing credits secured at the end of last year, there were such offerings of finance bills, due perhaps to the renewed optimism abroad over the Moroccan situation, as to lead to a trifling decline in demand sterling. The banks added several thousand dollars to the gains already made by them in their transactions thus far with the Sub-Treasury. Sharp declines occurred in the grain and cotton markets, the fall in wheat following reports of unusually large supplies at interior points, while the break of practically $1 a bale in cotton came with the publication of the Census Bureau's report estimating the total ginning of cotton for the season at 10,697,032 bales. This is the bureau's final report on the cotton ginned from the growth of the season of 1905, and the total compares with 13,597,782 bales in 1904 and 10,014,458 bales in 1903. Liberal purchases of cotton at prevailing prices by English spinners are entirely probable, especially so since the output of cotton goods from English mills continues heavy.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 20.—The local money market is unchanged.

Call loans, 5½ per cent.; time loans, collateral, 5½ per cent.; time loans, mercantile paper, 5@5½ per cent. Clearing House loans, 5 per cent.; New York funds, par @10c. discount. Clearings, $24,178,682; balances, $1,338,481. Sub-Treasury debit, $233,028.

Business in the local market was on a very limited scale to-day. Traders who sold stocks yesterday were inclined to take profits, and in some instances rallies were seen. Commission houses report an accumulation of selling orders around present prices, while buyers generally are supplied for the time being. American Pneumatic continued the feature in to-day's trading, selling at its record price of 28⅜. Price changes in the Copper shares were generally fractional outside of North Butte, which gained 2 points for the day. The closing was quiet.

SILVER FAMINE IN PERSIA.

Mint Closed Owing to Lack of Bullion—Financial Crisis Feared.

TEHERAN, March 20.—The high price of silver has produced much speculation in the purchase of khrans (a Persian silver coin worth less than 20 cents) for export to India, where they are recoined into rupees.

The Persian Mint has been closed owing to lack of bullion. Fears of a financial crisis are expressed here.

LONDON, March 20.—The agent here of the Imperial Bank of Persia confirms the Teheran report of the scarcity of silver in Persia, and explains that it is due to the high price of the metal in London. He adds that he received a telegram from Teheran to-day saying that there was no indication of a financial crisis at the Persian capital.

CAMBRIA COMPANIES' YEAR.

Steel and Iron Concerns' Net Income for 1905 Was $4,100,183.

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—The Cambria Steel Company and its affiliated Cambria Iron Company held their annual meetings to-day. The financial report shows a net income of $4,100,183 for 1905, as against $1,925,542 for 1904.

According to the annual report, there remains of the $3,500,000 term notes issued on Dec. 15, 1900, $565,000 to be paid this year. Powell Stackhouse, J. W. Townsend, and R. Francis Wood, retiring Directors of the steel company, were reelected, and the old Board of Directors of the iron company was re-elected.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, March 20.—Rates for money were fairly easy in the market to-day. Discounts were weak.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was dull. Prices generally weakened in the absence of support, but the market closed with a better tone on the improved political aspect. Consols hardened on the monetary outlook.

Americans opened weak but recovered to slightly above parity. There were few transactions. The market rallied during the last hour and closed with prices firm and trading more active.

Foreigners were quietly firm.

Kaffirs fluctuated slightly.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 104¼.

Bar silver firm at 30⅛d per ounce.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 15; Lisbon, 4.50.

The amount of bullion taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day was £87,000.

Exports of Merchandise.

Exports of merchandise from the Port of New York for the week were valued at $11,918,226, compared with $14,243,563 in the preceding week, and $11,913,848 in the corresponding week last year. From Jan. 1 the exports aggregate $138,230,573, against $112,737,110 in the corresponding period last year.

VANDERBILT ROADS REPORT.

Michigan Central, Pittsburg & Lake Erie, and Rutland Give 1905 Figures.

Three Vanderbilt roads, the Michigan Central, the Pittsburg & Lake Erie, and the Rutland Railroad, issued yesterday their reports for 1905. The gross earnings of the Michigan Central amounted to $23,283,868, an increase of $1,790,924. Operating expenses increased even more, so that net earnings showed a decrease of $33,978. This, however, was more than offset by the increase in other income due to larger dividends received on stocks owned by the Michigan Central.

The surplus earnings after the payment of 4 per cent. dividends on the company's stock amounted to $223,934, compared with $123,155 the year before. The amount to the credit of profit and loss at the close of the year was $8,864,157. The bonded debt was increased in the year by the issue of $1,000,000 bonds of the 3½ per cent. issue, due in 1952. Bonds of the Jackson, Lansing & Saginaw to the extent of $30,000 were purchased and canceled.

The Pittsburg & Lake Erie report shows payments of $1,504,721 made on account of the purchase of the property of the Little Kanawha syndicate. This amount shown in the balance sheet apparently represents the first payment which another part of the report says was made on Nov. 2 last. On the same date the road acquired the entire holdings of the Green County Railroad syndicate. An advance of $250,000 on this account appears in the balance sheet.

The Pittsburg & Lake Erie's gross earnings last year were $12,837,735, compared with $10,035,509 in 1904. After the payment of 10 per cent. in dividends, there was shown a surplus of $1,139,235, bringing the total amount to credit of profit and loss up to $7,319,552.

The report of the Rutland Railroad shows that the amount of South Shore Railway securities held by the Rutland is 76 out of 100 certificates of a par value of $7,500 each, representing stock and bonds of the road. Control of the South Shore was acquired by the Rutland last November. Increases in both gross and net earnings are reported by the Rutland. Last year a dividend of 1½ per cent. was paid on the preferred, while nothing was paid the previous year. The surplus for 1905 amounted to $38,046.

AMALGAMATED COPPER LOSES

Court of Appeals Upholds Mr. Fennelly's Right to Inspect Books.

ALBANY, March 20.—The Court of Appeals to-day decided in favor of Joseph Fennelly, who sued the Amalgamated Copper Company and the National City Bank of New York in order to obtain the right to inspect the copper company's stock books and papers containing the names of its stockholders, together with their holdings, and to make a transcript of such information as he might desire to obtain from the same. The stock books of the company were in the possession of the bank. Mr. Fennelly applied for a mandamus to compel the inspection under rights which he claimed under Section 53 of the stock corporation law. All courts decided in his favor.

The Court of Appeals in its decision holds that "the power of the court to exercise discretion is not presented by the record, the court having exercised its discretion in favor of the relator."

The demand by Joseph Fennelly for permission from the Amalgamated Copper Company to inspect that company's stock list was made in connection with a movement started in Montana to levy a tax on the holders of Amalgamated Copper Company stock resident within the State of Montana. This movement was started a year or more ago by ex-General Manager Scallon of the Amalgamated Copper Company, who retired from the company's management about two years ago. He proposed that a State law should be passed taxing the residents of Montana holding stock in the Amalgamated Copper Company.

Mr. Scallon, as the head of a Civic League in Montana, is engaged also in an effort to do away with gambling in the State.

RAISES ITS DIVIDEND.

Trust Company of America Now Pays 32 Per Cent.

The Trust Company of America raised its dividend rate yesterday from 24 per cent. per annum to 32 per cent. per annum, and declared a quarterly dividend of 8 per cent., payable April 2. Elijah W. Sells, President of the firm of Haskins & Sells, public accountants, was elected to the Directorate.

The Trust Company of America was formed last May by merger of the City Trust Company of New York, the former Trust Company of America, and the North American Trust Company under the name of the Trust Company of America, and dividends have since been declared aggregating 12 per cent. on its capital stock, in addition to the placing of over $600,000 to its surplus account.

Its present capital and surplus are $12,200,000 and deposits amount to over $55,000,000.

COTTON CROP OF 1905

10,697,013 as Against 13,697,310 in 1904—Sharp Break in Market.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—A bulletin issued to-day by the Census Bureau shows the cotton crop for 1905, including linters and counting round bales as half bales, to be 10,697,013, compared with 13,697,310 for 1904, and 10,015,721 for 1903.

The average gross weight of the bales this season is shown to have been 503.8 pounds, and the equivalent 500-pound bales to have been 10,777,510. The items entering the totals for the crop of 1905 are 10,214,059 square bales, 279,836 round bales, 112,539 Sea Island bales, and 230,497 linters. The number of bales estimated by the ginners as remaining to be ginned and included in the report is 40,112.

TO DEVISE CURRENCY REFORM

Chamber of Commerce Committee Begins Active Work.

The special committee on currency reform appointed recently by the Chamber of Commerce has actively taken up its work of investigating the currency question with a view to suggesting improvements. It is not probable, however, that the report will be prepared in time to be laid before the President and the Secretary of the Treasury before the adjournment of Congress.

It was said yesterday that the committee has no intention of hurrying through its work. The committee has already held two meetings, and hereafter meetings will be held at frequent intervals.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Where are the stocks?

⁂

Late in the Summer of 1905, at a period when Wall Street opinion was somewhat mixed and people were without any very clear ideas respecting the market, an eminent banker waved his hands upward in a gesture of vague perplexity, stared at the ceiling as if something tangible had suddenly passed into the fourth dimension or vanished into thin air, and asked, wonderingly: "Where are the stocks?" He was very serious. "They are not here," he continued. "They seem to have disappeared from the Street. I think the people must have been taking them away gradually—so gradually that the supply has not diminished perceptibly from week's end to week's end, but very materially from the end of one year to another." The question is quite as pertinent to-day as it was nine months ago. Brokers put it to each other. A bull market has been in progress for two years, and yet, after a setback of only about ten points in the general list, commission houses find their margined lines so reduced that brokers say: "We have never seen a market decline seriously with so few stocks around." The supply of stocks has not been greatly increased in the last two years, and the transfer books of the big corporations show that the number of stockholders increases steadily. It is supposed that the so-called pool houses are carrying a lot of stocks; they must be. The average commission house, however, is light of stocks.

⁂

The greater part of Monday's decline was quietly recovered yesterday on a volume of trading approximating 625,000 shares, as compared with a total of about 750,000 shares on Monday. When prices were declining on Monday one report kept coming continually from the floor: "There is no demand for stocks at the market." Yesterday the difficulty of buying back stocks without advancing quotations was equally noteworthy.

⁂

The ease with which the market becomes oversold is a restraint upon bearish operations.

⁂

A few weeks ago prices were being advanced on wild stories of impending deals. People who were distrustful of the bull side for that reason are equally distrustful of the bear side when prices are helped downward by fake rumors of death, calamity, and corruption. Those who on Monday were supposed to be afflicted in mind had presumably recovered their reason over night, and others who were mortally distressed in the flesh were able to sit up and take notice. Tammany declared against municipal ownership, bears covered their short contracts, prices advanced 1 to 2½ per cent. all around, and business on the Stock Exchange was exceedingly dull.

⁂

There was much less selling pressure at the opening yesterday morning than might have been expected, after such a closing as the market made on Monday. The bear crowd evidently was chagrined. It sold stocks freely in the London market, or was reported to have done so, thinking that it would be able to continue Monday's demonstration against prices. At the Waldorf on Monday evening you could hear nothing but the most extreme bear talk. Amalgamated Copper would break through par, and Union Pacific would be made to sell lower than it went two weeks ago. Nearly everybody expected a bad half hour at the opening. It seemed highly probable that the country would come in with selling orders. There was some outside selling on the opening, but it fell considerably short of the volume anticipated, and the bear crowd, seeing that stocks were not pouring into the market, became more conservative and was moved to retire a few short contracts. Stocks opened at about a parity with Monday's closing. Amalgamated Copper, of which the bear element had been making a target, opened up one-eighth of 1 per cent., declined ⅝, to 103, and then rallied 2 points before the end of the first hour. It got up later to 105½, where it closed. The course of Amalgamated Copper pretty well indicates the course of the whole market.

⁂

Reading seems to find its point of ultimate resistance around 125.

⁂

The Steel stocks rallied in a somewhat reluctant manner, especially the common stock, which closed at a recovery of but ⅝ per cent. The preferred did better, closing at a recovery of 1⅛ per cent. on transactions of only 10,000 shares. There appears to be a steady supply of Steel common, but there has been a pretty good market for it between 39 and 40. On declines it has stopped several times at 39⅛, apparently receiving strong support each time it threatened to break through 39. Between times it has the appearance of a stock that is left to take care of itself. Traders like it because of the free and open character of the market. Its fluctuations are narrow, relatively to those in other stocks, but, on the other hand, it can be handled in large amounts. It is easier to turn 10,000 shares of Steel common than 1,000 shares of many other stocks, and traders who prefer it for that reason operate for a small profit on a large line, rather than for large profits on a small line. Thus it equalizes. It is good for a stock to have that kind of market. Its position is always less vulnerable than that of a "cliqued" or narrowly held stock, for which, under certain conditions, there may be no market at all. It is usually when a ready market is most wanted that a "cliqued" stock cannot be sold at all.

⁂

The strength of Consolidated Gas stock yesterday gave rise to the comment that the Directors would probably not act upon the dividend until the Legislature had adjourned, after which the company would be "safe" for a whole year. It is understood that Mr. Hill wants to put his ore deal over until Congress adjourns. An imaginative person with a sense of humor (there is none such in Wall Street) might think of certain prominent corporations as living entities, capable of human emotions, hiding away in caves and lurking in dark recesses, all in a state of panic, afraid to show their heads lest some lawmaking body or some investigating commission whack them over the nose. One is waiting for the New York State Legislature to adjourn, another for Congress to rise, another for popular clamor to subside, and all are in perpetual fear of being dragged forth from their places of retreat. Nobody can be sure where the next bomb is going to explode, wherefore the only safe course, or, rather, the course offering the maximum degree of safety, is to go into hiding.

⁂

The financial interests of Wall Street have been watching political developments in this State with thinly veiled uneasiness. Several prominent bankers have gone even so far as to say that the Socialistic tendency, so called, must weigh heavily in the reckoning of future influences touching the stock market. Tammany's declaration against municipal ownership, therefore, was a matter which could properly be numbered among the helpful factors in shaping sentiment yesterday. It was more a thing to talk about than trade upon.

⁂

If there is no incentive to buy stocks for long account, neither is there any to cover outstanding short contracts. Under these conditions the short interest doubtless will continue to increase until something happens to influence a fresh buying movement. The short covering on which prices rally sharply from time to time, as, for example, yesterday, is that of a superficial trading element. There is a short interest that lies much deeper, and it is obstinate. There is a difference between going short of stocks for a turn merely on one's feeling of the market and taking a position on the bear side on one's judgment of conditions. There is now, in the opinion of competent brokers, a short interest in this market which is the result of bearish convictions, rather than temporary basis. Such a short interest is retired either at a big loss or a big profit. Any group of men planning a bull campaign to begin in April or later would doubtless be willing to cultivate a large bear account.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 20.—There was less activity to the local trading and prices moved somewhat irregularly. At the opening the Anthracite Coalers were heavy, but they quickly recovered when it was found that very little stock was pressing for sale. Philadelphia Rapid Transit, on the other hand, opened strong, and at one time showed a gain of 1½ points. Realizing sales and rumors that Mayor Weaver had again changed his attitude toward the company's Market Street time-extension ordinance induced a fractional reaction.

The Mayor, however, late in the day, stated that negotiations were proceeding smoothly, and that he would, sooner or later, sign the ordinance. The stock closed with a net gain of 1¼ per cent. United Gas Improvement advanced nearly a point, Cambria Steel ½, Tonopah Mining ¾, and Warwick Steel ½. Philadelphia & Erie was lower, and Frankford & Southwark Passenger declined 4½ points from last Thursday's sales.

Total sales 23,653 shares.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 20.—Revival of the reports that Thomas F. Ryan, Anthony Brady, and other New York interests that acquired control of the Consolidated Gas Company of Baltimore are after the United Railways stirred up the securities this afternoon, the income bonds advancing ¼ and the income bonds trust certificates ¼ on heavy transactions. Agents of the New York parties are said to be at Annapolis, lobbying for legislation, particularly for an amendment to the charter of the Maryland Electric Company, permitting it to acquire and construct lines in the counties and city. Under the proposed plan for financial reorganization of the United Railways, which has secured control of the Maryland Company, the latter will become a sort of holding company.

A block of $50,000 G. B. S. Brewing Company income bonds sold at ¾ advance. The bidding for gilt-edged securities was active and strong, with a wide margin between quotations. Western Maryland 4s dropped ¼. Fidelity and Deposit Company ran off 2 points.

In the stock list, Northern Central pushed ahead for ½-point rise. Houston Oil preferred opened strong at 48¼, later actively carrying it up for ¼ advance, the common ran off ¼.

The market closed firm and fairly active. Sales: Bonds, $142,000; shares, stock, 6,590.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 20.—There was a fair improvement in the securities of the local street railway companies to-day. West Chicago first mortgage bonds were conspicuous for a rise from 80, at the last previous sale, to 92½ on the last sale today. The closing showed 90 bid and 90½ asked. West Chicago stock sold as low as 28½ early, rallied to 31, and closed at 30½. North Chicago, which closed yesterday at 32, sold up to 37. Union Traction preferred in New York was firm around 19. Other local stocks found some small selling. Carbon lost 2 points. Brick went again at 65. Subway sold off early, but rallied to 49 at the close. Telephone sold at 115, and Edison at 155. The list:

Stray Dog Manhattan Mining Company

MANHATTAN, NEVADA

Capital Stock, $1,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $1.00 Each.

Treasury Stock, 350,000 Shares.

JOHN D. CAMPBELL, President and Director .... of Manhattan and Goldfield.
L. M. SULLIVAN, Vice President and Director .... Capitalist, Goldfield, Nev.
JOHN S. COOK, Treasurer and Director .... Banker, Goldfield, Nev.
C. E. STANLEY, Secretary and Director .... Lawyer, Goldfield, Nev.
H. A. McCORNICK, Director .... Banker, Salt Lake City, Utah.
THOMAS S. ROBINSON, Director .... of Jumbo Mining Co., Goldfield, Nev.

THIS COMPANY OWNS THE FAMOUS STRAY DOG CLAIM, IN THE HEART OF MANHATTAN'S RICHEST PRODUCTION. CONTROL HAS BEEN PURCHASED BY MR. H. A. McCORNICK OF THE WELL-KNOWN BANKING HOUSE OF SALT LAKE CITY AND MR. D. H. PEERY AND THEIR WALL STREET ASSOCIATES. (WE FEEL PRIVILEGED TO STATE THAT, IN ORDER TO ACQUIRE CONTROL OF THIS PROPERTY, THESE GENTLEMEN PAID THE SUM OF 50 CTS. PER SHARE FOR 320,000 SHARES.) ASSOCIATED WITH THE ABOVE-NAMED GENTLEMEN IS MR. L. M. SULLIVAN, CAPITALIST AND MINE OWNER, OPERATING IN TONOPAH GOLDFIELD AND BULLFROG, WHOSE RECENT SUCCESSES IN THESE FIELDS HAVE BEEN OF THE HIGHEST TYPE.

THE PRESIDENT, J. D. (JACK) CAMPBELL, WAS FORMERLY CHIEF ENGINEER ON THE STAFF OF CHARLES M. SCHWAB AND JOHN McKANE, AND HAS BEEN RETAINED, AT A LARGE SALARY, TO TAKE THE ACTIVE MANAGEMENT OF THIS PROPERTY. THE ACQUISITION OF A MAN OF EXPERIENCE LIKE MR. CAMPBELL, WITH HIS PREVIOUS SENSATIONAL RECORD OF LIFTING GOLD FROM THE NOW FAMOUS JUMBO, FLORENCE, AND DIAMONDFIELD PROPERTIES, SHOULD GIVE STRONG ASSURANCES THAT THIS PROPERTY WILL HAVE MOST COMPETENT AND EFFICIENT ADMINISTRATION.

ALL THE DIRECTORS ARE MEN OF UNQUESTIONED INTEGRITY AND REPUTATION IN WESTERN FINANCIAL AND MINING CIRCLES, AND, IT CAN BE CONSERVATIVELY STATED, TYPICALLY REPRESENT TONOPAH-GOLDFIELD-BULLFROG'S RICHEST AND MOST SUCCESSFUL MINING MEN.

THE PROPERTY IS ENTIRELY SURROUNDED BY SUCH SENSATIONAL GOLD SHIPPERS AS UNION NO. 9, JUMPING JACK, REILLY FRACTION, BULLSHEAD, ST. GEORGE, ETC., ETC.

THE PRINCIPAL VEIN ON THIS PROPERTY IS FIVE FEET WIDE—A SERIES OF SMALL FISSURES CROSS THIS, ALL OF WHICH SHOW EXCEPTIONALLY RICH ORE.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM HAS BEEN AROUSED IN MANHATTAN, FROM THE FACT THAT OPERATIONS ON THE STRAY DOG HAVE AGAIN PROVEN THE EXPERIENCE OF THE PAST IN ALL THE GREAT MINING DISTRICTS OF THE WORLD, THAT THE GREATER THE DEPTHS THE HIGHER BECOME THE VALUES.

FIVE LEASERS ARE AT WORK PRODUCING SHIPPING ORE, OF WHICH FOUR HAVE ALREADY MADE SHIPMENTS TO THE SMELTERS, THE RETURNS TO DATE AMOUNTING TO $17,000 IN THE AGGREGATE.

A RECENT SHIPMENT FROM LEASE NO. 3 OF TWELVE TONS GAVE THE REMARKABLE RETURNS OF FROM $500 TO $700 PER TON, THE LOWEST AVERAGE THAT HAS BEEN RECEIVED ON ANY SHIPMENT IS $200 PER TON.

THE LEASING SYSTEM HAS BEEN EMPLOYED ONLY ON ONE-HALF THE CLAIM—ALTERNATE SECTIONS—AND THIS UNDER RIGID RESTRICTIONS, WHICH REQUIRE RAPID AND SYSTEMATIC DEVELOPMENT OF THIS PART OF THE PROPERTY. THE REMAINING HALF OF THE GROUND IS TO BE DEVELOPED BY THE COMPANY AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE.

Indian Camp Manhattan Mining Company

OF MANHATTAN, NEVADA

Capital Stock, $1,000,000. Par Value of Shares, $1.00 Each.

Treasury Stock, 350,000 Shares

JOHN D. CAMPBELL, President and Director .... Manhattan and Goldfield, Nev.
C. E. STANLEY, Vice President and Director .... Goldfield, Nev.
J. P. MARSHALL, Treasurer and Director ... of Nye and Ormsby Bank, Goldfield, Nev.
L. M. SULLIVAN, Secretary and Director .... Capitalist, Goldfield, Nev.
H. A. McCORNICK, Director .... Banker, Salt Lake City, Utah
THOMAS S. ROBINSON, Director .... Goldfield, Nev.
JOHN DONNELLAN, Director .... Goldfield, Nev.

THIS PROPERTY CONSISTS OF ONE CLAIM, THE INDIAN CAMP, WHICH ADJOINS LITTLE GREY, OWNED BY THE SCHWAB-McKANE SYNDICATE, CRESCENT AND UNION NO. 9. IT IS WITHIN A FEW HUNDRED FEET OF JUMPING JACK AND STRAY DOG, AND LIES DIRECTLY IN THE TREND OF THE ORE LEADS OF THE ADJACENT PROPERTIES.

THERE ARE FOUR LEASES NOW WORKING WHICH ARE SHIPPING ORE, AND TWO OF THEM ARE SACKING FOR SHIPMENT. THE RETURNS FROM THESE SHIPMENTS WILL BE FULLY AS GOOD IF NOT BETTER THAN THOSE OF ITS NEIGHBORS.

THIS MINE HAS NOT BEEN SO FULLY DEVELOPED AS THE STRAY DOG, AND FOR THIS REASON GIVES THE INVESTOR THE ADVANTAGE OF THE LOWER PRICE WHICH OBTAINS BECAUSE OF THAT FACT.

THE MAGNIFICENT SHOWING WHICH HAS ALREADY BEEN MADE WITH THE LIMITED AMOUNT OF WORK DONE INDICATES THAT FURTHER DEVELOPMENT WILL MAKE IT EQUAL, IF NOT SUPERIOR, TO ANY CLAIM IN THE DISTRICT.

IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT CONTIGUOUS PROPERTIES ARE SELLING IN THE OPEN MARKET AT 50 to 60 CENTS PER SHARE, WITH SHOWINGS NOT AS GOOD AS INDIAN CAMP, ENTITLES US TO THE BELIEF THAT THIS PROPERTY IS AN EXCEPTIONALLY CHEAP AND ATTRACTIVE "PROSPECT" TO OWN, AT THIS SUBSCRIPTION PRICE.

SECRET DEALS DISRUPT CONFERENCES ON RATES

Some Chicago-Missouri River Roads Bargained with Jobbers.

WERE TO GET ALL BUSINESS

Other Roads Balked on Hearing of the Agreements—Commerce Commission May Aid Shippers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 20.—The conferences which were being held here by representatives of the Chicago-Missouri River railroads in regard to the proposed 15 per cent. reduction in freight rates on those lines have been adjourned indefinitely without having taken any definite action. In railroad circles here it was said to-day that it was very improbable that the proposed reduction would be put into effect.

The failure of the movement to reduce the freight charges on Chicago-Missouri River traffic is largely the result of the discovery by some of the railroads interested in the negotiations that a number of jobbers controlling a large amount of traffic had secretly agreed with a certain number of the roads to turn over to them all the traffic controlled by these jobbers in return for the proposed reduction in rates. This arrangement would have benefited only the roads with which this secret agreement had been made and the other roads thereupon decided to have nothing to do with the plan for a general reduction in freight rates.

The failure of the conferences is much regretted by conservative railroad representatives here, who saw that the present schedules in many cases are unfair and so high that they invite opposition from shippers generally. The discontinuance of rebates on practically all business handled by these roads has, in effect, raised the freight rates, and it was largely to offset the abolition of rebates that the proposed reduction in rates was taken under advisement by the Chicago-Missouri River lines.

It could not be learned here to-night which roads had entered into these secret agreements with some of the jobbers nor could any one be found to reveal the names of the shippers who proposed entering into the special agreement by which all of their traffic was to go to certain lines.

In the long run the failure of the railroads to reduce the Chicago-Missouri River rates, it is said by some prominent officials here, will lead to these rates being taken under consideration by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, which is very likely to rule that the rates are excessive. The more conservative railroad officials look upon this aspect of the situation with considerable concern.

A high official of one of the principal Chicago-Missouri River lines, speaking of the failure to establish lower freight rates, said:

"Now that the full published tariffs are being paid by shippers, the rates in many instances are unreasonably high. There is little doubt, for example, that the freight rates between Chicago and St. Paul should be reduced. As matters now are, it seems probable that present rates will stand until the Inter-State Commerce Commission, upon the complaint of shippers, orders a reduction. This seems the inevitable outcome and, in my opinion, the only wise thing for the railroads to have done would have been to lower their rates voluntarily. This would have given them a chance to claim credit for the reduction.

"At the same time the developments in the conferences held on the subject could hardly have led to anything but failure. The only way by which the railroads which were not included in the special understanding with some of the large jobbers could have profited to any extent by a reduction in rates would have been by reducing their tariff even more than the 15 per cent. reduction discussed at the conferences.

"The roads not included in the understanding with the jobbers would lose the traffic which they now handle for these jobbers and could not make up their loss without accepting lower rates than those prevailing on the lines which had the advantages of this secret understanding. Moreover, the proposed agreement between the jobbers and some of the roads was altogether improved, and it is natural that the other roads should object to helping along any such scheme."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Fifty-seven shares of Bank of Commerce stock sold on the Stock Exchange yesterday in small lots at prices ranging from 190@190½.

The proposed increase of the stock of the Southeastern Telegraph and Telephone Company from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 was authorized at the meeting of stockholders yesterday.

Subsequently the stockholders held their regular annual meeting and re-elected the retiring Directors. All of the present officers will probably be re-elected.

The Hanover National Bank has changed its period for paying dividends from semi-annually to quarterly, and has declared a quarterly dividend of 3 per cent., payable April 2. The dividend is at the same annual rate as heretofore.

The Stock Exchange committee has ruled that transactions to-day in Kansas City Southern Railway Company's common and preferred stocks shall be "ex-rights."

The country's stocks of wheat in storage on March 1, according to reports received from the railroads by Watson & Co., amounted to 15,200,000 bushels. It is estimated that in the first two weeks of the month 2,000,000 bushels were shipped, leaving the wheat in storage on March 15 at 13,200,000 bushels. These totals are the largest reported at this season in several years.

The stockholders of the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Company will hold a special meeting April 11 to ratify the proposed issue of $5,005,000 notes, the proceeds of which will be used to build the extension from Watertown to Lebeau, S. D. This is to be constructed by the Minnesota, Dakota & Pacific, a subsidiary of the Minneapolis & St. Louis. The notes have already been sold to local bankers.

WON'T BAR WESTERN PACIFIC.

Road's Officials Say Judge Morrow's Decision Affects Small Strip.

Representatives of the Western Pacific Railway said yesterday that the decision handed down by Judge Morrow, in San Francisco, on Monday, barring the Western Pacific from the use of certain terminal lands at Oakland, Cal., claimed by the Southern Pacific, did not in any way vitally affect the Western Pacific's plans. The decision covers a relatively small strip, and does not affect the Western Pacific's possession of tracts aggregating about 140 acres, upon which the road is already at work preparing for the construction of its terminal.

The Western Pacific will immediately appeal the case to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and the attorneys for the road are confident of a reversal of the decision handed down on Monday. It appears that the land which Judge Morrow has decided belongs to the Southern Pacific is land which has been made by the United States Government in dredging a channel through Oakland Creek. The Western Pacific interests assert that this land properly belongs to the State of California, and was, therefore, available for occupation by a railroad.

The New York attorneys for the Western Pacific said yesterday that they regarded the case as presenting questions similar to those raised in the case of the Chicago lake front land, in which it was held that the land made, as was the land on Oakland Creek, was the property not of the adjoining property holders but of the State. The attorneys feel sure that upon appeal the case will be decided in accordance with the principles which governed the Chicago case.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Movements in Most Issues Confined to Narrow Limits.

Butte Coalition Declines to 32½—International Mercantile Marine Also Lower.

Apart from the dealings in some of the active mining shares, the transactions in the outside market yesterday were very limited. The Mercantile Marine stocks showd more or less activity, but both issues eased off on the day's trading, the common to 11⅝ and the preferred to 32¾. There was very little movement in any of the industrials, and even in the mining stocks traders found very little chance to operate profitably. Butte Coalition moved over a wider range than most other stocks, but lost on the trading. It fell from 35 to 32½ and closed at 33. The company is already increasing the output of the mines which it took over from the United Copper Company, and the new interests in the company are actively engaged in carrying out their plans for the further development of its mines.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

DELAWARE INCORPORATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, March 20.—These charters were secured at Dover to-day:

United States Starch and Glucose Company of Philadelphia, to engage in the manufacture of starch and all byproducts; capital, $150,000.

The Horreaon Mining Company of Philadelphia, to carry on the business of mining and milling gold and silver and precious metals; capital, $300,000.

The Maryland Porto Rico Company of Wilmington, to carry on the business of wholesaling and retailing dry goods and notions; capital, $100,000.

The Ritter Printing and Publishing Company of Philadelphia, to carry on a general printing and publishing business; capital, $25,000.

A certificate of amendment was filed by the Equipment Manufacturing Company of New York to change its name to the Equipment Protection Company.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Large Orders for Steel Rails Planned—Pig Iron Business Light.

Orders for steel rails now in contemplation by the railroads amount, it was estimated yesterday, to fully 150,000 tons. One of the trunk lines is said to be ready to place an order for 30,000 tons, and a number of other fairly large orders are under consideration. Trolley companies engaged in the construction of new lines are also calling for a large amount of rails. Two Western companies placed orders on Monday for 2,500 tons.

Negotiations are now under way, it is said, for the purchase of large amounts of foundry and steelmaking iron for the third quarter of the year. At the same time, owing to the possibility of a coal strike, furnacemen are hesitating somewhat about accepting orders for distant delivery. It was said in trade circles yesterday that the chances are that a favorable settlement of the coal situation would result in the placing of a large number of orders for pig iron. At present busines is light.

COPPER MARKET REPORTS.

Very heavy orders for copper have been placed within the last few days, large amounts being taken for both home and foreign account. The larger copper companies have been steadily increasing their output, but find that all the copper they produce is easily sold. Many of the larger consumers of copper, it is said, have held back their orders for the copper they will need in May, hoping that the price of the metal would go lower. Recently, however, the price has advanced instead of declining, and the larger producers freely express the opinion that the consumers who have delayed purchasing will soon be forced to buy at prevailing prices or even at higher prices. The opinion is expressed in some quarters that the return of copper in the near future to the twenty-cent level is by no means improbable.

There was no change yesterday in the quotations for copper on the Metal Exchange. Closing bid and asked prices for that and other metals were as follows:

Banquet to Ansel Oppenheim.

LONDON, March 20.—Ansel Oppenheim, Vice President of the Chicago Great Western Railway Company, was the guest of honor to-night at a banquet at the Imperial Restaurant given by the Earl of Euston and members of the deputation of the Grand Priory of England, who attended the Conclave of Knights Templar at San Francisco. Many prominent Free Masons and Knights Templar were present.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT—The wheat market was quite irregular, showing more weakness than strength, and closing ⅛ to ⅝c net lower. It opened steady here, but weaker in Chicago, after which both markets declined quite sharply, ruling easy at noon. It had a strong rally in the afternoon to above 86c for May, but during the last hour declined nearly a cent per bushel in response to advices from railroads in the Northwest showing the largest total of stocks in years, if not on record. There were predictions in the afternoon that Northwest receipts would fall off, but the movement for the day was slightly larger than last year, while seaboard clearances were unimportant. Liverpool closed ¼d higher, Paris was 5 to 10 points down, Berlin ½ to ¾ mark higher, and Budapest 2 points up. The cash market in New York closed irregular, as follows: No. 2 red, 85⅝c, elevator, and 87⅛c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 88⅝c, free on board, afloat.

CORN—Up to the last hour corn was firm at an advance of about ⅛ to ¼c over the previous night. There was considerable bull interest in the market and strengthening news in the shape of firm cables, Liverpool showing ½d net advance, the decrease of 600,000 bushels in primary receipts, as compared with last year, and prospects for small receipts at Chicago on Wednesday. The advance was mostly lost toward the close in sympathy with the break in wheat and in the absence of export business. New York closed only ¼c net higher. The cash market was firm, with No. 2 corn, 52¼c, elevator, and 49½c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 50¼c, and No. 2 yellow, 50½c, free on board, afloat.

COTTON—The cotton market was much more active than yesterday and showed considerable excitement after the publication of the final report of the Census Bureau at 2 o'clock, which caused a sharp break in prices. The close was steady in tone and at a fair recovery from the lowest, but 18 to 23 points below the closing figures of the previous day. Sales were estimated at 600,000 bales.

The opening was steady at a decline of 4 points to an advance of 1 point, the decline being on the old crop months, which were depressed by disappointing cables, while the new crop was steadied by unfavorable weather over the belt. The market seemed to be attracting important support early, with some prominent brokers who were supposed to represent the new bull leader buying May, which advanced to 10.78, or even with the highest point of the previous day. But after reaching this figure, which represented a net gain of about 3 to 4 points on the active months, the support was partially withdrawn and the market eased off under scattering liquidation in preparation for the census report. Just before 2 o'clock May was selling at 10.66 and July at 10.74, or about 8 to 9 points net lower. In less than five minutes after the report was published May had broken to 10.38 and July to 10.48, or 35 to 36 points net lower and about 40 points down from the high point of the morning. The market was very nervous and unsettled in the late trading. May closed at 10.53. The census report stated that 10,697,000 bales, counting round as half bales and including 230,597 bale linters and an estimate of 40,112 bales for cotton remaining unginned on March 10, constituted the growth of the present season. This was not far from expectations, but bulls were unfavorably influenced by the report that the average weight of bales was 508.8 pounds, which was heavier than looked for and figured out a crop of 500-pound bales of 10,777,510 bales.

DON'T PAY RENT OWN YOUR OWN HOME

Don't look at to-day or to-morrow; LOOK AT YOUR FUTURE. What is it—one of toil and slavery? Think of your old age and be prepared for it by taking advantage of our proposition while you have an earning capacity, and the old age and future will take care of itself. Do not delay, as delays are dangerous, for time and tide await nobody. The most valuable asset you can have is your own home. Our system of home buying is simple, conservative and safe. The Company is backed by reliable and responsible business men.

Since our plan has been in operation in America it has been very successful. It is patterned after the CELEBRATED SYSTEM which has been operated successfully in England for over sixty years, where thousands of HAPPY HOME OWNERS have benefited by it.

IMPORTANT TO HOME SEEKERS AND SMALL INVESTORS IN BROOKLYN LOTS

REALTY TRUST owns large Plots of Lots in various locations along the elevated railroad lines between Manhattan and Coney Island and along the lines of the proposed Subway recently promised by the Rapid Transit Board of the City in response to the requests made by the various local improvement associations. These lots are offered now at low price and on very easy terms of payment. THEY ARE BARGAINS NOW, and are being rapidly absorbed by the leading builders of this section.

Don't neglect this opportunity to buy. Write or call for locations, prices, and terms. A LITTLE MONEY INVESTED now in Brooklyn lots will bring BIG PROFITS IN the near future.

REALTY TRUST also offers TWO-FAMILY HOUSES in the same locations on very easy terms. THE PRICES ARE LOW, and the terms on which the houses are offered enable persons who are now renting to buy at a monthly cost about the same as rent. Write or call for particulars and prices NOW.

MAYOR SIGNS GAS BILL FIXING 80-CENT RATE

Says Companies Are Entitled to Reasonable Profit Only.

BILL WAS BEATEN LAST YEAR

It Failed Through Opposition of the City's Representatives—The Measure Not a Confiscatory One.

Mayor McClellan has signed the 80-cent gas bill. Last night he returned the measure to the Legislature with a memorandum of his approval.

"The enactment of this measure," says the Mayor in this memorandum, "will, in my judgment, serve as a protection to the public against excessive charges by the corporations engaged in furnishing illuminating gas in the City of New York. When a similar measure was before the Legislature last year, I, as Mayor requested each Senator from the city to favor its passage, because I was convinced, after careful investigation, that the price which it proposed to establish was not unjust to the gas companies. The bill failed, and failed, unfortunately, through the opposition of some of the city's own representatives.

"Those who supply illuminating gas are public utility corporations. They are entitled, therefore, to a reasonable profit on the cost of production and distribution of the commodity they serve. If the legislative rate is sufficient to produce such a profit, they have no right to complain.

It is clearly within the power of the Legislature in such cases to fix a rate in excess of which the companies may not charge the public, provided that it be not unjust to the companies. The rate heretofore fixed has long been unfair to the public. Both producer and consumer, under such circumstances, are entitled to justice as exact as human wisdom can apportion it, and any marked inequality to either would not be upheld by the courts.

"The city, at the present time, has this exact question awaiting adjudication in its contests of all the claims of the gas companies for the past three years. The outcome of that litigation, it is expected, will silence every question on this point.

"If this measure was confiscatory of the property of the gas companies, I would withhold my approval of it under all circumstances. But it is not confiscatory, and the unsupported statements of the companies' representatives to that effect are overthrown by the report of the legislative committee which last year examined the subject, as well as by the investigations of the expert engineers who have been engaged in the city's behalf in the litigation referred to.

"The position taken in this memorandum is no departure from the principles of our system of government. It is no declaration of new rights or duties. It has the support of justice, is based upon the common law, and is in fact promotive of every interest involved, either public or private.

METZ IS INVESTIGATING.

He'll See About W. G. Foster's "Pull" in the Finance Department.

Controller Metz said yesterday that he was making a rigid investigation into the relations between William George Foster and the Finance Department in the matter of the collection of advertising bills. This is one of the services for which Foster is admitted to have received commissions ranging from five to fifteen per cent.

"If anybody has had a pull in this office I want to know about it," said the Controller yesterday. "Mr. Hervey is making the investigation for me, and is about ready with his report, which, however, may be delayed a few days on account of illness. I see no reason why Foster should have any peculiar powers to enable him to expedite business here, and I do not think he has had any inside track, but I intend to find out."

SERGEANTS ALL DENY IT.

Say They Didn't Have an Expert Write Their Examination Papers.

Further efforts were made by the members of the Municipal Civil Service Commission yesterday to get at the bottom of frauds connected with the examination of Police Sergeants for promotion to Captaincies, held on Dec. 28. Several of the 339 Sergeants who took the examination for promotion were summoned before the board yesterday and put through the "third degree" in the hope of compelling them to tell the details of the plot. Not a single one of them, however, gave up any information, according to President Baker.

"We told them frankly, one at a time and in executive session, that they ought to tell us anything they know about the substitution of papers for those actually filled out by the candidates," said President Baker. "We also told them that we intended to carry the matter before the Police Commissioner, and that any man who was a party to the plan would be ousted from the department. Every Sergeant, however, declared he knew nothing of the matter, and each denied knowledge of seven Sergeants having paid $3,000 each to have good papers entered in their names so they would get good ratings. The investigation still is on, and will be continued to the very bottom."

Neither President Baker nor any other member of the commission would make any comment yesterday regarding the resignation of Ernest L. Crandall the day before as an examiner in the department. They said the resignation ended the matter. Crandall had been summoned before the board in the morning, and was asked to show why he should not be dismissed. He got an adjournment until afternoon, and meanwhile wrote his resignation, which the commission accepted.

One of the seven suspected Sergeants was known to be an illiterate, yet his paper was in correct penmanship, the answers were excellent, and the paper had been rated at 95 per cent. The papers of the others were in the same condition, and the handwriting was alike. The examination was canceled.

It was announced yesterday that District Attorney Jerome will be represented by one of his assistants when the investigation of the frauds is taken up today by Mr. Baker. Assistant District Attorney Hart will probably be assigned to the work.

SPRIGGS'S TRIAL BEGINS.

Negro Divekeeper May Get Thirty-two Years if Convicted.

The trial of Robert H. Spriggs, the negro owner of disreputable resorts in the Tenderloin and the lower west side, began at noon yesterday before Judge Cowing in General Sessions. Of the three indictments returned against the prisoner, that alleging abduction was chosen for the first trial. In this case the complaining witness is Hattie Warren, a young white girl, who is said to have been kept a prisoner for months in the Cornelia Street house run by Spriggs.

Assistant District Attorney Garvan is in charge of the prosecution, but Mr. Jerome was in court most of the time and questioned the talesmen personally. Mark Alter appeared for the defendant. Before the trial began, an offer was made by the District Attorney to accept a plea of guilty to a first offense on all the three charges of abduction, assault, and keeping a disorderly resort. Such a plea would have made the defendant liable to a maximum total punishment of sixteen years' imprisonment. The offer was refused.

Spriggs will now be tried on all the charges as second offenses. If he is guilty he may get thirty-two years in Sing Sing. In the examination of the talesmen Mr. Jerome surprised the defense by asking very few questions. In one instance he did not question the talesman at all. James B. Graff, an artist still in his twenties, was accepted after giving his name, age, address, and business. This attitude of the prosecution, it is expected, will have great influence on the jury.

Six jurors had been sworn when the court adjourned last night. They were: George D. Kuhn, clerk, 849 East 139th Street; Frank Mullen, expressman, 263 West 141st Street; Sidney D. Brill, clothier, 108 Central Park West; Frederick G. Lax, manufacturer, 109 West 127th Street; James B. Graff, artist, 149 West Twenty-first Street, and Ernest H. Polacci, broker, 935 East 163d Street. The trial will be continued this morning.

STAATS-ZEITUNG TO BUILD.

Plans New Home If City Takes Present Building for Bridge Terminal.

Arrangements have been made to provide a new home for The Staats-Zeitung in the event of the city's acquiring the present building of that newspaper for bridge terminal purposes.

Herman Ridder has bought nearly the entire block front on the west side of Elm Street, (now Lafayette,) between Duane and Pearl Streets, an irregular plot fronting about 160 feet in Elm Street and 60 feet in Duane Street, with a rear line of 140 feet. The area of the site is less than three lots, but any building upon it will enjoy immensely good light and air and will also be directly opposite the enlarged bridge terminal.

Part of the property, including the Elm and Duane Street corner, was sold to Mr. Ridder by Maxwell E. Butler. The northerly part of the site on Elm Street was sold at auction last week for $55,000, Francis A. Curry being the nominal buyer.

No plans for the new building have yet been prepared, but construction work will be begun as soon as the city definitely makes known its intention to take the site of the present Staats-Zeitung Building. Until that time the newspaper will remain in its present quarters.

VACUUM CLEANER IN SUBWAY.

It Works Well and May Be Tried on a Large Scale.

The vacuum cleaning process now in common use for carpets and rugs, was tried yesterday in the Subway. The Worth Street station was selected for the trial, which was watched with interest by several representatives of the Interborough Company, who pronounced it successful.

An ordinary carpet-cleaning plant was used, and the grease and dirt were removed as easily from the girders as the dust from the platforms and tiling. It was estimated that a special car fitted up with a plant could clean a station in half an hour, and that while running between stations it could take up much of the loose dirt from the roadbed. The dirt can be dumped in the yards at the terminal, after all the stations have been swept.

A stationary plant has been tried successfully on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, and papers and cigar stubs are carried through tubes half a mile long.

CAPT. LOUIS C. SCHLIEP HELD AS AN EMBEZZLER

Popular Brooklyn Bachelor Accused of Robbing Loan Clients.

IS IN THE 23D REGIMENT

Spanish War Fighter Also Known for His Teas—Arrested, Nearly Destitute, in Philadelphia.

Louis C. Schliep, Treasurer and General Manager of the Guardian Savings and Loan Company, 318 Broadway, was arrested in Philadelphia early yesterday on charges of perjury, forgery, grand larceny, and embezzlement. He was found in a cheap boarding house, having been traced there by detectives, who learned that his mail was forwarded to the "general delivery" of the Philadelphia Post Office.

Schliep, who was a member of the Twenty-third Regiment of Brooklyn, a Mason, and a welcome guest in many of the best homes in Brooklyn, was almost destitute when the detectives found him. He had been working as a printer, but could not get rid of luxurious tastes, spending nearly all he earned on expensive cigars and occasional drinks.

He is a very mild-mannered man. His friends called him "the cat," because of his soft tread. Formerly they often teased him about his fierce beard, saying that he wore it to make himself seem a real soldier. When the war with Spain was declared Schliep enlisted and was commissioned as a Captain in the One Hundred and Fourteenth Volunteer Infantry. The teasing ended and he was treated as a hero when he went back to Brooklyn.

He had good apartments at 116 Montague Street, where he occasionally gave a tea. He was a man with a good income, polite manners, and was believed to be connected with prominent Western families, particularly the Schlieps of Iowa.

The other side of the story, leading to his arrest, is the charge that for eight years he had enjoyed an income of $4,000 a year through fraudulent dealings in mortgages, robbing credulous people by means of promises that if they would pay him twice the interest on first mortgages on their property and give to him a second mortgage, he would not only pay off the first mortgage, but the second in his name, so that in ten years the mortgagee would own his property free of all debt. Most of his clients were firemen or policemen, while many were Italians.

According to the evidence in the hands of the District Attorney Capt. Schliep was also the general manager of the Treasury Corporation Co-operative Savings and Loan Association and the Hanover Realty Guaranty Company, the three corporations working in harmony.

Attorney General Mayer brought an action against the Guardian Savings and Loan Company two months ago for its dissolution because of insolvency, and in that action Newell Lyon, a lawyer of 220 Broadway, was appointed receiver and took over the company's books and assets. Its assets appeared to be mostly in the form of second mortgages on various properties in and around New York City. After making a thorough examination of the books of the company Mr. Lyon found that the company was insolvent.

Mr. Lyon called the attention of the Attorney General to his conviction that much of the money paid in had been appropriated by Schliep to his own purposes. His belief was that Schliep made fictitious entries in the books to cover such appropriations by charging up payments to a fictitious "legal department" and otherwise. He also said that Schliep as Secretary and Treasurer of the company had made false statements of the condition of the company to the State Banking Department. He was directed by Attorney General Mayer to make a further investigation, and assigned M. Van Rensselaer, an expert accountant, to co-operate in examining the books. As a result of Mr. Van Rensselaer's examination of Capt. Schliep's books the charges for perjury, forgery, grand larceny, and embezzlement were formulated against Schliep and laid before the District Attorney.

A warrant for Schliep's arrest was issued on March 2, but Schliep could not be found until detectives placed him in Philadelphia, where he was arrested early yesterday morning.

The specific charge upon which Schliep has been arrested is forgery in the third degree for making false entries in the books of the company, of the receipt of money from a member of the company named J. L. Bohm, and the payment of the money to Mr. C. S. Warbasse, an attorney of 189 Montague Street, Brooklyn. Mr. Bohm had ceased all relations with the company, and this payment did not pass through the hands of the company or of Schliep.

The purpose of making these entries, it is alleged, was to give the appearance that the account was still active, so that when an examination should be made by the Banking Department it would show the company was doing business and should be allowed to continue and not be closed up.

In the last report of the company to the Banking Department the officers are named as follows: H. C. Alleman, 300 Broadway, President; L. C. Schliep, Secretary and Treasurer; H. C. Alleman, L. C. Schliep, J. J. Gibson, G. A. Stiener, W. J. Cole, and William Rockwell, Directors.

ARGUE ON CHINATOWN PARK.

Plan Combatted by Chinese Merchants—Cost Variously Estimated.

The plan to wipe out Chinatown and convert the section into a public park was argued thoroughly before the Local Board of Public Improvements for the district yesterday. James L. Conway, representing the Real Estate Owners' Association, appeared in opposition, saying the park would cost $8,000,000 of public money, and that would be a willful waste.

Borough President Ahearn replied that two plans were before the board, one for a small park and the other for a much larger one. Then Adolph Bloch opposed the plan, whether for a small or a large park. A large park would wipe out the section between Bayard and Mulberry Streets, the Bowery, Chatham Square, and Park Row. William C. Beecher, representing fifty-two Chinese merchants and others in Chinatown, opposed the park plan, declaring that the section was fast becoming a business centre, and that it was "no den of infamy."

A representative of an evening newspaper which is backing the project said the Tenement House Department favored the bill, that the district was infected with tuberculosis, and that the death rate there was appalling. He said the cost would not exceed $3,000,000. Bartow S. Weeks contended that it was not necessary to spend this money to wipe out the social evil. The Rev. Madison C. Peters favored the project. No action was taken by the board.

GOSLIN AGAIN FIGURES IN SWINDLING CHARGE

Said to Have Posed as "Griffen" in a Mining Deal.

OBTAINED OPTION ON STOCK

Property of Western Gold Mining Co. Was Attached in Suit—Justice Greenbaum Vacates Writ.

The name of Alfred R. Goslin came up in court again yesterday in a decision relating to a mining stock deal in which Goslin, in the opinion of Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, was the prime mover in a conspiracy to defraud. Goslin was referred to in the decision as "an alleged notorious swindler."

The matter at issue came up on a motion to vacate an attachment obtained by Charles Turner of 1,028 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn, as assignee of Charles M. Dunn of 152 Hewes Street, Brooklyn, against property in this city owned by the Western Gold Mining Company of Oroville, Cal. This attachment was obtained in a suit to recover $29,500, which it was alleged Dunn had been induced by fraud to pay for treasury stock in the mining company.

Among the papers submitted on the motion to vacate the attachment is an affidavit of Werner Fabian of Oroville, President of the mining company, setting forth that it is chartered under the laws of Idaho, and owns 1,200 acres of mining land. It is further stated that one Harry Bangs introduced A. Griffen as a capitalist who would assist the company's President in selling the stock, and that Griffen got an option on treasury stock deposited with the Wells-Fargo Bank in this city on Dec. 5 last.

Mr. Fabian goes on to say that he was in New York on Dec. 12 and that Alphonse W. Zimmerman, cashier of the Wells-Fargo Bank, told him that Griffen was in reality Alfred R. Goslin, adding that he, the cashier, "did not believe that Goslin was as black as he had been painted."

After Mr. Fabian returned home he began to receive letters relating to the stock of his company. The first, he says, was from Whiteman & Uhren, indorsing a letter from Charles M. Dunn, written on the letterhead of a Brooklyn factory, which Fabian says he afterward discovered belonged to Dunn's cousin, and with which Dunn had no connection.

President Fabian received a letter from "Griffen" on Feb. 23, telling of a marginal transaction he had had with Dunn. Fabian at once canceled the option and started for New York. He arrived here on March 8. He found that Turner, the plaintiff, had attached the stock of the mining company for $29,500. He was unable to learn that Dunn was a capitalist, but he did learn that "Griffen," or Goslin, had taken 205 shares at $12.50 a share, for which he paid, and that they had been transferred to a London firm. Five remaining shares were held by five different persons, including Turner, Dunn, Uhren, and Whiteman.

Le Roy D. Ball, Jr., moved to vacate the attachment yesterday. In granting the motion Justice Greenbaum said, in part:

"There is strong reason to suspect that no fraud was perpetrated upon Dunn, but that this action is the result of a conspiracy between him and Whiteman and Uhren, apparently tools of one Alfred R. Goslin, to defraud the other defendants; but assuming the acts alleged by the plaintiff resulted in defrauding Dunn, the undisputed facts show that the fraud was that of Whiteman & Co., unauthorized and unwarranted by the Western Gold Mining Company, and wholly disconnected from them.

"And, indeed, if there was any shred of fact that might be deemed legally sufficient to uphold a cause of action in favor of the plaintiff, it seems to me that it would be the unhesitating duty of the court to vacate the attachment for the manifest perjurious statements of the plaintiff's assignee (Dunn) as to his residence, his palpable fraud in writing on letter heads of an apparently reputable firm in Brooklyn, his apparent impecuniosity, and his established relations with an alleged notorious swindler who has been convicted of fraudulent acts, whose tool he manifestly is, and who appears to be the prime mover in a conspiracy to swindle non-resident defendants."

Friedberger & Hecht Had a Disastrous Venture in Automobiles.

Justice Greenbaum of the Supreme Court has appointed William Goodrich temporary receiver for the assets of Friedberger & Hecht, dealers in automobiles at 1,843 Broadway, in a suit brought by Walter M. Friedberger against Rupert Hecht for a dissolution of the partnership and an accounting.

They began business on Oct. 5, 1905, and gave it up on Dec. 28, as it did not pay.

The expenses were $500 a month, and they did not make a sale.

TENEMENT OWNERS HAVE TROUBLES OF THEIR OWN

Society of Political Study Hears About Them.

COMPLAINT OF INSPECTORS

They Always Visit the Property of Women First, Says One Complainant.

"Jacob Riis says that it is as easy to kill a man with a tenement as with an axe," said Mrs. Clarence Burns, in a talk on city charities before the Society of Political Study yesterday afternoon. "They say that the people of the tenements are old at 17 and dead at 40, and I know that a woman of 30 in the tenement district looks 50. The tenements are everything they should not be. I have seen a Tenement House Inspector lift a new paper from the walls and find it pasted over the old one with all its dirt and germs."

"Well, I would like to see a tenement house where the owner is not made to do everything that can be thought of under heaven and earth," replied Mrs. Sally Cory, who is a property holder. "I have just been obliged to spend $2,500 on some of my houses. The Tenement House Inspectors visit me three times a week, and I would like to see ten minutes when I would have a chance to put one paper over the other."

"Well, this Inspector found out that trouble in less than ten minutes," said Mrs. Burns, "and the owner had to take it off. If Mrs. Cory is so well inspected I wish she owned all the tenement houses in the city."

"I don't. I'd be dead," interpolated Mrs. Cory.

"But they tell me that there are not enough Inspectors to do the work, and unless one is a marked woman, as Mrs. Cory must be, they don't get around to a house once in a year or two."

"It is not because I am marked. It's against the poor woman that they work," replied Mrs. Cory, "and my agent tells me that it is always the property of women that they visit first."

"Tenements are blood-letting institutions," said Miss Theresa Barlalow, "and the cause of more immorality than any other one thing. Why don't all these charitable men, who have so much to say, do something, men like Phelps Stokes? Talk is cheap, and all the time their millions are rolling up."

"But we must remember that conditions have improved," said Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake. "They are bad enough, but they were much worse even among a good class of people."

Mrs. Burns thought that legislation was what was needed to remedy the conditions, and the more the clubs agitated the matter the more the Legislature would be likely to do.

"The great hope in work among the poor is with the children," she continued. "They all want to be Americans, and where the parents of different nationalities speak to their families in their native language the children invariably reply in English. Even a little Japanese boy over in Cherry Street, being asked what he was, said that he was a 'Melican.'"

Mrs. Esther Herrman, who was made an honorary member at the last business meeting of the society, presented to it $100 yesterday, and a formal vote of thanks was made her.

A Group of Harlem Robberies.

Within the last month more than twenty robberies committed in the neighborhood of 116th and 118th Streets and Madison Avenue have been reported to the police of the East 126th Street Station. Selig Appleborn of 16 East 117th Street complained yesterday that sneak thieves had stolen articles from his house twice within three days. Jacob Silverstein of 6 East 117th Street, A. Morris of 20 East 116th Street, and B. Friedmann of 21 West 116th Street are among the others who have reported losses ranging from $50 to $300.

NEW styles of Overcoats oft' times are freaks. They come and they go, but the one that stands is common sense gentleman's Overcoat—knee length, of lustreless black, richly lined with pure silk throughout, and to the very edge. The best investment a man can make is to buy such a coat, because with the exception of a little shaping at the sides, and a slight variation in length it is the same Coat as last year, and will be the same next year. We believe that this is the only store (selling clothing of quality) where such coats can be bought as low as

MAY PUNISH ROSENQUEST.

Executor of Manager's Wife Says He Owed Her $2,590 in Alimony.

The executor of the will of Minnie Rosenquest obtained recently an order for James Wesley Rosenquest, manager of the Fourteenth Street Theatre, to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court in failing to pay $35 a week alimony, as ordered by Justice Truax on March 6, 1902, pending the trial of his wife's action for a limited divorce.

Mrs. Rosenquest died Aug. 1, 1905. The affidavit of the executor declares that at the time of her death Rosenquest was seventy-four weeks in arrears, owing $2,590. Mrs. Rosenquest was Minnie Coote, an actress.

When the case was called in the Supreme Court yesterday, it was adjourned by consent of counsel.

PRESIDENT DEFENDS RIGHT OF INJUNCTION

Would Enjoin Labor Union, If Necessary, He Tells Labor Men,

BUT NEVER HAD TO DO SO

He Would Make No Distinctions Between Capital and Labor—Against Eight-Hour Law on Canal.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The President received at the White House this afternoon a delegation of 100 representatives of the American Federation of Labor and officials of the organizations that comprise the federation. The delegation was headed by Samuel Gompers, President of the federation, and Frank Morrison, the Secretary. The labor men called by appointment, and were received by the President in his private office and the adjoining Cabinet room.

Secretary Morrison read to the President a memorial of the Executive Council of the federation urging action on the various demands for legislation being made by the organized labor interests of the country.

The memorial dwelt particularly on the eight-hour law and its enforcement on Government work, including the Panama Canal, and the immigration laws, especially the Chinese exclusion laws. The eight-hour law, the memorial said, had been nullified in a rider to an appropriation bill. President Gompers and James Duncan of Quincy, Mass., First Vice President of the federation and President of the Granite Cutters' Union, followed with brief addresses on the lines of the memorial.

President Roosevelt replied in an extended address. On the subjects of general immigration and the exclusion of Chinese labor the President indicated that he was in practical accord with them, but on some other matters he differed from them radically. The text of the President's remarks, as given out at the White House this evening, follows:

The President's Speech.

"Mr. Gompers: If your body objects to the passage of the proposed anti-injunction bill I have no question that you can stop it, for there is not a capitalist concerned who simply as a capitalist is not against it; though I believe that a goodly number, both of capitalists and wage workers who are concerned primarily as citizens, favor it. The law was worked over and substantially whipped into its present shape at a number of conferences between representatives of the railroad organizations, of the Department of Justice, and of the Bureau of Corporations with me.

"It goes as far as I personally think it should go in limiting the right of injunction. At any rate, no arguments have hitherto been advanced which make me think it should go further. I do not believe it has any chance of passage, because there has been great criticism in both houses of Congress against the attitude of the Administration in going so far as we have gone, and if you think it is not far enough, why you wil have no earthly difficulty in killing the bill.

"Personally, I think the proposed law a most desirable one, and I very sincerely wish it would be put through.

"As for the right of injunction it is absolutely necessary to have this power lodged in the courts, though, of course, any abuse of the power is strongly to be reprobated. During the four and a half years that I have been President I do not remember an instance where the Government has invoked the right of injunction against a combination of laborers. We have invoked it certainly a score of times against combinations of capital; I think possibly oftener.

Would Enjoin Labor Combine.

"Thus, though we have secured the issuance of injunctions in a number of cases against capitalistic combinations, it has happened that we have never tried to secure an injunction against a combination of labor. But understand me, gentlemen, if I ever thought it necessary, if I thought a combination of laborers were doing wrong, I would apply for an injunction against them just as quickly as against so many capitalists.

"Now, I come to the general subject of your petition. I wish in the first place to state my regret that you did not divorce so much of the petition as refers to the action of the Executive from so much as refers to the action of the legislative branch, because I cannot consider any petition that you make that reflects upon the co-ordinate branch of the Government, or that makes any charges whatever against it. I would not even receive it save for the fact that in part is affects the Executive. Therefore, in what I have to say I shall limit myself solely to what you assert in reference to the acts of the Executive.

"You speak of the eight-hour law. Your criticism, so far as it relates to the Executive, bears upon the signature of the Appropriation bill containing the money for expenditures on the Panama Canal, with the proviso that the eight-hour law shall not there apply. If your statement is intended to mean that no opportunity was given for a hearing before me, then the statement is not in accordance with the facts. There was ample opportunity that any one could, but not a single request for such a hearing came to me. I received, however, some hundreds of telegrams and letters requesting the veto of the entire Appropriation bill, because it contained that proviso.

"Frankly, I found it difficult to believe that you were writing and telegraphing with any kind of knowledge of the conditions in the case. I believe emphatically in the eight-hour law for our own people in our own country, but the conditions of labor, such as we have to work with in the tropics, are so absolutely different that there is no possible analogy be-

SMOKING CAR FOR WOMEN.

On an English Railway—Officials Astounded but Complaisant.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

LONDON, March 21.—On the window of one of the first-class carriages of a train that left London for Liverpool this morning was displayed a label which read, "Ladies' Smoking." The carriage that bore this sign was the first woman's smoking car ever run on an English railway and probably the first in the world. It was occupied by a small party of women for whom it had been reserved.

The application for it was made last night by a gentleman. "I want a smoking carriage for a party of ladies attached to your noon Liverpool train to-morrow," he said.

"Good Lord!" replied the railroad official. "We were never asked to do a thing like that before."

"What's that to do with the case?" replied the gentleman. "My friends are smokers, and wish to smoke on the journey. Will you give them a carriage to smoke in?"

The official looked very anxious and miserable for a time, and then said he would see what could be done. After a deal of agitation he managed to get the consent of his chief to the reservation requested, and in the train book he entered this order: "March 21. Noon to Liverpool. Reserved. Smoking carriage. Party of ladies."

When the train was made up the order was executed and presently the party that was to occupy the carriage appeared and entered it triumphantly. There were three in the party—a woman and two girls. They started smoking as soon as they were seated. They began with cigarettes. What they ran to before they got to Liverpool nobody knows, but the chances are that they stuck to cigarettes. Englishwomen do not often get past the cigarette stage in their smoking.

REICHSTAG SNUBS KAISER.

Buelow's Resignation May Follow Rejection of Emperor's Measure.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

BERLIN, March 21.—The pet measure of Emperor William, the establishment of an independent Secretaryship of the Colonies, has been turned down by the committee of the Reichstag.

The rejection of the plan may be followed by important political consequences. At present the head of the Colonial Department holds the title of Director, and the Reichstag Committee proposes that instead he have the position of an under Secretary. It is not believed that Prince Hohenlohe, the present Colonial Director, would be willing to accept an under Secretaryship. The Lokal Anzeiger says to-night that he will resign rather than do so. If he resigns it is understood that the Emperor will find another important post for him.

It was recently reported that the Emperor had sent Chancellor von Bülow an ultimatum. He was either to obtain the Reichstag's sanction for the establishment of a Colonial Secretaryship or else resign. It is possible that the Emperor has changed his mind, but Prince Hohenlohe is being much talked of as Prince von Bülow's successor.

It is also rumored that Prince Hohenlohe will succeed Prince von Radolin as Ambassador at Paris.

OPERATION ON B. F. YOAKUM.

Rock Island and 'Frisco Manager Recovering from Appendicitis Treatment.

B. F. Yoakum, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Rock Island and 'Frisco systems, was operated on for appendicitis on Tuesday evening. It was said at the hotel last night that Mr. Yoakum had rallied rapidly from the shock of the operation and that there was every reason to hope for his speedy recovery.

Mr. Yoakum returned to New York on Sunday from a trip of several weeks to Mexico. He was taken ill at the Hotel Gotham soon after his return. His physician believed that Mr. Yoakum was suffering from appendicitis. A consultation was held early Tuesday evening by Drs. Bull, Hartley, and Townsend, at which it was decided to perform an operation immediately. It was said yesterday that this course was by no means imperative, but that it was decided on for the reason that it was thought better to perform the operation before Mr. Yoakum's strength had been impaired by the progress of the disease. Dr. Hartley performed the operation at the Gotham.

The news that Mr. Yoakum had undergone a serious operation was a great surprise to his friends yesterday, as they had received no intimation that he was in ill-health.

Mr. Yoakum's activity in the railway field has been considerably increased recently by his election as Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Rock Island system as well as of the 'Frisco system, the operation of which he had directed for several years.

The extension of Mr. Yoakum's influence to Rock Island affairs followed the retirement of W. B. Leeds, who disposed of his holdings of Rock Island Company stock to Mr. Yoakum and James Campbell of St. Louis, a personal friend of Mr. Yoakum. The chief task undertaken by Mr. Yoakum in assuming the direction of both systems was to co-ordinate their operation so that better results could be obtained than had followed the previous efforts to operate the two lines independently. Mr. Yoakum has already accomplished a good deal in this direction.

SUIT FOR FEES REVEALS BANKER AS A BIGAMIST

Kiley Married Mrs. Colt, Thinking His Wife Was Dying.

KEPT SECRET THREE YEARS

Lawyer, Neglected in a Settlement, Sues and Publicity Follows—Kiley Head of a Brooklyn Bank.

In an affidavit sworn to by Mrs. Flora A. Colt of 216 Brooklyn Avenue, Brooklyn, Thomas W. Kiley, a banker and merchant of that borough, well known in finance and business in the East, is charged with bigamy, and District Attorney John F. Clarke will to-day begin an investigation of the charge and the prosecution of the banker if he can be found.

After the disclosure of the fact that two women claimed him as husband, which came yesterday in a law suit, Mr. Kiley disappeared. He did not show up at the home of his wife, 201 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, last night, nor did he appear at the home of Mrs. Colt, whom by his own admission he also married, which fact is shown by the records of the town of Hammond, Ind.

Both women were said last night to be prostrated by the discovery and the publicity. No one seems to know in either house where the banker is or when he is likely to appear. As the offense alleged is not only bigamy, but that of leading Mrs. Colt into marriage by fraudulent statements, and as the banker is 65 years old, it was feared by his friends last night that he might have made away with himself. Before track of him was lost by his family yesterday afternoon he declared that the disgrace would prove more than he could stand and that he would be irretrievably ruined by the disclosure.

The discovery was made by accident. The real Mrs. Kiley was the widow of the banker's brother. Mrs. Colt was his old sweetheart, the daughter of his employer, when he was a hard-working boy in the hardware store run by Guy R. Brown in the Eastern District of Brooklyn. Young Kiley toiled mightily, learned the business rapidly, and finally made a start for himself.

He made money rapidly. As fortune favored him it turned against his old employer, the father of the girl he knew in the store in which he had worked as office boy. Finally Kiley employed his old employer, perhaps merely in gratitude for past kindnesses.

But Mr. Brown's daughter married a Westerner named Colt. Kiley was too busy making his way to suffer much from the ending of his romance.

Mrs. Colt's husband died and left her with a little son. Her father and mother died, and Kiley gave her money to support her. Mr. Kiley said yesterday afternoon that he found her company agreeable and frequently visited her at the home he provided for her. She was well known in Brooklyn society, but he was not of the society sort. As President of the North Side Bank, with its two branch banks, the head of his big hardware concern known all over the country in its line, and as head of various industries built up by him, he had little time for cultivating fashionable acquaintances.

When his brother died he married his widow and took her two sons into business with him. He said yesterday that this marriage brought him unhappiness. After his marriage to his sister-in-law he was still a frequent visitor at the home of Mrs. Colt, where he said he found congeniality that he did not find at his own home.

Mrs. Colt and her son went much into Brooklyn society. She was known as a wealthy woman, and there was no question as to where her money came from. Mr. Kiley said that he supplied it.

In October, 1903, Mr. Kiley decided to attend the Bankers' Convention in San Francisco and take a vacation at the same time in the West. Mrs. Colt went West on the same train, ostensibly to pay a visit to friends in Chicago.

When the two left Brooklyn Mrs. Kiley was very ill. Her husband thought her fatally ill and never expected to see her alive again. Yesterday he said that it was because he thought her about to die that he married Mrs. Colt when the train reached Hammond, Ind.

They left the train, obtained a license at the Court House, and were married by a Methodist minister under their right names and without any attempt to conceal the matter as far as the county officials and the minister were concerned. They then resumed their journey westward, the "bride" agreeing to appear as Mrs. Colt. She did not part from him at Chicago, but continued to San Francisco.

There Mr. Kiley attended two sessions of the convention of bankers, and then he and Mrs. Colt went to Los Angeles. Kiley said he was then expecting momentarily to hear of the death of his wife. She rallied, regained her strength, and began to get better. He had intended to remain in the West until he received the news of the death. Then he planned to return to Brooklyn and later announce his second marriage, omitting the date. Mrs. Kiley entirely recovered, however, and Mrs. Colt retained the name of Mrs. Colt.

Since then nearly three years have passed uneventfully. Recently Mr. Kiley was taken ill and his condition seemed serious. Mrs. Colt thought of her future when he should pass away, and to safeguard her interests proposed a suit to be brought in the civil courts of Brooklyn for $250,000 damages, telling of her marriage to Kiley in Indiana and opening up the charge of bigamy. This suit was to be brought by John S. Griffith, a lawyer.

But Kiley recovered, as his first wife had done, and the lawyer and Mrs. Colt made their claim to him personally instead of in court proceedings. Kiley went to Griffith's office and offered first $50,000 as a settlement. This was refused, he said. Then he offered $97,000 in cash, securities, and real estate, and this was refused.

Despite these negotiations there seems to have been no break in the friendly relations of Kiley and Mrs. Colt, for last night Mrs. Colt's son, now a young man of perhaps 23, referred a TIMES reporter to the banker for a statement, and said that in the morning Mr. Kiley would probably give out all necessary information at his bank.

Mrs. Colt dropped her suit suddenly. But she had given to Lawyer Griffith the facts of the bigamous marriage, and he had in his possession a certified copy of the marriage certificate.

With this copy was the affidavit in which Mrs. Colt swears that she was married to Kiley on Oct. 7, 1903, in Hammond, Ind., and that she did not know that he was married when she consented to become his wife.

Griffith engaged J. Stewart Ross of 44 Court Street to sue both Kiley and the widow, alleging that he was entitled to a contingent fee amounting to $37,500. Kiley is said to have settled with Mrs. Colt for $150,000. This suit is now pending in the Supreme Court of Brooklyn and will come up for a hearing on March 27. W. F. Scott of the law firm of Scott, Upson & Newcomb, will represent the defendants in the suit.

Until yesterday the fight was all over a matter of dollars, but District Attorney Clarke has been informed of the case, and said yesterday that he did not see how he could avoid taking up the case. After telling of his wrongdoing and declaring, when he was informed that the facts were known, that he had done no other wrong thing in his life, Mr. Kiley disappeared.

Mr. Kiley, when he found that Griffith was to proceed with his suit for a fee, tried to have the case heard before a referee. One continuance was obtained. Then the whole story came out.

WIFE SUES H. E. HUNTINGTON.

Defendant the Nephew and Chief Heir of Collis P. Huntington.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—Mrs. Henry E. Huntington to-day filed a suit for divorce. Her husband was the nephew and chief heir of Collis P. Huntington.

Incompatibility is the ground given in the complaint. Mrs. Huntington will sail for Japan soon. The couple have two grown daughters and a son.

Henry E. Huntington is an officer or a Director in sixty-one corporations. He is President of the Los Angeles Interurban Railway, the Los Angeles Railway Company, the Pacific Electric Land Company, Electric Railway Company, and the Southern Pacific Railroad of Arizona. He is a Director of the Southern Pacific, Colorado Southern, the Iowa Central, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Toledo, St. Louis & Western Railroads, and of the Wells-Fargo Company.

Mr. Huntington was 56 years old last month. Born in Oneonta, N. Y., he first went into the hardware business. Collis P. Huntington, after some years, picked him out to go to St. Albans, West Va., to straighten out lumber interests that had been entangled by inefficient management. He did the work so well that his uncle made him Superintendent of Construction for the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern.

From that time his rise in the railroad world was rapid.

His chief activities have been in the operation of electric railroads. One of his notable achievements was the harnessing of the waters of the Kern River and development of electrical power.

50 WOMEN STRIKERS GOT HIM

Brush Butler Aside, Invaded Boss's Home, and All Talk at Once.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 21.—Fifty women, striking car cleaners, until recently employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, last night stormed the residence of S. C. Long, Superintendent of the Pittsburg Division, pushed past the wide-eyed butler who tried to bar their way, hunted all over the house until they found Mr. Long, and then the fifty, all speaking at once, poured into his ears their grievances.

All day long the Grievance Committee of the strikers had tried to see Supt. Long in his office, but he refused to admit them. Then it was decided to go to his home in Pennsylvania Avenue, in the fashionable East End district. Fifty strong, they arrived about 9 o'clock. The butler told them that they could not see Mr. Long. But they just pushed him out of the way, and then trooped through the house until they found the Superintendent in his library.

Alice Paisley acted as spokeswoman of the party, although she hadn't uttered three words until all the rest were talking. Mr. Long threw up both hands in despair.

"See Mr. Elmer to-morrow," he said, but the women feared a trick, and compelled Mr. Long to go to the telephone and instruct Elmer to see the women to-day. Then they left the house. This morning they called on Elmer, but were unable to obtain any satisfaction.

A FOX LOST IN HARLEM.

"Whitey" of Alaska Is Loose and His Finder Can Get $200.

A lone white fox is wandering among the flats of Harlem trying to imagine himself once more amid the mountains of his native Alaska. He answers to the name of Whitey, and may easily be taken for a Spitz dog. Miss Adelaide Simson of 1,990 Seventh Avenue will pay $200 to any one who brings him back to her.

About a year ago her brother sent her Whitey and another fox from Nome, Alaska. They were both puppies and lived happily together till the janitor in cleaning their cage turned the hose on Whitey's brother, and he died of the shock. This made Whitey the sole representative of his race in Eastern parts, and attracted much attention at the Sportsmen's Show. He was comparatively tame, would come when Miss Simson called, and was allowed to roam in the court of the apartment house within walls too high for him to jump.

When his mistress went out yesterday he was safe in the yard, but when she returned he was gone. The janitor knew nothing of his departure, and so a general alarm was sent out last night by the West 125th Street Station.

ANTI-GAMBLING BILL SLEEPS.

Efforts to Have It Reported Fail—Dr. Gregg Assails Slicer.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—An effort was defeated to-day to get the Cassidy-Lansing bill, providing for the abolition of gambling on race tracks, out of the Committee on Codes. Five members voted to keep it in committee a while longer, and four voted to report it out. An understanding was arrived at, however, that the matter would be taken up again at the meeting of the committee next week. The Jockey Club now knows what to expect or what is expected of it.

The Rev. A. S. Gregg said yesterday that he had received a reply to the letter he wrote to Dr. Slicer demanding a retraction, but he would not give out the text of it. "Dr. Slicer is a discredited man," he said, "and is standing practically alone with none to encourage him save the plausible attorney of The Jockey Club.

"In his letter he neither retracts nor proves his assertions, but undertakes to justify his position by disclaiming any intentional reflections upon the character of the men promoting the bill."

Gov. Higgins was asked to-day about the statement of the representatives of the society pressing the Cassidy-Lansing Anti-Race Track Gambling bill that he was in favor of the bill. He replied:

"No one has any authority to quote me as for or against any bill or other matter pending before the Legislature, except in so far as I have so expressed myself to the Legislature in written message."

Gov. Higgins said he had not received the 80-cent gas bill from Mayor McClellan. He had received the Eleventh Avenue bill, and will give a hearing on it at 3 P. M. to-morrow.

AFTER ROCKEFELLER HOUNDS.

Game Protector to Prosecute Manager of Adirondack Preserve.

ALBANY, March 21.—Chief Fish and Game Protector Burnham has reported to Commissioner Whipple his intention to institute actions against John Redmond, manager of the Bay Pond Adirondack preserve, owned by William Rockefeller, on the charge of having fox hounds in the Adirondacks and of hounding deer.

Protector Burnham has been conducting an investigation at Dickinson Centre, Franklin County, and the information which he obtained forms the basis of the contemplated proceedings.

GOSLIN, HIS BROTHER, AND DUNN ARRESTED

All Held by the Police for the Western Gold Mining Deal.

FOREIGN BANKS INTERESTED

Money for 600 Shares Went to Whiteman & Co.—Curb Prices Quoted Now Said to be Fictitious.

Alfred R. Goslin, self-appointed guide and adviser of all who would get rich quick, moving spirit in many ingenious enterprises apparently directed to that end, and owner of as many aliases as he has had enterprises, was arrested last night by Detective Sergeant Hughes at the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge. He was taken on a charge of violating that section of the Penal Code prohibiting a person from doing business under a fictitious name. Edmund Goslin, his brother, was arrested with him and both were locked up in Police Headquarters. Edmund Goslin was arrested as a suspicious person.

A few minutes later Detective Sergeant McConville brought in Charles M. Dunn of 152 Hughes Street, Brooklyn, having arrested him at Lee Avenue and Hewes Street on a charge of conspiracy. The three arrests were made on warrants issued by Magistrate Steinert and sworn out by Werner Fabian, President of the Western Gold Mining Company of Oroville, Cal. Against Mr. Fabian the trio is said to have carried on transactions of a doubtful character, involving manipulation of treasury stock of the mining company.

It is alleged that the Goslins and Dunn were identified with a scheme through which they obtained over $25,000 from banks in London, Rotterdam, and Denmark by the sale of Western Mining Company stock. Alfred Goslin is said to have masqueraded under the name of A. Griffen. It is also said that Edmund Goslin was the chief promoter abroad. According to the police the scheme was to induce foreign capitalists to purchase mining shares then quoted on the curb in New York at $43 a share. Edmund Goslin, abroad, is said to have deposited $1,250 as margin for the purchase of 200 shares by each of three banks.

The banks wired their representatives in New York to buy at the curb price of $48. The New York agents did business with H. Whiteman & Co. of 43 Exchange Place, of which Bernard Uhren is said to have been a member. Whiteman & Co. controlled the entire issue of stock on an option given by Mr. Fabian, who had been informed that the men to whom he had given the option were in good standing. The sum of $25,000 was advanced by the bankers abroad, which, it is said, went into the pockets of Whiteman & Co. After making the deposit for the margin E. Goslin disappeared, and each of the banks making the purchase is still waiting for the $7,350 due it from him.

After the foreign capitalists had purchased the shares they found that the curb quotations were fictitious. It is said that the deal was carried on by cable.

Justice Greenbaum on Tuesday handed down a decision in which he criticised Alfred R. Goslin, Henry Whiteman, Charles M. Dunn, and Charles Turner in a suit brought by Turner as assignee of Dunn, against the Western Gold Mining Company.

The decision vacated an attachment against the mining company, which had been ordered on an affidavit made by Dunn, in which he alleged that there had been a conspiracy to defraud him out of $29,700, which he had placed with Whiteman & Co. as margins for the purchase of stock.

Whiteman & Co. recently vacated their offices.

Shortly after the two Goslins and Dunn were taken to Headquarters Lawyer Grossman, of the firm of House, Grossman & Vorhaus, held a conference with them, but up to a late hour they had not got bail.

Alfred R. Goslin gave his address as 577 West End Avenue, and his place of business as 132 Nassau Street. Edmund Goslin gave no residence, but said his office was at 132 Nassau Street. Dunn's business address is the same. Alfred R. Goslin, before being locked up, denounced his arrest as an outrage.

"I'll get even with the people who're causing this trouble for me," he declared.

He had $2,500 in cash in his pockets. Edmund Goslin had 100 one-franc notes.

OLGA NETHERSOLE'S CRUSADE

She Intends to Devote Her Life to Fighting Tuberculosis.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, March 21.—Olga Nethersole will quit the stage in eight years and devote her entire time to fighting tuberculosis. She outlined her plans to-night.

"I have decided to abandon stage life in eight years or before," she said. "The stage, after all, offers but little. It is not essentially humanitarian. It does not save human life, at least not directly."

Miss Nethersole than explained how she became interested in the battle against tuberculosis. She said:

"Since I was a small child I have known Sir Alfred Fripp, surgeon to King Edward. It was through him and a dear friend of mine who was afflicted with tuberculosis, but was finally saved, that I took such a deep interest in the work. I have my own hospital in London, you know. Many other hospitals in the country are bending their best work in this direction. Yet they will be powerless to prevent the constant spread of the disease unless the people themselves are awakened. This is my work."

Miss Nethersole recently began the study of medicine and is in continual correspondence with Dr. L. F. Flick of Philadelphia, the well-known tuberculosis expert.

POISONED BY PET CAT.

Mr. Van Blarcom of Paterson Used the Same Handkerchief for Both.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., March 21.—Being too careful of the health of a pet cat has just caused the death of Levi Van Blarcom at the age of 81. Mr. Van Blarcom died to-day of blood poisoning.

Two months ago he used his pocket handkerchief on the eyes of his cat, a household pet. Soon afterward he used the handkerchief on his own eyes and soon both eyes and face began to swell. Blood poisoning resulted.

Mr. Van Blarcom was widely known in politics in his younger days. He was formerly in the ornamental ceiling business.

HAZING MADE CRIMINAL.

Ohio Legislature Passes Strict Law, the Result of Two Fatalities.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 21.—The Senate to-day passed the Harper bill, making hazing criminal. The bill now goes to Gov. Pattison, who will sign it.

The measure fixes a penalty up to $200 fine or six months in jail or both for students guilty of hazing, or teachers or Superintendents of schools permitting hazing.

FORBIDS CAMPAIGN GIFTS.

Culberson Amendment Imposes Penalties on Railroads Which Contribute.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Senator Culberson to-day introduced an amendment to the rate bill prohibiting railroads from subscribing to political campaign funds and imposing fine and imprisonment for violation.

FOR A SUBWAY TO CONEY.

The Rapid Transit Commission May Vote for One To-day.

When the Rapid Transit Commission meets to-day it will pass finally on the proposal to build a subway to Coney Island, as an extension of the Fort Hamilton route. Members of the board believe the plan will be approved unanimously.

This extension would run from Atlantic and Flatbush Avenues, Brooklyn, down Fourth Avenue to Fort Hamilton, to Fortieth Street and New Utrecht Avenue to Eighty-sixth Street, and then, at a point between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth Avenues, it will come to the surface and run as an elevated structure to Coney Island.

ACCUSES GEN. LLOYD S. BRYCE

French Chauffeur Says His Employer Broke Contract Labor Law.

According to a petition filed yesterday in the United States Circuit Court Gen. Lloyd Bryce was not satisfied with the ordinary home-raised chauffeur, but went to France to find one. He engaged Raoul Maillard, a young man of 20, at $100 a month, and is charged with representing him to be his valet in order to get him past the immigration officials, only to find the chauffeur complaining of him as a violator of the contract labor law. If the charge is sustained the informer receives the fine, in this case $1,000.

MAYOR IS UNRECONSTRUCTED.

Richmond's Executive Says He Won't Recognize the Stars and Stripes.

RICHMOND, March 21.—The Southern Ice Exchange met here in its seventeenth annual convention to-day, with an attendance of about 100 members.

Mayor McCarthy, in an address of welcome, referred to Richmond as the former Confederate capital and said: "I am the son of an Irishman, and I recognize but two flags—the State flag of Virginia and the battle flag of the Confederacy.

"The Stars and Stripes are all right in their way, but for me there are but two flags, the State flag of Virginia and the battle flag of the Confederacy, and, so far as I am concerned, I recognize the battle flag of Virginia."

DEFECTS IN THE OREGON.

Battleship's Big Guns Said to Have Weakened Her Hull.

HONOLULU, March 21.—The battleship Oregon, which is returning from the Orient to Bremerton for repairs, has arrived here. It is reported that a structural weakness has developed under the use of her heavy guns.

For some time, it is understood, there has been an order not to use the 13-inch guns except in case of necessity. One of the keel plates was found to be somewhat distorted six or eight months ago, but the condition was thought to be due to docking. Orders were given at that time not to fire the big guns.

SNOWBALL MADE GIRL FAINT.

Then the Thrower Offered 5 Cents to Negro Boy to Take the Blame.

One snowball caused a good deal of trouble yesterday for 7-year-old Loretta Smith, who is a pupil in Columbia Public School, South Orange.

The child was on her way to school when she saw a boy aiming a snowball at her. It missed, but she was so frightened at the possibility of being hit that she fainted.

The boy who threw the snowball, who was well dressed, took 5 cents from his pocket, handed it to a negro lad, and asked him to take the blame.

Then he ran home, evidently thinking he had committed murder.

$1,000,000 BEQUEST DECREED.

Part of Settlement by Cincinnati Judge of Reakirt Divorce Case.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, March 21.—In the Common Pleas Court to-day Judge Caldwell handed down a decree in the divorce case of Mrs. Ann Howard Reakirt against Llewellyn B. Reakirt, a wealthy resident of Clifton, son of Mrs. Lauretta B. Gibson.

The alimony to be paid to Mrs. Reakirt was agreed upon out of court and was not announced. As part of the allowance, however, Judge Caldwell ruled that at Reakirt's death he must leave to his son Robert the sum of $1,000,000. The custody of the child is given to the mother.

A GERMAN-AMERICAN PLAN.

Convention of Trade Interests of the Two Countries Proposed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 21.—Deputy Ersberger has proposed to the Reichstag Committee that a convention of representatives of German and American trade interests be held in order to consider the commercial relations of the two countries.

Herr Ersberger told me that the plan was suggested by prominent New York manufacturers, who said that as the diplomats knew little about tariff matters the best way would be for the people directly interested to hold a meeting at New York or Hamburg. It is suggested that the German and American Governments send representatives to the meeting.

The Reichstag Committee is considering the proposal.

FIRST ARMSTRONG BILLS GO TO THE LEGISLATURE

Those Governing Mutual Elections to be Reported To-day.

TRUSTEES MUST GO NOV. 15

Pending Elections Postponed—Amendments Shorten Proxy Campaigns—Rush Programme Insisted On.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—The Assembly Committee on Insurance voted to-night to report to the Assembly to-morrow the special bills relating to elections in mutual life insurance companies as proposed by the Armstrong Committee. The bills provide that all pending elections shall be postponed until Nov. 15 next, that all existing proxies shall be canceled, and that all Trustees shall go out of office on Nov. 15. They also arrange for a scheme of nominations by the companies and their policy holders.

It is said here to-night on authority that the bills will be reported to the Senate to-morrow, also, and that every effort will be made to push them through so that they may be in the hands of Gov. Higgins for signature early next week. Senators Tully and Riordan and Assemblymen Rogers, Cox, and Prentice of the Armstrong Committee were present at the committee's meeting to-night.

The committee has made two changes in the bills. The first is intended to shorten somewhat the proxy campaigns, which in the original report were scheduled to start this year on July 1 and continue until Nov. 15, the date set for the elections. As the bills have now been amended the proxy campaigns will not start until Sept. 15, two months before the elections. The second change provides that there shall be no elections in the year 1907, the Trustees to be elected next Fall dividing themselves into two classes, one of which shall retire at the election of 1908 and the other in the election of 1909.

Proxy Fight Shortened.

The shortening of the proxy campaigns is the result of the protest made on behalf of policy holders that if the race for proxies began this year on July 1, as proposed in the Armstrong Committee's report, the companies, which had been obliged to file their lists of policy holders only on June 15, would have an unfair advantage over the policy holders' organizations in being able to get out actively after proxies before the policy holders had a chance to examine the lists and to get their work under way.

Under the amendment the plan will be the same for this year as for other years, the companies filing their lists of policy holders five months before the election, and their nominations four months ahead, while the policy holders nominate three months in advance, and are to begin with the companies a proxy campaign two months in advance.

The idea that all Trustees elected next Fall shall hold over until the elections of 1908 is due to a desire to pile elections up on top of elections. There are four mutual companies affected by the bills. They are the Mutual Life, the New York Life, the Mutual Reserve, and the Security Mutual of Binghamton. The election of the Mutual Reserve comes in January, and that of the New York Life in April, while the the election of the Mutual Life falls in June.

As originally proposed, therefore, the Mutual Reserve would be obliged to hold a second election two months after the first one under the new system, the New York Life within six months, and the Mutual Life within eight months. The Armstrong Committee believes that the alternative presented by the longer terms for the first classes of new Trustees is a better one.

As the result of an all-day conference held by Senator Armstrong and Assemblyman Prentice of the Armstrong Insurance Committee, Assemblyman Wainwright of the Assembly Committee on Insurance, and all the counsel for the insurance investigators, Mr. Prentice was sent to Albany late yesterday afternoon. He was instructed to urge upon the men charged in the Legislature with pressing the insurance reform programme the immediate introduction of the special bills that the Armstrong Committee proposed postponing all elections in mutual companies until Nov. 15 next, and decreeing that all existing Directors or Trustees shall go out of office on that date.

The Armstrong Committee and its counsel, Charles E. Hughes, James McKeen, and Matthew C. Fleming, are understood to be a unit on this matter, and consider that no effective insurance reform can be worked out without the passage of the measures which the committee devised to pave the way for an entire change in administration. Accordingly it has viewed with considerable concern the efforts that have been making in the New York Life Insurance Company to push a proxy campaign in the face of its dictum that all Trustees should go out next Fall. One of the first subjects to which the committee gave its attention when the supplementary meetings were started here on Wednesday was this one.

There are now about fourteen legislative days before April 11, which is the date set for the meeting of the New York Life, rather than April 7, as hitherto reported. The Armstrong Committee believes that the Legislature will not seek to hinder the passage of these bills, or that if efforts of such a nature are made, they will not avail for a matter of three weeks if the bills are promptly reported and vigorously pushed.

Nevertheless it is known that the New York Life is openly and others companies are privately seeking the defeat of the bills. The New York Life has even addressed a letter to policy holders on the subject, with a request for proxies and containing sketches of the proxy committees named and of the candidates for re-election. These letters have not yet been sent out in any considerable quantities. If the bills are passed it will pave the way for the country-wide policy holders' movement that is rapidly taking form.

Such a movement, it is believed by those who are behind the international committee now forming, could avail but little so far as enforcing an immediate change in the management of the two great mutual companies here unless the recommendations of the Armstrong Committee are enacted into law, for with but one class of Trustees, numbering a third of the board retiring this year, the strongest movement of policy holders could not assert its right to control the new management.

In the case of the New York Life the attempt is said to be to delay the special acts when introduced until after April 11, so that if they are passed after that date the present management can assert that the re-election of the outgoing Trustees was an indorsement of the board's acts. These Trustees include President Orr, William B. Hornblower, John Claflin, and George E. Morrison.

UNTERMYER ON TRUSTEES.

Tells Ohio Legislature Insurance Heads Are Shameless.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, March 21.—Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the International Committee of Policy Holders in the New York and Mutual Life Insurance Companies, addressed the Committee on Insurance of the Ohio Legislature to-night on the proposed bills for the reform of the insurance business. The legislation under consideration here is based on the bills that the Armstrong Committee of the New York Legislature drafted for the companies of that State, and Mr. Untermyer was invited to come here by both the Insurance Committee and the Ohio Policy Holders' Association after his appearance before the New York Legislature at the hearing on the insurance bills last week. Mr. Untermyer said:

"Nothing can better illustrate the imperative necessity for immediate and drastic legislation than the defiant and unrepentant attitude of these heads and Boards of Trustees of the great mutual companies in the face of the exposures of the long list of their criminal acts of ommission and commission.

"Not one of these Trustees is the choice of the policy holders. They are the sole and personal choice of the dictator who was at the time at the head of the company, and not even their associate Trustees were consulted as to their selection.

"And now, when, as the result of these exposures which have followed the mere scratching of the surface of this bottomless sink of corruption, it is proposed that there shall at last be an election for Trustees as contemplated by the charters of these companies, at which the will of the real owners of these properties shall be registered, what do we find the attitude of these recreant and self-constituted custodians of our property?

"Do they welcome the opportunity to make account of their stewardship, as does every honest Trustee? Do they cheerfully join in the demand that they submit themselves for the suffrages of the men whose properties they have been administering so that they may be told whether they shall be retired or continued? Hardly that. They answer the demand in a way that is simply staggering in its effrontery and shamelessness. They openly oppose the legislation. To add to the irony of the performance, they actually employ counsel at the policy holders' expense to persuade the Legislature that it is not to the interest of the policy holders that they be allowed to exercise the rights reserved to them by the charter!"

TRAP CHAUFFEUR BY 'PHONE.

Woman Who Once Employed Him Declares That He Annoyed Her.

Edgar Purdy, a chauffeur who used to live with his wife and five children at 139 West Fifty-seventh Street, was arrested last night in a barber shop at Broadway and Seventy-seventh Street, and was locked up in the Tenderloin station on the charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Mrs. Isabella Delmont of the Hotel Stratford, 11 East Thirty-second Street, makes other charges. She says that she was formerly the man's employer, but that on his endeavoring to pay her attentions she discharged him. Since then, she says, he has been annoying her in all manner of ways. Once, she says, when she was visiting friends at Hastings-on-the-Hudson, Purdy broke into her room through the window and attacked her. According to Detective McGee, there is a warrant out for this offense.

Last night, Mrs. Delmont says, she was called up by Purdy on the telephone. She got the hotel people to notify Police Headquarters, and when the detectives arrived they traced the telephone call to the barber shop. The arrest followed soon after.

All this time Purdy had to be kept at the telephone. Mrs. Delmont talked to him for a while. Then a friend of hers took up the receiver, and by dint of promising everything the man asked for she held him in the barber's shop until the detectives reached it.

Purdy denies all Mrs. Delmont's charges. "This won't amount to anything," he said as they locked him up. "She will never appear against me."

SUBSTITUTE PUBLICITY BILL.

Parts of Belmont Measure Used by Assembly Judiciary Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—Out of the mass of proposed legislation regarding corrupt practices in elections and campaign expenditure came to-night a substitute bill by the Assembly Judiciary Committee which deals principally with the question of publicity for campaign contributions. A number of sections of the Belmont Publicity bill have been taken bodily by the committee and worked into its own production.

FOWLER COMMITTEE SPLIT OVER HAMILTON

Can't Agree as to What They'll Sue the Judge About.

HE WON'T TALK TO THEM

Not Entering Spider Parlors, He Says —Also Mentions "Newspaper Halos" —Mackay Controversy Continues.

There is a serious split in the Fowler Investigating Committee of New York Life Trustees as a result of the revelations made in the last seven days by Andrew Hamilton. It was just a week ago to-day that Hamilton made his dramatic appearance before the Legislature to denounce as curs and traitors the Trustees of the company for the treatment they had accorded John A. McCall. Now, when Hamilton has given to the public about two and one-half chapters of his promised history of the New York Life's internal affairs, the Fowler investigators are divided into two hostile camps. One stands for the policy that the committee has pursued toward McCall and Hamilton and the other is growing stronger and stronger in the belief that a bad mistake has been made.

The point in which the break came, it is learned on excellent authority, was the service of Hamilton in the suit that the Fowler committee has undertaken to bring against him. The committee has not been able to come to anything like an agreement as to what is to be charged in that action. Accordingly, it is quite undecided how far the attempt will be made to hold Hamilton responsible for the funds that he spent through the Legislative Bureau of the company.

Hiram R. Steele, who was referred to by Hamilton in one of his recent interviews as having been true to his long standing friendship to John A. McCall save in so far as he had been misled by other members of the New York Life's Board, was, it is undestood, openly opposed to trying to institute the Hamilton action until the committee and its counsel had at last come to an agreement on what was to be charged. Mr. Steele found some support in the committee, but the majority lined up on the other side, urging the need of the committee's doing something to minimize the effect of Hamilton's disclosures. The summons of last Wednesday night was the result.

McCall Suits Perplexing, Too.

The suits proposed against the McCall estate constitute another vexed question in the Fowler committee. There is a strong sentiment among some of the members that the course originally proposed of suing the estate for some $278,000 of the money Hamilton spent and for the entire $148,000 of campaign gifts traced up to the time the Fowler Committee reported on the subject is far too drastic in view of late developments. Particularly is this view held because some fifteen Trustees who have had personal knowledge of the campaign payments when made have agreed among themselves to refund the amount to the company. On the other hand, the element in the committee which has been most strongly under the direction of William B. Hornblower, whom Hamilton has dubbed the Pecksniff of the New York Life, are not yet prepared to modify the stand that the committee has taken.

It is now considered likely that resignations from the committee will result as happened in the Mutual Life when Stuyvesant Fish became unable to carry his colleagues with him in his effort to have a thorough investigation. The situation in the Fowler committee is somewhat different, as the question at issue is regarding the treatment of Mr. McCall, and, to a certain extent, a side issue in the committee's work.

At this interesting juncture Hamilton yesterday addressed a letter to the Fowler committee in answer to its epistle to him in which it said it would be willing to have him come before it if he desired.

This is Hamilton's letter:

Hamilton Fires Back.

"March 21, 1906.

"To the Special Committee of the New York Life Insurance Company, Mr. Clarence H. Mackay, Acting Chairman:

"Gentlemen: I am replying to the only communication received by me from your body since my return. It is doubtless quite evident that by this time you should be yourselves satisfied that the statements contained in your report of Feb. 7, 1906, in regard to your examination of my accounts, are seriously wrong, and that when you rushed into print in order that you might wear a newspaper halo, you had not, as your report incorrectly states, 'obtained all the information about this subject that is accessible.' Your published interviews, which I take to be correct, because I know the facts so covered, betray a startling loss of memory during your deliberations upon the subject of the weekly audit for years of my accounts by some members of your committee, and from time to time by other members of the Board of Trustees. Documents in the company's office files, if they have not been suppressed, official action spread upon the records of your proceedings, and correspondence to which you must certainly have had access, have been deliberately ignored by you to give to the Paris policy fee account and to the refunded New York premium tax collections a false color upon which to base your unwarranted accusations.

"Notwithstanding this, I was prepared to acept the suggestion contained in your letter, 'Will you walk into my parlor, says the spider to the fly,' when you practically retreated from your position in choosing to proceed by the commencement of a civil action against me. I can appreciate that the events of the past week, so far as I have participated in them, are not perhaps calculated to put you in a judicial state of mind. I will, therefore, accept your latest challenge, and meet you in a tribunal where there will be no vanity to be tickled, and the scales will be held on an even balance. Yours truly,

"ANDREW HAMILTON."

After receiving the letter, the Fowler Committee went into a long session which lasted well into the afternon, then took an adjournment until 4:30 o'clock, and sat again until nearly 7 o'clock. The committee didn't do any talking. But Hamilton did. He gave out his letter to the committee at his old law offices in the New York Life building, and then took up the little side controversy he started the other day with Clarence H. Mackay, who is acting as temporary Chairman of the investigators in the absence of Thomas P. Fowler, President of the Ontario and Western Railroad.

Hamilton and Mackay.

This controversy began with a discussion of the question whether Mr. Hamilton was personally known to Mr. Mackay. Discussions of this kind have been more or less the order of things ever since Hamilton reappeared in Albany last week. When he made his début at the hearing on the insurance bills, one well-known and sartorially perfect politician, who was led up to be introduced to the "Judge," said that he had never seen Hamilton before.

"Why, how do you do?" was Hamilton's reply. "I haven't seen you since that dinner at the Albany Club last year."

In Mr. Mackay's case, the suggestion that he did not know Hamilton came after Hamilton's first outburst against the Trustees of the New York Life in general. Mr. Mackay explained the next day that he became a Trustee of the New York Life on April 13, 1904, and that he "never knew that such a man as Hamilton existed until his name was brought out in the testimony taken by the Armstrong Committee."

Hamilton then said he had met Mr. Mackay in Mr. McCall's office in 1905, and was asked by Mr. McCall not to charge too much for looking up the titles in a loan that Mr. Mackay wanted to get for the Commercial Cable Company. Yesterday Hamilton, in answer to Mr. Mackay's explanation that it was the Commercial Cable Building Company and not the Commercial Cable Company that wanted the loan, said that he had intended to refer to the building company.

"Now Mr. Mackay, in denying that he met me, said that he had not negotiated any loans for the Commercial Cable Company in the last ten years," Hamilton said yesterday. "That was a quibble on Mr. Mackay's part, as I will show you.

"What happened was that the late John A. McCall called me into his office one day in 1905 and said that he wished to introduce me to Mackay. Mr. Mackay pretty soon came in, and Mr. McCall told me that he was negotiating some loans. Mr. McCall said: 'Now, Judge, I hope your fees for examining the security for these loans will be smaller than usual, for Mr. Mackay is one of our Directors.'

"The full amount of the loans was $1,850,000 and my charges ordinarily would have been $4,475. On account of Mr. McCall's request, however, I reduced them by $2,975, which amount Mr. Mackay saved. As to the statement that the Commercial Cable Company has nothing to do with the building company, I will say that the consent to the mortgage is on file and shows that all but a very few shares of the building company are owned by the Mackay family."

Cook Says He Did It All.

Mr. Mackay's lawyer, William W. Cook, replied to this by saying:

"The title of the Building Company was guaranteed by a title guarantee company, and when I made the request for the loan I told the Treasurer of the New York Life that there was no occasion for an enormous fee for searching the title when the title was thus guaranteed. Before we accepted the loan from the insurance company I arranged with the Treasurer of the New York Life the amount of the fee, and that arrangement was carried out.

"There wasn't any favor of any kind on Mr. Hamilton's part. The size of the fee was made a condition precedent to taking the loan. I made that arrangement myself, and I am sure that Mr. Mackay never saw Hamilton in connection with it."

When asked about Mr. Mackay's statement that he was not a Trustee of the New York Life when this loan was negotiated, in view of Mr. Mackay's other statement that he became a Trustee of the New York Life on April 13, 1904, Mr. Cook said:

"I know that Mr. Mackay never borrowed a dollar from the New York Life Company as a Trustee of the institution. The matter of dates came about in this way: Mr. Mackay was elected in April of 1904, but he did not take his seat until February of 1905. The negotiations for the loan were prior to his taking his seat in the board."

Hamilton was asked yesterday whether he had anything to say about George W. Perkins.

"Not now," he replied. "During all his service with the company Mr. Perkins was esteemed by the McCall family one of Mr. McCall's stanchest friends, and it was so up to the time of his death. I am not acquainted with all the facts yet, because I have been away. I may have some things to say about Mr. Perkins later."

It is understood that Mr. Perkins will be the subject of at least one chapter of Hamilton's personal reminiscences. Cornelius N. Bliss was out of town all day yesterday, and the talk still persisted that he was in Washington conferring with various notable Republicans on the general subject of campaign contributions from life insurance companies.

Hamilton went back to Albany yesterday afternoon, having announced that he had done all the talking he intended to do for the present. He is content for the present to let other people talk with the material he has furnished. But one prominent lawyer said this last night:

"How in the world could a man with such a collection of language keep quiet for twenty years?"

A CHALLENGE BY JEROME.

Willing to Let Any Newspaper Tackle the Campaign Gifts Case.

District Attorney Jerome said yesterday that he would be glad to put all the evidence in his possession, as well as his power to subpoena witnesses, at the disposal of any newspaper in this city willing to make a legal test of the soundness of the opinion expressed in his insurance brief on Tuesday. In that brief Mr. Jerome said he believed it was impossible to prosecute anybody under the law as it now stands for contributing corporate money to political campaign funds.

"Any citizen has the same standing in a police court as the District Attorney," he said. "A complaint based on proper evidence will have the same consideration by the Magistrates whether coming from me or from a citizen. I shall be only too happy to have the law tested by anybody who thinks that contributions by corporate officers of the funds in their charge to political campaign committees, as premised in the presentment of the Grand Jury to Judge O'Sullivan, constitutes a case of grand larceny.

"If any of the great papers in this city wants to go into this matter, I will do everything in my power to assist. My only condition is that they retain a reputable lawyer to present the case properly in court. If they do this, I shall turn over to them the evidence in my possession, such as, for instance, the testimony by George Perkins before the Armstrong Committee about the contributions to political funds made by the New York Life Insurance Company.

"I shall furthermore place to the disposal of that newspaper all the subpoenas they want, and a sufficient number of subpoena servers from my staff. There is nothing to fear from such a proceeding. The presentation of the evidence in good faith would exclude the possibility of a suit for false arrest. It is just as safe for anybody else to proceed in the case as for me. And I hope somebody may be induced to try it.

"If nobody cares to make use of this offer on my part, I should be satisfied to have the public expression over his signature by any lawyer of actual prominence in this city of the opinion that the facts mentioned in the presentment of the Grand Jury constitute larceny. I have heard much talk, but it has so far been entirely anonymous. We have plenty of big lawyers in this city—men whose reputations carry weight with the whole community—and if I am wrong in this matter, it ought not to be impossible to get one of them to come forward and say so publicly and openly."

Judge O'Sullivan will charge the Grand Jury on the insurance question to-day or to-morrow.

HIGGINS'S SECOND DENIAL.

Never Had Understanding with Root or Hamilton About Insurance.

ALBANY, March 21.—Gov. Higgins to-day repeated his denial of the published statement attributed to Andrew Hamilton, that he had agreed with Elihu Root last Summer, or at any other time, that insurance matters were not to be injected into the special session of the Legislature called to consider the accusations against Supreme Court Justice Warren B. Hooker.

"I have never passed a word with Mr. Root on the subject of insurance in any shape or form," said the Governor, with marked emphasis, "nor have I had any indirect communication with him on the subject." He added, jocosely, "I'll give you a bond for it if you wish."

The Governor went on to say that the only time he had ever met Hamilton was about seven or eight years ago, when the latter came to see the Governor, who was then in the Senate, about a bill providing for a State lighting plant for the Capitol Building. At Judge Hamilton's request Senator Higgins went to see Anthony N. Brady, who tried to convince him that the State would better continue to take its light from his company. It appears that Hamilton called at the Executive Chamber last Spring, before he went to Europe, but did not ask for or see the Governor. He inquired of Secretary Perley about the possibility of an insurance investigation, but Mr. Perley had no information on the subject.

$100 FOR A PALMER ALBUM.

Several Artists Represented in Book Bought at the Third Sale.

The sale of the third and last part of the collection of the late Albert M. Palmer was begun yesterday by the Merwin-Clayton Company. The highest price realized was $100 for an album of original drawings, water color sketches, &c. Among the artists represented in it are Millet, Escosura, Gavarni, Grevin, Fromentin, Delacroix Greuze, Truvies, and Hiret.

A view of the Tremont Theatre, Boston, drawn on stone by A. J. Davis, brought $9, and a view of the old Bowery Theatre, New York, by the same artist, $17.

A half-length portrait of Clara Fisher, the actress, engraved by Stephen H. Gimber and W. J. Bennett from the original picture of Henry Inman, sold for $11.50.

A portrait of Admiral Van Tromp of Holland, engraved by Blooteling after Sir Peter Lily, 1676, fetched $20.

An original drawing by Thomas Nast, "Welcome Home, Willard," fetched $10.25.

Four interesting letters of Edwin Booth were in the sale. The highest price paid was $2.45. A letter of George Du Maurier, April 1, 1896, referring to "Trilby" sold for $2. There were several portraits of actors and actresses, most of them with autograph signatures. The highest price paid for any of these was $3 for a three-quarter length carbon portrait of Sarah Bernhardt.

CALLS FOR WATER REPORT.

Senator Saxe Trying to Learn State Commission's Secrets.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—Senator Saxe to-day called on the State Water Commission to make known its findings regarding a water supply for New York City, and it is expected that unless influences are brought to bear to defeat Mr. Saxe's aim the well-guarded secrets of the commission concerning the ability of the city to get water from Suffolk County, should the Burr restrictions be removed, will have an airing.

THINK THE ATHOS IS LOST.

Steamship Long Overdue Left This Port for Genoa on Dec. 10.

Hope for the safety of the Donald Line steamship Athos and her crew of thirty men under Capt. Dobson, now long overdue at Genoa, has practically been given up. Yesterday the vessel was posted at the Maritime Exchange in this city, and also at Lloyds in London, as missing.

The Athos sailed from New York for Genoa on Dec. 10 last, and since that time not a word has been heard from her. The vessel was an American-built steamship, constructed for the fruit trade and registered 1,255 tons. She was long overdue at this port from the West Indies several years ago, and at that time considerable anxiety was felt for her safety. The turned up, however, with her machinery badly damaged and her passengers half famished.

KUBELIK'S WIFE ARRIVES.

She Will Join the Violinist on the Pacific Coast.

Countess Ckazy-Szell, wife of Jan Kubelik, the Bohemian violinist, arrived yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. She was accompanied by Carl Junkerman, the violinist's secretary, who went abroad about a month ago to escort her to her husband.

The Countess left her castle in Bohemia as soon as possible after the recent visit of the stork, as she wished to be near her husband. The famous Kubelik twins and the latest girl baby were left in care of her parents.

She will start to-day on a trip across the continent, as the first place at which she can see Kubelik will be Los Angeles. She will accompany him on his journey up the Pacific Coast and back to New York.

ONLY CLOTHES AND A SOUL.

Hndu University Man Brought Nothing Else to the Police Station.

Joseph Sourran, a Hindu graduate of the University of Edinburgh, appeared as a penniless wayfarer at the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station last night, and was locked up in a cell for the night.

He was a queer-looking individual, tall, gaunt, angular, and copper colored, with a peculiar gleam in his deep-set eyes that made his appearance decidedly unlike that of the ordinary tramp.

He said to Sergt. Faulkner when his address was demanded:

"I am a homeless wanderer on the face of the earth."

To the question: "Have you a knife?" he replied:

"I have nothing but my clothes and my soul."

AMERICAN PERIL IN SIBERIA.

Russian Idea of What Would Result from the Bering Tunnel Plan.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 21.—A section of the press of St. Petersburg is continuing its attacks upon the proposition of Baron Loicq de Lobel, representing the American-Trans-Alaskan-Siberian Company, for the construction of a tunnel under Bering Strait and a railway 3,000 miles long from East Cape to Kansk, to form a junction with the Siberian Railway. The writers argue that the proposition would mean first the economic and then the political conquest of Siberia by Americans.

An article in the Russ, entitled, "The Greatest Danger" says: "The days of Russia's expansion have ended. We must now keep what we have got for Russians." The article pictures Americans and enterprising Jews as hoping to duplicate in Siberia the fortunes made in Alaska, and adds that when they have squeezed the riches out of Siberia they will leave the husks to the Russians.

C. F. Wenham Declared a New Yorker.

Judge Lacombe, in the United States Circuit Court, handed down a decision yesterday in the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company against Charles F. Wenham. The court held that Wenham was a resident of the City of New York. The defense contended that Wenham was a resident of Chicago and without the jurisdiction of the courts here.

NO FEDERAL AUTHORITY TO CONTROL INSURANCE

House Committee Will Call President's Plan Monstrous.

NOT A MATTER OF COMMERCE

Police Powers of States Cannot Be Invaded—New Doctrine Goes Beyond Even Hamilton.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—That there is no constitutional authority for Federal control of insurance or other State corporations other than railroads is to be the conclusion reported to the House by the Judiciary Committee in answer to a request for an opinion on the portion of the President's message dealing with that subject.

The report has been drafted by Chairman Jenkins of the committee, and an unofficial poll of its members indicates that with practically no exceptions they concur in his argument.

The report collates all of the important court decisions on the questions involved, treats each exhaustively, and reduces the whole problem to this conclusion:

"The Supreme Court of the United States has declared, and has never been shaken or weakened in maintaining, first, that insurance is not commerce, and, second, that Congress cannot impair the police powers of the States."

On the latter principle, Mr. Jenkins says:

"Let it be said kindly, and not offensively, that it is a monstrous doctrine, subversive of our dual system of government, to even suggest, after the distribution of these great powers between the Federal Government and the States, that the Federal Government, created by the States, can take from the States the power they have always enjoyed and expressly reserved to them by the Constitution exclusive in the States. Hamilton himself never made such a claim.

"Not until now, in a moment of excitement and intense interest, has it ever been suggested that Congress can impair the police power of the States."

In arguing that insurance is not commerce, Mr. Jenkins says:

"The question as to whether or not insurance is commerce has passed beyond the realm of argument, because the Supreme Court of the United States has said many times for a great number of years that insurance is not commerce.

"Insurance was well known long before the Constitution was adopted, and insurance companies were in active operation in this country long before the adoption of the Constitution, and ever since the adoption of the Constitution it has not been recognized as an article of commerce.

"It is useless to live in hopes that the Supreme Court of the United States will reverse its holding, but assuming that Congress declares that insurance is commerce and the Supreme Court holds the legislation constitutional, how much could Congress regulate and what effect would such legislation have?

"The advocates of Federal supervision admit and concede that it is entirely optional with the States to admit or exclude insurance corporations. Hence it follows that the State has entire power to regulate, and a declaration of the Supreme Court, with or without legislation, that insurance is commerce would not give Congress anything to regulate.

"The business can be carried on without commercial transit, and it is only during commercial transit Federal power can be exercised. It is conceded that when a State admits a foreign corporation its rights are the same as a domestic corporation within the limits of that State as long as the law is complied with. Hence this excludes any action of Congress in any event.

"What can Congres act upon under its power to regulate interstate commerce? Congress cannot prevent the making of a contract of insurance between a company in New York and a resident of Oregon. After the contract is made, when will the power of Congress attach, and to what? The policy and premium are not merchandise. As the power of Congress does not attach until the merchandise is in commercial transit, it could not become active until the policy and premium start on their journey, and would terminate when the place of destination is reached, and the duty and power of Congress would be to protect both in transit, and that is the limit of Congressional power.

"This act of transporation does not enable the Federal power to reach the corporations, and as the Federal power would not know when or how the policy or premium were to be transported, and as it cannot annul the contract, it would have to be made a criminal offense, and an American citizen would have to be convicted of crime for making provision for his family."

tween them, and an eight-hour law for the Panama Canal is an absurdity.

"Every one of you knows that we cannot get white labor, cannot get labor of the United States to go down to Panama and work. We are driven to extremities in the effort to get any kind of labor at all. Just at the moment we are working chiefly with negro labor from the West Indies. The usual result in the employment of those men is that Monday and Tuesday they work fairly well, Wednesday and Thursday there is a marked falling off, and by Friday and Saturday, not more than a half, sometimes less than a fourth of the laborers will be at work.

"The conditions that make the eight-hour law proper here have no possible reference to the conditions that make the eight-hour law entirely improper there. The conditions are so utterly different on the Isthmus as compared to here that it is impossible to draw conclusions affecting the one from what is true about the other. You hamper me in the effort to get for you what I think you ought to have in connection with the eight-hour law when you make a request that is indefensible, and to grant which would mean indefinite delay and injury to the work on the Isthmus.

Specifications Wanted.

"As to the violation of the eight-hour law, Mr. Morrison, you give me no specifications. At your earliest convenience please lay before me in detail any complaints you have of violations of the eight-hour law. Where I have power I will see that the law is obeyed. All I ask is that you give me the cases. I will take them up, and if they prove to be sustained by the facts I shall see that the law is enforced.

"Now, about the Chinese exclusion. The number of Chinese now in this country is, if I remember aright, some 60,000 or 70,000. So far from there being a great influx of the Chinese, the fact is that the number has steadily decreased. There are fewer Chinese than there were ten years ago, fewer than there were twenty years ago, fewer than there were thirty years ago. Unquestionably some scores or cases occur each year where Chinese laborers get in either by being smuggled over the Mexican and Canadian borders, or by coming in under false certificates; but the steps that we have taken, the changes in the Consuls that have been made within the last few years in the Orient, and the efforts to conduct examinations in China before the immigrants are allowed to come here, are materially reducing even the small number of cases that do occur. But even as it is the number of these cases is insignificant.

"There is no appreciable influx of Chinese laborers, and there is not the slightest or most remote danger of any; the whole scare that has been worked up on the subject is a pure chimera. It is my deep conviction that we must keep out of this country every Chinese laborer, skilled or unskilled—every Chinaman of the coolie class. This is what the proposed law will do; it will be done as effectively as under the present law, and the present law is being handled with the utmost efficiency. But I will do everything in my power to make it easy and desirable for the Chinese of the business and professional classes, the Chinese travelers and students, to come here, and I will do all I can to secure their good treatment when they come, and no laboring man has anything whatever to fear from that policy. I have a right to challenge you as good American citizens to support that policy, and in any event I shall stand unflinchingly for it, and no man can say with sincerity that on this or indeed on any other point he has any excuse for misunderstanding my policy.

Undesirable Immigrants.

"You have spoken of the immigration laws. I believe not merely that all possible steps should be taken to prevent the importation of laborers under any form, but I believe further that this country ought to make a resolute effort from now on to prevent the coming to the country of men with a standard of living so low that they tend, by entering into unfair competition with, to reduce the standard of living of our own people. Not one of you can go further than I will go in the effort steadily to raise the status of the American wage worker so long as, while doing it, I can retain a clear conscience and the certainty that I am doing what is right. I will do all in my power for the laboring man except to do what is wrong, and I will not do that for him or for any one else.

"We must not let our natural sentiment for succoring the oppressed and unfortunate of other lands lead us into that warped moral and mental attitude of trying to succor them at the expense of pulling down our own people. Laws should be enacted to keep out all immigrants who do not show that they have the right stuff in them to enter into our life on terms of decent equality with our own citizens. This is needed first in the interests of the laboring man, but furthermore in the interests of all of us as American citizens. For, gentlemen, the bonds that unite all good American citizens are stronger by far than the differences, which I think you accentuate altogether too much, between the men who do one kind of labor and the men who do another.

"As for immigrants, we cannot have too many of the right kind; and we should have none at all of the wrong kind; and they of the right kind if we can be fairly sure that their children and grandchildren can meet on terms of equality our children and grandchildren so as to try to be decent citizens together and work together for the uplifting of the Republic.

"Now, a word as to the petitioning of employes to Congress. That stands in no shape or way on a par with the petitioning of men not employed by the Government. I cannot have and will not have when I can prevent it men who are concerned in the administration of Government affairs going to Congress and asking for increased pay without the permission of the heads of the departments. Their business is to come through the heads of departments. This applies to Postmasters, to army and navy officers, to clerks in the Government departments, to laborers; it applies to each and all, and must apply as a matter of simple discipline."

The delegation remained with the President about three-quarters of an hour, and the subjects suggested were considered informally after the addresses had been delivered. It was agreed that on points of difference the Executive Council of the federation should appoint a committee of three, which should draft the views of the organization and submit them to the President at a later date. It is likely that President Gompers will be the Chairman of that committee.

Earlier in the day the delegation called on Speaker Cannon and Senator Frye of Maine, President pro tem. of the Senate, and laid before them the same memorial which they presented to the President.

Speaker Cannon received the delegation in the lobby of the House. After President Gompers had read the memorial he made a speech in which he resented the charge of unfairness against the House Committee on Labor.

"You are not the whole shooting match, but a good share of it," said the Speaker. "It is impossible for a committee not to have many men of many ideas in its make up. I select the committees with all fairness. In your annual meetings you doubtless find a great variety of opinion. If you don't have a lot of damns I miss my guess. No two men have the same ideas."

The Speaker urged that the members should remember that all men should be at liberty to join their organizations and that all who are at present members should be at liberty not to continue their membership. He expressed his sympathy with the desire of organized labor for better conditions, but said it must always be remembered "by each of us that specialties monopolize our attention and cause us to forget other interests quite as important."

Legislation, policy, and administration, he urged, can only progress as fast as they gain majority support.

President Gompers replied by praising Representative Gardner of New Jersey, the Chairman of the House Committee on Labor, and stating that the other members of the committee, especially the majority members, have not, in the opinion of labor interests, shown ordinary intelligence in their treatment of matters affecting labor. "The general policy of Congress has been to ignore the requests of labor," President Gompers concluded.

Speaker Cannon replied that he did not think such a criticism just. He also enjoined labor organizations to consider that they have as great a responsibility resting on them as has Congress. He urged that each member of such an organization should take an oath to administer the affairs of the organization in the interest of the greatest number of persons.

When the memorial was presented to Senator Frye he made no comment beyond a mere statement that he would lay the memorial before the Senate.

President Thanks Klopsch.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The President to-day sent the following telegram to Dr. Louis Klopsch, editor of The Christian Herald, New York:

> Let me heartily thank you, and, through you, The Christian Herald for the admirable work done in connection with the famine sufferers in Japan. You have now raised $100,000, and you have rendered a very real service to humanity and to the cause of international good will. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The Weber is the Piano of the Opera

¶ "The Weber Pianos which I have been using for the past two years have been a great source of pleasure to me.

¶ "Their beautiful and sympathetic quality of tone makes them ideal for accompanying the voice."

LOUISE HOMER.

MME. LOUISE HOMER as Amneris in "Aida."

THIS is the seventh consecutive year that the Weber has been the choice of the great opera company, not only by Mr. Conried himself but by the individual artists. In addition to Mme. Homer, the following opera singers of world-wide fame have had Weber Pianos in their apartments during their stay in New York:

CARUSO BURGSTALLER
KNOTE
VAN ROOY
MME. NORDICA
MME. HOMER
SCOTTI
PLANCON
MISS EDYTH WALKER
MISS BESSIE ABOTT
MME. JOMELLI

etc., etc.

Including the pianos used at the Metropolitan Opera House itself and in the homes of the individual artists, over fifty Webers are required to supply the demand created by the appearance of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company in New York each year.

The piano that is thus given preference over all other pianos is the Weber, because of its rich, sympathetic, singing-tone,—an individual quality of tone which not only blends best with the human voice, but makes it the ideal instrument for all homes where the highest musical standards are understood and appreciated.

GRADY LEADS SENATE AGAINST TRANSIT BILL

Competitive Provision of Elsberg Measure Eliminated.

DEMOCRATS QUIT THE LEADER

Vote to Keep Bill Intact, While Republicans Follow the Tammany Man —Vote Is Close.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—The Elsberg Rapid Transit bill received a serious set-back in the Senate to-day, and it is believed by some persons that the action taken in sending the bill back to the Cities Committee for further amendment at this stage foreshadows its defeat.

It is asserted by Senator Elsberg that, should the bill go through with the provision out of it which Senator Grady succeeded in having eliminated to-day, every competitive feature of the measure, so far as independent bidding for future rapid transit routes is concerned, is gone. Senator Elsberg declared after the vote that he intended to fight to have the eliminated portion retained in the bill, or to have it reinserted as an amendment to the measure when it comes up for final passage.

Senator Grady led the opposition to the measure in the form in which it came out of the committee last week. He said that he was moved to make his opposition at the request of the counsel for the Rapid Transit Commission, who took the ground, although admitting that he had not asked the Commission's opinion concerning the matter, that the wording of one section of the act would require the abandonment of all the rapid transit routes laid out, for which thousands of consents had been procured, or concerning which proceedings are now pending in the courts.

He therefore put the motion to have stricken out of the act the following words:

> The railroad or railroads constructed for and at the expense of such city after this section takes effect shall be laid out primarily with a view to its or their most serviceable and profitable operation independent of any transportation line or lines then operating, constructing, or contracted for, except railroads operated for and on behalf of such city, but also with a view to such connections and interchanges of traffic (by transfers or otherwise) and to such co-ordination with said lines and other transit facilities and terminals as shall best subserve the public interest and convenience.

"I want to say here in answer to the many insinuations that have been made in this chamber and out of it," said Mr. Grady, "that I am not speaking for any private interests or under a retainer from any one. I have heard the whisperings around this circle, and I know who has spread the poison which he leaves in his trail. I know, too, how to take the sting out, but I am not going into that question. With all the talk there has been of the merger, it is my belief that if it was put to a vote of the people whether mergers or five-cent fares from Coney Island to Yonkers most interested them, they would decide in favor of the latter, and decide quickly."

Senator Elsberg said it was queer that the bill having been in the Senate since Jan. 3, and he having accepted an amendment to make the act of contract letting permissive, which was the only objection urged to the bill, that any one should come at this late day with another objection. Before last Monday, he said, there had never been a suggestion of the alleged dangers in the bill which Grady had pointed out.

"The City of New York," said Mr. Elsberg, "is tightly in the grip of a giant monopoly, and unless we have a chance for competition every route to be built in the future will fall under the control of the same monopoly."

Elsberg said that George L. Rives had told him only yesterday in Albany that he did not believe the bill as reported meant any such thing as Senator Grady contended—that, in fact, the provision which was to be eliminated was "only a stump speech in the bill."

As Grady had said that the counsel for the Rapid Transit Commission was his authority for his contentions, the statement of Mr. Elsberg created some surprise. Mr. Grady produced a letter signed by B. Boardman and Mr. Rives, as counsel for the commission, but Mr. Elsberg said that as Rives was in Albany yesterday, he could not have signed the letter, and the whole opposition came from Boardman alone, especially as he admitted that the matter had not been referred to the board.

Senators Raines and Malby took issue against the bill in its present form and favored Grady. Malby said he favored monopolies, and if he could have his way he would allow only one gas company, one electric lighting company, and one railroad company in each city, but would make their charters such that they could not do the acts complained of now in the cases of the existing corporations.

When it came time to vote the Sergeant at Arms was told to bring in all absent members, and only one, Senator Armstrong, who is in New York, was absent when the vote was taken. An analysis of the vote shows some interesting features, particularly as most of the minority Senators voted against their leader and the Republicans stood with Grady. The motion of Grady prevailed by only two votes. The yeas were:

APPEALS TO THE SYNOD.

Westminster Church Protests Against Action of the New York Presbytery.

A petition has been sent by the Elders of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, West Twenty-third Street, to the Synod of New York appealing to that body against the action of the Presbytery of New York in dissolving the Westminster Session, composed of the Elders and Deacons of the church. Though the officers of the church decline to give out the petition, it was learned that the appeal declares the specified action of the Presbytery to be "harsh and barbarous," and that other acts of the Presbytery "leading up to and culminating in the act of dissolution of the Session of this church were equally harsh and unkind." The Synod will not meet until October.

"High Finance," Says Ivins at New York City Railway Hearing.

DEBT TURNED INTO AN ASSET

Railway's Counsel Says It Was a Mere Matter of Bookkeeping Only—A Complicated Case.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—In the hearing today before the State Railroad Commission on the complaint of Judson G. Wall against the New York City Railway Company, William M. Ivins, as voluntary counsel for Mr. Wall, put Controller Charles S. Ludlam of the New York City Railway Company through a severe examination and drew out the fact that the company had paid the Metropolitan Securities Company nearly $2,000,000 for holding nearly $6,000,000 worth of notes not longer than three months.

"That's high finance," commented Mr. Ivins. Paul D. Cravath, who was present on behalf of the merger interests, protested, saying:

"Well, isn't it high finance?" asked Ivins.

"Ask questions, but don't make speeches," replied Cravath.

Wall charged that reports filed with the State Board by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company in 1903 and 1904 do not account for the sum of $4,500,000, which was charged against the company for discounts on $15,000,000 of 3 per cent. notes, of which only $3,465,000 were issued.

The reply of the railroad company was that the complaint evidently referred to debenture notes of the New York City Railway Company, of which there were $15,000,000, and which were subscribed for by the Metropolitan Securities Company at 70 per cent. It is also contended that the discount of 30 per cent. on the notes was never charged against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, but was charged against the franchise and property account of the New York City Railway Company.

Mr. Ivins undertook to show that the $4,500,000 obligation had been, by "Ryan methods," twisted into an asset. The documents produced as exhibits showed that in the report of the New York City Railway Company for the year ended June 30, 1905, the $4,500,000 due the Metropolitan Securities Company, for purchasing the $15,000,000 debenture notes appeared marked as a part of the assets.

"Now, Controller Ludlam," said Mr. Ivins, "supposing that the lease which the New York City Railway Company holds of the Metropolitan system should terminate to-day, what then would represent the asset value of the $4,500,000?"

"I don't know," was Ludlam's reply.

"Nothing," said Ivins, supplying Ludlam's answer. "You'd pass that sum to the loss account."

"Yes, I'd be apt to," assented Ludlam.

The three propositions which Mr. Ivins brought out were:

That up to June 30, 1905, the New York City Railway Company had sold to the Ryan financiers $9,840,000 of 3 per cent. debenture notes for $6,988,800. Of these notes, which were to run ten years, over $5,000,000 worth were issued in 1902 and redeemed within three months of the time of issue.

That the Metropolitan Securities Company had contracted to buy $15,000,000 of the New York City Railway notes at a profit of $4,500,000. That this $4,500,000 was charged by the New York City Railway Company against its capital account, the fact being concealed by the bookkeeping which moved Ivins to scornfully style it "high finance." Further, that a part of this sum had not been actually paid to the Securities Company.

On further examination by Mr. Cravath Mr. Ludlum said that so far as the stockholders of the Metropolitan Securities Company were concerned the entry of the $4,500,000 discount was simply a matter of bookkeeping, because the Metropolitan Securities Company held all of the capital stock of the City Railway Company.

The Commission adjourned the hearing to April 4, when H. H. Vreeland will be a witness.

NO JURY-FIXING INQUIRY.

Senator Marks's Resolution Killed—He Charges Wholesale Bribery.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—The efforts of Senator Marks to have the Senate take action on his resolution calling on the Governor to inquire into the Metropolitan Street Railway jury-bribing charges were blocked again to-day, principally by Senator Cassidy. When it came to a vote to take the resolution from the table there was some hurried ducking of Senators into cloakrooms to avoid being put on record, and the motion was lost—36 to 6.

When Senator Raines saw that Marks was hopelessly beaten he voted with him for the resolution.

Mr. Marks spoke in part as follows on his resolution: "Only persons having had experience in New York City in cases against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company know that it is impossible to obtain justice against that company. Occasionally we have had a railroad employe punished when caught in the act of attempting to influence a juror, but the jury fixers, the men who have worked in the dark, whom all lawyers have suspected and pointed out, have been able to ply their nefarious trade without fear because it was difficult to obtain evidence.

"I have had some experience in cases against the railroad company, and only relate the experience of every lawyer in New York who has sued the company when I say that no matter how clear a case of negligence I had I entered the courtroom in fear and trembling, not knowing from what direction I would receive a blow which would end the plaintiff's case. If it was not a witness, one of a trained professional staff of perjurers, then I felt it was in the jury box."

Senator Marks, determined to get some sort of debatable proposition before the Senate on the matter, introduced to-day Assemblyman Bernstein's bill providing for a commission to inquire into the jury-fixing charges.

RECOUNT BILL REPORTED.

Republican Leaders Not Decided Whether to Pass It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—The Raines-Murphy Recount bill came out of the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly this afternoon. The Republican leaders are not, however, decided about ordering it through, as they are not certain just what would be the result in case William R. Hearst should oust Mayor McClellan from his office.

Judge Humphrey Upholds Immunity Plea for Individuals.

CASE TAKEN FROM THE JURY

Protection to a Witness Who Is Forced to Testify Is Sacred, Court Holds.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 21.—All the meat packers who were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury last Summer on charges of conspiracy in restraint of Inter-State trade and commerce were to-day granted immunity from criminal prosecution under the indictment. While the individuals are to go free, the indictments found against the corporations, of which some of the indicted packers are members and others are employes, are to stand.

The individual packers to escape are J. Ogden Armour, Charles W. Armour, Louis F. Swift, Edward F. Swift, Charles N. Swift, Edward Cudahy, Arthur E. Evans, L. A. Carten, Edward Morris, Ira N. Morris, Arthur Meeker, T. F. Connover, P. A. Valentine, A. H. Veeder, H. C. McManus, and D. E. Hartwell.

The corporations held are the Armour Packing Company, Armour & Co., The Cudahy Packing Company, the Fairbank Canning Company, and Swift & Co. It is probable that they will not be tried until next Fall. The maximum penalty which may be imposed upon them is a fine of $5,000 for each concern, on each of the five counts in the indictment. A writ of error will probably be filed by the Government before the United States Supreme Court.

Judge Humphrey of the United States District Court took the case from the jury, discharged the sixteen defendant heads of the packing firms, and held the five corporations to trial under the indictment returned by the Grand Jury July 1, 1905, for conspiracy in restraint of trade. The decision was an oral one. In it he made the following points:

The Hale decision of last Monday decides finally that corporations cannot receive immunity. The act of February, 1893, comprises all legislative intent on the question of immunity. The primary purpose of this act was to pass remedial legislation and not punishment.

The act of 1893 is a substitute for the fifth amendment and involves one of the most cherished rights of an American citizen, the right to remain silent when questioned on any subject when an answer would incriminate. The amendment was a privilege. The act is a law. The act gives immunity for evidence concerning all matter covered by an indictment. Immunity flows to a witness by the action of the law without any claim on his part.

The defendants gave information only under compulsion, and the right of immunity is theirs because they volunteered nothing, but gave only what was demanded by an officer who had a right to make the demand. An oath is not essential, and a subpoena is a useless and superficial thing when the parties are together.

The court's instructions to the jury were as follows:

"Gentlemen of the jury: Under the law of this case the pleas, the immunity pleas, filed by the defendants, will be sustained as to individual defendants, the natural persons, and denied as to the corporations, the artificial persons, and your verdict will be in favor of the defendants as to the individuals and in favor of the Government as to the corporations."

The immunity trial has taken seventy-three days and has cost $4,818 for a jury.

District Attorney Morrison said: "Of course I cannot comment on the decision. I suppose we will go through the formality of asking for a new trial, and will probably file a writ of error." Both Mr. Morrison, for the Government, and Attorney Hynes, for the packers, entered exceptions to the decision, but both were overruled by the court.

SEASIDE PARK BILL WINS.

Tompkins Measure Advanced—Cut in Appropriation Defeated.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 21.—Assemblyman Tompkins scored a personal victory today when he carried a motion in the Assembly to substitute his bill for a bill introduced by the Cities Committee establishing a seaside park for convalescents of New York City.

The action to-day advances to third reading the Tompkins measure which appropriates $2,500,000 for the establishment of a seaside park and places the jurisdiction in the hands of certain officials of the metropolis. The committee bill had cut the Tompkins appropriation to $1,500,000, and had placed the jurisdiction of the proposed park under the Park Commission.

It was made plain that to cut the sum for the work to the amount named in the committee bill would insure the veto of Mayor McClellan. The advancement of the bill will serve partially as a club to compel owners of beach property at Rockaway to come to a price that the city authorities deem reasonable.

A DOG AND A CHIMNEY AS DOUMA CANDIDATES

St. Petersburg Workmen's Selections for National Assembly.

HOW CZAR WILL KEEP POWER

Parliament to Have Up-to-Date Electrical Contrivances, but Very Little Influence on Government.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 21.—The workmen in one of the mills in this city, in order to render the elections to the Douma ridiculous, to-day formally chose as their delegate a pet dog called Rosa, declaring that the selection was made in a spirit of economy, as if she should be elected it would cost the Government only seven cents a day to maintain her instead of the allowance of $5, and at the same time the dog would be quite as useful as a representative of the workmen's interests as any of their candidates who had a chance of election.

The workmen of another factory designated as their delegate the factory chimney, on the ground that it could not suffer from machine gun fire.

The seats to be occupied by members of the National Assembly in the Tauride Palace here have been equipped with electrical apparatus similar to the system proposed several years ago for use in the House of Representatives at Washington, by which members press buttons and register their votes at the Clerk's desk, thus avoiding the delays of roll calls.

The Imperial manifesto and the ukases of March 8, which incorporate in the fundamental law of the Empire the provisions for a National Assembly, are disappointing in many respects. They constitute neither a constitution nor a "Bill of Rights" for the Russian people. They do create a popular assembly, but the powers granted to it are so hedged about with restrictions and conditions that it will be rather a Parliament in name than in fact.

Nevertheless, by the terms of the manifesto the Emperor himself is powerless to revoke what he has now given. This constitutes the great victory which the people have won. They at last have an authoritative medium through which they can make their voice heard.

Certain important questions, notably malfeasance in office on the part of members of the Council of the Empire, the Cabinet, the Provincial General Governors, and other functionaries of the Government, are excluded entirely from the jurisdiction of Parliament and are consigned to committees, or "commissions," as they are called, of the Council of the Empire. The composition of such committees is restricted to the members of the Council appointed by the Emperor. Other questions which go to similar committees are those relating to the reports of the Minister of Finance on the cash in the Treasury and savings banks, reports on the State pawnshops, and matters relating to the law of primogeniture and to titles conferred by the Crown.

The main weapon retained by the Emperor is his power to dissolve Parliament at will. This, coupled with the Government's ability to promulgate "temporary laws," leaves the Government master of the situation whenever it cares to rid itself of Parliament.

Instead of leaving to the Chambers the creation of the rules and questions of procedure which are to govern them, they are carefully prescribed in the ukases, and it is apparent that the cumbersome and complicated machinery devised is largely for the purpose of crippling Parliament in its struggle against the Government.

Bills, instead of being introduced on the initiative of a single member, must be supported by the signatures of at least thirty members. All idea that the Cabinet would be responsible to Parliament is abandoned. Even the privilege of interpellating the Ministers turns out to be vague and perhaps ineffective.

This right is specifically confined to inquiries relating to alleged violations of law by Ministers or their subordinates. But such an inquiry, as in the case of the introduction of bills, must be backed by thirty members and, moreover, adopted by a vote of the House before it becomes effective. After that the Minister has one month within which to furnish the information or explanations demanded "or to inform the Lower House of the causes which make it impossible for him to supply the information requested," a clause which practically invalidates the right of interpellation. Moreover, explanations can only be demanded upon subjects directly under consideration, and Ministers can refuse to reply on the ground that reasons of State prevent them from so doing.

The immunity enjoyed by members of the two houses is rather vague. They are not responsible for opinions expressed in Parliament and incur no responsibility toward their electors. At the same time they can be deprived of their liberty with the authorization of the body to which they belong, or for criminal acts committed in the discharge of their duties, or if they have been arrested "the same day or the day after the criminal act was committed."

RUSSIA UNABLE TO BORROW ?

Intimation That New Taxes Are Needed Gives Rise to This Belief.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 21.—A feeling of panic apparently continues to prevail in high circles.

Repression has assumed more intense and more erratic forms. The hurried execution of ex-Lieut. Schmidt and the feverish displacement of troops are intended to overawe opposition, while a further instalment of agrarian legislation and the reduction of the term of army service to three years will, it is hoped, ingratiate the masses.

At the same time it is ominously intimated that new taxes are necessary to assure the equilibrium of the budget. This gives rise to the belief that all the loan projects have failed.

Newspapers of all camps except the subsidized organs are daily growing more fierce of criticism and denunciation of the present Government.

NO MUTINY AT SEVASTOPOL.

Odessa Pupils Strike as Protest Against Schmidt's Execution.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 21.—The reports that the execution of ex-Lieut. Schmidt was followed by a mutiny of sailors at Sevastopol yesterday turn out to be unfounded. The correspondent of The Associated Press at Sevastopol telegraphs that all is quiet there.

As a protest against the execution of Schmidt the pupils of all the Odessa High Schools struck to-day.

Eight out of thirteen soldiers who were condemned to death at Bobriusk, Minsk Province, for mutiny have escaped with the aid of Revolutionists.

JEWS FLEE FROM MOSCOW.

Anti-Semitic Outbreak in the Crimea —M. Notovitch Sent to Jail.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 21.—The Government organ, the Russkoe Gosudarstvo, prints a dispatch from Moscow saying that Jewish merchants and their families are leaving the city in haste owing to fears of a massacre at Easter time. The dispatch also records growing unrest among the workmen of Moscow.

The first appearance of anti-Jewish disorders is reported from Theodosia, in the Crimea, where a crowd broke into a synagogue and destroyed the altar and the religious emblems and pictures.

The Court of Appeals has sentenced M. Notovitch, formerly editor of the Jewish paper Novosti, to imprisonment for one year in a fortress for the publication of articles against the Emperor and the army.

BIG RUSSIAN NAVAL PLANS.

Report That $100,000,000 Is to be Spent in the Next Two Years.

LONDON, March 21.—The Pall Mall Gazette hears that the Russian Government has prepared a naval programme involving the expenditure of $100,000,000 during the next two years, of which amount British shipbuilders will obtain a good share.

The sum of $25,000,000, the paper adds, has been allocated for four first-class battleships similar to those now building for Japan.

BANK WAS ROBBED BY REDS.

Leader of Moscow Band Said the Revolutionists Needed Money.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 21.—The Novoe Vremya's account of the looting by masked men yesterday of the Crédit Mutuel, one of the largest banks in Moscow, which was robbed of $432,500, says that the vaults were still open and that several employes were present when the bandits entered.

The latter, numbering twenty, were armed with bombs as well as with revolvers. Their leader announced that he came in the name of the Revolutionary Committee, which needed money, and promised that the employes of the bank would not be harmed unless they raised an outcry, in which event he would blow up the establishment with bombs.

"We are desperate and not afraid to die," said the bandit leader.

Throughout the operation a member of the band stood with a lighted fuse near a powerful bomb, which had been placed on a table, ready to be exploded if such a step became necessary.

Not only were the window shades lowered, but the telephone was disconnected, and when the bandits had completed their work the employes of the bank were warned that if they gave an alarm within fifteen minutes after the departure of the band a bomb would be thrown through a window.

The Chief of the Political Police has gone to Moscow in connection with the robbery.

Inquiry Into Sergeants' Fraud.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission held a three-hour executive meeting at 61 Elm Street yesterday afternoon and discussed the frauds in the recent examinations of Police Sergeants. President Baker, Commissioners Talley and Appleton, and Assistant District Attorney Hart were present, and a Police Sergeant also attended. None of those present would say what had taken place.

INSURANCE RATE RAISED BY THE UNITED WORKMEN

Hundreds of Members Ready to Leave, It Is Said.

ONLY NEW YORK AFFECTED

Sudden Increase in the Death Rate Responsible for Change in the Old Fraternal Organization.

Hundreds of members of the New York State Jurisdiction of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, one of the oldest fraternal organizations in the country, are likely to leave it because of the increase in insurance rates. The new rates are nearly twice as high as the old. The change which will cause the falling off of a not inconsiderable part of the membership is of the same sort that brought about such a stir in the Royal Arcanum recently.

Poor men, of course, are those who will be unable to pay the new rates. They have the option, it is true, of paying the old thousand-dollar rate and getting five hundred dollars' protection for it—which amounts to paying the double rate—but rather than do this they will quit the order.

"I've paid in something like $1,100 since I joined the United Workmen," said a New York policeman yesterday. "But I can't afford to keep up with these new rates. I am going to drop out. Of course, the $1,100 has just been thrown away, so far as I'm concerned. Lots of other men in my lodge are going to quit, too."

Unpaid death claims are responsible for the rise in rates. The men who founded the order back in the sixties have been dying in great numbers in the last year or two. The sudden rise in the death rate caused a big drain on the order's resources, and at last there came a time when there was no money in the treasury with which to satisfy claims. The widows and orphans of the dead members have been unable to collect anything lately.

The change in rates affects only the jurisdiction of this State. The Order of United Workmen includes in its membership every class from United States Senators down to hod carriers, its roll numbering more than 400,000 in the United States. Its form of government was modeled after that of the United States; there are forty-one State jurisdictions, and each one has complete self-government. Every one of these sends three delegates to the Supreme Lodge, which corresponds, in its power and functions, to the United States Senate.

The Supreme Lodge has agreed to assist in liquidating the New York State Jurisdiction's indebtedness, which amounts to some $700,000. In a letter to every member August Steinbicker, Grand Master Workman, says that, "after the completion of this month's payment, no claim over six months old will remain unpaid. With the future provided for, these six months can be speedily reduced by applying on the present deficiency all payments received from the Supreme Lodge."

The Grand Lodge of New York State held a session in Buffalo two weeks ago especially to consider the bad financial condition into which the order has come. The circular letter announcing the change in rates is a result of this session. This is the new table of monthly rates, "applicable to all present members at their attained age on April 1:

ONE-THOUSAND-DOLLAR CERTIFICATE.

Age.	Rate.	Age.	Rate.	Age.	Rate.
18	$1.25	36	$2.13	54	$4.44
19	1.29	37	2.20	55	4.65
20	1.33	38	2.28	56	4.86
21	1.37	39	2.36	57	5.07
22	1.41	40	2.45	58	5.28
23	1.45	41	2.54	59	5.49
24	1.49	42	2.64	60	5.70
25	1.53	43	2.75	61	5.95
26	1.57	44	2.85	62	6.24
27	1.62	45	2.97	63	6.57
28	1.66	46	3.09	64	6.92
29	1.71	47	3.22	65	7.20
30	1.76	48	3.37	66	7.69
31	1.82	49	3.53	67	8.13
32	1.87	50	3.70	68	8.59
33	1.93	51	3.86	69	9.11
34	2.00	52	4.04	70 and over	9.65
35	2.06	53	4.23

"These rates will remain stationary throughout life," it is announced, "and will not advance each year." Again the letter says: "It will doubtless appear to each member that these rates are sufficient to provide for future death losses without creating any further deficiency; providing, in fact, almost double the present income per month with the same membership."

Louis Drypolcher of 32 East Twenty-second Street, is Grand Overseer in New York State. He said yesterday that the change in rates would put the order on a firm foundation.

"The falling off in members will not be nearly as great as we anticipated," Mr. Drypolcher said. "Of course some members will resign. An abnormal death rate is responsible for the change. We had to pay off the death claims. With new recruits coming in all the time the order will be as strong as it ever was."

BOERS CLAIMED $310,000,000.

English Committee Has Allowed $47,500,000 for War Losses.

JOHANNESBURG, March 21. — The South African Compensation Committee, which has been examining claims for losses sustained in the Boer War, has completed its labors.

The committee examined no less than 80,000 demands, the aggregate of which were for a total approximately of $310,000,000.

The sum of $47,500,000 has been allowed for the settlement of these claims.

GERMANS GIVE WAY AGAIN.

Another Concession at Algeciras—Amicable Spirit Shown.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ALGECIRAS, March 21.—A telegram from Berlin bearing unmistakable signs of official inspiration informs us that Germany yields on the Casablanca question on the understanding that the police inspection by an officer of a neutral power shall be made thoroughly efficacious. How this is to be brought about will doubtless be indicated in the Austrian proposal, which will be submitted to the conference at its next meeting.

Germany will probably seek to substitute a new barrier to the supposed ambitious designs of France either by increasing the powers of the Inspector General of neutral nationality or by making France and Spain counteract each other more effectually than in the previous schemes.

We may be pretty certain that if the project aims simply at rendering the proposed inspection thoroughly effective it will meet with a very favorable reception, for the French Government has repeatedly expressed its readiness to make the inspection as efficacious and strong as possible. But if it introduces the principle of French and Spanish co-operation in the same ports it may have simply the effect of prolonging the already respectable longevity of the conference.

At a meeting of the Comité de Rapporteurs to-day the inspection question was considered, and it was noticed that the interchange of views had a distinctly amicable character. Apparently the German delegates, while remaining firm in regard to fundamental principles, are sincerely desirous of finding an amicable solution of the questions at issue.

For the moment the spirit of conciliation is in the ascendant.

FRANCIS IS PERSONA GRATA.

Austria Takes It for Granted President's Choice Is a Good One.

VIENNA, March 21.—The Foreign Office was informed this afternoon of the appointment of Charles S. Francis as American Ambassador at Vienna. It is understood that Mr. Francis is acceptable to Austria, as it is taken for granted that President Roosevelt would not nominate anybody who was not acceptable.

Officials here are reticent with regard to the resignation of Ambassador Storer. They say, however, that Mr. Storer was always courteous during official negotiations, and instance his conduct in the case of Marcus Braun, Special Inspector of the United States Immigration Service, who made charges against officials at Budapest of tampering with his mail.

It is reported that Mr. Storer will return only temporarily to the United States and that he intends to settle permanently in France.

The unexpected retirement of Mr. Storer is widely discussed in diplomatic and official circles.

CAIRO, March 21.—Bellamy Storer today declined to discuss the reasons for his retirement from the Embassy at Vienna.

Mr. Storer said his resignation was transmitted to Washington on March 7. He was aware that it had been accepted, but had no statement to make on the subject.

HIT BY MARY'S SNOWBALL.

Messer Has Mary Arrested, but His Courage Oozed Away in Court.

Because she hit him unintentionally in the lip with a snowball, cutting his face, Frank Messer, a middle-aged man of 62 West Ninety-ninth Street, caused the arrest yesterday of Miss Mary McEnency of 556 West Thirty-eighth Street in front of the laundry at 114 West Twenty-ninth Street, where she is employed. Mary and the other girls in the laundry were out in front of the building during the noon hour playfully snowballing one another. One of the missiles thrown by Miss McEneney hit Messer on his upper lip and cut it.

Messer strode off, holding his handkerchief to his lip, found Policeman Brown, and took him to the laundry to arrest Mary. The other girls said it was a shame for Messer to take a joke in that way, and the manager of the laundry tried to persuade Messer not to have the girl arrested. But Messer was obdurate.

"All right," said Mary, "I'll go along to court. I would apologize, for I didn't mean to hit him, but if he wants to act so about it I'll go to court."

Sergt. Bailey in the Tenderloin Police Station did not want to entertain a complaint, and tried to persuade Messer to drop the matter. But Messer wouldn't.

In the Jefferson Market Court Magistrate Barlow smiled at the story. Messer then said:

"I've gone far enough with this, I guess. I won't press the complaint."

"Very well," said the Magistrate. "I think the girl has been punished enough. She is discharged."

Half a dozen of the laundry girls, who went to court with Mary, took care to let Messer know just what they thought of him when he left the court. He hurried away.

SAY MINERS' DEMANDS MEAN 30 PER CENT. RISE

Wages Would Double in Many Cases, Operators Declare.

LADS RATED AT MEN'S PAY

If a Strike Comes, There Is a Large Reserve of Anthracite, Brokers Report.

Following the letter of President Baer of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, as Chairman of the anthracite operators' committee of seven, to President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers, agreeing to another conference with the miners, a statement was issued yesterday on behalf of the operators, saying that the assumption that the miners were only demanding a 10 per cent. increase in wages was misleading.

Besides placing every man on the same basis, the statement says, the proposed uniform scale would work a revolution in mining, if it were adopted. It would mean an average increase of 30 per cent. for outside men, and in some cases increase the wages as much as 167 per cent. Thousands of young boys working as slate pickers would have their wages doubled, and many of them would receive nearly as much as some of the men. It continues:

> Some of them now get 5.9 cents an hour. The new rate would increase this 111 per cent.
>
> There are masons in the Mahanoy and Shamokin Divisions who would have their pay increased 115 per cent. They now get 17.4 cents an hour, and 37½ cents is demanded.
>
> Some screen tenders in the Sioux Mine, same division, would receive practically twice as much as now. Certain breaker engineers in the Mahanoy and Shamokin Divisions now receive 12.9 cents an hour. Their work is easy. It is without danger. It does not require more than ordinary ability. Yet it is proposed to more than double their salary, adding 117 per cent. and making a total of 28.1 cents an hour.
>
> Blacksmiths would have increases up to 61 per cent., dumpers up to 79 per cent., while plate-men would get within a cent of double on their present pay.

Screen pickers and picker bosses under the new schedule, the statement says, would profit 93 per cent. Other figures are given to show increases.

The figures are taken from the records of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company as typifying the general condition. The statement instances the case of seven pump men in Hazelton No. 1 mine of the Lehigh division in the Lehigh Valley district, whose wages would be increased by 167 per cent. if the uniform scale proposed went into effect. On this point the statement says:

> These pumpmen have softer berths and easier jobs than others in the valley and receive now 10½ cents an hour, while the pay for this class of work in thirty-three representative Lehigh Valley mines runs from 10.5 to 24.4 cents.
>
> One of the easiest tasks in a mine is "tending door," opening and closing the doors as the cars approach and pass. Young boys usually do this work and naturally the wages are not high. In the mines mentioned the door boys get from 7.8 cents an hour to 12.9 cents. Yet the miners now demand that 15.6 cents an hour shall be paid all boys alike. This would mean doubling the doortending pay of those now securing the lower rate.

The coal dealers and brokers in this city look on the statement as clinching the decision of the operators not to grant any of the demands, though they are willing to grant Mitchell and his committee another conference.

A representative of Heilner & Son, coal brokers, 1 Broadway, said that the belief was increasing that there will be an anthracite strike.

"If there is a strike," he said, "the conditions will be different from what they were in the strike of 1902. Every one, from the operator down to the consumer, gained experience in that strike. Then there was no preparation and no reserve of anthracite on hand. Now there is a reserve ranging from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons. This, if there was no strike scare, would last five or six months in the Summer. In case of a strike, however, coal might be scarce in the market in two months, not because it was not in existence, but because it would be bought up quickly and stored by consumers for fear of enhanced prices later."

The price of domestic anthracite had not increased anywhere, he said, though the small steam sizes had increased in price until the individual operators were charging from 10 to 15 cents a ton more than the circular prices of the companies. This was because the supply of the companies in these sizes was practically exhausted owing to the demand caused by the strike talk.

MINERS ASK FOR TIME.

Shot Firers' Law Considered Yesterday —Baer's Letter Not Received.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 21.—The Joint Scale Committees of the joint conference of coal operators and miners of the central competitive and of the Southwest districts were in session almost all of to-day, but no agreement was reached.

The committee of the central competitive field, composed of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Western Pennsylvania, devoted its sessions to a discussion of the Illinois shot firers' law, which the operators of that State asserted unjustly discriminated against them, as it adds an expense of from 2 to 10 cents on each ton of mined coal.

The miners on the committee refused to make any declaration on the subject, and asked for a recess until to-morrow morning that they might caucus. Their caucus was devoted to a discussion of the best means of getting the argument in the joint committee away from the shot firers' law, and putting before the committee the general question of wages and other subjects contained in the demands made by the miners in the former joint conference which adjourned on Feb. 2.

President Mitchell of the mine workers said to-day he had not received President Baer's letter in reply to his proposal for another anthracite meeting, and until he had received it and submitted it to the Miners' Anthracite Committee, the members of which are here, he could not discuss the time and place for the meeting.

MILNER'S ACT CONDEMNED.

But the Commons Refuse to Pass a Motion of Censure.

LONDON, March 21.—The whole of this evening's session of the House of Commons was occupied by the debate upon a motion proposed by William Pollard Byles (Liberal) censuring Lord Milner, formerly the High Commissioner for South Africa, for authorizing the flogging of coolies in South Africa in contravention of the treaty with China, and on Under Colonial Secretary Churchill's amendment to that motion condemning the flogging, but, "in the interest of peace and conciliation in South Africa," objecting to the censure of individuals.

Joseph Chamberlain, in a speech defending Lord Milner, said it would be despicable to humiliate a great public servant for a single error of judgment. The motion, he said, was vindictive. Lord Milner had frankly expressed regret for the error. If either the motion or the Government's "cowardly amendment" should be carried he hoped a future Parliament would expunge from the records such a disgraceful motion.

Mr. Churchill in moving his amendment said that the Liberals could afford to be generous, as Lord Milner had quitted the public service after eighteen years of exhausting work without either a pension or a gratuity, and it was not worth while to pursue him further.

Mr. Balfour said the amendment offered by Mr. Churchill was more insulting than the motion.

Eventually Mr. Bayles's motion was negatived without a division, and Mr. Churchill's motion was carried by a majority of 220.

The House of Commons rejected by 378 to 110 votes a motion of Joseph Chamberlain recommending the appointment of a Royal Commission to inquire into the economic and moral effect of Chinese labor in the Transvaal.

STREET CLEAN ? A MISTAKE.

A Foreman Had Blundered, and Scraped West 68th Street.

Those who live in Sixty-eighth Street, between Columbus Avenue and Central Park West, could hardly believe their eyes yesterday morning when they looked out on a pavement which presented a picture of Spotless Town. The sidewalks had been scrubbed clean and dried, and the street was free from mud and dirt.

So unusual was the sight that some one telephoned to Commissioner Woodbury and then to the Snow Cleaning Bureau. The seeker after information wanted to know how it was that there was a clean, dry block in Manhattan. The response was immediate. Commissioner Woodbury's office knew nothing about it, and the answer was borne out by the man in charge at the Snow Cleaning Bureau, that there had been a blunder.

It was explained that a foreman had been put in temporary charge of the block, instead of the District Superintendent, and that he had been laboring under the impression that there was a fire engine house there. The Commissioner's office said that there was no fire house in the block, but that there was one previously. The erring foreman then confessed that he had mixed things. It will not happen again.

BAILEY FORCED TO SHOW RATE BILL AMENDMENTS

Interview with Dolliver Compels Introduction in Senate.

ONE LIMITS COURTS' POWER

Texas Senator Also Argues for a Rate Giving Just Compensation—Knox Answers Criticisms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Senator Bailey surprised the Senate to-day by introducing his proposed amendments to the Railroad bill. He showed the draft of them to Senator Dolliver yesterday, and this morning an interview with the Iowa Senator, telling their substance and criticising them, was published. This forced action by the Texan.

The Senators who have been at work on court review amendments have tried to keep them out of the newspapers. Senator Knox is the only one until to-day who has his amendment printed as a document. Senator Spooner and Senator Bailey were awaiting the psychological moment with theirs. Any Senator who desired to see any of these amendments could do so for the asking. It was thus that Senator Dolliver got to see the Bailey amendments. He apologized to-day for his apparent discourtesy, and Mr. Bailey absolved him from blame.

In presenting his amendments Senator Bailey explained that he had undertaken to draw them not with any idea that they would meet with the approval of all Senators, but that they might become the basis of conference.

The first one, which defines the sort of rate the Inter-State Commerce Commission may make and the regulations it may impose, reads:-

> A rate or charge which shall afford a just compensation to the carrier or carriers, for the service, or services to be performed, and a regulation, or practice, which shall be just and reasonable. The rate, or charge, regulation, or practice so determined and prescribed, shall be the only lawful rate, or charge, regulation, or practice, and the carrier, or carriers, shall not thereafter demand or collect any other rate, or charge, or follow any other regulation or practice.

The other amendment restricts the power of the courts in reviewing the action of the commission. It reads:

> Any carrier or person or corporation party to such complaint and dissatisfied with the rate or charge, regulation or practice so established and prescribed, may file a bill against the commission in any Circuit Court of the United States for the district in which any portion of the line of the carrier or carriers may be located, alleging that such rate or charge will not afford a just compensation for the service or services to be performed, or that the regulation or practice is unjust and unreasonable;
>
> And if upon the hearing the court shall find that such rate or charge will not afford a just compensation for the service or services to be performed, or that the regulation or practice is unjust and unreasonable, it shall enjoin the enforcement of the same;
>
> Provided, however, that no rate or charge, regulation or practice prescribed by the commission shall be set aside or suspended by any preliminary or interlocutory decree or order of the court.
>
> Said proceedings shall have precedence over all other cases on the docket of a different character and the court shall have power to make orders to secure the attendance of persons from any part of the United States, and the existing laws relative to evidence and proceedings under the acts to regulate commerce shall be applicable.
>
> Either party to said proceedings shall have the right to appeal directly to the Supreme Court of the United States, and such appeal shall have precedence in said Supreme Court over all other cases of a different character pending therein.

Mr. Dolliver, after Mr. Bailey had offered these propositions, criticised the first one because it provided for a rate that should give "just compensation" instead of using the language of the Hepburn bill, providing that the rate shall be "just, reasonable, and fairly remunerative." He declared that it was impossible for any maker of rates to determine in advance whether a given rate was reasonably compensatory. Such an amendment, he said, would plunge the whole matter into a deeper morass than ever.

"When the Senator characterizes the standard of a just compensation as a preposterous one," replied Mr. Bailey, "he assails the fundamental law of this land. He seems to have overlooked the fact that the identical words which I have used and to which he objects and which he characterizes as preposterous are taken from the Constitution itself.

"I remind the Senator from Iowa that all the property which he holds to-day, all that I hold, and all that any American citizen holds is held under the single guarantee that it shall not be taken from him for a public use without a just compensation.

"I do not believe there is a man in this Republic who, if you put the question to him straight, will say he wants the railroads to serve him for less than a just compensation. Nor is there a railroad manager who will admit that he wants the people who use his railroad to pay more than a just compensation for its use. It looks to me as if Congress could not go very far astray in saying that the commission shall fix a rate which affords a just compensation."

Senator Knox questioned Mr. Bailey about the second amendment, and took occasion to explain that there was much misunderstanding in regard to the position of the various Senators. He declared the real issue to be between "the House bill, which gives unrestricted jurisdiction to the courts, and the amendments like his own and Mr. Bailey's, which provide only for the restricted jurisdiction of the courts."

Mr. Bailey agreed with him entirely on that explanation, but pointed out the difference between himself and the Pennsylvania Senator on the matter of interlocutory degrees.

The statement by the Pennsylvanian caused considerable talk during the afternoon, as he went further in his declaration for limited jurisdiction than it had been supposed he would.

Mr. Bailey was interrupted before the close of his argument, and was told of the death of his father. Several other Senators afterward engaged in a running debate on the bill.

FOOD.

A TORPID THINKER

The Frequent Result of Coffee Poisoning.

A Toledo, O., business man says that for three years he had no appetite for breakfast; that about once a month he ate solid food at that meal, generally contenting himself with his cup of coffee and having no desire for anything else.

Coffee frequently plays this dog-in-the-manger trick; while it furnishes no nutriment itself, it destroys the appetite for food which is nutritious. The result was, in time, a torpid mentality, which was a distinct handicap in his business operations.

"Last Christmas," he says, "I consulted my brother, a practicing physician in Chicago, and he advised a diet of Postum Food Coffee instead of the old kind, and also Grape-Nuts food. Since that time I have followed his advice with most excellent results. My brain is active and clear in the morning when it naturally should be at its best; I no longer have the dizzy spells that used to make me apprehensive; I have gained materially in flesh, and feel better in every way.

"The Postum seems to be no less a food than the Grape-Nuts, and the two together fill all requirements. My wife has tried several of the recipes in your little booklet, and we have enjoyed the result, but to my mind Grape-Nuts food is best when served with sliced fruit and covered with cream." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

MERYON ETCHING FOR $410.

Other Good Prices for Examples of the Same Etcher's Work.

Some fine examples of etchings by Charles Meryon were in the sale of prints by the Anderson Company last evening.

"Le Pont au Change," first state, with "C. Meryon del. sculpt., MDCCCLIII.," in the left corner, and "Imp. R. Neuve St. Etienne-du-Mont" in the right, a fine impression on old ribbed paper, fetched $410. F. Keppler was the buyer.

"L'Abside de Notre Dame de Paris," third state, on ribbed paper, with the water mark, "Udelist," a work which Wedmore calls Meryon's masterpiece, sold for $210 to Mr. Bick.

"Tourelle, Rue de la Tixéranderie, demolié en 1851," first state, with "C. M." in upper right-hand corner, on Dutch paper, with the water mark, 1852, small folio, fetched $120, and went to F. Keppler.

"La Galerie de Notre Dame," first state, on Dutch paper, small folio, sold for $320 to Mr. Bick.

Other rarities sold as follows:

Representation of the U. S. frigate Constitution, Isaac Hull, commander, capturing H. B. M. frigate Guerriere, engraved by C. Tiebout from a painting by T. Birck, $21, bought by H. Wunderlich.

AGED CLERKS DEFEND JOBS.

Have a Dinner in Washington to Oppose Proposed Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The scared and exasperated Government clerks whose fate has been so coolly debated in Congress for a week took a hand in the debate themselves last night. They have been listening to a discussion on the propriety of bouncing them from the Government service when they reach a certain age, and their sentiments have been those with which the oysters listened to the walrus and the carpenter making provision for their destruction.

Those clerks of the Pension Bureau who were soldiers in the civil war held a banquet to discuss the situation. They were all old clerks, who fell under the age limit proposition.

The orators were Pension Commissioner Warner, President John [illegible] Black of the Civil Service Commission, [illegible] Gen. Green B. Raum, formerly Pension Commissioner and Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

"When I want advice, mature judgment, and opinion," said Commissioner Warner amid wild cheering, "I don't go to the nursery, but to men of my own age, whose experience is ripe. Any of you w[illegible] knows a member of Congress, reach [illegible]; it won't hurt you."

"I w[illegible] folks would get over the notion," said Gen. Black, "that when a man reaches the age of threescore and ten he is no longer fit to live. No nation is fit to live that lays that burden upon its old men."

"Why, the clerks do all the work," was Gen. Raum's contribution. "When I was Pension Commissioner I did little else than sign letters I did not read, which were answers to letters I had never seen."

A permanent organization of the soldier-clerks will be formed.

EUROPEAN FLEET DIVIDED.

Only One American Vessel to be Left in Mediterranean.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Orders for the dispersal of the Mediterranean fleet were cabled to-day from the Navy Department to Rear Admiral Sigsbee at Alexandria, Egypt.

The Chattanooga and Galveston will sail next Monday through the Suez Canal for Manila, replacing in part the battleship Oregon.

Rear Admiral Sigsbee, on the flagship Brooklyn, after the reception to the Prince of Wales at Alexandria, will sail for New York.

The Tacoma will remain at the eastern end of the Mediterranean Sea awaiting orders.

WON'T REPORT TARIFF BILL.

House Committee Puts Williams Measure Over Indefinitely.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The House Committee on Ways and Means stood pat on the tariff to-day.

It decided to postpone indefinitely consideration of the Williams bill providing that all ad valorem and specific duties exceeding 100 per cent. of the value of the articles on which they are imposed shall be reduced sufficiently to bring them down to the actual value of goods paying the duty.

THE WHISKBROOM TREATMENT

Benjamin Gave It to Another Man—One Took a Pill for Clubfoot.

The hearing in the case of Julius Benjamin of 343 East Seventeenth Street on a charge of practicing medicine without authority was continued before Magistrate Moss in the Yorkville Court yesterday. The courtroom was crowded with women who had waited for the stork that never came, after Benjamin (for a money consideration) had promised them that the bird would visit them.

Soloman Ressler of 351 East Eighty-first Street, who had had his leg amputated, took the stand and declared that Benjamin gave him a pill to cure him of clubfoot, but he had had to have his leg cut off later.

Hayman Goldfarb, a real estate broker of 254 Seventh Street, testified that Benjamin had brushed him industriously for two months with a silver-handled whiskbroom preparatory for further treatment.

The hearing will be continued to-day.

TO SEE LAWSON'S EVIDENCE.

Boston District Attorney Ready to Present Insurance Evidence.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 21.—District Attorney Moran has accepted Thomas W. Lawson's offer of evidence as to alleged insurance frauds in Massachusetts and stands ready to present it to the April Grand Jury.

In a letter sent by Mr. Lawson to Mr. Moran to-day, he declared he had "complete and absolute evidence" of fraud committed by many insurance companies in Massachusetts, and declared that "millions of dollars in fines could be collected" because of the frauds if the cases were brought to court.

Pittsburg Banker a Suicide.

PITTSBURG, March 21.—Claud E. Mitchell, 55 years old, assistant cashier of the Bradford National Bank, Bradford, Penn., committed suicide late this evening at the residence of E. P. Whitcomb, general manager of the Union Natural Gas Corporation, by shooting himself. His son, David E. Mitchell of this city, said that the only cause he could assign for the deed was temporary insanity.

RATE FRAUDS CHARGED AGAINST NEW YORKERS

Commerce Commission to Start Inquiry Here To-morrow.

RAILWAY FAVOR BY TRICKERY

Goods Said to Have Been Carried Under Lower Classification for Certain Shippers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—An investigation intended to show that certain shippers in New Yorak have been able to get favorable rates from railways by false descriptions of goods will be started on Friday in that city by the Inter-State Commerce Commission. This board has been informed that much freight has been carried from New York at rates below the published tariff through resort to the device of falsely billing articles as of a class lower than that in which they belonged.

The commission to-day gave out this notice:

"Upon reports to the commission that many shippers in and about the City of New York have been persistently underbilling and misrepresenting freight shipped by railroads from that city and other points in Eastern territory, the commission has ordered an investigation and set the matter down for a hearing at the United States Court rooms, New York City, on Friday, March 23, at 10:30 A. M.

"It is expected that some highly interesting developments will take place indicating fraud on the part of the shippers which amount to forced rebates from published tariff rates."

The members of the commission were loath to give any of the details which led to the decision to conduct the investigation, but the information was imparted that beyond question the underbilling was intentional in order to get the lower freight rates. Many persons have been subpoenaed to give testimony at the hearing.

A member of the commission stated that it intends to go to the very bottom of the alleged frauds, and hinted that the investigation might develop grounds for criminal prosecution.

"At any rate we will most assuredly apply the corrective of publicity," he declared.

"As is generally known freight traffic is classified at different rates applying to the different classes. In the territory north of the Ohio and Potomac and east of the Mississippi River, for instance, there are six classes, all based upon the New York-Chicago rate, which ranges from 75 cents first class to 25 cents sixth class. There are also various commodity rates; that is to say, the rate fixed for a particular article.

"The inquiry in New York will have special reference to merchandise traffic, shipped from that city usually in less than carload quantities.

"It is reported to the commission that in numerous instances shippers have sent articles that belong in one of the higher classes and described them by a different name, which would place them in a lower class, and so get the advantages of the lower rate. This operates not only to defraud the carriers of revenues to which they are entitled, but also has the effect of a serious discrimination against the honest shipper who must meet his competitor in common markets.

"To what extent practices of this kind will be disclosed or what concerns in or about New York are implicated, I am unable to state, but it is expected that some rather interesting disclosures will be the result of the investigation.

"Information of this sort has come to us from various sources and some preliminary investigation has been had and subpoenas have been issued for various railway officials and others who are understood to have knowledge of specific transactions."

SETBACK FOR WHALE CREEK.

Probably No $3,000,000 for Greenpoint's Waterway—32d Street Closed.

Commissioner Bensel of the Department of Docks and Ferries presented a report to the Sinking Fund Commission yesterday turning down the projected $3,000,000 improvement of Whale Creek in Greenpoint and suggesting an improvement to cost $800,000. The report was accepted with the understanding that the commission was not bound by the action.

On motion of the Controller a resolution was adopted closing West Thirty-second Street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues and accepting as compensation from the Pennsylvania, New York & Long Island Railroad Company $400,000 for the city's interest in the street. The railroad company agrees to guarantee the city from all losses by reason of the cession of such interests. For the blocks between Seventh and Ninth Avenues the Pennsylvania Railroad paid the city $788,000.

MANAGER SPRINGER SUED

By the Gould Estate for Grand Opera House Electricity—Compromise.

The Gould estate, represented by David H. Taylor, was the plaintiff before Justice Blanchard, in the Supreme Court, yesterday, against John H. Springer, lessee of the Grand Opera House, to recover $1,400 alleged to be due for electricity supplied to the building between April 1, 1900, and Oct. 1, 1905. The estate owns the building. Elbert Crandall appeared for Springer. The case was ready for trial and the jury was in the box, when a juror was withdrawn and it was said a settlement had been reached.

It is alleged in the complaint that Springer agreed with the manager of the estate that if the estate would enter into a wholesale contract with the Edison Company for electricity for the entire building he would pay 8 cents per kilowatt hour, and charge the tenants of the building the current rate. Springer, according to the plaintiff, was to pay not less than $4,000 for that part of the Opera House building occupied by him.

The lessee, it is alleged, then made a five-year lease, but did not pay for the electricity.

In his answer, Springer declares that he was to pay 8 cents an hour for all the electricity used in the building, but that he was to get a rebate to cost price for all electricity used by him. He says that on March 30, 1905, there was due him $3,175.50, and he asks judgment for the difference between that amount and the $1,400 claimed by the estate.

FIGHT CONNECTING RAILROAD.

A Long Island City Mass Meeting Opposes the Project.

Opposition to the building of the New York Connecting Railway, between Astoria and the Bronx, has developed in Queens. There was a demonstration against the project in Long Island City on Tuesday night. It was contended that the plans now before the Rapid Transit Commission had been so amended as to make the building of the link over Ward's Island to Westchester more of a damage than a benefit to Queens.

ENJOINS DE FOREST CONCERN,

But the Present De Forest Company Says it Isn't Worrying.

The Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, which has a feud of two years standing with the De Forest Wireless Company, sent to the newspapers last night copies of a permanent injunction issued by the United States Circuit Court restraining the latter company from using apparatus described in the third and fifth claims of the Marconi patents, which the court had been informed the company used, and of a body attachment for Abraham White, who was President of the De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company.

The De Forest people say that the De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company no longer exists. It was absorbed two years ago by the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, with Mr. White as its President.

"We are not worrying about this," said C. C. Galbraith, General Manager of the De Forest Company.

Bagful of Mail Astray.

A United States mail bag fell off a Sixth Avenue elevated train at West Broadway and Duane Street last night, was run over by another train, and cut in two. A lot of the letters fell to the street and got wet and muddy. Most of them, it is believed, were found and taken to the Post Office.

INFERNAL MACHINE BY MAIL.

Manager of Factory Where There is a Strike Escapes Unhurt.

An infernal machine consisting of a powerful explosive in a cigar box, was received in the morning mail yesterday at the tailoring factory of J. Eisner & Co., corner of Sheffield Street and Belmont Avenue, East New York. For nearly three weeks 800 members of the Garment Makers' Union, formerly employed in the factory, have been out on a sympathetic strike, because the firm would not reinstate 65 employes discharged for lack of work.

The infernal machine was received by Arnold Arens, Vice President and General Manager of the company. Two weeks ago he received a warning note, saying that he and Eisner would be blown out of a window. When Arens received the package yesterday, black powder ran from beneath the lid. He promptly dropped the box into a pail of water. When it was soaked sufficiently it was taken to the police station. Capt. Cullen examined the package and found inside a tin box of black powder with a fuse attached and surrounded by calcium carbide.

The machine was so arranged that a raising of the cover would fire a fuse connecting with the can of powder. There was sufficient powder in the box to have caused a serious explosion. The package was mailed from Williamsburg.

SUPREME COURT DEBATES STEPS AGAINST LYNCHERS

Also Believes Tennessee State Officials Were Derelict in Duty.

HARLAN SENT WARNINGS

Fearing Mob Attack on Negro, He Informed Judge and Sheriff of Reprieve Granted by Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 21. — The Supreme Court met to-day at the home of Chief Justice Fuller, and spent several hours discussing the course to take to punish the leaders of the mob that lynched the negro, Ed Johnson, at Chattanooga on Monday night. According to one report the majority of those present were positive that the court had full power to proceed as in an ordinary contempt case. It was urged that the court might simply order the United States District Court Judge for the Eastern District of Tennessee to direct the Marshal to arrest the offenders, and conduct them under guard to Washington.

There is said to be no doubt as to the power of the court, either under the interpretation of its original jurisdiction or from the language of the statutes to do that. No one of the Justices nor the Chief Justice to-night would permit himself to speak of the matter or of what course might be open to the court.

Practically every member of the court holds that the ringleaders of the mob may be punished severely by fine or by imprisonment, or by both. The court would not consider any light fine as commensurate with the enormity of the crime committed. Whether the court would hold that an indictment for murder might be brought by the Federal Grand Jury against any of the mob is doubtful.

It is also not unlikely that the court will in due time register its judgment as to the dereliction of the State officials, the Sheriff and others, in not taking more than ordinary precautions to protect the prisoner from the mob.

Under the decision of the Supreme Court in granting the appeal from the court below the Supreme Court had taken the case into its own hands. It would have been set for hearing next October, and in the interval Johnson would practically have been a United States prisoner, duly receipted for by the United States Marshal.

The Supreme Court from the moment that the notice of the appeal was telegraphed to the Tennessee authorities was presumptively in charge of the man. Great pains had been taken Sunday by Justice Harlan to telegraph to the court below and to the Sheriff, and, on Monday, after the full court joined in the mandate, three telegrams were sent to Chattanooga with the express purpose, in view of the known danger of a lynching, to make sure that the prisoner would be protected.

The Justices therefore believe that not only the mob, but the Sheriff and the court below were remiss in their duty and in their respect for the decree of the Supreme Court.

CHATTANOOGA MILITIA OUT.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, March 21.—Chattanooga is back to its normal condition, and there is now no fear of a race war. Extra policemen are again on duty to-night, however.

The funeral of Ed Johnson, the victim of the mob, was held this afternoon and was attended by 2,000 negroes. Police kept curious white people from the place where the funeral was held, and there was no trouble. The negro minister who conducted the service exhorted his hearers to refrain from violence.

If the United States authorities mean to proceed against the lynchers they have given no intimation of it here.

At the Rose Meehan iron foundry, where white overseers are employed with negro molders and helpers, a white man named Rogers shot and wounded a negro to-day. The cause of the shooting is not known, but it is thought to be an outcropping of yesterday's lynching.

Guard details from the four companies of State militia remained at the armory all night, and a squad from the battery of artillery, with a Gatling, was kept at police headquarters until this morning.

There was prospect of grave trouble last night, when a squad of 100 policemen, backed up by the four companies of militia, held in check a large crowd of negroes, variously estimated at from 2,000 to 4,000 in number. With the exception of a few shots fired in East Ninth Street, near the intersection of A, in which two white men were shot, and the burning of a house on West Ninth Street, there were no disorders.

CONVERTED BEFORE LYNCHING.

The jail at Chattanooga, Tenn., was the scene of frenzied religious fervor last Sunday, the day before the lynching of the negro, Ed Johnson. Hundreds of his race flocked there to hear Johnson, then condemned to be hanged on Tuesday, make public confession of his faith.

Sunday proved to be a busy day for Johnson, says The Chattanooga Times. All day long he had visitors, and in the afternoon religious services were held for him, and he was baptized in accordance with the rites of the Baptist Church.

The Rev. W. B. Fleming, the negro pastor of St. James's Baptist Church, conducted the services, many of his congregation being present. Hymns were sung in the fervent style of the negro religionists, and at times the women became noisy in their demonstrations of pious joy, the cries of exultation and songs being heard for several blocks around the jail.

The preacher took a text and preached a set sermon. At its close he announced that is was for the benefit of the prisoner, who was believed to be face to face with death. He then called upon Johnson to make some remarks relative to his religious convictions. The condemned man folded his hands, and standing in an attitude of devotion, said:

"I have had a change of heart and I am ready to die. The change came over me all at once, and I can't tell how it was. Before the change I hated the people that were against me. I couldn't eat and could only think of the arrest and the trouble I was in. I didn't want to talk or eat and didn't want to see any one.

"All at once I said that I was willing to give up my friends and folks and life itself if I had to and then I felt different. I didn't hate the white people any more, my appetite returned and I am proud now to have anybody come to see me. Some one asked me that day what made me eat and I said that I felt different and was ready to face anybody. This change of feeling has stayed with me and I feel that way yet."

As the negro spoke he was greeted with warm responses from the men and women crowded about him. The clergyman then announced that he would proceed in the regular way, as though he were in church or on the banks of a stream. He catechized Johnson according to the rules of the church, and, when satisfactory answers had been given, announced that a motion was in order to receive the penitent into the church.

"I move that Brother Ed Johnson be received into membership of the St. James Baptist Church," spoke up an elderly Deacon, "and accepted as a proper candidate for baptism, since he has here made a public confession of his faith."

The motion was carried without dissent, and arrangements were made for Johnson's baptism. The bathtub, which stands at the end of the corridor, where Johnson was confined as a solitary prisoner, was filled with water, and Johnson was immersed by the clergyman.

Johnson emerged from the water in an ecstatic paroxysm. He ran down the corridor clapping his hands and staring upward. This excited the women, some of whom shouted and sang, while others fell prostrate on their faces.

Johnson returned to say that he had forgotten to speak of the crime of which he was accused. He then declared his innocence, while those about him murmured words of hope and encouragement. One of the deacons prayed, and the meeting was at an end.

While the services were in progress the lower part of the jail was so crowded with negroes that the jailors had difficulty in maintaining order.

NEGRO'S PRISON SLAVES TELL COURT THEIR STORY

Never So Much Feeling Shown as Against Spriggs.

BROKE ONE WOMAN'S TEETH

All Virtual Prisoners in Padlocked Dive —One Witness Breaks Down on the Stand.

Hattie Warren, the complaining witness in the prosecution of the negro dive keeper, Robert Spriggs, and Cora Chester, another white woman, who was an inmate of Spriggs's house in Cornelia Street for five years, testified yesterday in his trial before Judge Cowing in General Sessions for abduction. Both women, though still young in years, looked middle aged. Both showed evidence of physical collapse. They gave their testimony in a quiet and straightforward manner, without any attempts at being dramatic. Both broke down several times and cried quietly.

Opposite them while they testified sat Spriggs, his smoke-colored face looking as if it had been cut out of iron, his arms crossed over his chest. He sat hour after hour, without moving a muscle, his eyes fixed upon the woman on the stand with a persistent stare that more than once had perceptible effect on the witness. It looked as if he had tried to hypnotize them, or as if he would like to convey to them some dumb threat. The man's attitude and its influence on the women were so evident that it was commented on by everybody in the front part of the court.

The jurors took it all in. They followed closely the testimony given by the women, but every now and then one of the men in the box would turn quickly to watch the defendant for a moment before giving his attention once more to the gruesome story unraveled by the questions of Mr. Garvan.

And as the hours passed and one detail after another was brought out the atmosphere in the courtroom became charged with the electricity of pent-up feeling. Men familiar with the criminal courts said that never before in their recollection had such a sentiment of hatred against a defendant made itself manifest during a trial. Nothing was said or done to give expression to the growing sentiment among jurymen and spectators. It was in the air.

What seemed to impress those present more than anything else was the constant repetition by the witnesses of this phrase:

"If we did that, he licked us."

Their stories, told in a manner that made the listeners forget the personality of the witnesses, except that they were women, proved that they had incessantly been exposed to the violence of the owner of the place where they were kept prisoners. As to whether they were prisoners or stayed at their own volition, opinions soon ceased to be divided when the women told how the doors were padlocked and windows nailed down, their clothing was taken away from them, and they were kept in an almost unbroken state of intoxication. Added to these factors of restraint were the threats by the negro that they would be arrested if they tried to escape.

Hattie Warren testified that when she rebelled once Spriggs knocked out several of her front teeth. To get them replaced she had to go to a dentist, but was not permitted to wear her own clothes. The dress of Mrs. Spriggs, a white woman, was lent to her, with the information that if she ran away with it she would be arrested for larceny. She told, too, how doors and windows in the house were barred and padlocked, and how no white visitor was ever received.

The Chester woman testified that during the five years she was the prisoner of Spriggs she received permission to leave the house three times. Both women testified that they never received any money from Spriggs or others while in the house.

While the Chester woman was on the stand, Mr. Jerome took a position near the witness stand to interpret her answers to the jury. She spoke in such a low voice that not even Judge Cowing could always hear her. During the cross-examination Spriggs's lawyer inquired sharply:

"Are you sick now?"

There was no reply. The woman sobbed softly behind her handkerchief.

"Now, are you sick?" persisted the lawyer still more harshly. "You are certainly able to answer that question?"

"Now, wait, wait," interposed Mr. Jerome, and his lower jaw squared in a manner peculiar to him when he is growing angry. "Don't you see what state she is in?"

An adjournment was then taken until this morning. The jury had been completed before noon. Assistant District Attorney Garvan opened the people's case. Some time was spent in proving that Spriggs was convicted and sentenced on a charge of assault in 1889.

MRS. DUKE'S COUNSEL FEES.

Court Allows Her $3,000—"Personals" Figure in Divorce Suit.

Counsel for Mrs. Lillian M. Duke, who is being sued for divorce by James B. Duke, made a motion yesterday, before Vice Chancellor Pitney of New Jersey, for counsel fees. Mrs. Duke waived the question of alimony. After hearing argument on both sides, the Vice Chancellor allowed $3,000. Neither the plaintiff, defendant, nor Frank T. Huntoon, the co-respondent, was in court. Mr. Huntoon is 67 years old.

Mr. Duke, in his affidavit, admits that he is worth $10,000,000, but denies that he is worth $50,000,000. He says that he gave his wife a house at 11 West Sixty-eighth Street, Manhattan, as well as $175,000 in stocks, securities, and jewelry. He says, also, that he always arranged that she should be supplied with jewelry while he was in Europe.

Duke also asserts that Huntoon lived in Mrs. Duke's house while he and his wife were on their honeymoon in Europe. In support of this contention he offered in evidence "personals" from a Paris newspaper, which he alleges Huntoon cabled in response to cable messages from Mrs. Duke. One of these personals, attributed to Huntoon, said:

> At your home all is sad and lonely. Vacant chair recalls absent one. Your house pets are well. The bird sings sweetly. I dream every night you will be mine forever. Don't wear low-necked dresses.

Another said:

> Oh, memories that bless and burn! This separation is killing. Please don't wear low-necked dresses. Shall enjoy your house until octopus returns, when that pleasure shall cease.

The plaintiff alleges that Mrs. Duke's maid acted as a means of communication between Mrs. Duke and Huntoon.

ALBANY, March 21.—The Assembly to-day performed its share of the Republican programme to nullify the votes of the Democratic Aldermen of Kingston, who for three months, by reason of a tie vote, have held up the city business. The Mayor is a Republican, and the Fowler bill passed to-day gives him a vote in the Common Council, thereby breaking the tie.

WOMAN CARD SHARP ABROAD.

Passengers Warned Against Her on the Kaiser Wilhelm II.

In the "Vienna café," on board the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II., in yesterday morning from Bremen, was a notice posted by order of Capt. Hogemann, warning the passengers to beware of a certain professional gambler. The alleged gambler happened to be a woman.

The Kaiser was two days out of Cherbourg when she was discovered. According to the passengers, she had a confederate among the men passengers and they worked together by means of cleverly arranged signals. Some of the players, it was said, detected the two signaling to each other, and after a little watching came to the conclusion that they were professionals.

One of the players reported the incident to Capt. Hogemann and the next morning the warning notice was posted. The woman and the man did not play any more for the rest of the voyage.

CORNERSTONE IS LAID FOR AUTO CLUBHOUSE

Should Typify Best in Motoring, Says President Morris.

WILL HAVE BIG GARAGE

Members of Automobile Club of America Hope to Occupy Their Future Home Next Winter.

Ceremonies of a novel and interesting nature characterized the laying of the cornerstone yesterday of the new home of the Automobile Club of America, in West Fifty-fourth Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue. President Dave Hennen Morris presided, and on the raised stand with him were three ex-Presidents, George F. Chamberlin, A. R. Shattuck, and Winthrop E. Scarritt. The members of the club were well represented, and several women were in attendance, among them being Mrs. Morris, who witnessed the wielding of the silver trowel at the hands of Dr. Schuyler Skaats Wheeler from her automobile, which was backed up to the stand.

Work has been in progress on the new clubhouse for several months. Garage facilities for over 250 cars will be provided, and in other appointments the club will be more perfectly equipped for the use of motorists than any other similar organization in this country. The Stars and Stripes and the colors of the club, yellow and green, with an automobile wheel in red in the centre, floated from the steel girders that have already been raised to the third story. The building will have a frontage of 131 feet on the north side of Fifty-fourth Street.

The cornerstone was laid at the Broadway end, close to the main members' entrance. It was a massive granite block, with the date, "1906," cut in the polished face, and in the copper box placed beneath it were the records and history of the club. Several automobile books were in the collection, among them being Col. John Jacob Astor's volume, "A Journey Through Other Worlds, a Romance of the Future," published several years ago.

"Many of its prophecies have come true, so that's the reason the book goes in," explained Colgate Hoyt, one of the Governors of the club.

"This monument of stone," President Morris said, "should not typify only the idea of pleasure and sport, but all that is best in the future of automobiling. It should stand as a vital force of our modern civilization and illustrate at all times what is best and most serviceable in the future development of the motor industry. This new clubhouse aims to embody many features intended to facilitatae and encourage the use of the horseless vehicle, its safe keeping, the improvement of many branches of the mechanical arts, the making of accurate tests and measurements, besides serving as a headquarters from which may be conducted the work of improving the conditions relating to transportation."

Dr. Wheeler, as Chairman of the Building Committee, laid the cornerstone, and a prophetic speech was then made by Albert R. Shattuck. Quoting a verse from the Bible to the effect that "the chariots shall jostle one against another in the broad ways," he spoke of the wonders of electricity and steam in the last century, and concluded with the prediction that in view of the success of ballooning, the automobile will in turn be superceded by the flying machine.

The Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle Smith, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, pronounced the benediction.

A prediction was asked for as to when the club expected to move from its old quarters at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, but Mr. Shattuck did not find this as easy as talking about flying machines. It is hoped, however, that the members may occupy the new house early next Winter. The building will be eight stories in height. The top floor will be lighted by skylights, and will be divided into a number of rooms for members of the club, who are interested in experimenting in problems of automobile construction and engineering. The main clubrooms, assembly hall, and library will be on the second floor.

Among the automobilists present, besides those already mentioned, were Jefferson De Mont Thompson, Gen. George Moore Smith, Samuel H. Valentine, Cortlandt Field Bishop, Capt. Homer W. Hedge, Augustus Post, Emerson Brooks, Carl Page, W. W. Niles, Ernest Flagg, S. M. Butler, William Hurlbut, Ward Chamberlin, E. B. Gallaher, Frank Eveland, A. Elliot Ranney, and J. E. Jarrige.

GOLF CHANGES AT OAKLAND.

Club Elects Governors and Makes Plans for New Course.

The annual meeting of the Oakland Golf Club, whose links are at Bayside, L. I., was held at Delmonico's last night. Five Governors were elected for two years, as follows: A. W. Rossiter, M. M. Graham, Lawrence E. Embree, R. A. C. Smith, and G. L. Shearer. Owing to the rapid growth of the club, the membership limit was raised from 210 to 300, and it was also voted to increase the entrance fee from $50 to $75 after Oct. 1.

President R. A. C. Smith presided, and the reports of the various committees showed that the club was in a highly satisfactory condition. Announcement was made of the recent purchase of fifty-four acres adjoining the links. The old nine-hole course will be used this year, but plans are now under way for a long eighteen-hole course, and this will be laid out so as to be opened for play in 1907. The clubhouse is being enlarged, about $3,000 being spent on the improvements, and next season squash courts will probably be added. The Governors will meet in a few days to choose the officers. It is understood that the present officials will be re-elected. They are: President—R. A. C. Smith; Vice President—Lawrence E. Embree; Secretary—M. M. Graham; Treasurer—G. L. Shearer; Chairman of the Greens Committee—A. W. Rossiter.

ROAD DRIVERS' MEETING.

Trophies for Matinee Brushes Will Be Ready in Two Weeks.

The weekly meeting of the Road Drivers' Association held last night at the Hotel Cadillac, was well attended. In the absence of Dr. Gill the chair was occupied by W. M. Jermyn. The report of the Cup Committee showed that the eleven trophies donated for Speedway brushes would be delivered to the association within the next two weeks. A committee was appointed to arrange with the Park Commissioners to erect a new stand to seat 400 persons, at the finish of the brushes.

From the reports received from the horsemen it is expected that fully 500 horses will take part in the Speedway parade, which will be held on Saturday, May 5. Special arrangements will be made for the out-of-town contingent, which promises to be very strong. Superintendent of the Speedway John S. Caldwell has made arrangements by which horsemen by calling him up on the telephone (115—Audubon) will be able to find out whether the Speedway is in a fit condition for driving.

American Bowling Congress Officers.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 21.—R. E. Bryson of Indianapolis was elected President of the American Bowling Congress to-day. Albert Baltz of Philadelphia withdrew. Other officers chosen were: First Vice President—Charles J. Kauffman, Cincinnati; Second Vice President—A. C. Anson, Chicago, (re-elected;) Third Vice President—F. W. Grewich, St. Paul, (re-elected;) Secretary—Samuel Karpf, Dayton, (re-elected;) Treasurer—F. L. Pasdeloup, Chicago, (re-elected.)

The selection of St. Louis over Philadelphia for the next meeting place has widened the breach between the East and West, it is said. Charles H. Ebbets of Brooklyn, who made-

ADVERTISERS PLAY BASEBALL.

Not the Regulation Game, but the New Gallery Sport.

The annual dinner of the newspaper advertising men at the Cafe des Ambassadeurs last night was no tame affair, but the windup in a game of gallery baseball between two teams representing the New York and out-of-town papers threw it quite in the shade. They played at Thirty-sixth Street and Sixth Avenue, and the out-of-town men won in the final inning by a score of 6 to 5, amid the plaudits of the crowd. A loving cup for the greatest total of base hits was won by Bradt of the New York team, while Holliday, Willis, Gray, Crocker, and Klein are on the "water wagon" for not getting a hit, according to the terms of the match.

The game is played in a gallery like a shooting gallery. The batter hits a ball thrown automatically up from the home plate into the gallery. If he misses three strikes he is out. If the ball strikes ceiling, floor, or either side wall he retires. If he hits the far wall with the ball he gets a single, double, triple, or home run, according to the force of the ball and the place struck, which is automatically recorded.

Bradt made two triples and a home run. He led off with the home run. Birming's single and Block's home run gave the visitors the lead in the fourth inning. White's single and Bradt's triple tied in the fifth, and each scored two in the sixth. Wiley drove Toohey home with a home run. Birming and Bloch duplicated the feat. Finley's home run gave the visitors the lead in the eighth. White and Bradt tied the game, but Bilsen won the contest by bringing Agnew home on a triple.

GIANTS OFF TO NASHVILLE.

Will Play Three Games with Southern Leaguers—Mathewson Stays Back.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 21.—The Giants began their trip to Nashville to-night with a full array of talent for three games scheduled there. Manager McGraw took Pitchers Taylor, Ames, Wiltse, McGinnity, and the understudies, Elliott, Ferguson, and Henry Mathewson. C. Mathewson and Bowerman were left here owing to the request of the former, who thinks that he can put in three more advantageous days by pitching to his battery partner.

Bresnahan and young Fitzgerald will do the catching in the games at Nashville, but the remainder of the men will line up in regular form, with the exception of George Brown, which will make the team like this: McGann, first base; Bilbert, second base; Dahlen, shortstop; Devlin, third base; Mertes, left field; Strang, centre field, and Donlin, right field. Marshall and other utility men were left here, but Manager McGraw took along enough substitutes to trim the Southern Leaguers.

Practice to-day was fast from the start, which took place shortly before the noon hour, ending two hours later. Ferguson again pitched good ball for a couple of innings.

GRIFFITH'S REGULARS BEATEN

Clarkson and New Pitcher Whalen Did Well for Victorious Team.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 21.—The return of the sun this afternoon gave the Greater New Yorks an opportunity to don their togs and get to the park. So pleased were the players that they gamboled over the grass and made merry. A game was decided upon between the regulars and the "yaps," and in spite of the fact that pitchers Newton and Leroy played second and third for the latter, the victory went to the "yaps" by a score of 4 to 2. The game started with "Noodles" Hahn pitching for the regulars and Clarkson for the "yaps." At the conclusion of five innings these men were relieved, the score being 2 and 2. Puttmann succeeded Hahn, and in four innings the "yaps" scored two runs.

Whalen, the Californian who has joined the Americans, made good this afternoon, preventing the regulars from crossing the home plate. To-morrow afternoon there will occur another game, but the regulars this time will be opposed by the Birminghams. Much interest is centred in the contest. This afternoon La Porte distinguished himself on third base by excellent work.

Brooklyn Beaten by Detroit.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 21.—The Detroit Americans won from the Brooklyn Nationals here this afternoon by a score of 12 to 5. Slever pitched five innings for Detroit, but he weakened and was succeeded by Donovan, who held the Brooklyns down during the remaining four innings for one single. Eason pitched the first five innings for Brooklyn without special merit, while Alperman did good work during the remaining innings. Better batting on the part of the Westerners won the contest. The fielding was ordinary. Score by innings:

		R.	H.	E.
Detroit	6 2 0 0 0 4 0 0 0	12	12	4
Brooklyn	1 0 0 4 0 0 0 0 0	5	7	3

Batteries—Slever, Donovan and Payne; Eason, Alperman and Bergen and Butler. Time of game—One hour and thirty-eight minutes. Umpire—Mr. Donahue.

Baseball for Columbia Freshmen.

Columbia freshmen will play eleven baseball games this season, according to the schedule announced by the manager, W. C. Coleman, one of which will be with the Yale and another with the Pennsylvania freshmen. The schedule:

April—7, Yonkers High School, at Yonkers; 11, Clinton High School, at South Field; 14, Horace Mann School, at South Field; 21, Adelphi Academy, at Brooklyn; 25, Morristown Military Academy, at Morristown; 28, Holbrook Military Academy, at Ossining.

May—5, Yale freshmen, at New Haven; 9, Pennsylvania freshmen, at Philadelphia; 12, Dwight School, at South Field; 16, St. Paul School, at Garden City; 19, New York University freshmen, at South Field.

BASKET BALL CHAMPIONSHIP.

Close Contests in the Junior A. A. U. Round Robin Tournament.

Close contests marked the second night's play of the round robin tournament for the junior basketball championship of the Amateur Athletic Union, played last night on the court of the University Settlement. Three games were contested, two of which were decided by the narrow margin of two points, and the other one by one point. Play was fast and exciting, with a notable absence of roughness. The surprise of the evening was the defeat of the Calvary Athletic Club by Company K, Fourth Regiment, of Hoboken, by the score of 17 to 15.

Campbell's goal shooting was responsible for the victory of Prospect Young Men's Christian Association over the Young Men's Hebrew Association. There was little to choose between the two teams, and the result was in doubt up to the last two minutes of play. Line-up:

Y. M. H. A., 18.	Position.	P. Y. M. C. A., 19.
Gutter	Right forward	Conklin
Cahen	Left forward	Campbell
Ehrlich, Bloom	Centre	Rich

CLUBMEN WRESTLE FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIPS

Baxter Wins Harned Medal Outright in N. Y. A. C. Competition.

FIVE CLASSES DECIDED

Narganes Brothers First in Their Respective Bouts—Echeverria Gets Heavyweight Trophy.

Science and class contributed in no small degree to the championship wrestling bouts last night at the New York Athletic Club. It was a select number of men who grappled on the mat spread in the big gymnasium, and the fast work kept a crowd of enthusiasts keenly excited. Several of the former title holders renewed their holding of the honors, W. P. Baxter becoming the permanent possessor of the Harned Medal in the special lightweight class, 125 pounds. He was also second in the lightweight class at 135 pounds, being beaten in the final by A. Narganes, who came fresh to his bout, while Baxter had wrestled in several trying contests. F. Echeverria won the heavyweight class, above 158 pounds, over D. C. Newton, who took the second prize in this class. Echeverria is a new holder of this title, as F. Naething, the champion of last year, did not compete.

The bouts in all of the five classes were at the catch as catch can style, with the double nelson and strangle holds barred. The first of the finals brought Richard Jaeckel, the holder of the Richard Stevens Cup, and E. A. Jurgensen on the mat. Jaeckel did not waste any time, but by a sudden twist threw Jurgensen and worked over him rapidly. Twice Jurgensen broke a wicked head hold, but Jaeckel finally got a bar lock and neck hold which pinned his opponent's shoulders to the mat in the time of 5:53. Jurgensen took the second prize in this class, the same that he won a year ago.

F. Narganes towered above all the other contestants in the middle-weight class at 158 pounds. He again won the class and the Howard and Ottman Medals. Narganes experienced considerable difficulty with E. A. Jurgensen in the preliminary of this class, as the latter proved wary of Narganes's holds, and worked out of them by some remarkable acrobatic work. After tumbling and twisting all over the mat Jurgensen was finally pinned down by a half Nelson, neck and bar hold, inside of three minutes. Richard Jaeckel gave Narganes a hard tussle in the final of this class. Jaeckel was forced on the defensive, but he broke every hold that Narganes got, fighting loose in a way that caused the crowd to applaud his splendid work. After ten minutes Narganes was unable to pin him down, so Referee Hennen ordered a rest of three minutes and a second bout of ten minutes.

Narganes went at Jaeckel at the beginning of the second bout, throwing him, and after some hot work secured a half Nelson that put Jaeckel's shoulders to the mat in 4:30.

In the final of the special class W. P. Baxter met Dr. George E. Dodge. The latter was tall and slender, while Baxter was a head shorter than his opponent. Baxter worked hard for ten minutes without a fall. Then an extra bout was ordered, and Baxter managed to swing his tall adversary off his feet and put him down by a bar and neck hold in 2:30. The difference in stature of the wrestlers in this bout afforded the spectators no end of amusement. Dr. Dodge won the second prize in this class. Dr. L. W. Ely was the announcer of the bouts, and Harry Lyons, timekeeper. At the close John J. O'Brien gave an exhibition of jiu-jitsu methods that were of an unusual character. The summary:

Special-Weight Class, 125 Pounds.—Won by W. P. Baxter over Dr. George E. Dodge in second bout by bar and neck hold. Time—2:30. Dr. George E. Dodge defeated W. W. Swan, decision rendered for most work. Time—10:00.

Light-Weight Class, 135 Pounds.—Won by A. Narganes over W. P. Baxter by bar and foot hold, with head in chancery. Time—2:52.

Welter-Weight Class, 145 Pounds.—Won by Richard Jaeckel over E. A. Jurgensen by bar and neck hold. Time—5:53. E. A. Jurgensen defeated C. R. Wood by bar and neck hold. Time—4:00.

Middle-Weight Class, 158 Pounds.—Won by F. Narganes over R. Jaeckel by half Nelson in extra bout. Time—4:30. F. Narganes defeated E. A. Jurgensen by half Nelson, neck and bar hold. Time—3:00.

Heavy-Weight Class, Above 158 Pounds.—Won by F. Echeverria over D. C. Newton by body and scissors hold. Time—5:00. F. Echeverria defeated R. L. Scott by scissors on head and bar hold. Time—8:30.

HOPPE WON TWO GAMES.

Low Averages by Champion at 18.1 Balk-Line Against Gallagher.

Willie Hoppe, the world's champion billiardist, won both of his games from Tom Gallagher last night at Hoppe's billiard rooms, 56 West Thirtieth Street. In the afternoon the champion ran out his limit of 300 points to 87 for Gallagher, Hoppe's average being a trifle over 21. He was not in such high-class form as on the previous day, and his best single run was 54. Gallagher made a run of 20, and averaged over 6. The scores:

Hoppe—49 17 54 25 3 22 0 38 19 7 1 34 22 9. Total, 300. Average, 21 6-14.

Gallagher—8 0 2 3 2 4 0 2 11 18 8 8 20. Total, 87. Average, 6 9-13.

In the evening the contestants gave but a moderate exhibition, Hoppe playing slower than in the afternoon. He needed twenty-four innings to complete his run of 300, while Gallagher in twenty-three innings made 167. The latter played brilliantly at times, and his best run of 35 was the result of skillful billiards and fine judgment. The scores:

Hoppe—10 16 0 0 18 0 12 7 5 21 10 71 9 17 0 1 3 6 29 3 1 30 8 22. Total, 300; average, 13 14-24.

Gallagher—2 8 27 4 4 1 7 0 3 0 2 35 9 5 0 2 1 12 2 0 16 9 20. Total, 167; average, 7 5-23.

The total of the six games that the men have played this week is: Hoppe, 1,800; Gallagher, 773.

POGGENBURG IN THIRD PLACE.

Demarest Beats New Yorker for Second Honors in Billiard Tournament.

CHICAGO, March 21.—The National amateur billiard championship tournament was finished to-day at the Chicago Athletic Association with an extra game between Calvin Demarest of Chicago and J. F. Poggenburg of New York. The men were tied for second place. Demarest won by 300 to 182, after a slow game. Besides capturing second honors in the tournament Demarest gets a gold watch. Poggenburg won a diamond pin for third prize.

It took thirty-nine innings to run out the game. Demarest had an average of 7 37-39 and Poggenburg an average of 4 26-39. The high run was made by Demarest, 57 in the third inning. Poggenburg's high run was 30.

Wrestler's Neck Broken and May Die.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., March 21.—The physicians attending Alexander S. Kemp at the University Hospital have little hope of his recovery, his condition to-day being very precarious. An X-ray examination disclosed the fact that Kemp is suffering from a broken neck. Kemp, who is 22 years old, is a student of the University of Pennsylvania and a member of the wrestling team. While wrestling with Samuel N. Fernberger, the latter secured what is known as the "crotch" hold and threw Kemp over his head. Picked up in a comatose condition, the young man was hurried to the hospital.

Kemp also played on his class basket ball team and last year was manager of the 'Varsity lacrosse team.

Croll Wins in Handicap Pool.

W. Croll beat C. Jackson last night in the handicap pool tournament for amateurs at the Broadway Billiard Academy. Croll was handicapped at 125 and Jackson at 90. Croll ran out his total score to 65 points for Jackson.

SYSONBY'S BIG IMPOST IN CARTER HANDICAP

James R. Keene's Champion Required to Carry 134 Pounds.

TOPS LIST IN EXCELSIOR

Horses Move Briskly at the Gravesend Track—Bennington's String Looks Well.

The official weights for the fifty candidates eligible for the Excelsior Handicap of $10,000, to be run on the second day of the Spring meeting of the Metropolitan Jockey Club at Jamaica, Saturday, April 28, were announced yesterday. The top weight was again given to champion Sysonby, he being required to carry 131 pounds. Hermis has five pounds less, and Delhi's weight is two pounds lighter than E. R. Thomas's representative, while 123 pounds has been allotted to Stalwart. Then follow Hamburg Belle and Roseben, each having 120 pounds.

The Excelsior is for three-year-olds and upward, of a guaranteed cash value of $10,000, of which $1,500 will go to the second horse, and $1,000 to the third. The distance is one mile and a sixteenth.

Weights were also announced yesterday for the Carter Handicap, of $10,000, to be run at the Spring meeting of the Queens County Jockey Club at Aqueduct. Sysonby, as was expected, leads the list of sixty-five horses, with the heavy impost of 134 pounds. Hermis and Delhi will carry equal weight, 130 pounds, while Roseben is in at 120 pounds.

The Carter Handicap is for three-year-olds and upward, of a guaranteed cash value of $10,000, at a distance of seven furlongs. The weights in the two big handicaps follow:

Though the recent weather has given to the trainers on Long Island something of a setback in their preparation for the opening of the racing season, no very serious harm was done, and yesterday the weather and track conditions had improved to such a degree that there was much useful work accomplished. Fred Burlew was early on hand at Gravesend with the big Newton Bennington string. Waterbearer, Green Room, Belmere, and Edna Jackson were shown first. Waterbearer had for his task a three-furlong romp in 0:43. Green Room breezed the same distance in 0:48½. Belmere stepped a smart half in 0:57½, and Edna Jackson, the dependence in the filly stakes, went along for three furlongs in 0:44.

Of the two-year-olds Marius Caius went three furlongs in 0:43, with plenty in reserve. All of the others were sent over the same route, and the time of each was: Judge Post, 0:44; Disaster, 0:44¼; Paumonok, 0:42½, Miss Spooner, 0:42½; Waterbury, 0:43¼; Easton, 0:42¾; Grace Ethel, 0:43½; Demund, 0:42½, and Captain Emerick, 0:43.

These youngsters were worked in three sets. They all look exceedingly well, and there are many in the big string that have a way of going indicating a stake quality. It is the intention to give most of them an early public trial, and on what has been shown in work all are worth remembering when they go to the races.

Jack Joyner brought over seventeen two-year-olds from Sheepshead Bay to Gravesend. They are the ones that are being pointed for the Aqueduct meeting. Nothing serious was asked, and they merely breezed along in single file for a half in about 0:58½. Among those in the string were: Norfolk, Toddles, Aftermath, Water Pearl, Mexican Silver, Steadfast, La Amour, and Abingdon. All are in good shape and rapidly approaching racing condition. In earlier trials they have shown sufficient speed to guarantee the belief that they will be better than useful.

Harry Harris had Clovercrest under saddle and allowed him, in company with Little Flea and Winning Hand, to go along for an easy half in 0:57. William Hueston sent Miss Ogden three furlongs in 0:42¾ very handily, while Mazienello covered the same distance in 0:43½.

Tom Welsh had his lot out, but they were only asked easy galloping exercise, with no attempt at anything like speed. Some of those shown were Ormondale, Inquisitor, Duenna, Bull's Eye, and four two-year-olds.

At Sheepshead Bay Supt. Clark is having built an extensive addition to the iron fence of the track. The new fence will reach to the Neck Road, and it improves the appearance of the handsome property.

PARSONS FOR OLYMPIC TEAM.

Western Sprinter Will Go to Athens if Wisconsin Will Consent.

There is a strong probability that Charles Parsons, the California sprinter, who won the Amateur Athletic Union championships in 0:09 4-5 at Portland, Oregon, and who is said to have a splendid chance of equaling Duffey's time, will go to Athens as a member of the American team. The whole matter rests with the authorities at the University of Wisconsin, where Parsons is enrolled as a student. If Wisconsin will grant its consent to Parsons absenting himself from college to make the trip, the American committee will add him to the team that sails on Saturday of next week, as parties in California have offered to donate $500 to the purpose if Parsons is included in the list.

Whether D. O. Sullivan, the all-around athlete, and J. B. Parsons, the half miler, will take the trip is still unsettled. The American committee has had no word from Yale authorities stating that Parsons had received permission to go, and unless it gets such word he will not be permitted to do so. Sullivan's trouble is financial. He agreed to pay his own expenses, when he was originally named, and now wants the committee to assume a part. This the latter will not do.

Ellery Clark's withdrawal has been officially received. His reasons are that he consented to go only because the team had no all-around representative, but now that Sheridan is going, Clark is unwilling to sacrifice his business interests to make a second trip to Greece.

WATER POLO GAME A TIE.

Goal Taken Away from N. Y. A. C. Which Would Have Won Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 21.—After sixteen minutes of a severe struggle the water polo teams of the Chicago Athletic Association and the New York Athletic Club wound up their game to-night in a tie, each team scoring a goal in the first half.

Galdzic of Chicago got the ball at the start and Chicago managed to keep it in its territory most of the time. Galdzic lost the ball on the first attack, and New York, after two trials, got it through, Durand helping his forwards, and scoring a goal on an underwater play. It was New York's ball the rest of the half, it being in Chicago territory.

The second half was a repetition of the first, so far as the method of play was concerned, the Chicago team playing a defensive game, four men back, who devoted all their efforts to keeping their goal untouched. Finally, with 30 seconds left to play, Ruddy, of New York, touched the ball to the Chicago Athletic Association goal board and the crowd cheered wildly what they thought was the deciding point of the game. Immediately a roar went up from Keogh, the Chicago captain, who approached Referee Raycroft, wildly gesticulating. His cry was immediately taken up by his team mates, and they formed a circle around the referee and Capt. L. de B. Handley of New York, who had joined the throng.

When the smoke of the controversy cleared away it was found that Hammond, who was judging goals for the Chicago team, had declared no goal, and Daniels, the New York judge, said goal, thus leaving it to the referee to decide. The contention of Hammond and the Chicago players was that Ruddy, in making the goal, had one hand on the rail, and Referee Raycroft, after several minutes, decided with the Chicago goal judge.

Capt. Handley immediately brought Ruddy up before the officials and had him take oath to the fact that he had not touched the rail. The other New York players each claimed that they had not touched the guard during the play. Finally the game was started again, and Keogh getting the ball, gave it to his goal tenders, and evidently contented with a tie score, yelled to his men to play for time, which they did.

GOOD REVOLVER SCORES.

Individual Matches Shot by Contestants in National Championship.

Two of the contestants in the National revolver and pistol championship, Thomas Anderton, ex-champion, and J. Le Boutillier, 2d, shot an individual match yesterday to work up their scores. The match took place in the gallery of the Manhattan Rifle and Revolver Association, 100th Street and Broadway. This contest created no little interest, as it was close up to the end, Anderton winning by the score of 440 to 414. Many of the targets showed remarkable aim, and the black centres were entirely shot away by the bullets. Lieut. Reginald H. Sayre and Dr. W. H. Luckett, both ex-champions, agreed to engage in a similar match. Lieut. Sayre tried out his revolver, shooting targets of a possible fifty each. One of his best scores was 43, in which two of his shots found the small centre of the target.

A. L. A. Himmelwright, the ex-champion, who has been shooting each night since the championship began, again tried his aim last night, but with poor results. After making a number of trial targets he decided to rest for the night, as the bullets from his revolver did not find their way to the bull's eye in a manner satisfactory to him. He expects to resume work to-night for the championship. J. E. Silliman also scored several targets during the evening.

ONLY TWO FAVORITES FIRST.

Pick of the Talent Beaten in Eleven Races Out of Thirteen.

NEW ORLEANS, March 21.—To-day's card at the Fair Grounds was ordinary. All six favorites were beaten. Ben MacDhui bled in the second race and was eased up. Safe Guard stumbled in the stretch in the last race and threw Jockey Bedell. The weather was clear and the track fast. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Six furlongs. Pride of Woodstock, 104 pounds, (Freeman,) 16 to 1, won; Last Cherry, 115, (L. Smith,) 3 to 2, second; Globe Runner, 96, (Obert,) 6 to 5, third. Time—1:15 1-5. Still Hunt, Abjure, Henpecked, and Superior Boy also ran.

SECOND RACE.—One mile. Gladiator, 112 pounds, (Robbins,) 12 to 1, won; Ternus, 100, (McCarty,) 7 to 1, second; Discernment, 97, (L. Smith,) 6 to 1, third. Time—1:43 2-5. Sigmund, Profane, Mahogany, Will Shelley, D. W. Flynn, Ben McDhui, Hickory Corners, Water Lake, and Flying Trapeze also ran.

THIRD RACE.—One mile. Paul, 115 pounds, (J. Conley,) 12 to 1, won; Water Pansy, 117, (Robbins,) 8 to 1, second; King's Gem, 100, (L. Smith,) 8 to 5, third. Time—1:43 3-5. Gleeman, Atwood, Marvin Neal, Daniel C., Lythelist, Red Raven, McWilliams, Roderick, and Fenian also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—One mile and a sixteenth. Nine, 110 pounds, (Johannessen,) 7 to 2, won; Whippoorwill, 110, (Warren,) 8 to 1, second; Don't Ask Me, 111, (Bedell,) 5 to 1, third. Time—1:49 2-5. Hamilcar, Celebration, and Lena J. also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Six furlongs. Come On Sam, 99 pounds, (R. Duncan,) 10 to 1, won; Cut Glass, 99, (W. McGee,) 10 to 1, second; Pretty Nellie, 106, (L. Hoffman,) 40 to 1, third. Time—1:15 4-5. Quaint, Shipwreck, Bess Chaney, Bill Carroll, and Indigestion also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—One mile and a sixteenth. Jerry Lynch, 113 pounds, (L. Jones, 20 to 1, won; Old Hal, 108, (Diggins,) 3 to 1, second; Brilliant, 113, (Robbins,) 20 to 1, third. Time—1:50. Gay Lizette, Little Rose, Kenton, and J. C. Clem also ran.

Cycle and Auroceiver were the only successful favorites at City Park to-day. The card was an ordinary one. The weather was clear and the track fast. Summary:

FIRST RACE.—Six furlongs. Clyde, 115 pounds, (Nicol,) 5 to 2, won; Budweiser, 115, (Troxler,) 4 to 1, second; Marry Morris, 99, (B. Smith,) 5 to 1, third. Time—1:14 4-5. Lord of the Valley, Pretension, Tennyburn, Lineal, Prestige, Conjuress, Clique, Florence May, Queen Esther, and Capt. Bush also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Five and a half furlongs. Mayor Duncan, 109 pounds, (W. Daly,) 20 to 1, won; Oural, 112, (Munro,) 5 to 1, second; Oak Cliff, 119, (Farrow,) 12 to 1, third. Time—1:08 3-5. Self Reliant, Baron, Gold Bearer, Woolteesa, Pitkin, Mr. Wadleigh, Red Ruby, Squanderer, Lutie Mc., Sweet Frata, Miss Nichols, and Shelagh also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Six furlongs. The Only Way, 112 pounds, (Oregar,) 6 to 1, won; Gamara, 115, (J. Jones,) 7 to 2, second; Immortelle, 108, (Tillman,) 25 to 1, third. Time—1:15 2-5. Creole Jim, Major Carpenter, Miladi Love, Lulu Young, Gold Monk, Frances Dillon, Dundall, Gold Way, Lieber Gore, Dr. McCluer, Mrs. Phillips, and Pulque also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Short course steeplechase. Lord Radnor, 142 pounds, (Gaddy,) 7 to 1, won; Lights Out, 115, (Pemberton,) 8 to 1, second; Ohio King, 155, (McClain,) 8 to 1, third. Time—5:18 1-5. Custus, Sharon Springs, John E. Owens, Flying Raincloud, Blue Mint, Evander, Tripoli, Woodlyn, and Little Wally also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—One mile and a sixteenth; handicap. Devout, 101 pounds, (W. McIntyre,) 6 to 1, won; John Carroll, 121, (H. Larsen,) 3 to 5, second; Granada, 88, (Swain,) 3 to 1, third. Time—1:47 1-5. Coruscate also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—One mile and a sixteenth. Bellindian, 105 pounds, (Oregar,) 4 to 1, won; The Gleam, 107, (Nicol,) 16 to 5, second; Thora Lee, 95, (R. Lowe,) 7 to 1, third. Time—1:47. Florizel also ran.

SEVENTH RACE.—Six furlongs. Auroceiver, 102 pounds, (Oregar,) even, won; Creel, 90, (Harrigan,) 12 to 1, second; Freebooter, 104, (W. McIntyre,) 15 to 1, third. Time—1:13 3-5. Robin Hood and Cygnet also ran.

Radtke Rides Four Winners.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 21.—Three favorites won at Oaklawn to-day. Radtke captured the riding honors, with four winners and one second.

Xavier A. A. Five in the Lead.

The first game to decide the second place in the Church Athletic League basket ball championship was played last night in the St. George Athletic Club gymnasium, Sixteenth Street and Third Avenue, between the Xavier Athletic Association and St. George Athletic Club, the former winning by the score of 30 to 10. Line-up:

Xavier, 30.	Position.	St. George, 10.

TEDDY-G

The police came out in squads of six,
And called to the bears to stop their tricks;
And the boys in blue and firemen, too;
But there wasn't a thing that they could do.
They couldn't get in-to climb the stairs,
And their longest ladders wouldn't reach the bears.
When their work was through the bears came down
The happiest fellows in all the town.
TEDDY—B stood up on a bench near by
And made a speech which made folks cry;
While TEDDY—G on the other half
Danced a jig to make them laugh.

NEXT SUNDAY

Place your order to-day with newsdealer or carrier for THE SUNDAY NEW YORK TIMES. If you have little folks in your home they will delight in this rollicking story. Each chapter is complete. They can begin anywhere. If you have no little folks of your own buy this story and mail it to some little friend at a distance who may not have opportunity to see it. Huudreds of "friends of children" are doing this. Next Sunday's story will be a specially good one.

NEW STYLE OF BOAT RACING.

Ten Eyck Says It Will Supplant Four and Eight Oared Shell Rowing.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., March 21.—Edward Hanlan Ten Eyck, former champion amateur sculler, will be coach of the Philadelphia Barge Club crew this year. He arrived at this decision to-day and will go to Philadelphia to begin work next week. Ten Eyck, to meet the demands of the new style of racing, has just completed for the use of his club a four-oared sculling shell, called a centipede in rowing circles. In discussing the new innovation, Ten Eyck said:

"A four or eight oared shell does not make the right kind of a boat for sculling. The four-oared shell is 19 inches abeam. With a four-sculling crew a boat of 17 inches beam can be used, which is, of course, faster than the 19-inch boat. The new style of racing is likely to supplant four and eight oared rowing.

"There was a race at the National Regatta in Baltimore last year in which each crew was made up of eight scullers. The spectators enjoyed the race more than an eight-oared race. For one thing, it is a faster race. A good single sculler can make about the same time as a pair-oared crew. A double scull shell crew can beat a four-oared crew for a mile and a half. If the distance was further, I think, maybe,

FOR AND AGAINST THE PEOPLE.

The House and the President, it appears, are agreed regarding rate regulation, and the Supreme Court has recently given decisions discomforting to the rebaters and monopolists. This, it is said, shows who are the people's true friends, and demonstrates that the Senate stands alone for the trust and railway interests.

To those of our way of thinking what is really shown is that the court finds law enough to punish breakers of the law when a proper case is put before it. If more lawbreakers are not punished it is either because the law we have is administered inefficiently, or because the law is not broken. When the Administration, with a special fund of a half million dollars, corners so few rascals, and makes examples of criminals like Mr. HILL in default of worse, and when the Inter-State Commerce Commission after a hunt of years has similar ill success, the sophisticated doubt the enormity of the crimes, and look for the motives of the accusation.

It would be just like the gentlemen who contribute to the Republican campaign fund and inspire the Republican policy to look for something else to engage public attention than the tariff and the monopolies which it breeds. The representatives whose elections are approaching, and the gentleman who is not a candidate for a third term, have a common bond in a search for an issue which shall be all theirs. The Senate, instead of standing alone, stands beside the Supreme Court in considering the subject as a matter of law and economics, rather than as a matter of politics. The division is therefore not three against one, but the Supreme Court and the Senate against the President and the House, with an appeal to the people as to which are their true friends. If the Senate and the court have preference in the appraisal of stability of judgment and wisdom of decision, and if the House and President have earned a reputation for flightiness and hysteria, then each should have its deserts in the popular verdict.

AN INSTALLMENT OF CONSULAR REFORM.

There are still some amendments to the Consular Reform bill made by the House which will have to be adjusted in Conference Committee, but the substance of it will not be changed. We regret very much that the bill as prepared, with the approval of the State Department and introduced by Senator LODGE, has been stripped of so many of its best features. But the bill as it will pass is a decided gain, and may lead the way to a more nearly complete measure in the near future.

The chief advantages secured by the bill are an increase in the average salaries, the abolition of fees, the cutting off of outside sources of income, authority to assign Consuls for special places in case of emergency, and, especially, provision for systematic inspection. Incidentally the grade of Consular Agent, heretofore filled chiefly by foreign appointees, is abolished. It will be seen that in effect the bill is one of administrative reorganization, and that the question of tests of merit for appointment and promotion is put aside. Sooner or later this will have to be taken up, and if it can be done during the Presidency of Mr. ROOSEVELT his sound and practical views regarding it will stand a chance of adoption. The national organization of representatives of commercial and industrial bodies, formed to press Consular reform, should, while recognizing all that has been done in the present bill, continue their efforts to secure also the improvements to which the President is so unqualifiedly and sincerely committed.

The movement ought to be rendered more hopeful by the passage of the new bill, for the improvement in the administration of the service will result in showing the possibilities of still greater usefulness. The business interests of the country demand that the Consular system be so modified as to offer a satisfactory career to men of real ability and high character. It is only men of this sort that can understand the real needs of our business and aid effectively in meeting them. In view of the results that are entirely practicable the question of any increased expense necessarily involved is insignificant. We now spend about $1,300,000 on the entire system, and will add less than $200,000 under the new bill. That is less than one-seventh of a cent for every dollar of foreign trade. Twice the expenditure would be amply repaid by a substantial improvement in the service.

AT SEA LEVEL.

Senator MORGAN would of course find an unholy joy in the further badgering of Mr. WILLIAM NELSON CROMWELL. But what's the use? The history of the Panama Canal is one long track and trail of scandal. There has been scandal in the remote past, in the recent past; there is some now, and we much fear there will be more in the future. There is some reason to believe that fat American profits were realized out of the payment to the Frenchmen. But all that is little better than ancient history. How will the torturing of CROMWELL aid Congress and the President in the great undertaking before them?

The first and imperative duty of Congress is the determining whether the building of a sea-level or a lock canal shall be attempted. The testimony of Prof. BURR, of WILLIAM BARCLAY PARSONS, and of ex-Chief Engineer WALLACE has not passed unheeded in Washington. There is a good deal more openness of mind with regard to the sea-level type of canal. Senators and members of the House are beginning to have their doubts about building dams for which no rock foundation can be found, and about the risks of continually passing ships of the largest type through locks that would be destroyed by the accidental impact of even a very slow-moving ship, thus putting the canal out of commission for years. Given the time and the money, a sea-level canal can beyond doubt be built and operated. Experts of highest authority are by no means agreed that as much can be said of a lock canal. In an undertaking of this magnitude Congress must make sure that it is right before it goes ahead.

GRATIFYING INSURANCE FACTS.

As has happened happily before, it chances again that at a crisis in the insurance scandals there come developments of another sort to reassure those perplexed and disturbed by the daily disclosures. It is a comfort to learn again that while reputations if not characters are attacked or destroyed the economic foundations are sound. The business of 1905 has been tabulated for ninety-nine companies by The New York Spectator, giving the first opportunity to trace the effect of the housecleaning. We must refer the timorous to the original for the facts regarding individual companies, but it is useful to reproduce here the aggregates.

The admitted assets are at their maximum, $2,714,962,346, the gain of 1905 having been $207,995,437. The gain of 1904 was larger, but it was made under less difficult conditions, and was due to improvement in the security market, rather than to excellence of the insurance business. Making allowance for this fact, the gain in assets has never been exceeded. The gain in surplus is moderate, an addition of about four millions carrying the total to $337,341,291. But it must be remembered that the knife was applied freely in 1905, $18,000,000 being lopped off a single company's book assets. The premiums paid were $515,525,252, and the total income $641,052,206, the gains respectively having been $27,335,949 and $42,099,460. This shows that the total income suffered less by comparison with previous growth than the premium payments, reflecting an improvement in administration rather than growth of business. This appears more clearly in the decrease—the only decrease disclosed—in the new business of $88,672,996, the year's total being $1,749,923,510. The only unsatisfactory thing about this is that it has been exceeded once. A next to the best on record ought to satisfy all concerned, and those who think that business may be too big of course will think new business nearer two billions than one billion large enough. The payments to policy holders were unprecedented at $264,852,216, the excess above about $150,000,000 in death claims being paid to matured policy holders or dividend accounts. By way of preparation for future similar payments $225,136,683 was earmarked from the year's receipts. The improvement in administration is again reflected in the disbursements upon other accounts, which increased only $25,480,554, previous increases of expenses upon smaller business having been over $31,000,000 in 1904, and nearly $40,000,000 in 1903. The increase in amount of insurance in force is $653,165,472, to a total over eleven billions, besides industrial insurance of $2,304,356,490. There have been larger increases, but that realized suffices.

When there is so much that is regrettable to record it is a pleasure to place these reassuring facts beside it. If it had been possible to publish them sooner they might have been useful to those hesitating whether or not to sacrifice their policies while yet something might be realized upon them. Apparently doubts whether this beneficent institution had received a mortal blow may be dismissed. Individuals have suffered, not the institution.

TOO MUCH COTTON.

The price of cotton was much agitated upon the Census Bureau report that the crop is 10,697,310 bales, say 1,257,000 bales more than the egregious estimate by the gentlemen who were advising the planters to hold their cotton for 15 cents. This is the inopportune moment selected by the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, to make the unfeeling announcement that after years of experiment it has developed new varieties of the cotton plant, and has hopes of almost doubling "the value of the cotton crop wherever they are used." Seed is ready for distribution which will give a fibre half to three-quarters of an inch longer than the seed commonly used, and importation of special qualities of staple may not be longer necessary.

Some may read this with pleasure, but the Southern Cotton Planters' Association may be relied upon to protest against the outrage. The association's temper is a little short just now through the discrepancy between its ciphering and that of the department whose incompetency the association so hotly denounced, only now to have confirmed the worst suspicions that the department is not the planters' true friend, but is working in the interest of truth and of those who wear cotton goods. This is a pitiful sacrifice of those who raise cotton, and especially of those who gamble in it. The department's duty, according to the instructions often given by the association, is to maintain the price of cotton, making such announcements and at such times as are best adapted to that end. Any figures proving that there is a good crop, or that the supply of cotton may be improved or enlarged, are contrary to the interests of the planters and the bulls. When finally it is impossible to conceal that there is enough cotton, and to spare, the proper course is not to increase the supply, but to decrease the acreage, and to form hold-your-cotton combinations until the market is in the desired shape.

The pernicious doctrine that cheap and plenty and better cotton is a public boon should be checked at once. The South has a monopoly, and the world ought to have as much cotton as the Planters' Association allows and approves, and no more. The Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, has made a mistake. The information hereby lamented should be sent to the Germans, who are trying under difficulties to raise cotton in East Africa, the Frenchmen in Abyssinia, and the Englishmen in various colonies, some of them close by the United States. Consul HARRIS's latest report is that French culture is making headway, Consul COVERT announces "excellent results" by French cultivators, and imports are so increasing that it was judged wise to introduce in this Congress a bill putting a duty upon cotton imports. That is the proper course. Keep out foreign cotton, and proportion the American crop to American demands and the condition of the option market. The association hopes to hear no more about this improved cotton, and looks confidently to the department for appropriate misstatements regarding the acreage and prospects of the next crop. The failure of the department to make such misstatements is proof to the association of its utter inefficiency.

TRANSFERS.

The Tammany declaration of principles embodied in Mr. BOURKE COCKRAN's resolutions, adopted at the meeting of the General Committee on Monday evening, makes this somewhat positive suggestion of an extension of the transfer privilege accorded to passengers upon the street railways of this city:

> We demand that the company which has recently acquired control of all transportation facilities in this city be compelled by law to issue transfers, so that any person desiring to avail himself of its service may be carried east or west across town to or from elevated or Subway station, and up or down the whole length of its system for a single fare.

While the popular support that might be marshaled for an enactment of this nature would be large, enthusiastic, and insistent, it may be doubted whether a law requiring the issue of transfers everywhere without restriction would be just to the company. Probably it would be very unjust. The privilege has been much abused. The company has been defrauded by the use of transfers by persons other than those to whom they were issued. The right is naturally one that must be given and accepted under conditions. Safeguards are necessary. All that the public can justly ask is that the conditions should be reasonable.

Nevertheless, we are well convinced that it would be wise business policy for the company controlling the street railway system to extend the transfer privilege materially and generously. It ought to extend it voluntarily, not under the compulsion of a statute. The giving of transfers very greatly increases the use of street railway facilities by the people. If the privilege were extended to cover the service as Mr. COCKRAN suggested, east or west across town to or from elevated or Subway trains, and up and down the whole length of the system, there can be no doubt that substantial encouragement would be given to the settling of many waste places in the Bronx. The company would simply be making new customers for itself. It is evident that the merged concern was capitalized upon the expectation of larger business.

There is another reason. The merger has been severely and sometimes savagely criticised. It came at an inopportune moment, and the conditions of the union were of a nature that, anybody could see, would increase an existing and general irritation over corporation abuses. Perhaps the capitalists concerned were very wise, but the public did not think so. It may be that the people of New York City will derive great benefits from the committing into one control all the public facilities for transportation within the municipal limits. But anybody can see that the public is now not so much overjoyed over coming benefits as apprehensive of possible denials and extortions. It ought to be the policy of enlightened and far-seeing business men to correct the people's misjudgments and win their favor by treating them, not merely justly, but with generosity. A material extension of the transfer privilege would be a fine example of this modern business spirit. It would have been wiser had the order limiting the issue of transfers to the time of paying fare been accompanied by an announcement that the privilege would be made more comprehensive. The irritation and scolding produced by the recent order, of which street car passengers are daily witnesses, were to be expected, but they will be transitory. If transfers had been issued in that way from the beginning no one would have found fault. The resentment which a niggardly transfer policy will engender will not be transitory. The troubles of the gentlemen concerned in the merger will be fewer and less serious if they have the good sense to win the favor of their patrons and to disarm public criticism by a liberal policy.

According to the abstract of the latest German census just published in Berlin, the population of the Empire has increased in the semi-decade from 1900 to 1905 from 56,367,178 to 60,605,183. This is a net addition of 4,238,005, or a little more than 7½ per cent., the average rate being 1½ per cent. annually. At this rate of advance the population of Germany in another decade would be in round numbers 70,000,000. When we reflect that there is little addition from immigration and a considerable loss from emigration, these figures show remarkable vitality and capacity for growth in the race. And it is the general observation of all intelligent students that the intellectual and moral vigor of the Germans is fully sustained in their extraordinary progress. Especially does education advance and extend, so that the percentage of illiteracy, as shown in the observation of the recruiting service, is lower than in any other country and decidedly lower than in our own country with its justly valued system of public schools.

The press dispatches report that the Government of Russia has arranged to install in the chamber of the new Assembly for the Empire an electric apparatus by which the votes of members can be registered at the clerk's desk by a signal from each seat. The economy of time and trouble in this method over the interminable roll calls of our own House of Representatives is obvious. The suggestion is irresistible that the Government will "press the button" and the "rest" remaining for the members will not be important. Nevertheless, mechanical contrivances for voting, or for recording votes, are not more completely a novelty in Russia than the votes themselves. And these are an innovation that cannot easily be recalled when once it has been permitted.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Reform, Not Revolution. Prof. BRANDER MATTHEWS, writing in Harper's Weekly, very lucidly explains the purposes and plans of the Simplified Spelling Board, of which he is Chairman, and incidentally he shows that he was rather seriously misunderstood by those who recently quoted him as saying that what the would-be reformers of our orthography wanted was first to create such a wild confusion of spelling that people would be glad to accept the system which the board was going to devise. We are glad to learn that neither it nor he has any such intention. What they would do is to remove the existing impression that there is any absolutely authoritative or sacred spelling for any word, and to encourage people with an inclination toward economy and common sense to drop from their writing such letters as seem to them too absurdly superfluous to be longer endured. Says Prof. MATTHEWS: "To hasten along the improvement of English orthography by urging the omission of useless letters—this is the practical task which has been undertaken by the Simplified Spelling Board. Simplification by omission—this is its platform; this is its motto. It is not an innovation; it is not a new principle; it is a principle which has been at work for centuries; it is a principle the application of which will arouse the least possible resistance and produce the most immediate results. To call attention to this principle will be the first duty of the Simplified Spelling Board, and to urge every user of the language to apply the principle for himself at his own convenience and to whatsoever extent he himself may see fit. To this simplification by omission and to a host of words simplified in accordance with this principle the Simplified Spelling Board proposes to lend the weight of its authority—of the authority of its several members." People of timid mind may well content themselves for the present with using the simpler of the two forms which the dictionaries already authorize for a large number of words. This alone would bring about a considerable reform without inflicting a too grievous shock upon anybody. No attempt is to be made to create a perfect alphabet, nor will a sudden change of the whole written language be advocated. What the board wants is only a moderate hastening of that natural process of eliminating unsounded letters that has been going steadily on ever since English and letters came together. This ought to please the "historical record" folk, for, with the reform thus effected, they can still have all their so-called history, but it will be in libraries and not a heavy burden at the end of every pen.

A Southern View of Lynching. Rarely, indeed, has Northern condemnation of Southern lynchers gone as far as does that of The Columbia (S. C.) State in its comments on the recent hanging by a Louisiana mob of a negro who had stolen and killed a cow. This affair, The State has heard, caused great indignation in the district where it occurred, and there is loud talk of bringing the rioters to justice. The State wants to know the cause of the excitement. "The mob," it says, "has not overstepped boundaries fixed by the mob! And the people of Louisiana have viewed the mob's performances heretofore with a good deal of complacency. The offense of the mob in this instance is no whit greater or more reprehensible than in any former case. It is, in fact, but going its logical way. If the mob can execute for one offense, then the mob can execute for any offense the mob may see fit. When the mob becomes the 'higher law,' as fools call it, then it supersedes all law." Then follows this truly remarkable statement: "The crime of hanging a man for stealing a cow or a chicken or for opening his eyes or shutting his mouth is no greater than the crime of lynching a man for murder or rape. The offense of the mob is not against its victim; it is against the State." That is strict logic and good law, no doubt, but—but—well, human nature counts for something, and even in the inexcusable there are degrees. To ignore them in this way seems to us unwise, and we are not open to suspicion of condoning lynching either.

SMALL TALK OF WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—"There is one thing about these explanations of the killing of women and children at Mount Dajo," said Representative Burleson of Texas. "They certainly cover the ground. First it was explained by Gen. Wood that the killing of women and children was unavoidable because they mixed up with the men in the hand-to-hand fight. Then Gen. Wood explained that no women and children were killed at all, but that the whole story originated in the imagination of reporters at Manila. Now Mr. Ide explains that women and children were killed, but not in the hand-to-hand fight; they were unavoidably killed before the battle by 'preliminary shelling.'

"Gen. Wood has evidently been a close reader of Joe Miller's joke book. You remember the celebrated case of the borrowed kettle, which plaintiff alleged was found to be broken when returned. The defendant's answer, according to Mr. Miller, was threefold:

"First, that defendant never borrowed said kettle from plaintiff.

"Second, that said kettle was broken when defendant borrowed it.

"Third, that plaintiff did at no time own said kettle."

Senator Dolliver was making a profound explanation of the difficulties of the rate-fixing business which it is proposed the Inter-State Commerce Commission shall undertake. It was impossible for any one to say beforehand what would be a justly compensatory rate, he declared, because no one could tell what any given transportation would actually cost.

In support of this proposition he read an extract from an English author whom he described as a "celebrated authority." Senator Bailey listened to the views of the Englishman with an amused smile, and then said:

"Does the Senator from Iowa not know that the 'eminent authority' from whom he quotes states that the express business of this country is done by the Pullman Company?"

Senator Tillman interrupted Senator Bailey to ask how the genuine cases were to be distinguished from those taken up by the railroads merely to make delay. "Some of those fellows will bear watching," he said. "There was that fellow down South who wanted an injunction and swore that the property he wanted 'protected' was worth $5,000,000. But a little later when the tax man came around he swore the same property was worth only $1,225,000. We want to guard against some railroad man doing a little lying around here."

"Yes," drawled Bailey, "you have to look out for the man with a conscience as elastic as the Populists wanted the currency."

Senators Spooner and Knox are coming to be regarded as the Damon and Pythias of the Senate. The rate question has brought them close together.

Yesterday Alger came suddenly out of the cloakroom and ran against Dolliver.

"Where's Spooner?" asked Alger.

"Do you want to find him?" said Dolliver.

"Sure," replied Alger.

"Well, find Knox then, and you'll have Spooner."

DEFECT IN PRIMARY LAW.

System of Transfers Suggested for Voters Changing Their Residence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Regarding pending legislation in favor of direct primary nominations, I beg to call your attention to a much-needed reform.

Under the existing constitutional requirement, a residence of only thirty days in the election district is required of a voter at the general election in November. To vote at the September primaries, however, the elector must have declared his political allegiance at the time of registration for the preceding election, and must have resided in the same district for the interval, virtually making a requirement of from ten to eleven months' residence in the district in order not to lose his vote for party officers.

Hence we perceive the voter at a party primary must have resided in his district for a period longer than the required period of residence in the county, and almost as long as the period in the State necessary to entitle him to vote at a general election.

I am naturally opposed to colonization of voters for primary election purposes, but I feel that the existing law works great injustice to the bona fide citizen who finds it necessary to change his residence in the Spring or Fall of the year.

Surely a system of transfer from the books of one district to those of another might form a part of the proposed law for this city. FREDERICK W. TAYLOR.

Eleven Good Men and True.

From Law Notes.

A Texas correspondent tells how an obstinate juryman was circumvented by his fellow-judges of the facts. The offense charged was assault with intent to murder. After the jury had been out about two hours it returned the following verdict: "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty of aggravated assault, and assess his punishment at $25 fine and herewith pay the fine." On inquiry as to the meaning of the last clause of the verdict it came out that eleven of the jurors had agreed that the defendant was not guilty, but the twelfth doggedly hung out for a conviction for aggravated assault and would not consent to a punishment less than a fine of $25. Finding it a hopeless task to bring over the obstinate one to their way of thinking, the eleven finally decided to agree with him, and "chipped in" enough to pay the fine.

THE MOUNTAINS.

The mountains are my enemies;
They never seem to answer me,
As often do my friends, the trees,
And always, too, the sea.
They frown upon me when I speak
And do not heed a friendly word;
There's not a nod from any peak
To show that they have heard.

JAMES OWEN TRYON.

ONE-TALENT CANDIDATES.

Mr. Hughes Must Show the Necessary Qualities for Governor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The tendency of both politicians and the people to go after the man who has displayed some one talent has found frequent illustration in our civic life. To go no further back than the candidacy of the Hon. Frank S. Black—attention was drawn to him because of his ability in conducting a murder trial in Troy; this fact of the future Governor's success in securing conviction of the murderer of young Ross was heralded from the platform until the polls closed. Well, we know now what sort of a Governor Mr. Black made; the people of this State, it may be assumed, I think, do not yearn for another Governor of the same kind. But the politicians are just now gunning for another man as their Gubernatorial candidate, one who has certified to the possession of one talent—a very good one—namely, that of examining and cross-examining a witness, and getting the truth out of him; he did his work as well as Mr. Black would have done it. Straightway some politicians and some superficial people who are not politicians conclude that Mr. Hughes, heretofore unknown, is the only available man in sight for the Gubernatorial nomination.

It is all very funny, or would be, if the effects of this superficial reasoning, this proneness to the non-sequitur were not seen to be so disastrous to the body politic. Now, I have not a word to say against Mr. Hughes; my remarks are not directed against him, but to the thoughtless conclusion arrived at by superficial people whose premise and conclusion are not on speaking terms. I suppose the chief requisites of a Governor of this great State are—knowledge of public affairs, courage, integrity, independence, and the other attributes of sterling character. Mr. Hughes may possess all these; if he does, and the fact can be demonstrated, our Republican friends might go further and fare worse. But until this can be shown, it would be folly in present conditions, as it seems to me, to nominate him or any other man on the one-talent platform. Let me say I am not bothering myself over whom the Republicans will nominate for Governor; I would only point a moral derived from experience, and express the hope that neither candidate for Governor this Fall will run on the one-talent platform whether it be the talent of cross-examining or of writing a large check above his characterless name.

TRANSFER RULES.

Complaint of an Absent-Minded Man—Universal Transfer Demand.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My business compels me to make frequent trips between Thirty-third Street and Broadway, and Broadway and Eleventh Street. I have much to think of, and have been accused by my friends of absentmindedness; consequently it has frequently happened that I have in coming uptown taken a Lexington Avenue car, and neglected at the time of paying my fare to ask for a transfer.

I understand, of course, that the conductor is not to blame; on the contrary, it is his business to obey orders, but, owing to the recent rule, I have repeatedly been compelled to pay 10 cents on Broadway cars from Eleventh Street to Thirty-third Street, and that I consider an abominable outrage

Why, Mr. Editor, should I pay 10 cents to ride one mile, owing to a little absentmindedness?

This afternoon a conductor told me that instructions had been issued that under no circumstances should any conductor suggest to a passenger the question of obtaining a transfer, nor should he remind any passenger of the fact that he needed one under pain of a punishment of seven days' suspension. Let the good work begin! Mr. W. Bourke Cockran has given the word to take advantage of the street railway merger by demanding universal transfers from one end of New York County to the other. There is no doubt that the public desires this; then let us make ourselves heard. Every one knows the force of public opinion. BRONX.

The Mary Mortimer Maxwell Papers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I thoroughly enjoyed your recent editorial, which was a sort of summing up of the discussion started by the articles of "An Englishwoman in New York," in THE SUNDAY TIMES, about married life in America. You pointed out to those who fear race suicide that they are worrying unnecessarily, as proved by the letters published. But in this morning's issue I read another letter on the same subject, the writer of which signs himself "Veritas." He says: "We have set up false conventions in this country * * * that are in opposition to the experience of other nations, and even the laws of nature, and we are now beginning to find it out." Will "Veritas" kindly explain what it is he is thinking of? Again, he says, "Men are beginning to fall in their own esteem." Now, that is almost too terrible to believe, but if it be so, and we women are to blame, as he seems to think, will he tell us how to prevent such a dreadful calamity.

I am an unmarried woman, anxiously hoping in the not far distant future to secure a husband who is a contented man of "superior wisdom," and I earnestly desire to learn how to save him from that sad fate that seems to await the husband of to-day. AN ANXIOUS INQUIRER.

Switzerland Not Partial to Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a dispatch from Paris, published in THE TIMES to-day, anent the Algeciras Conference, this statement is made: "Admitting it to be Switzerland, [the neutral power,] there can be no doubt that Germany would have everything to say, as it is no secret that the Federal Government has of late years been attracted within the orbit of Germany."

Your correspondent's conception of Switzerland's position toward Germany is entirely wrong. Commercially and politically Switzerland is not more dependent on Germany to-day than it is on France, and there is no inclination among the Swiss to give Germany a jot of preference over France. A SWISS.

MR. CARNEGIE ON SPELLING.

Incidentally He Calls The Times "the Best Cent's Worth in the World."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thanks. You hit the nail on the head in Monday's TIMES anent simplified spelling, which Swinburne pronounces "a monstrous, barbarous absurdity." Here is a poet, as you justly state, who has been using all his life not only reformed but very recently reformed spelling, as all our present purists have done and are doing, and must do. In this reform the more progressive America has led and will continue to lead. We put America's plow against Britain's plough, honor against honour, humor against humour, program against programme; music until recently was musick; we sent a telegraph in early days, now it is telegram—and many other reforms our land is to be credited with, which, mark you, Britain slowly adopts, because they prove themselves improvements.

The new Oxford Dictionary, giving the history of each word, makes a scholar ridiculous who claims, as an editorial writer in The Evening Post did the other day, that any effective improvement in spelling could not be made without breaking with the history and etymology of the language. The chief editor of the new Oxford writes me that one of its strongest claims to recognition and support is that it banishes forever the idea that English was formed by rule or with any regard to historical or etymological claims.

This effort is not a fad; no attempt at a phonetic system, as you so well point out. It is only an effort to systematize and hasten a process that has been always at work. May I suggest as an earnest disciple of improved spelling that THE TIMES (the best cent's worth I know in the world) might adopt tho for though. One word at a time is a good fishing in the opinion of your constant and edified reader. ANDREW CARNEGIE.

Third-Class and Fourth-Class Postage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Friday, March 16, we posted five parcels of circulars and petitions, stamped properly as we supposed at the third-class rate, 1 cent for each two ounces. On Saturday the New York Post Office notified us that our parcels were held up for unpaid postage. Inquiry as to the cause of the hold-up brought out the statement that on examination of our parcels it was found that they contained petitions which, being more than one-half blank paper, were therefore "merchandise," and subject to the fourth-class rate. If there had been but one petition in a parcel then it might have been posted at the third-class rate, but the presence of two or more petitions made it fourth-class, and we must therefore pay 100 per cent. more postage.

Could there be a more absurd condition of things? Is it not high time for Congress to consolidate third and fourth class mail matter at the old uniform rate of 1874—1 cent per each two ounces—as urgently recommended by the Post Office Department for the last seventeen years?

A Case for Investigation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the year of 1899 my house near Hempstead, Nassau County, was destroyed by fire, and in the year of 1901 settlement was effected with the insurance company. My lawyer wrote to the Treasurer's office at Mineola for a bill of taxes due on the land. They sent him a bill for $7.63, which he forwarded to me. I sent a check for the above amount. They retained the original bill and sent me a receipt for $7.04, making a difference of 59 cents. Thinking, of course, that it was of no importance, I said nothing.

In that same year I sold the land to Mr. Caretto, and he paid the taxes every year, and afterward built a house on said premises. This year, 1906, they sent Mr. Caretto a notice stating that the property was sold for taxes due in 1899, $37.85.

It seems to me that there is something worth looking into involved in this matter.

Professional Confidences.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Sunday's issue "LL. D.," speaking of professional confidences, refers to the Rev. Mr. Wagner of Brighton, England, who was summoned in the Constance Kent murder trial as a "Protestant clergyman." He is mistaken. Mr. Wagner was a priest of the Church of England, which has never described itself as "Protestant," but always as Catholic, and he was bound by a canon of that Church, adopted in 1603, which binds priests to keep the secrets of the confessional under pain of irregularity. This rule holds the consciences of American priests also.

ALUMNAE WANT FUNDS FOR SETTLEMENT HOUSE

Normal College Workers Have $2,175 of $8,000 Needed.

SPEAKERS TELL OF LABORS

Organized Work Not the Most Important, Says One, but Ideals Presented to Tenement Dwellers.

A mass meeting to urge graduates and students of the Normal College to work for money to purchase the building occupied by the Normal College Alumnae Settlement was held yesterday afternoon in the big hall of the college, with a packed house and much enthusiasm. The building is at 446 East Seventy-second Street, and is to be sold for $8,000. Already $2,175 has been raised for it. Three gifts of $500 each have been made by alumnae of the college, and other donors are Miss Grace Dodge, Miss Hannah Colgate, Mrs. Ralph Shainwald, Seth Low, Louis Marshall, and John S. McLean. The owners of the house have extended the time, to allow the association to raise the money.

This information was sprung on the assembly at the close of the meeting, and when interest had been roused by addresses showing the value of settlement work in general and the alumnae settlement work in particular. Printed slips were placed on every desk in the hall, and were filled out and collected before the meeting closed.

"Every one can give a little for the support of the house at least," said Mrs. Harry Arnold Day, Chairman of the Settlement Committee, who presided, "and when it is seen how well our work is carried on people will be interested to help us with larger sums."

A systematic effort is being made to raise money. Miss Helen Gould is one to whom the association has presented its needs, but no response had been received from her at the time of the meeting yesterday.

The Normal College Alumnae Settlement is the only one known which is supported by an alumnae association alone—by a college in the city and that a college of women. Yesterday's was the first meeting ever called in the interest of the settlement work alone. Among the speakers were Miss Lillian D. Wald, head worker in the Nurses' Settlement, which is a pioneer in this line of work; Dr. John Lovejoy Elliot of the Society for Ethical Culture, and Mrs. Archibald A. Hill, head worker of the Alumnae Settlement.

"The actual organized work of the settlement is not the most important," said Miss Wald. "It is the ideals which we present. When in our beginning we chopped wood and scrubbed floors to have a common interest with the people, those were the small things which marked our exalted purpose. But I could spend my time here in telling you of the unpleasant impressions our people here make upon the foreigners who come among us. The Chinaman who has a laundry near us, and who replied when I asked about his partner that 'he was hit on the head by a Clistian gen'l'man,' is only one of them."

Dr. Elliot compared the people to the deserts of the West, which could be fertilized only by hidden streams within, which it would require mental effort to free.

"Settlement work," he said, "goes down into the ground and touches the springs. Charity will always be a class affair until the poor people themselves are brought into it and work for each other."

He illustrated the attitude of the people to things which do not apparently touch them directly with the story of a moral tale he had once told a small boy.

"It was the history of Nero," said Dr. Elliot, "and I told him of the murder of Nero's mother, of the burning of Rome, and finally when I thought I had made it pretty strong I asked him what he thought of it, but he would not answer. He was embarrassed and I was embarrassed, but I was telling a tale that pointed a moral, and I persisted.

"'What would you think of a man who did all those things?' I asked.

"'He never done nothin' to me,' said the boy finally.

"That is the way it is," continued Dr. Elliot; "private interests give chloroform to public interests. The only way to get over this is to get the people to act and to give them a chance to express themselves. Where do the mothers ever have a chance to express themselves except through the settlements? If there could be a change in the laws so that men and women would have a chance to express themselves in local affairs there would be many improvements."

Mrs. Hill told of the need of settlement work in the vicinity of the settlement house, which joins one of the most populous blocks in the city.

"I don't doubt that tuberculosis on the whole is decreasing," she said, "but in our neighborhood we have lately been discovering an average of a case a day."

President Hunter of the college said that in the settlement work its graduates were paying back to the city with compound interest the money expended on their educations.

Miss Grace Elliston of the Lyceum Theatre gave a reading to close the afternoon.

THE MANSFIELD "THRILLER."

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde Again Satisfies with Horrors.

From the delicate refinement of the aristocratic Beau to the grim horror of Mr. Hyde in the series of incidents culled from Robert Louis Stevenson's story and called a play is a transition which serves to indicate an actor's versatility, whatever else it may fail to accomplish. Mr. Mansfield made that transition last night, as has been his custom for many years, again emphasizing his ability at complete and rapid change of character in the transitions from the gentle Dr. Jekyll to the gruesome monster Hyde.

As heretofore, the unfolding of the gloomy tale was watched with shivering interest by an audience which taxed the capacity of the immense auditorium of the New Amsterdam Theatre, and to whom the thriller apparently had all the charm of novelty.

Neither the play nor Mr. Mansfield's acting of the dual rôle demand more than a passing notice at this late day. Both are in demand chiefly because there still exists a large public to whom the morbidly grotesque makes a strong appeal.

In last night's supporting company competent assistance was provided by Mr. Andrews and Miss Rockwell, a particularly excellent bit of characterization being offered by Mr. Mellish.

To-night Don Carlos will be repeated.

Savage Gets Musical Plays Abroad.

Henry W. Savage returned yesterday from Europe after a two months' trip abroad. He visited Naples to hear Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly," the American and English rights of which belong to him. A novelty obtained for production here is the German musical play, "The Joyous Widow," by Vikor Leon and Franz Lehar. Mr. Savage also obtained the rights for two musical plays by French composers.

A YARN OF A CROCODILE.

She Yearned for a Chinese Meal, but Her Sea Legs Were Not Good.

'Twas on the good ship Atholl, just arrived from Malabar, that a crocodile, with a winning smile, approached a hardy tar. She brought two eggs for baggage, seemed exceedingly select, so the Cap said, "Hey! Come on! Belay!" and more to that effect.

The reptile's name was Lena and she sailed 'mid tropic isles, till—lo! her eggs acquired legs and walked like crocodiles. And Lena said, "A dinner grand I'll give my babies wee," and thereupon saw Ching Kan Yon, (the Chinese boatswain he.)

She followed him around the deck; the Chink caught on at last. He yelled "Belay!" and spent the day perched on the mizzen mast. The reptile paused, then with the words, "My babies wee must sup," the timber raw, with iron jaw, she started to chew up.

The boatswain in the mizzenmast did to Confucius pray, but mighty Con did not get on, (it was his busy day.) And then the Chink in terror loudly screamed unto the croc: "Lun lound a while, dear clocodile; me gettee dleadful shock."

He screamed so that the third mate came, (the gallant Mr. Luce,) but ere he had that reptile bad a wave of ocean juice came pouring o'er the gunwales, catching Lena on the side, and with a grin she vanished in the briny deep, and died.

And now the Atholl lies in port, from savage reptiles far; far, far away from Mandalay, (or rather, Malabar.) Beside the dock two reptiles wee in silence mourn their loss, while Ching Kan Yon has duly gone to thank the Mott Street joss.

RUDOLPH GANZ'S RECITAL.

A Brilliant Performance in Mendelssohn Hall.

Rudolph Ganz yesterday afternoon added another to the long list of piano recitals that have been given in New York this season. He appeared about two months ago as soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra. His playing of Liszt's E flat concerto at that time suggested powers that were quite out of the ordinary. His performance yesterday was in many ways interesting; it showed him to be possessed of finely poetic feeling in certain ways, of a lively imagination, and musical intelligence.

Yet he is more at home in music that demands primarily brilliancy, speed, strength, and the resources of a virtuoso rather than the qualities that penetrate into the deeper things of music. His programme was devised to bring these resources into prominence. After Beethoven's Appassionata Sonata and Brahms's variations on a theme by Handel, he devoted himself entirely to the tours de force of modern schools of piano music, and with these he accomplished some remarkable results.

His playing of the sonata was marked by a certain lack of balance and repose. He is fond of violent contrasts, and especially of an excessive rubato that deprived his reading of breadth and dignity, and injured its rhythmical continuity, and in places of clearness. Many of Brahms's variations were played with great power and bravura, but he did not allow enough scope for contrast, and some of the effects of tenderness and of mystery he missed. The fugue at the end, while he did not make its structure wholly clear, was played with a great sweep and energy.

Not till he reached the group of pieces by Alkan, Ravel, Debussy, and Grieg did Mr. Ganz show himself at his best. Alkan's "After the Battle" is insignificant enough as music, but its picturesque suggestions he delighted in showing forth vividly. So, too, with Ravel's ingenious dalliance with the pianoforte in imitation of the playing of water.

The same composer's quaint "Pavane on the Death of a Girl" is more specifically music and was charmingly played, and into Debussy's frantic Prelude he entered with tremendously characteristic spirit. In Grieg's set of variations that he calls a ballade Mr. Ganz showed sympathy with the various moods that are so rapidly passed in review. His last pieces were Liszt's "Les Jeux d'Eau a la Villa d'Este," another essay in pianistic plumbing effects; the "Petrarch Sonnet," and the "Dante Sonata." He reached the summit of his achievements in this "sonata."

The piece is most arduous; poor in musical invention, labored in construction, purely rhetorical in its style, but highly "pianistic," and abounding in all that the great master of pianistic rhetoric could put into it. Mr. Ganz played it with tremendous sweep and sonority, and an endurance that knew no limit. It was a remarkable performance in its way, and aroused much enthusiasm.

MR. BEIGEL'S CONCERT.

Misses Metcalfe, Ives, and Vanderveer and Mr. Raymond Heard in Modern Songs.

The second of two vocal concerts planned by Mr. Victor Beigel was given last evening in Mendelssohn Hall before a large audience that showed a friendly interest in the singers. These were the same as at Mr. Beigel's previous concert: Miss Susan Metcalfe, Miss Frances Ives, Miss Nevada Vanderveer, and Mr. William Raymond. Miss Metcalfe is well known in New York concert halls; the others are making their first appearances there. They show nervousness and in some ways inexperience; but they all appeared to better advantage than they did before.

The programme this time was devoted wholly to modern songs, with the exception of two unfamiliar ones of Schubert's sung by Miss Ives, "Du liebst mich nicht" and "Das Lied im Grünen." Miss Ives's voice is not wide in its range, but it has quality and richness and she sings with intelligence. Miss Vanderveer is also well equipped by nature, and she appreciated the meaning of the beautiful contralto songs of Brahms she sang, with viola obbligato by Miss Olive Mead. Mr. Raymond's voice is not a rich or a powerful organ, but his singing is governed by taste and a real musical feeling. Miss Metcalfe gave the ripest and most artistic contributions to the programme. Mr. Beigel played the accompaniments beautifully.

PROF. J. M. PIERCE DEAD.

Harvard Loses Her Ranking Professor—A Noted Educator.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 21.—Prof. James Mill Pierce, the ranking professor of Harvard University, died at his home, on Kirkland Place, this afternonn at the age of 72 after a short illness. Prof. Pierce was taken ill with bronchitis a week ago. The disease developed into pneumonia, which resulted fatally this afternoon.

Prof. Pierce's retirement from the Harvard Faculty, to take effect on March 1, 1907, was announced but a short time ago.

Prof. Pierce was one of the most noted figures in the Harvard Faculty. At the time of his death he was Professor of Astronomy, having previously to that been a Professor of Mathematics. He was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1853, being a classmate of President Eliot. The following year he took his mater's degree and at once entered upon his task of teaching at Harvard, which he continued to his death.

Prof. Pierce was the author of several important works on mathematics and astronomy. He was the son of James Pierce, the famous mathematician.

RAILROAD TAX LAW VOID.

Levy on Gross Receipts of Texas Roads Held Unconstitutional.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 21.—The State Appellate Court to-day declared the railroad gross receipt tax law, which was passed by the last Legislature, null and void on the ground that certain of its provisions are in violation of the State Constitution.

The law provided for a tax of 2 per cent. on the gross receipts of the railroads of the State.

SEVENTY-FOUR PICTURES BRING TOTAL OF $63,635

Samuel Untermyer Pays $8,000 for a Jean Marc Nattier.

EHRICH SALE AT WALDORF

Stanford White, John D. Crimmins, and Mrs. John E. Parsons Made Purchases Through an Agent.

The seventy-four "old masters" from the Ehrich Galleries, which were accompanied each with a dealer's guarantee of genuineness and which were considered worth a five-dollar edition de luxe catalogue, were sold last evening in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria for $63,635. The attendance was large and the paintings were disposed of with dispatch. There was applause when Nattier's "La Duchesse de Chateauroux et la Comtesse de Flavacourt" was sold to Samuel Untermyer for $8,000. Stanford White, Mrs. John E. Parsons, S. T. Perry, J. Kaufmann, and Marc A. Blumenberg were some of the persons who bought through an agent who said he was "Mr. O'Reilly."

John D. Crimmins paid $270 for a landscape by G. B. Willcock, the same price for "The Flight Into Egypt," Pedro de Mora, and $1,050 for a portrait of John Philpot Curran, attributed to Sir Henry Raeburn. John Opie's "Girl at the Well" also went to Mr. Crimmins and for the same price. This was one of the few pictures of the evening which started at $500. "The Young Prelate in Red," by Carrena de Miranda, Mr. Crimmins bid in for $450.

"The Lock," by Constable, a scene supposed to have been located on the River Stour in England, brought the second highest price of the sale, going to an agent for $6,200. This had been in the collections of Mr. Sanderson, Bullers Wood, Chiselhurst, England, and of Col. Ellis, London. The two pictures by Jan Victoors, a pupil of Rembrandt, which were among the portraits best liked by some critics, brought respectively $875 for "A Dutch Gentleman" and $625 for "A Dutch Lady," going to L. A. Lanthier.

Following is a list of buyers, prices, pictures, and artists to whom they were ascribed:

DEATH OF G. R. PATTERSON.

Congressman from 12th Pennsylvania District Expires Suddenly.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Representative George R. Patterson of the Twelfth Pennsylvania District died suddenly here early this morning of heart trouble. He returned to Washington last night from his home in Ashland, Penn., and apparently was in the best of health. He was with his secretary until midnight, when he retired, but about 4 o'clock this morning was taken ill and died an hour later.

The House adjourned as soon as Mr. Patterson's death was announced.

Mr. Patterson was born at Lewistown, Mifflin County, Penn., in 1863, and attended the public schools and the academy at that place. At his death he was the Central Pennsylvania agent of a large flour company of Minneapolis. He had always been a Republican and had taken an active part in the politics of his district. He was a delegate to the last National Republican Convention and was elected to the Fifty-seventh, Fifty-eighth, and Fifty-ninth Congresses.

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

SIDENBERG—HOFFMAN.

A wedding of Tuesday was that of Miss May Isabel Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hoffman of 59 East Eightieth Street, and William Richard Sidenberg. The wedding took place at Delmonico's. Miss Edna L. Hoffman was the maid of honor. The Misses Florence Schafer, Alice Sidenberg, Elsie Sidenberg, Irma Rothschild, and Carrie Bijur were bridesmaids.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a wedding gown of white satin, trimmed with point lace. The bridesmaids were all in pink and carried pink roses and daisies. The maid of honor wore pale green and carried pink roses and daisies.

Edward Blum was best man. The ushers were Frank Solomon, Charles Samson, Ralph Kempner, De Witt P. Rosenheim, Arthur J. Rosenthal, Joseph Sidenberg, Alfred Sidenberg, Samuel Bookman, Frederic Bookman, Herbert Russell, Otto Kaufman, and Arthur Sidenberg.

A reception and wedding dinner, served in the ballroom, followed the ceremony.

CURTIS—CRAIG.

Miss Grace C. Craig and Henry Savery Curtis of the firm of H. C. Curtis & Co. of Troy, N. Y., were married yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's uncle, 463 West End Avenue. The Rev. Andrew Gillies of St. Andrew's Methodist Episcopal Church officiated. Mr. Curtis is a member of the New York Athletic Club.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

Two interesting entertainments are on society's programme this afternoon, one for charity—the tableaus at the Waldorf-Astoria—and the Oriental dances at the Hudson Theatre, by invitation only. Both are, unfortunately, set for the same hour, the tableaus for 3:15 and the dances for 3:30. The latter will be followed at 5 o'clock by tea served in the foyer.
